A total of 25 persons, including three reporters and half a dozen out-of-town guests, heard Warden Westlake describe the Society's work as "often unrewarding," despite tireless efforts in rehabilitating persons released from prison.

Last year, John Howard volunteers served over 3,000 men in Ontario making use of some $450,000 in public donations.

The Society's work enters into the field of public education and penal reform.

Warden Westlake also accepted the donation of technical magazines for the prison library from Mrs Gabrielle Griffiths of the Trenton Library Board.

Mr. Westlake said the library at the new medium security federal penitentiary will play an especially important role in the rehabilitation of the youthful first offenders incarcerated at Warkworth

North Front Street

Planning Board Approves New Shopping Plaza Site

A sub-regional shopping plaza on North Front Street to serve Belleville and the surrounding district for a radius of 25 miles received approval in principle from Belleville and Suburban Planning Board Thursday night.

Plans submitted by the developers, Cambridge Leaseholds of Toronto, will be used as a basis for a re-zoning by-law to be written to satisfy technical problems concerning traffic movement. The property is now zoned for industrial use.

At a public hearing and special meeting of the board at City Hall, George Elliott of Cambridge Leaseholds unveiled his firm's plans for the area.

Site of the proposed development is an L-shaped lot of 18 acres, north of Elliott Motors and west of the Ontario Provincial Police headquarters. Since the original re-zoning application was made by city realtor Doug Grant two weeks ago, arrangements have been made to acquire an additional seven acres of adjacent land belonging to Shell Oil Company.

The plaza will include a department store, at least 20 service stores, and a food market. A service station and car wash is slated for the southwest corner of the property. The plaza will eventually employ about 300 people.

With 166,000 square feet of floor space in the buildings and parking for 1,280 cars it will be larger than the present Belleville Plaza which has 126,000 square feet of floor space and parking for 1,125 cars.

No objection to the re-zoning was voiced by planning board members or the 20 nearby landowners notified of the move. Concern was expressed by the city engineer and police department regarding traffic movement on the North Front St. access route to highway 401.

Planning director P. J. Beavis reported a verbal notification from an Ontario Department of Highways official calling for careful study of traffic and entrances to the plaza. The department indicated it believed the main entrances to the plaza should be on a potential new road off North Front St., running in an east-west direction between Elliott Motors and the proposed plaza. An unopened road allowance now exists between the two properties.

In moving approval of the re-zoning, Ald. E. A. Orr remarked that travellers on highway 401 get a negative impression of Belleville.

"This ultra-modern plaza will be a front window for the city," he said.

Doug Grant said the plaza development could be the means of opening up the northern area of city between North Front St. and Sidney St.

A recommended special spot zoning bylaw will go to council Feb. 19 for approval. Final Ontario Municipal Board approval.

"We hope to open the plaza by Easter, 1969," Mr. Elliott told The Intelligencer following the meeting.

"Planning Board's approval has been a great break-through for us We are a firm of developers, not land speculators. As soon as we get final OMB approval of the re-zoning based on our plans, we will begin signing 25-year leases with interested companies.'

Mr. Elliott said Cambridge Leaseholds is basing its construction on the potential of over 100,000 customers in the 25 mile area around Belleville. His firm owns 12 to 15 similar properties in Ontario and is now completing a 67-acre plaza in Burlington.

"This is a great area for development," Mr. Elliott said. "I lived in the city when I was stationed here with the RCAF, and know it well. It has fine potential for development."

One of the musical highlights for the "Moirantics' show should be the songs played by these three students. A slightly different combination is formed with John Campbell on 12-string guitar, Susan Brickwood with a vocal interpretation and Mike McLouglin strumming the mandolin.

Variety Show Slated

Things are in full swing for Moira Secondary School's "Moirantics", the student's yearly variety show.

This year "Dear Diary", the 1968 title of the production will have as a theme "a young girl looks back on her high school days."

Next weekend, Feb. 16 and 17, will be the date of the show and of course action around Moira Secondary's gymnatorium is in high gear as the students prepare for the acts and music and the back-stage tasks of making and arranging props.

Managing the show are two teachers from the school, Mrs. Diane Coyne and Murray Irwin.

Versatility could best describe what will take place next week-end. Over 20 different acts will participate on stage, including skits, music, dancing and humor.

Of special note is the use of original song-writing of the cast. Six musical pieces were composed especially for the variety night.

Admissions for Moira's night is 50c for students and $1. per adult.

John Deacon New Chairman Of Utilities

Yesterday's meeting of the Public Utilities Commission of Belleville saw the election of new commissioner John Deacon to the chair of the commission.

This year's commission consists of Lyle Langabeer, former chairman, John Deacon, newly-elected chairman and the mayor of the city of Belleville.

Business conducted at the meeting was minimal. Approval from council for the street lighting program recommended by the commission was returned so work will be started on the lighting almost immediately.

It was also decided by the commission yesterday to increase the price paid to local contractors for the installation of water meters. Formerly the commission was paying $7.50 for each installation — it was decided yesterday to increase this to $9.00 per meter.

The reason for the increase given by the commission was recognition of rising costs and also an effort to attract more local contractors into making bids.

The next meeting of the commission will be held March 13 and by that time it is hoped that Mayor J. Russell Scott will be back.

Quinte Member Renews Call For Joint Area Efforts

TRENTON — Called in as a last-minute replacement, Quinte M.P.P. Dr. Richard Potter delivered an address to local Kiwanians last night, touching on industry, education, and medicare.

Dr. Potter replaced Dr. J. R. McCarthy, Deputy Minister of Education, who was unable to make the trip from Queen's Park.

The Quinte MPP renewed his call for joint area efforts by individual municipalities, and to "stop fighting amongst ourselves as to whether Trenton gets something Belleville doesn't, or vice versa."

The Quinte area had "everything industry wants", including good existing educational facilities, ideal railway location, and a spot along the Bay of Quinte "even if it is a cesspool"

A shortage of serviced industrial land to show prospective industries was a hindrance to further Quinte expansion, Dr. Potter said.

A definite asset was Loyalist College, with its curriculum being geared to both community and industrial needs.

Dr. Potter rounded out his addres by re-affirming he is not against medical insurance schemes, as such.

Although opposed to the compulsory scheme being pressed now by Ottawa he added "No one has ever been refused medical care in this province because he can't play for it."

"THE SMUG MINORITY"

"The march of social progress is like a long and straggling parade, with the seers and prophets at its head and a smug minority bringing up the rear . . ."

THE SMUG MINORITY is Pierre Burton's fifteenth book and in many respects the most important book he has ever written. It expresses his mature convictions about the society in which we live.

THE SMUG MINORITY continues to present as realities copy book maxims that have long since become obsolete:

- A woman's place is in the home.
- Satan finds more mischief still for idle hands to do.
- Too much security kills initiative.
- Anyone who works hard will rise to the top.
- Higher taxes will wreck the nation.
- Private property must be sacrosanct.

All of these statements are open to challenge and it is the purpose of this book to challenge them.

The Captains Depart

The first federal-provincial constitutional conference has ended with the participants achieving a considerable measure of agreement, despite some eleventh-hour hesitation on the issue of language equality from Alberta and British Columbia.

French will now enjoy equal status in all provinces. A new constitution is also anticipated. Presumably its main emphasis will be additional powers for Quebec and a guaranteeing of the rights of French Canadians. Prime Minister Pearson says he expects it will be drawn up in less than three years.

The conference itself will be self-perpetuating, with further meetings to be held from time to time.

The meeting of the premiers is symptomatic of the new spirit of Canadianism that had its beginnings in Centennial Year and Expo. Canadians are coming out of their collective shells and discovering their own country as well as themselves. The premiers have given a good lead.

Even Premier Bennett of British Columbia, always more at home out west than in spending time in discussion of national affairs, redeemed himself somewhat before leaving Ottawa.

Accosted outside the conference room by a man who described the constitution as "junk" and Canada as "an uncivilized nation," Mr. Bennett replied: "You are looking for a lot of publicity. You are freer in Canada than in the country you came from. This is a great country and you are welcome here."

The man, a Hungarian native who has been conducting a one-man war against the Government for some time, says he has been refused Canadian citizenship because he will not swear an oath of allegiance to the Queen.

Premier Bennett we think answered him well. The western premier spoke for all Canadians.

Teachers From Abroad

The recruitment by Toronto education officials of nearly 100 Australian and New Zealand teachers has raised the ire of authorities both here and "down under."

The Australians and New Zealanders with their relatively small population can ill afford to lose so many qualified teachers.

Meanwhile the Federation of Women Teachers Associations of Ontario says the practice of recruiting teachers overseas is unfair to both experienced and beginning teachers in Ontario and to school boards which cannot afford recruiting teams. The federation is also critical on the ground it is using up taxpayers' money.

Revealing too is the statement of one of the Toronto officials, N. A. Sweetman.

"They (the federation) won't like it too well because a scarcity of teachers always helps salaries . . . But we always need teachers and we're looking for the best we can get."

This raises two questions. Are teachers in business to maintain a scarcity so they can have higher salaries? And why in a country of 20 million people like Canada (and including the many immigrant teachers from Britain and Europe) is there not a sufficient number to fill vacancies and new posts without having to send recruiting teams half way around the world?

Indian Education

An interesting experiment in the education of the Indians of this country is the Travelling College to which reference was made in this column recently.

The train is to visit Belleville this year as well as Montreal, Kingston, Toronto, Brantford, London, St. Catharines and Hamilton. Subsequent visits will take in Parry Sound, Sudbury, Sault Ste. Marie, Sturgeon Falls and Blind River.

Indian communities involved during the 1968-69 season include the Six-nation bands of the Mohawks, Oneidas, Onondagas, Cayugas, Senecas and Tuscaroras.

Sponsored by the Indians themselves, this North American Travelling College will be assisted by the Company of Young Canadians in matters of development, administration and research.

Among the college's objectives are the provision of higher education for potential Indian leaders and the development of curricula and methods suitable for young Indians.

Most important the college hopes to inculcate in Indians a sense of pride, unity and hope. It hopes to improve communication among the Indian people, and interpret to non-Indians the contributions Indians can make to 20th century life.

Cape Breton Youth Shows His Mettle

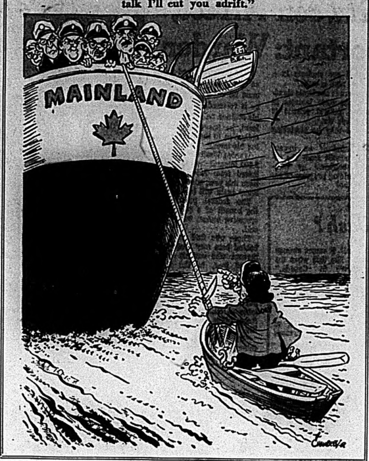
Peterborough Examiner

If anyone wants proof of the kind of stuff some members of the younger generation are made of, they need only study the case of John MacDonald, a 19-year-old Cape Bretoner whose parents were killed in an automobile accident shortly before Christmas.

As the oldest in a family of 10 brothers and sisters, John felt it his duty to keep the family together. So he postponed his plan to enter the ministry and has gone to work to support the children. He will have nothing to do with government efforts to break up the family and send them to foster homes. John insists he is able to act as father while one of his sisters, Lena, 17, acts as mother.

John MacDonald is a courageous lad and a credit to his parents, and we wish him well.

"I'm warning you fellows—if I hear any more foolish talk I'll cut you adrift."



Nothing New Under the Sun

The following verse from a 1913 issue of The Houston Post seems as relevant to the basic problems of the average municipality today as it was 55 years ago.

I love a busy, bustling town.
One day they put the pavement down.
All nice and smooth and sweet; and then
Next day they tear it up again.
From one end of the street back to
Its other end, that's what they do;
And then they get it smooth and flat,
And give it its last loving pat.
And then there is a shriek of fear
Comes from the city engineer —
He has mislaid his monkey wrench!
And instantly they start a trench
And toss the pavement all around
Until that monkey wrench is found!
And then they tamp the dirt in tight,
And get it leveled off all right,
And surface it with hard concrete,
And make a street as is a street
By putting sand and bisk on that,
And the steam roller makes it flat.
Then they pierce the pavement through and through
To lay a line of pipe or two!
And they repair that, and it lies
Smoothly beneath the summer skies
For, it may be a day or two;
Then there's a sewer to run through!
Now, when someone you chance to meet
Talks of the "busy city street,"
That's what he means, in this man's town —
The street that's getting up and down
And rolling over that way, till
It just seems like it can't lie still.

Facelift for Beer Parlours

Peterborough Examiner

Functional would be a good word to describe Ontario beer parlours. Their austere and somewhat crude atmosphere is governed by the very fact that they are functional — it is merely a place where a person goes for some draft or bottled beer. It doesn't pretend to be anything else. There are none of the little niceties which one expects in an English pub or the plushier surroundings of the Canadian cocktail bar. The beer parlour copes with a special type of clientele. This is to be changed.

Now that the limit has been taken off the price of a glass of beer and beer parlours have put up their prices there is every expectation that there will be an improvement. Some operators have improved decor including broadloomed floors, chandeliers and even bunny girls serving the beer to the drinkers. Also there is the thought that once the establishments have improved they will have a broader appeal. There is every possibility that the ever-increasing price of liquor will increase the number of people who become habitues.

Doubtless the beer parlour as we know it today, will remain a part of the Ontario scene. There are too many beer drinkers who simply will not go for the plushier joints, preferring to put up with the barest essentials and amenities so that they can have their suds cheaper. And it would be a pity for them to vanish because they still represent the frontier image which is so much a part of Canada today but, by the same token, it will be a relief for many others who enjoy a beer in less austere surroundings.

"Medicaid" Costly for New York

Rochester Democrat and Chronicle

Gov. Rockefeller's statement that medicaid will have to be revised to cut costs is a late but still welcome acknowledgment that we cannot go on as we have been doing. Bitter experience has shown that the fears of those who opposed medicaid in its present form — and upstate voices were particularly strong — have been amply confirmed. The program as it's now administered is just too expensive.

The governor puts the blame on the federal government. In fact, the state has only itself to blame. It sets its standards of assistance at unrealistically high levels and in effect forced the federal authorities to impose some limits. In its first year alone, medicaid cost the local, state and federal governments $111 million more than had been anticipated.

Letter to the Editor

Salvation Army's Service

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

It was with interest that I listened to the city council meeting on Monday and then read the headline in your paper on Tuesday, "Used Furniture Collection New Venture for City."

It seems that neither members of our council nor your reporter, are aware that for at least 12 years The Salvation Army has been providing a clothing and furniture pick-up service in the city, at no cost to the citizens of Belleville either directly or indirectly, except in the case of large items, such as refrigerators or stoves, when a truck has to be hired to make the collection.

It might be interesting to know how much furniture the city collected with the taxpayers' $133.72.

When we moved across the city a year ago we rented a three-ton truck for a whole day for approximately $25.00 and moved nine rooms of furniture.

Ottawa-Hull

Federal District Concept

Windsor Star

Ontario and Quebec evidently have assented to the creation of a capital district in the Ottawa-Hull area. It would not be similar to that in Washington (where there is no elected municipal government). Local governments and provincial boundaries still would exist.

It would enable the Federal Government, however, to cross provincial lines and to create a large area of beauty and utility on both sides of the Ottawa River. This certainly would enhance our capital.

Hull is not now a place of beauty; indeed much of it is unsightly and nondescript. But it could be transformed into a scene pleasant to the eyes. It is on the banks of both the Ottawa and Gatineau Rivers.

A substantial proportion of the people of Hull already work in the capital city of Ottawa, in government service or other ways. A few government buildings have been established in Hull. But their surroundings are not attractive. The government of Quebec always has had a tendency to ignore Hull.

The Ottawa-Hull area is one of great natural beauty, with the lovely Gatineau Hills in the background and replete with small lakes and streams. It is an ideal place for our capital. But our capital had never been all that it could or should be, just because one side of the Ottawa River has been largely neglected.

Vigilant Computers

Ottawa Journal

Computers are used in Saskatchewan to trap rustlers. They permit quick checks for stolen cattle at markets with the mechanical "memory" maintaining a record of brands. What a day it will be when computers go out on the range and put on the brands themselves! Then, of course, there will have to be good computers to hunt down the ones who go bad and put their brands on neighbors' cattle.

Animals Know How To Relax

Windsor Star

It is said animals seldom have stomach ulcers. This could be because they have a natural ability to relax. A cat, whenever it has nothing better to do, can curl up comfortably for a "cat nap." A dog will recline at ease almost anywhere.

The same is true of larger animals. The cow, having eaten her fill in the pasture, will lie down and contentedly chew her cud. The horse can even sleep on his feet and, when in his winter stall, often does.

In their wild state animals do have their pressures, as in finding enough to eat or in protecting themselves against other animals. But otherwise they have this same capacity to relax.

Domestic animals seldom get upset unless humans annoy or excite them. There is such a thing as animal neurosis but this usually is in pampered pets who get the idea they are human and ignore their natural instincts.

Humans could learn from animals the advantages of relaxation. Indeed the man who habitually takes a "cat nap" after the noon meal, or again after supper, finds the practice a protection against stomach ulcers or nervous strain brought on by daily pressures.

Silver Enjoys Fresh Vogue

Regina Leader-Post

The increased price of silver which has now reached a high of $2 per ounce (compared with the former price of $1.20 set and maintained by the United States government) is creating a new interest in silver deposits on this continent from the mountains of Mexico to the northlands of Canada.

With its expanding volume of coinage and a tremendous demand for silver in the field of electronics and other technological areas, the United States found its surplus of the metal being rapidly reduced, and in an attempt to eke out its supply and hold the price of $1.29 an ounce, began to debase its coinage. This, however, failed to hold the silver reserve at a satisfactory level.

With the lifting of control the price of this metal began to rise to a realistic level more in keeping with mining and recovery costs of the present day. This has also, quite naturally, resulted in a new interest in Canada in the production of silver.

The new price of silver, which may not yet have reached its peak level, has already stimulated its mining in Northern Ontario, northern British Columbia and North West Territories. Underground exploration development programs have been set up involving hundreds of thousands of dollars and in some cases extremely rich ore has been located. The area extent of these finds will determine the amount of future investment in mining equipment.

In every case recorded the ore contains lead, but only in a comparatively small ratio. When refined it will produce a reversal of the more prevalent proportions of the two metals. Lead will be more of a byproduct, not silver.

Poltergeists And Bumps In the Night

Windsor Star

If parapychologists are hard to find these days, it could be for the reason some or most of them are in Malaysia. A series of incidents of the kind they enjoy has been reported from there. They are referred to sometimes as "things that go bump in the night."

A geochemist is said to have revealed that first stones fell on the roof of the house involved. Then more stones fell inside the house, which must have been disconcerting, to say the least. Next, according to the same authority, articles in the house caught fire.

Anyone who kept up with the news about four decades ago would be temped to say "Mary Ellen is back. But most adults today never heard of Mary Ellen MacDonald, the Nova Scotia girl presumed to have set a series of fires in a farmhouse on a winter night going on half a century back. A parapsychologist of the time said she was "obsessed by a discarnate spirit." His report, in the archives of a Maritime university, continues to say just that.

Chinese temple mediums are quoted as dismissing the latest manifestation, or whatever it was, in two words: "Evil spirits."

Sex and the Olympics

St. Catharines Standard

Rarely do we have an Olympic Games without some sort of an international hassle. This year it concerns sex tests — they want to be sure the girl athletes are really girls. (They're not worried, apparently, about whether the men athletes are really men.)

There have been occasions in the world of sport, as elsewhere, when a woman has really turned out to be a man. It is patently unfair for men to compete against women, and therefore the officials are going to design some sort of test to make sure that every woman is, indeed, a woman. We doubt that there are enough such incidents, or enough such borderline cases, to warrant all the fuss, but that is what they are going to do.

Personally, we trust our eyesight, and are quite prepared to say that most girl athletes are girls (Especially those girl gymnasts!) Of course, Avery Brundage, the president of the International Olympic Committee, is 80 years old. Perhaps he's forgotten what girls look like.

Meanwhile, it seems mighty degrading to treat our women athletes like a bunch of doped-up race horses. If the substitution of male for female competitors is that much of a problem, maybe we should forget all about the Olympic Games.

Ex-Mayor Ellis was the choice of a panel of five judges from a list of seven candidates suggested. Mr. Ellis will be the guest of honor at the annual Jaycees awards night dinner scheduled for next Thursday night.

Members of the panel who chose Mr. Ellis as citizen of the year were Mrs. Marie Huffman, Archdeacon A. S. McConnell, Ted Schwab, Acting Mayor Douglas Boyle, and Jaycees president Bob McLeod.

Consultants Ask City For Study Approval

Contrary to the impression given yesterday in The Intelligencer, completion of the downtown renewal study for the city is still at least a year away.

Yesterday an article in The Intelligencer said planning consultants Proctor and Redfern would present their study report to council at a special meeting on Monday.

Actually the consultants will present to council for its approval the submission to the federal and provincial governments asking approval for the study.

"Completion of the study is still at least a year away," said Planning Director J. Beavis.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Continuing Thursday's sharpest drop in more than 2½ years, prices on the Toronto Stock Exchange tumbled in moderate to active mid-morning trading today.

Declines outnumbered advances more than six to one. Only golds rallied under renewed speculation about devaluation of the Canadian dollar.

The market followed the trend on Wall Street which also was sharply down in early activity.

Analysts blamed investors' fears about the increasing seriousness of the international political situation, especially in Vietnam and Korea, which now has added its weight to an already bearish market.

Oils again paced the decline as the group average, down more than eight points Thursday, fell 3.58 to 180.89 in the first hour of trading.

Imperial dropped 1½ to 62, Scurry-Rainbow 1⅛ to 37, Husky 1 to 20, Home A ¾ to 21 and Central-Del Rio and BA ½ each to 17 and 38¼.

The industrial index, down almost four points Thursday, tumbled 1.33 to 150.27 as Falconbridge declined 2 to 96½, Seagrams 1 to 38½, Consumers' Gas ¾ to 19¼ and Bell, Alcan and MacMillan Bloedel ½ each to 43¼, 25¾ and 21, respectively.

special care of their pets.

"They should warn their children to stay away from animals — domestic and otherwise."

The chief was joined by Dr. C. R. Lenk, public health officer for Hastings and Prince Edward counties, in cautioning Bellevillians.

Dr. Lenk said householders must "rigidly adhere" to local animal-control bylaws. Dogs and cats must be kept from running at large "at all times."

The family undergoing the 14-day treatment with anti-rabies vaccine was not identified.

However, both officials confirmed it was a precautionary measure.

Police are knocking on doors in the Station Street area after CNR police recently reported seeing children playing around a fox carcass.

Again it's just a cautionary action.

Dr. Lenk stresses that rabies cannot be transmitted unless there is contact between the infected carrier's saliva and an open body scratch.

Meantime, to bring the message home, the police department's safety officer is touring city schools passing the warning first hand to Belleville youngsters.

Officials also indicated prosecutions might be pushed against householders who persist in ignoring city bylaws against dogs at large.

GM Walkout Closes Plants in Oshawa, Windsor

TORONTO (CP) — About 1,000 workers at the Ste. Therese, Que., car-assembly plant of General Motors of Canada Ltd. have joined a wildcat walkout that has already shut GM plants in Oshawa and Windsor, Ont.

Another 850 day shift employees at Ste. Therese were expected to stay away from work today, bringing to 15,850 the number of GM workers in stoppages in the three centres.

The unauthorized strikes dimmed hope of contract settlements with the United Auto Workers Union before a strike deadline midnight tonight.

Negotiations between Louis Seaton, GM vice-president of personnel from Detroit, and Leonard Woodcock, UAW international vice-president, appeared deadlocked.

Earlier Thursday, GM took swift disciplinary action in Oshawa, 35 miles east of here, where five persons were dismissed for their part in the walkout.

The unsanctioned strike by UAW members started in Oshawa at 8 p.m. Wednesday night when 500 employees, members of Local 222 at the truck plant, quit in protest against the breakdown in contract negotiations.

They were followed by another 3,000 workers in the car assembly plant who walked off because the company had ordered vehicles pushed through the production lines without inspection.

Another 8,000 employees refused to cross picket lines early Thursday morning.

In Windsor, about 700 workers at GM's trim plant Thursday morning joined 400 men who staged a walkout at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, closing the plant to all but salaried office employees.

In another wildcat development, about 500 employees of Frigidaire Products of Canada Ltd., a GM subsidiary at Toronto, did not report for work Thursday.

GM employs a total of about 23,000 hourly-rated workers in Canada.

Negotiations between the union and GM are deadlocked because GM wants to end the practice of shutting assembly lines for 30 minutes each shift before it will meet union proposals for wage parity with workers in the United States.

Another area of dispute is the procedure governing layoffs during model change periods.

The company wants to end the practice of senior employees displacing those with lesser seniority during short layoffs.

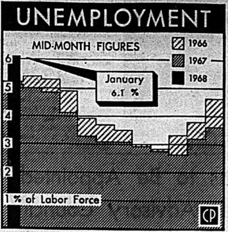
Hundreds of other issues dealing with plant working conditions are still under negotiation. At GM in Oshawa these include at least 53 different items ranging from protective clothing to the location of fans.

About 7,300 hourly-rated employees who are UAW members at the engine plant at McKinnon Industries Ltd. at St. Catharines remained on the ob Thursday, as did GM employees at the Windsor transmission plant and at the London, Ont., diesel plant.

Construction At All-time High in Twp.

AMELIASBURG — Residential and summer cottage construction reached an all time high last year with total building permits issued amounting to $503,779. New permanent homes erected in the township during the period numbered twenty-five. Much of the new growth took place along the road along the south shore of the Bay of Quinte between Rossmore and Carrying Place.

While there is the usual winter lull in house construction township clerk William Nightingale reports considerable activity in property sales. The committee of adjustment he said has been busily engaged at regular meetings dealing with five and six divisions of property at each sitting. The indication is there will be another good season ahead for contractors and other people engaged in the building trade, he observed.



Unemployment Up

The number of men and women out of work in Canada represented 6.1 per cent of the labor force in mid-January. It was the highest figure since March, 1964. A joint report of the manpower department and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said the mid-January figure was 464,000, up from 353,000 a month earlier and from 381,000 a year ago. (CP Newsmap)

Additional Federal Aid Seen For Buildings on Fairgrounds

The possibility of additional federal aid being available for construction of the proposed community centre or other building at the Belleville fairgrounds is being viewed with enthusiasm by fair board members and by the city parks board.

Details are still skeptical but the fair board has voted to make application to the Federal Department of Agriculture for what was termed an "interest free long term loan."

Parks Board chairman Alderman Kenneth Soden admitted he knew few of the details but said it appeared there was a possibility for some additional help in the construction of the community centre.

The local fair board was advised of the loan possibility by the Canadian Association of Exhibitions which works closely with the federal department of agriculture.

The Association letter said if the local fair board intended to make application this should be done within 10 days, and also be ready to make its presentations to the department by the end of February.

Fair board president Cameron Bunnett said there was no question that the local agricultural society was desperately in need of exhibition accommodation.

Fair board member Robert Phillips said the letter from the Canadian Association of Exhibitions was apparently the result of a recent request made last year to the federal department by then Mayor Jack Ellis and Alderman Don Williams on behalf of the city parks board.

The request at that time was made without the support of the local fair board.

The feeling of the fair board is that it is committed to go along with the parks board on the construction of the proposed community centre at the fairgrounds.

Tenders for the arena complex have now been called but there is little likelihood of the project going ahead before this fall.

If the arena project at the fairground doesn't go ahead, the fair board says any additional federal grant could be used toward construction of their own agricultural building.

A Little More White Stuff

If it has been looking more and more like spring every day this week the image has been shattered this morning. Snow, beginning to fall heavily around 10:30 this morning, took only a matter of minutes to completely cover the city.

Acording to the duty forecaster at the Canadian Forces Base Trenton the snow should continue during most of the day leaving around two inches when it finally stops.

Tomorrow should bring clear skies according to the forecast but there will be little chance of the snow melting as it is supposed to turn much colder.

The Public Works deparment of the city of Belleville got out their sanders as soon as the heavy snow began to fall. However, Wilbur Purcell, city engineer, said this morning that he doubted that any plowing would be necessary if the forecast was correct.

"There is not any sense in plowing anything under two or three inches," he said this morning. "I don't think we'll have any problem with this snow fall," he finished.

Abortion Laws Questioned By Hospital Association

OTTAWA (CP) — The effectiveness of the Commons health and welfare committee to study liberalization of Canada's abortion laws was questioned by the Catholic Hospital Association Thursday.

The association told the committee that it does not have the proper facilities to deal fully with the problem and proposed a royal commission study.

The association, which represents about 300 Catholic hospitals, said the present Criminal Code on abortion needs clarification. However, it expressed opposition to proposals to liberalize the law.

The committee has already heard briefs from the Presbyterian, Anglican and United churches, all of which advocated abortion when there is a serious threat to the mother's life or health.

David Dehler, an Ottawa lawyer and the association's legal adviser, told the MP's committee they "do not have sufficient time to give to this commmittee." But a fact-finding commission operating in Canada and other countries would be able to determine if liberalized abortion laws would reduce the number of illegal abortions and was the only answer.

15 Canadians to Be Appointed To Consumer Advisory Council

TORONTO (CP) — John Turner, minister of consumer and corporate affairs, said Thursday the voice of the Canadian consumer calling for change is as insistent as demands from Quebec for constutional reform.

Mr. Turner, a candidate for the federal Liberal leadership, said Canadians must not become preoccupied with constitutional rebuilding.

"Equally insistent is the voice of the Canadian family wanting a decent home, of the housewife against rising prices, of the mother against unsafe new fabrics, of the young family caught by unscrupulous credit practices . . ."

He told the Womens' Canadian Club there would be an announcement "very soon" on the names of 15 Canadians to be appointed to a consumer advisory council.

The department also plans a consumer service bureau, he said, to take action on consumer complaints.

Commission on Status of Women Plans to Hold Evening Sessions

OTTAWA CP — The royal commission on the status of women is going to make sure the working girl has an opportunity to present her opinions at its hearings across Canada this year.

Mrs. John Bird, chairman said Thursday that the royal commission will be the first to hold some evening hearings.

"Working girls find it extremely hard to come in the morning," she explained.

The commission would have an informal atmosphere and planned to hold hearings at such places as shopping centres as well as hotels.

Its hearings open April 15 in Victoria.

Mrs. Bird said the commission has received 30 briefs and has been advised of 150 more being prepared.

Letters from men and women were flooding in, especially in response to thousands of brochures outlining the commission's operation that had been placed in supermarkets all over the country.

"This is a grass roots thing, this reaction of people," said Mrs. Bird. "I think it's terrific."

Mrs. Bird also announced that Miss Dorothy Cadwell, 58, has been made co-ordinator of research for the commission.

Successful Living

Most Wives Are Generous Lot

Dear Doris: The writer signing "Happy Loved Wife" set herself up on a pedestal and looked down on nothing but a sea of discontent! Contrary to what she thinks, most wives are a hardworking, generous lot, dispensing unlimited love and care.

If we complain about our husbands it is only in fun. A perfect husband would be a bore. And if our housework piles up, we know it's our own fault — we probably took the kids to the park instead, because it was so nice out. We also realize that a messy house depresses us and that the best cure is to pitch right in and clean it.

As for the "dear sweet bachelors", statistics show that many more of them commit suicide than married men of the same age. Why? — Loneliness, stemming from having no one to come home to.

If the husband of "Happy Loved Wife" were to write in, he might have more "secret dislikes" about his self-martyred wife than most. But then she wouldn't recognize herself in his letter, would she? — Part of the Human Stream.

Dear Human: "There is so much good in the worst of us" — remember how it goes?

• • •

Dear Doris: We have been married 23 years. Whenever my husband's father of sister writes to us they address the envelope to Mr. instead of Mr. and Mrs. as I think is correct. The letter itself starts off "Dear Jack". Towards the end of the letter they mention the children and myself — a word so so.

I could feel differently if my sister-in-law had no schooling but she graduated from college, and my father-in-law also knows better. My husband has never taken a stand in my behalf, not wishing to cause trouble with his family. When he told his sister I felt unaccepted by addressing an envelope that way, she made light of it, and when she asked him how he felt about it he said he couldn't care less.

Are they trying to cause trouble? Mrs. G. C.

Dear Mrs. G. C.: Trouble? I wouldn't say so. No law says a married man can't get a personal letter from his Dad. But an effort to cement relations with an in-law might indicate some appreciation of same in-law, as well as a little common sense.

It goes hard with some mothers and sons, some sisters and brothers, to relinquish the closeness which was theirs in childhood; but the mature ones embrace the new relationships which come with marriage.

I expect your husband is so used to being his father's son it doesn't occur to him to mind your not being noticed as a daughter. Does he also do the corresponding? Many women take on this role and rather naturally carve out a family groove to ease into.

Has this resentment of yours just now erupted, after 23 years?

CALGARY (CP)—Marriage education should start in Grade 6 or 7, a psychologist told a family counselling seminar here. Dr. Richard Klemer, of Winston-Salem, N.C., said young people want more guidance on morals, not less. He said parents' failure to give direction can produce neurosis in children.

Request for Favorite Pudding

By MARY MOORE

OPTIMISTIC NOTE: I had a wonderful day: in one mail of 25 readers' letters there was not one complaint and everybody enclosed a stamped envelope! To fill my cup to overflowing both of my children phoned and we had long, long distance talks and when I stepped on the scales this morning I had lost another pound!

QUESTION: About fifty years ago I used to visit an aunt who always made my favorite pudding. She made it of barley, in the oven, with a custard, like rice pudding. Could you help me there? I have tried but cannot get it just right. — Betty A.

ANSWER: I made a barley pudding this morning using the old-fashioned rice pudding as my guide. Here are two barley pudding recipes.

BAKED BARLEY PUDDING NUMBER ONE (Tested by mem.)

6 level tablespoons pearl barley
1½ cups cold water
3 or 4 tablespoons granulated sugar (or light brown)
4½ cups homogenized milk
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg

Soak barley overnight in cold water in top of double boiler. In morning place over boiling water and cook one hour, covered. Drain off excess water if any. Turn into large baking dish and add sugar, milk, salt and nutmeg. Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. for 3 hours, stirring every hour. To serve, sparingly sprinkle with white or brown sugar, and cream.

BARLEY PUDDING NUMBER TWO

This was not tested by me but comes from Highlander's cookbook.

1½ cups pearl barley
6 cups water
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup currants
sugar and cream

Soak barley in water overnight. Add salt and simmer gently 1½ hours. Add currants and simmer ½ hour longer or until tender.

(NOTE: As you can see this must be sweetened so serve it with cream and sugar.)

Vinyl Cape

LOOKS WET, FEELS DRY — Linda Gamble of 20th Century film "The Sweet Ride," and actor Tony Scotti model fashion's new wet look. These pacesetting designs not only stand up to a shower, but look as though they had already been immersed in water.

Raindrops

The New "Wet Look" Latest in Fun Fashions

By Reba & Bonnie Churchill

Fashion's new "Wet Look" is producing its own crop of splashable styles. The result is a group of pacesetting designs that not only stand up to a shower, but look as though they had already been immersed in water. For example, the collarless black coat-dress, worn by actress Linda Gamble, boasts a sprinkle of white raindrops, cloud-shaped buttons and full-length sleeves. Borrowing a cue from a newsboy's cap, the hat features a high-rising crown and visor bill, as well as an adjustable chin strap which keeps it windproof.

This after - five fashion, created by Margie Webb, glistens like cellophane. The black shimmer-skimmer copies the snug lines of a frogman's wet suit, while the hat introduces a landlubber's version of actor Tony Scotti's diving mask. The brim sports built-in goggles that can be flipped up or down, depending on whether you want to view the world through colored glasses.

Vinyl cape, dotted with daisies, is another way to cope with weather changes. Linda, seen in the 20th film, "The Sweet Ride," teams it with a specially treated turtleneck shirt and rain skirt. Now it's ready for light showers; add a slouch hat and water repellant boots, and it can stand up to a downpour. And, for sunny days wear the cape unzipped with a monotone dress underneath, signatured with a single daisy on the hemline. Wet or dry, with these fun fashions there'll be no rain check on compliments!

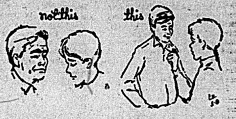
Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Father: "You knew you would lose your licence if you drag-raced. Don't you dumb kids ever learn? Don't expect me to cart you around for a year." Son: "You act as if you're glad I was caught."	Father: "I'll go to traffic court with you. I'm afraid you'll lose your licence. The penalty may seem stiff to you — but the laws are designed to protect everybody. We're lucky no one was hurt."

If the law steps in and penalizes the boy, this may be punishment enough to teach him the necessary lesson. Parents can uphold the law and disapprove of the lawless act — but still make their son feel they are beside him.

Ann Landers

Ann Suggests Seeing An Adoption Agency

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have been married for 10 years. We are both aching to have a family but unfortunately nothing happens. I am almost positive my husband is sterile but I have never suggested it to him or anyone else. He has a great deal of pride and this would destroy him. (I had a child by a former marriage so I'm sure I am not at fault.)

My husband's sister Louise is married to a man I will call Freddie. Freddie looks enough like my husband that they could be twins. Freddie and Louise have a little boy who is a picture of my husband. In fact he resembles my husband more than he resembles his own father. We are both crazy about the child and take him for weekends whenever we can.

The thought occurred to me that the solution to our problem is simple. Why don't I ask Freddie to father my child, strictly for the sake of our marriage? He might be shocked at first but he is a very fine person and I'm sure when I explain the problem in detail he will agree. I'm also sure my husband would not object, but I would not tell him because it would be better for all concerned if he believed the child was his own.

Don't suggest artificial insemination. My love for the child would not be complete if the conception was purely scientific. And please leave the moral aspect out of it. I don't need a sermon. — GISELLA.

DEAR GISELLA: Asking me to advise you on this matter and suggesting that I leave the moral aspect out of it is like going to a banker for a loan and suggesting that he not mention money.

To borrow your sister-in-law's husband for stud purposes is no way to solve a family problem. It may be a peachy way to create a whole host of new family problems, however, so my advice is forget it, and start talking to the adoption agencies.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I wonder how many people recognize themselves in your column. I think I saw myself yesterday. A girl wrote that she works in an office with a nice-looking middle-aged woman who is attractive and well-dressed. But one thing spoils the woman's appearance. She has a moustache.

I am not blind. I know I have a moustache and it bothers me a lot. But I am afraid to use a hair-removing cream because I've heard that once you remove hair it grows back thicker and darker than ever. Is this true? — CONCERNED.

DEAR CONCERNED: No, it is not true. This is an oft-repeated myth which has no basis in fact. Some women have abandoned creams in favor of electrolysis because it is permanent. Electrolysis is time-consuming and not inexpensive but it works well and many women swear by it. One word of caution, please: I strongly recommend that this procedure be done by a physician and not a beauty parlor.

PC Members Clash Over Printing Statutes in Two Languages

OTTAWA (CP) — An assault on bilingualism by Jack Horner (PC—Acadia) drew a swift and passionate reply in the Commons Thursday night from another Conservative, Theogene Ricard (St. Hyacinthe-Bagot).

The Horner-Ricard clash came when Mr. Horner called a government bill to print statutes in English and French, in the same volume, an irritant and "another demand" of the type that would drive Western Canada out of Confederation.

The Alberta MP, developing a position taken earlier by Terry Nugent (PC—Edmonton-Strathcona) and Howard Johnston (SC—Okanagan - Revelstoke) said the measure was "a mere aspirin" that would not sotisfy Quebec. He also described it as separatism on the instalment plan and asked where such demands would end.

Mr. Ricard said that if Mr. Horner felt the dual-language printing was an irritation, "I would like to see you come to Quebec factories and see all the signs in English when the employees are French-speaking."

The Quebec MP, a minister in the Diefenbaker cabinet and a staunch front-bench lieutenant, apologized for letting his emotions get out of hand, but added:

"I really think the measure before the House is fair. It is a step in the right direction for French Canadians."

The speech drew applause from all sides. It was followed up by Grant Deachman (L—Vancouver Quadra), who held up a copy of the bilingual Quebec statutes and said he couldn't see anything wrong with them.

Sending a copy across the chamber to Mr. Horner, he urged: "Pick it up—it won't offend you. Be a Canadian."

Charles-Arthur Gauthier (Creditiste-Roberval) said there might be extremists in Quebec but "quite clearly Western Canada is breaking all our records."

He said Mr. Horner seemed embarrassed by the Quebec statutes and said the Alberta MP was "a pretty good example" of what the constitutional committee would run into in Western Canada.

Melvin McQuaid (PC—Kings) injected Prince Edward Island diplomacy into the broadening debate by suggesting a compromise—one set of statues in English only and one in French and English.

The debate continues today.

Earlier Thursday, Prime Minister Pearson promised a one-day constitutional debate soon as a prelude to establishing a constitutional committee.

During discussion on publication of statutes bill, Justice Minister Trudeau was raked over the coals by Mr. Horner for bringing "another demand" before the House.

"If he becomes prime minister, there will be no stop to this sort of thing," Mr. Horner said.

He said Mr. Trudeau had taken one position during the constitutional conference, which was televised, and another before the House, where there was no TV.

The Alberta MP said the opinions of Western Canada premiers had been "practically disregarded" at the constitutional conference.

If the government continued to give in to Quebec demands at the present rate, a definite movement for separatism would arise in Western Canada.

It would benefit by separatism because it would not have to spend on the have-not provinces and pay the cost of "meeting this supposed idea of justice and fair treatment. Where is it going to get us?"

If Quebec separated from Canada, it would become "a banana republic without the bananas" but the west's economy would benefit by separation.

Ex-priest Seeks Reform

TORONTO (CP) — Rev. John McDonough, a Roman Catholic theologian and teacher, who last spring decided to renounce the priesthood, said Thursday he intends to try to reform his church as a layman.

"I came to the conclusion that there was room in the church for a new kind of priest who is not a clergyman," Father McDonough, 43, said in an interview.

He said he has ceased to function as a priest and a clergyman, but has not abandoned his faith or left the church.

"Why do we have to wear black clothes and a Roman collar, speak an esoteric language and adhere to canon law to be priests? We should get rid of the clerical image."

Father McDonough, who teaches philosophy at Centennial College in suburban Scarborough, said he decided last spring to quit the priesthood and made the formal request to his superior in the Dominican Order in November.

The request awaits approval by the Vatican.

Parking Lot Purchase

Campbellford Council Defers Decision

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford council Monday night turned down the opportunity to buy land for a 22 car parking lot on Front St. at a cost of $4,000.

However, the project was not wholly discarded. The property committee will meet with the ten owners of the former Stillman property and make recommendations regarding the purchase at the March meeting.

Owners of the lot are ten businessmen, who bought the property hoping a parking lot would be created.

At Monday's meeting, Donald D. Bennett, representing the ten owners, offered to sell the property to the town. Cost of clearing, grading and paving the lot would be too great to assume this year, Council decided, in turning down the offer.

During other business the police committee was asked to meet with representatives of Campbellford-Seymour Public School Board to discuss hiring crossing guards for three heavy traffic crossing areas. Cyril Johnson, representing the school board, made the request and said the safety patrol organized by the board would patrol at less hazardous crossings.

To bring the fire department up to recommended strength, council added two men, Reginald Boxell and Lionel Williams, to the force.

A letter was read from J. W. Charron of the Canada Department of Public Works saying tenders would be called soon on house for rental by members of the Warkworth Institution staff.

No action was taken on a Hamilton township request for endorsement of its motion opposing the establishment of school boards according to county boundaries.

Installation of a water main to service a proposed motel on the island created by the Trent River and Trent canal was delayed for further study.

Council sold the property to the motel investors for $10,000 and authorized spending the sale money to install a 10-inch main across the dam to the island. Canadian British Consulting Engineers has advised council the cost would be $20,000.

Application for the renewal of a taxi licence for Carl Johnson was withheld temporarily but Mr. Johnson was given permission to operate until a decision is made. Mr. Haloran was given permission to operate two cabs.

Council decided to withhold payment of about $900 to Totton, Simms, Hubicki and Associates for design fees on the original plans for the Community Centre until the firm supplies three sets of blueprints.

Deputy Reeve Harold Dunk said plans must be made for the controlled growth of the town.

Moving Picton Main Would Cost $10,000

PICTON — Picton's 1884 watermain under the town dump was discussed at Monday night's council meeting.

Streets and property chairman Andrew Jarvis estimated the cost of moving the 84-year-old, eight-inch feeder main to safer ground would be about 10,000 if town forces are used.

Last fall, Picton Utilities Commission brought the situation to light. Either the town must curtail the land fill project and stop piling garbage over the route or the main must be moved, it said. There is a possiblility the weight of garbage could split the main and pollute the town's water supply.

Mr. Jarvis advised council that Picton is in no financial shape to handle the moving project this year.

In other council matters, the finance committee was delegated to prepare a brief for the Ontario department of municipal affairs on the Smith committee report on taxation.

At the regular meeting of the Belleville Camera Club on Wednesday evening, President Ed. Ineson welcomed a large turn out of members and guests.

Following a brief business meeting, a Kodak film — "Come to the Adirondacks", was shown. The beautiful scenery of mountains, lakes and rivers during all seasons of the year was captured on film with emphasis on the variety of recreational facilities available and the numerous picture - taking opportunities. Because of its relative nearness to Belleville, many scenes in the Adirondack district were familiar to members of the audience who have vacationed in that area.

Members were reminded of the open competition to be held at the next meeting, Feb. 21.

Pause that refreshes comes as bush crew breaks for lunch during tree-trimming operations in Matawatchan township. These men are working pilot project near Madawaska River aimed at making more deer food available in lean winter months. Success of scheme could plot future conservation trends in Ontario forests.

Healthy Animals at Stake

Pilot Project Protects Area Deer

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

TWEED — Forests make good eating.

But it's all in how you prepare them.

Pertinent to that premise, the Department of Lands and Forests here is embarked on pilot game-feeding programs in the sprawling bush of the Quinte uplands.

When completed, they could set a pattern for future conservation trends.

The name of the game is deer.

Object of the exercises is to provide better preserves for the wild herds, particularly during the bitter winters which could bring discontent to the timberland feeding grounds.

The plan basically calls for trimming forest growth and letting the sun shine in.

This encourages new suckling growth at browsing level for the wandering, winter-bound deer. It also provides a measure of sheltered warmth for the big game in the bleak interior.

"What we're trying to do more than anything else is to provide enough food which will result in healthy deer able to produce their normal amount of young," explains Bill Bittle, the department's co-ordinator in the operation.

"If deer can't find sufficient nutrition during the winter they can't produce as many young."

The pilot tests also challenge a premise of nature: the survival of the fittest in lean times.

For man and his world that inexorable regulation must be contested — resources are a community responsibility.

Shortage of food increases competition in the forest.

"If there is severe competition," says the forestry official, "the younger deer — the fawns — and the weaker ones will die off."

While the premise sounds simple, pressing it to a conclusion is much more complex.

The tests are spotted in two locations — near Bancroft and in Matawatchan township, close by the Madawaska River about 80 miles north of here.

At Matawatchan, the scheme has been weathering the worst of winter. Bucking temperatures as low as 30 below, department officers have been supervising bush crews to press the program to completion.

Selective cutting of non-commercial timber sees the forest canopy being peeled back and the sun reaching the forest floor for the first time, perhaps, in years.

The project is concentrated on 170 acres.

But this will provide a haven for deer ranging through thousands of surrounding wilderness acres.

The region is a thickly-populated deer "yard" — an area of high game concentration.

For department experts the program is also more complicated than appears.

Its success has to be proven if it is to set new conservation patterns.

The better to draw their conclusions, forestry and wildlife supervisors have painstakingly surveyed the operation's acreage into strips. These in turn have been sub-divided into plots less than seven square feet.

The growth factor — every shrub and offshoot — in each plot is being carefully noted. Later, these minutely detailed statistics will be compared with the results of the current program.

As yet, there has been no serious threat to the district's deer population — the last was 1951.

But two lean years "could play heck" with the deer says Bill Bittle.

A deer daily digests 5-7 lbs. of food for every 100 lbs. body weight and "if the area produces less than that he's going to suffer."

"We're ensuring the deer have sufficient quantity and quality to carry them through."

In effect, the clearing programs are paying dividends right away.

The edible shoots of felled trees are providing food for the roaming herds.

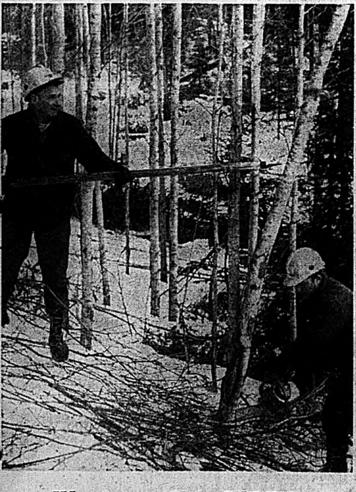
But, the crucial test is in the future.

If successful, the programs could set new patterns for conservation in the timberlands in conjunction with industry.

Forests "will be managed in such a manner" to shepherd wildlife resources, points out the department co-ordinator.

Once, he adds, Canada's forests were "just for cutting."

"Timber has a dollars and cents value — but the value of wildlife is hidden. Game is a natural resource like timber. The point is conservation — and wise use— of those resources."



Woodsmen Help Wildlife

Thinning out timber encourages low-level growth for browsing deer. These men, felling non-commercial trees in Matawaschan project, also are thinning forest canopy, providing warmer shelter for wildlife.

Neat Trim

Modern mechanics make short work of bush-clearing problems. Here woodsman uses circular' cropper to trim shrubbery — part of Lands and Forests program in Quinte-district uplands.

County School Merger Requires Building Sales Between Two Boards

How much money is a school worth?

This will be one of the questions facing the Bay of Quinte High School Board if it decides to sell schools in Madoc and Stirling to respective public school boards.

The sale of the schools would mean an expansion of the Centre Hastings High School in Madoc to handle the displaced students.

Officials said at a special secondary school board meeting last night the public boards have indicated an interest in purchasing the two properties.

The proposed sale and expansion program is being investigated in an attempt to save money. Operating expenses on the smaller units are apparently much higher than they would be on a single composite school.

The consolidation of schools was also inherent in the formation of the amalgamated Bay of Quinte High School Board on Jan. 1 of this year. Centre Hastings and Stirling-Rawdon High School Boards united with the Bay of Quinte board to form the larger administrative group.

At the present time none of the three secondary schools in the Centre Hastings — Stirling-Rawdon area are operating at capacity.

The nine-room school at Stirling has a capacity of 260 students. Present enrolment in the two-storey structure — which includes a large gymnasium and library — is 190 pupils.

At Marmora the enrolment is approximately 122 students in the nine-room school. The capacity is 250 pupils in the one storey structure. It also includes a gymnasium.

Even the Centre Hastings School at Madoc is not operating at capacity. About 653 students attend classes in the 25-room school designed for 680 pupils.

The Bay of Quinte board plans a $2,000,000 addition to the Madoc School if the sale of the other two units is completed.

The expanded school could handle 1,200 students and would offer many of the option courses not available in the smaller schools at the present time.

The matter of selling the smaller units is causing concern among residents in both Marmora and Stirling. With the closing of the secondary schools students would have to travel to Madoc.

At the meeting last night officials from the department of education were on hand to offer assistance on the proposed changes.

J. R. Thompson, of the department of education in Toronto explained the formula for the selling of a secondary school to the public board.

"This only happens about once every five years so it causes a bit of problem for the department when a sale of this nature arises," he said.

He showed the group two separate plans depending on whether the schools were debentured.

"Through a system of government grants the government would expect a return on its money when the schools were sold," he said.

On the basis on 75 per cent grants for the approved cost of secondary schools and 60 per cent grants for public schools he explained how the separate school supporter who is involved in the secondary unit would be protected.

If sold, the public school boards would receive the 75 per cent high school grant rate rather than the normal 60 per cent "We do this so the space can be utilized," Mr. Thomson said.

The public board could also expect an additional grant of 75 per cent of $12,500 for each classroom involved in the sale. The money would be used for necessary renovations to convert the schools to elementary units.

He told board members the department depreciated the building at a rate of two per cent per year. "We think they should last at least 50 years," he said.

Apparently both communities could use the secondary schools for elementary students. Stirling and Marmora are both utilizing rented space at the present time.

If the secondary board expanded the Centre Hastings High School in Madoc to form a composite school a 75 per cent grant on the approved cost of the structure would probably be forthcoming from the department of education.

The grant structure changes depending on whether the building will be used for academic or vocational purposes.

Board representative from Marmora James Shannon questioned the desirablity of selling the schools and expanding the Madoc unit. "There is no reason why the students from Madoc can't travel the 10 miles to Marmora to fill the school to capacity", he said.

Mr. Thomson also asked the board why this couldn't be done. "The present student — teacher ratio on a twelve to one basiss is certainly not very economical".

Area supervisor, R. W. Froats said he feels the fact that students would have more options in courses warrants the expansion of Centre Hastings into a composite school.

Board Makeup Gives Belleville Five Members

Belleville will have five representatives on the Hastings County Board of Education when it is formed next January.

Trenton will have two trustees and seven board members will be elected from the remainder of the county.

Based on a county-wide population of 88,173 the area will have 16 trustees under the government's new program for expanded school jurisdictions.

Separate school supporters will elect the other two trustees.

The distribution of representation is based on assessment figures in Belleville and Trenton. Hastings County council will work out the distribution of representation throughout the remainder of the county.

With an equalized public school assessment of approximately 91 million dollars, Belleville has 35 per cent of the total county figure — about 236 million dollars.

Trenton has about 12 per cent of the total or 29 million dollars in assesment.

The remainder of the county has about 116 million dollars in public school equalized assessment — or 49 per cent — giving them seven trustees.

The separate school supporters have about 11 per cent of the total assessment. They will have two trustees on the board.

Elections for board positions will be held in September or October according to government guidelines on the re-organization of jurisdictions.

Public school supporters — those not supporting separate schools — will elect their 14 trustees to handle all education in the county.

These members will be required to represent both public and secondary school ratepayers on the new board of education.

Clarke Named To Committee On Area Merger

Chairman of the Bay of Quinte High School Board, James Clark, will represent the group on the Hastings County interim committee being formed to implement the reorganization of school jurisdictions.

The interim commitee is the initial step in a government plan to set-up county wide, elected boards of education throughout the province by Jan. 1, 1969.

Mr. Clark was the unanimous choice of the board when it voted on the issue at a meeting last night.

Several members complained they should have more representation on the committee.

Herman Montgomery was also named by the board as a representative on the Prince Edward County interim committee.

In Hastings County a 12-man committee — formed by selecting one member from each of the existing school authorities — will meet later this month.

In the preparation of the report the committee will consider such items as summaries of present board policies, procedural policies, statements of program description and special services.

The interim group will also compile listings of personnel, salaries, accommodation, pupil enrolment, transportation, and finance.

A government report setting up the procedures suggests the committee consult with supervisory officers, teacher groups and existing school boards.

Pinch Hitting

The date is February 9.

Hardly the time one would expect the hockey season to end, is it?

Yet it is possible that the Mo-Hawks will be making their final appearance before hometown fans at nine o'clock tonight.

Kingston Aces, who snapped a six-game losing streak by toppling Toronto Marlboros 5-2 Tuesday, invade the Mo-Hawks citadel this evening.

Exactly one week from tonight, February 16, the schedule runs out for the locals.

In a period of eight days, the Mo-Hawks have four games in which to clinch a playoff spot.

Right now they are four points ahead of the ninth-place Oakville Oaks — but the Oaks have a game in hand. And any thought that Oakville might have given it up for a bad job went out the window last weekend. The Oaks scored one of the season's biggest upsets by blanking the Marlboros 3-0.

Now it is strictly up to the Mo-Hawks. They have been playing superb hockey of recent weeks to pull away from the tail-end Orillia team but the Oaks are not giving up without a battle.

This being their final home game on the schedule, it is without a doubt the most important of the year for Floyd Crawford's charges.

They can wrap up that eighth position and make a strong bid for seventh or sixth by winning tonight and again Sunday.

It is showdown time Sunday. They travel to Oakville and there is no better way to win anything than beating the other contenders. The Oaks are in Collingwood tonight and they, like the Mo-Hawks, play three of their final five games "on the road." Neither team can boast about their "away" record this season but now the chips are on the line.

But first come the Aces tonight.

Belleville nipped Kingston 3-2 here last week and after this one, the Mo-Hawks pay a return visit to the Limestone City neqt Tuesday. Wins tonight and Sunday would mean that the Mo-Hawks could afford a loss next Tuesday, but otherwise such won't be the case.

The Mo-Hawks will of course be minus high-scoring Minnie Menard tonight but if the line of Hec Lalonde, Mickey Cherevaty and Wayne McConnell can start producing, they can still ice a well-balanced scoring machine.

McConnell is, if any player ever was, "due." He has managed just one goal in the last 23 Mo-Hawk games, although he has missed a couple and seen limited action in others. Lalonde has been going well but has blinked the red light only four times since joining the club. Cherevaty is the top point-getter of the trio with a dozen goals and 13 assists.

Coach Crawford is more than pleased with the work of the "homebrew line," consisting of Bob Taylor at centre with "Shaker" Baker and Ralph Plane. They may not set the world afire scoring-wise but there is more to hockey than getting goals.

The other combo rates with the league's best. Centre George Godson has been flying between "Weiner" Brown and Dave Jones. A couple of their passing plays that resulted in goals were as pretty as we have witnessed in last Sunday's game. Their combined point total for the season is 111. Dave paces the club with a 19-26 mark and "Weiner" has moved into second place with 14-20. Godson is one point back of Menard with 13 goals and 19 assists.

Kingston will likely send Neil Perry between the pipes in an effort to stop the Mo-Hawks' scoring bids. Perry has outshone Mercer this year, at least against Belleville, and will be in no mood to give anything away tonight. He gets solid defence support from rock-ribbed Bill Burega, John Ford, Jim Gebhardt and Bob Olajos.

Up front, the Aces count on goals from Ron Earl, Charlie Convery, Tom Carty, rookies Syl Apps, John Mercer and Rod Graham. Bob Rawson has become one of their main scoring threats while long Jim Sprott, Bob Collins and Ed Long are always dangerous.

On the Mo-Hawk defence, Greg Marchen has been the pick of the lot. He can make the difference between winning and losing. The locals need a solid hitting game from big Greg and that's what he has been giving them recently, as well as improved play in the offensive department.

No, the Mo-Hawks don't want the season to end in Belleville this early and unless we miss our guess, there will be 2,000-plus fans there tonight urging them on.

It should be quite a hockey game.

Sport Miniatures

ST. PAUL - MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota North Stars have lost centre Ray Cullen, leading goal scorer in the National Hockey League's Western Division, for two to three weeks with a hairline fracture of his right ankle. The crack was disclosed in X-rays Thursday after Cullen complained of a pain in his ankle following Wednesday's 4-2 victory over Los Angeles Kings.

GRENOBLE (AP) — Romania's hockey goalie Constantin Dumitras has developed an unusual way to put the puck in play after a save. Instead of droping it to the side of the nets or clearing it away with his stick, he punts it much like a soccer player clears the ball.

GRENOBLE (Reuters) — Toin Gustafsson, a 29-year-old gymnastics instructor from Sweden, won the gold medal for the women's 10-kilometre cross country ski race at the Winter Olympics today. Berit Moerdre of Norway won the silver medal and the bronze went to Inger Aufles, also of Norway.

Finns Shock Canada With 5-2 Win

Goalie Stars

GRENOBLE, France (CP) — The players of Canada's national hockey team may have trouble spelling his name, a Finn named Y-L-O-N-E-N, but they'll not forget him for a long, long time.

It wos Urpro Ylonen's night as he led Finland to a 5-2 victory over Canada in the Olympic championship tournament. The 24-year-old goalie and his teammates pulled off the biggest upset in international hockey since 1954 when Russia won the world title on its first try, beating Toronto East York 7-2.

The Canadian defeat was all the more shocking because it was the first time a Canadian team had ever lost to Finland in Olympic and world competition.

The over-confident Canadians found themselves on the losing end 2-0 with almost 13 minutes gone in the first period, and then panic set in as Ylonen got hotter and hotter as the game progressed.

Wearing an orange face mask, Ylonen took everything the Canadians threw at him—and it was plenty.

"The harder we tried, the worse we got," said Canadian coach Jackie McLeod.

It was an almost unbelievable reversal of form for the Finns. Only two nights earlier, they looked like rinky-dinks when the Russians clobbered them 8-0, and Ylonen let in all the goals.

The loss for Canada in the eight-country tournament came at the hands of a team that had to qualify to get into the top group.

And with it virtually went Canada's chances for a gold medal after four years of experimentation and hard work involving national teams.

The Canadians had to work hard to win their opener Tuesday against West Germany 6-1. Today, the Nationals play East Germany.

The champion Russians, who are training harder than ever, beat the East Germans 10-0 in the Olympics four years ago and here they have done it again 9-0.

Russia and Czechoslovakia, 5-1 winner over West Germany in Thursday's only other championship contest, are tied for first place. The Russians and Czechs have two wins and four points each. Sweden, Canada and Finland are in a three-way tie for third place, each with a win and two points. The Swedes, of course, have a game in hand. They beat the United States 4-3 Wednesday night.

Today's schedule times EST:

7 a.m.—Sweden vs. West Germany

10:30 a.m.—Russia vs. U.S.A.

3 p.m.—Canada vs. East Germany

The Czechs now loom as the team the Russians must beat to retain the title they won at Innsbruck, Austria, in 1964. The two countries meet at 3 p.m. EST next Thursday, Feb. 15.

Canada and Russia clash in the final game of the tournament at 2:30 p.m. EST Saturday, Feb. 17.

"My team was prepared," said Gustav Bubnik, the Czech-born coach of the Finnish squad. Bubnik learned his hockey Canadian-style, when Czech teams were coached by Canadians, mainly in the early post-war years.

Matti Keinonen and Lasse Oksanen gave the Finns two goals in the first period. Jorma Peltonen added one in the second period and Ilpo Koskela and Juhani Wahlsten finished off the Nationals in the final period.

CFL Commissioner

It's Final; Gaudaur Takes Over

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian Football League today has a new constitution, a Hall of Fame and a new commissioner who takes over on April Fool's Day.

These were the highlights of the CFL's annual meeting that ended Thursday night, just as quietly as it had begun two days before.

Jake Gaudaur, 47, president of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference since 1954, succeeds interim commissioner Allan McEachern of Vancouver on April 1.

Gaudaur was given a five-year contract at an undisclosed salary after the nine representatives of the four Eastern and five Western club owners gave him their unanimous stamp of approval. He was chosen over 70 candidates.

The new Hall of Fame will be situated in Hamilton, adjacent to the city hall.

The league had been without a full-time commissioner since Senator Keith Davey resigned under pressure from owners Feb. 23, 1967, after 54 days in office. McEachern, president of the CFL and president of the British Columbia Lions, took over from Davey.

Gaudaur had been a member of the selection committee that picked the Liberal senator for the top post in the CFL. He also had been a member of the committee that sold the CFL national television rights to a Montreal agency that found itself without a network on which to televise the games.

Gaudaur is the first commissioner with a professional playing background with Toronto, Hamilton and Montreal.

During his 11 years as general manager of the Tiger-Cats, the club reached the Grey Cup nine times and won it on four occasions.

JAKE GAUDAUR

Looks For Improvement

Gaudaur; 'No Miracle Man'!

VANCOUVER (CP) — "Get one thing straight," said Jake Gaudaur as he stabbed a chunky finger in the air. "I'm no messiah—don't expect any miracles."

Gaudaur, president of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, was pontificating in his earthy fashion as the new commissioner of the Canadian Football League, effective April 1.

Despite the no-miracles comment, the man with 28 years in football felt that with his experience "the league will continue to operate on a smooth plane with as few difficulties as possible."

Gaudaur has been president of the Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Conference since 1954 and general manager since 1956. Before that, the 47-year-old native of Orillia, Ont., was a player with Hamilton, Toronto and Montreal.

Gaudaur said in an interview Thursday following his appointment by a vote of CFL owners:

"This is the only big-time, major-league sport in Canada that is played completely in Canada. Someday I hope it will be a completely national sport and include somebody from the Maritimes, such as Halifax."

Gaudaur admits he doesn't know all the answers. "There is no perfect product and I think the CFL could probably improve to a certain extent."

Juan Signs, $100,000

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Juan Marichal, considered a key to San Francisco Giants' National League pennant chances despite a sub-par 1967 season, is happy, relaxed and set to sign for the 1968 season.

The Giants announced Thursday that Marichal, the NL's winningest active pitcher with 144 victories, has agreed to a contract estimated at $100,000.

The Giants now have signed 21 players, including their top four pitchers: Marichal, 14-10 last season; Mike McCormick, 22-10; Ray Sadecki, 12-6; and Ray Perry, 15-17.

From his home in Santo Domingo, Marichal told Giants vice-president Charles S. Feeney he is completely satisfied with the contract, is in top condition and anxious to begin work.

He made no mention of last season's injuries. Before 1967, he had won more than 21 games four straight seasons.

Anyone For Lobster?

A Gourmet's Dream!

GRENOBLE (AP) — If the 2,000 reporters covering the Winter Olympics had a gold medal to award, it would go to the dapper, pencil-moustached Frenchman who provides their food.

The press centre restaurant is the talk of Grenoble. Guards have to check press credentials at the entrance to keep out athletes or sports officials looking for something better than the frugal fare served in the Olympic village a mile away.

The organizer of this culinary splurge is Roger A. Verge, whose restaurant on the French Riviera has long been a landmark for connoisseurs of French food.

With the help of the French government and the Olympic organizing committee, Verge has brought his fabulous and expensive dishes to Grenoble—at cafeteria prices.

For $3, journalists are given six-course meals that should like a gourmet's dream.

Such dishes as guinea-fowl with truffles, salmon trout in parsley sauce, braised duckling a l'orange and lobster thermidor are common-place to Verge. They leave many of the journalists speechless with admiration.

Gas House League Semi-Finals

Mulroney's defeated Mustangs 3-2 and the Firemen took the measure of Marysville 4-2 in the fourth games of the Gas House League best-of-seven semi-finals last night.

The results give the Firemen three wins and a tie, with Mulroneys and Mustangs having two wins each.

The fifth game of the series will be played next Thursday night.

Five scorers were listed in the Firemen three-goal scoring. It is not known who got the goals. Summers and Olsen scored for Marysville, Milligan getting an assist.

Johnson and Horwood scored for the Mustangs, Hughes, Garvin, Miller getting assists.

Hutchinson, Brennan and Casselman counted for the Mulroneys. Waite, Hill, Casselman and Reid drawing assists.

Quinte League Playoffs

The playoffs in the Bay of Quinte Hockey League got under way last night with the opening games of the best-of-seven semi-final series.

Stinson Construction and Belvedere Hotel played to a scoreless tie in their first post-season clash. Even the penalties were almost evenly matched, with three to Stinson and two to the Hotelmen.

Doug Grant Realty recorded the only win of the night with a 4-1 victory over the Aluminum Stars. Bill Lattimer fired all four goals for the Realtors, with Larry Stewart assisting on two and Court Brailey on another. Ron Post got the only Stars' goal, assisted by Al Ruttan.

Oil Kings To Play At Carnival

The Belleville Oil Kings will be hosts to the Picton Merchants in Tweed on Sunday. The game will be played on the closing day of the Tweed Winter Carnival. The game is an important one of the Kings as they will be battling for fourth position. In their previous meeting with the Picton charges in Tweed, the Kings turned them back to a 7-4 defeat, the only one of two defeats this season to the Picton team. Moe Hunter who has bagged seven goals against his home town comrades so far in four games will be looking for a few more. Game time is 3.00 at the Tweed arena.

Rangers Send Wings Deeper Into NHL Cellar With 3-2 Victory

ROD GILBERT

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rod Gilbert has built himself a reputation as a playboy with New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, but today Sid Abel of Detroit Red Wings wishes he'd do his playing somewhere else.

Gilbert, who early in the season was publicly criticized for his alleged habit of hitting the high spots of New York, Thursday scored his 20th goal of the season and dropped the Red Wings deeper into the NHL's Eastern Division cellar.

The Rangers won 3-2 while in the West, Los Angeles Kings climbed into third place behind Minnesota North Stars by beating Pittsburgh Penguins 3-1.

The New York win, with Gilbert a key figure with his goal and an assist, moved the Rangers into fourth place in the East, ahead of idle Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Rangers also got goals by captain Bob Nevin and defenceman Harry Howell while Detroit goals went to Norm Ullman and Gary Bergman.

In Los Angeles, the Kings got goals from Gord Labossiere, Bill Flett and Real Lemieux.

The only goal for the Penguins went to Ab McDonald, who drilled his 15th of the year behind goalie Wayne Rutledge late in the second period.

The league has tonight off, but Saturday moves into a crucial period.

Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks hook up in a crucial home-and-home series. The Canadiens lead the East with the Hawks two points behind.

In other Saturday games the Rangers are in Pittsburgh, Boston Bruins are at Detroit, Philadelphia Flyers play the Blues in St. Louis and Minnesota North Stars are in Oakland against the Seals.

Sunday, Toronto is in Oakland, Detroit is at New York, St. Louis at Boston and Philadelphia at Minnesota.

Gordie Howe earned an assist in the Detroit loss to move into a tie with Phil Esposito of Boston with 56 points and third place in the scoring race behind Chicago team-mates Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita, both with 60 points.

With Montreal in the throes of a trade-me-or-play-me situation with centre Henri Richard, the Leafs Thursday found themselves in a similar position with right winger Jim Pappin.

Rumors indicate that Pappin may be shipped to Rochester of the American League. He says he'll retire from hockey if demoted.

Leafs's playoff leader with seven goals and eight assists in their Stanley Cup victory last year, Pappin this year has scored 12 goals and 13 assists in 51 games.

Hull has a league-leading 37 goals and 23 assists and Mikita 29 goals and 31 assists.

Esposito has 28 goals and as many assists while Howe has 26 goals and 30 assists for his 56 points.

Wings Coach Worried

DETROIT (AP) — Sid Abel normally shrugs off defeat with a professional "we'll get them next time" attitude.

But the manager-coach of Detroit Red Wings was visibly disturbed after a 3-2 loss to New York Rangers Thursday night.

"This was a very important hockey game for us," said Abel, whose club has lost 11 of its last 16 games, including four of its last five.

The Wings are last in the National Hockey League's East Division, nine points out of the final playoff slot with 22 games to play.

The victory extended the Rangers' unbeaten string to three games and moved them into the sole position of fourth place, two points up on idle Toronto Maple Leafs.

Juniors Here Sunday

The Kingston Frontenacs junior "B" entry will be here on Sunday afternoon with fire in their eyes and goals in their hockey sticks.

They haven't forgotten that 2-1 squeaker they lost to the upstart Belleville Junior B's on their last meeting here and they are determined to avenge the setback despite the fact they grabbed a 9-1 home decision over the B's.

On the other side of the picture, Jim Matthews' B's, having got their first taste of "blood," have no intention of knuckling down to the Limestone city laddybucks.

They'll be away and running when the first piccolo blast opens their second Sunday appearance on home ice.

The Mo-Hawks attracted a large crowd to their first Sunday game and Junior officials are hoping the fans will turn out in a goodly percentage of the senior crowd.

Meanwhile the powers-that-be are finalizing plans for the big doubleheader bill here on Friday, Feb. 23rd.

A hot grudge battle between teams of the city fire and police departments will usher in the regular junior game when Kingston Frontenacs will again be the special guests.

Tickets are now on sale and there's a bargain price for the twin bill if you purchase now.

Sunday's game gets under way at 1.30 p.m.

US Figure-Skating Queen Has Olympics Gold Medal In Grasp

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

GRENOBLE, France (CP) — A spunky Finnish hockey team trounced Canada's national squad 5-2 Thursday night, virtually destroying Canadian hopes for a hockey gold medal at the 10th Winter Olympic Games.

Snow and wind-whipped clouds caused postponement of two of the three outdoor competitions on Thursday's schedule, including the men's downhill skiing, the glamor event in which France's Jean-Claude Killy, 1967 World Cup men's champion, is the favorite.

But the indoor events went forward, with Peggy Fleming of the United States skating to a virtually unbeatable lead in her drive toward the women's figure-skating gold medal and Canada's hockey team crashing to ignominious defeat.

The first two heats of the men's and women's luge singles were postponed today for a second time. They were first scheduled to be held Thursday. A race jury was scheduled to meet later today to decide how the schedule would be adjusted to make up for the second postponement.

The events are the men's downhill, the women's 10-kilometre cross-country ski race, the women's 500-metre speed-skating sprint and the two-man bobsled competition.

The first two heats of men's and women's luge singles, postponed Thursday, were to go off today, with the third and fourth heats Saturday.

Conditions as close to perfect as possible are sought for the dangerous luge competition, in which a competitor races down a track on a luge resembling a child's sled, lying almost flat on his back to cut wind resistance.

Canada has seven lugers here—four men and three women.

Wendy Thompson of Winnipeg, North American 500-metre women's champion, was set to go in the speed-skating event. Doreen McCannell of Winnipeg and Marcia H. Parsons of Red Deer, Alta., are Canada's other women speed skaters.

The postponement of the downhill, which won general approval in the face of high winds at the top of the course, fog at the bottom and a fall of new snow in between, was a break for two North Americans.

Rod Hebron of Vernon, B.C., and Billy Kidd, the United States ace, had an extra day in which to recover from injuries suffered in spills this week. Hebron was to start 22nd. Peter Duncan of Mont Tremblant, Que., 25th and Gerry Rinaldi of Kimberley, B.C., 27th.

Five hockey matches were scheduled for the 16-hour day of competition. In the championship group, Sweden met West Germany (7 a.m. EST), the Soviet Union clashed with the United States (1;:30 a.m.) and Canada faced East Germany (3 p.m.). The Group B games were Romania vs. France and Yugoslavia vs. Austria.

Eugenio Monti of Italy, nine times world champion bobsledder, was favored to win his first Olympic medal tonight when the third and fourth heats of the two-man bobs are completed.

Monti, 39, and his brakeman, Luciano de Paolis, had a narrow lead over Horst Floth and Peppi Bader of West Germany after Thursday night's two runs.

The aggregate time of the Italians was 2:20.85. The West Germans were 2:21.19 and third was the Romanian No. 1 bob of Ion Panturu and Nicolae Neagoe, at 2:21.82.

Defending champions Tony Nash and Robin Dixon of Britain were fourth in 2:22.17.

Canada's two bob teams among the 22 entered from 11 countries did their bit to create a stir.

The No. 1 bob, manned by Purvis McDougall, Montreal, and Bob Storey, Collingwood, Ont., was in 18th place, timed in 2:26.69. But in getting there they caused a considerable delay for repairs to the icy wall of the bob run, damaged when they slammed into a bend too hard.

Ontario Curling

St. Thomas, Ottawa Rinks Unbeaten

KINGSTON (CP) — Dr. Don Gilbert of St. Thomas may not be the best skip at the Ontario curling championships, but he's got the best-looking cheering section.

Four blondes from St. Thomas sit behind the glass at every one of Gilbert's games and cheer every shot his rink makes, good or bad.

And so far it's all been good. Gilbert and Eldon Coombe of Ottawa are the only undefeated rinks after four rounds of the 16-team, double-knockout competition.

Gilbert's was easily the most impressive rink Thursday, defeating Murray MacGregor of Guelph 6-3 in the morning round, Irvin Wallace of Port Carling 8-5 in the afternoon and Bill Creber of Toronto's Parkway Curling Club 8-4 in the evening.

Coombe, meanwhile, had to go to an extra end in the evening draw to defeat Mac-White of Burlington 8-7. In the morning, he downed Dave Gerolamy of Peterborough 7-5 and nipped Murray MacGregor of Guelph 8-6.

Bob Mann of Kingston, 1963-64 provincial champion, is one of four rinks with one loss. All are in a do-or-die situation. They must win or be eliminated.

The others are Creber, undefeated before he met Gilbert, Stu Daw of Toronto's Dixie Curling Club and Terry Patton of the Brant Curling Club in Brantford.

Winner of the competition will represent southern Ontario at the Dominion finals March 5-9 at Kelowna, B.C. A Northern Ontario representative will be picked this weekend in Sudbury.

Thursday was the big day for cutting down the draw as 10 rinks were eliminated. They were Ray Grant of Unionville; Earle Hushagen, Toronto Humber Highland; Ken Sinclair, Toronto Thornhill; Bill Gall, Niagara Falls; Dr. R. J. Creighton, Hanover; MacKlem; Gerolamy; Wallace; White, and MacGregor.

In the third round, Daw nipped Gall 10-9, Creber downed Patton 8-4 and Gilbert edged Wallace 8-5. The evening round included Gilbert and Coombe's games plus a 10-3 victory by Patton that eliminated Wallace and a 9-6 win by Bob Mann to eliminate MacKlem.

Today at 2:30 p.m., Gilbert Faces Daw and Coombe meets Creber. Tonight at 8 p.m. it's Patton versus Gilbert and Coombe against Mann.

Aces Nip Reds 4-2

QUEBEC (CP) — Jean-Guy Gendron scored two goals and got an assist Thursday night in leading Quebec Aces to a 4-2 victory over Providence Reds in an American Hockey League game.

The victory moved Aces into third place in the league's Western Division, two points ahead of Buffalo.

College Football Draft

Ottawa Grabs 'Lion's' Share

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions may have had the first choice at the Canadian Football League's Canadian college draft but Ottawa got the Lion's share of first-round picks.

The Rough Riders selected four of the nine players drafted in the first round because Edmonton, Calgary and Hamilton had previously passed their choices to the Eastern Football Conference club.

The Lions, cellar-dwellers in the West last year, drafted Mike Eben, a 6-2, 195-pound end and flanker from the University of Toronto, in the first choice at the league's annual meeting.

Montreal Alouettes passed their first-round choice to Edmonton. In the second round, Montreal chose Willis Scanlon, a University of Ottawa defensive halfback, and Douglas Cowan, a Queen's University halfback in the third.

A total of 74 Canadian college football players were chosen by the nine CFL teams. Toronto Argonauts, third-place finishers in the East last year, and Ottawa led in selections with 11.

Quinte Hockey

Belvedere Took Honors

With the Quinte Hockey League schedule completed, Belvedere Hotel has wrapped up not only first place, but individual scoring and goaltending honors as well.

In team standings, the Hotelmen finished with 10 victories, three losses, and two ties, for 22 points. Second place went to the Aluminum Stars, with 15 points, while Stinson Construction was third with 12 points, and Doug Grant Realty last, with 11 points.

Doug Hallam of Belvedere Hotel led the league in scoring with 10 goals and 7 assists for 17 points. Hotel goalkeepers Claude Carr and Ken Genereaux were best in the league, with two shutouts, and 26 goals against for an average of 1.73.

The semi-finals, best of seven series sees Realty playing Aluminum Stars and Belvedere Hotel tangling with Stinsons.

The first games were played last night. The results appear elsewhere.

Junior 'A'

Petes Tie Tenth Time

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Peterborough Petes and Hamilton Red Wings apparently agree on a simple formula for playing hockey—if you can't beat 'em, tie 'em.

They have played in more tie games than any other club in the 10-team Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series. And they did it again Thursday night.

Petes battled to a 5-5 tie with Toronto Marlboros for their 10th draw of the season, tops in the league.

The Red Wings, who deadlocked 3-3 with Niagara Falls Flyers, are second with eight ties.

With only nine victories in 42 games, the Petes have needed the tie games to maintain a precarious hold on the eighth and last playoff spot. They lead ninth-place Oshawa Generals by one point.

Hamilton, with 23 wins in 40 games, have used their tie games to stay in contention with the leaders. Although in fifth place, the Red Wings are only seven points behind the leading Kitchener Rangers.

Senior A Scoring

GALT (CP) — Dave McComb of Collingwood Kings, bidding to repeat as scoring champion of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series, has a four-point lead going into the last 10 days of the schedule.

McComb scored four goals and had one assist in last week's action and now has a league-high of 31 goals along with 38 assists for 69 points.

Moe Galand of Toronto Marlboros slipped into second place, getting only one goal last week. He now has 24 goals and 41 assists—most in the league—for 65 points.

Norm Defelice, goalie for league-leading Galt Hornets, widened his lead in two departments by shutting out Guelph in his only start. He has a 2.16 goals-against average and four shutouts.

The leaders:

Ryun Faces Big Test

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Ryun, admitting that "it's a long way from a world record to what I've been running lately," gets his first real competitive test in months tonight when he meets Dave Patrick and Sam Bair in a mile race.

Patrick of Villanova is the only man to beat Ryun since August, 1965. Bair of Kent State might be the second.

The three square off in the final track meet to be held in the old Madison Square Garden, the U.S. Track and Field Federation indoor meet. The race is being called The Last Garden Mile.

The 20-year-old Kansas junior, who holds the world record for the mile of 3:51.1, has an indoor best of 3:58.6.

The Virginian Known by His Distinctive Shirt

NEW YOR K(AP)—Any red-blooded American housewife who worries about having the whitest laundry on the block may also be fretting about The Virginian's shirt.

James Drury, who has been playing the title role in the NBC series for the last six seasons, has never been seen on screen without a shirt that looks like mahagony or dark velveteen. And everybody knows they didn't have dry cleaning establishments for those Old West ranchers.

"I guess they must have turned out about four or five dozen of those shirts for me since the show started," says Jim, "They bought a lot of the material when we started—it's upholstery cloth—but we ran out of that long ago.

"Now they've got some new material and dyed it to match the color of the original."

Drury is not so crazy about that distinctive shirt.

"It's awfully heavy and awfully hot," he said. "And last summer was the hottest I can remember.

"Some days it would get up to 116 on the studio back lot. And I suffered in those shirts."

Hot or not, Drury's basic shirt and the rest of his costume serve twin purposes.

His western get-up from black hat to leather boots is distinctive, so that the figure of the Virginian can easily be spotted on the small screen.

And it is economical. If Drury is always dressed in the same clothes and riding the same horse, they can shoot a lot of film at one time and later cut it into a variety of episodes. In fact, sometimes, they can re-use the same film clip.

In the action programs, most heroes have break-away suits that are specially constructed to tear easily in fight scenes. For a couple of seasons, The Man from U.N.C.L.E., Robert Vaughn, has a fighting suit of an identifiable shade of light grey. Every time he turned up in it, the eagle-eyed would know that haymakers would be flying within a few minutes.

Drury, a completely unknown young actor when he was cast in the title role of the western, is one rising star who seems happy with his acting lot.

"I'm certainly not bored," he said. "I think nothing expands a man or taxes his abilities as much as acting one role over a long period.

"A one-shot role is fascinating, but it is a real challenge to keep playing a characterand keep playing a character and finding ways to keep him interesting."

Andy Williams Golf

Unknown Cards A Par-Shredding 64

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The par wreckers of golf, who had a pretty busy day in the first round, set forth again today in the $150,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open with virtually unknown Jimmy Powell in the lead.

Powell, a strapping six-footer who teaches the game for a living at Indian Hills Golf Club in Riverside, Calif., gave such more renowned pros as Jack Nicklaus, Billy Casper and Arnold Palmer a lesson on how to whip the Torrey Pines Golf Club's par 36-36—72.

He did it Thursday over the 6,792-yard layout with 32-32—64, the lowest score of the 1968 PGA winter tour, and moved into today's play with a lead of two strokes.

Powell's eight-under-par performance didn't surprise him. He said very frankly that when he is confident of his game, he'll score lower.

Al Balding of Toronto, who has had little success on the pro tour in recent years, fired an opening-day round of 68, four strokes off the pace.

George Knudson, the Winnipeg native now playing out of Toronto, was another two strokes back at 70 with rounds of 35-35.

Nicklaus, ending a three-week vacation from competition, was three shots back of the leader with 33-34—67, Casper was in the 68 bracket after 34-34 and Palmer was even par with 36-36—72.

To Your Good Health

Too Many Fear Drug Side Effects

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: I read the article concerning cortisone and its effects. What I'd like to know is whether the symptoms and disorders are permanent or temporary. This fact was not stated. I had two shots for an injured knee.

I would also like to make a suggestion. Why don't you list the booklets you have available in the newspaper? — E. M. A.

As I have complained in print before, a healthy regard for drug side effects is a necessity — but too many people are getting the "side effect jitters."

Side effects from heavy and prolonged use of cortisone will gradually disappear when the medication is stopped, although the physician must exercise some care not to discontinue the medication too abruptly. Hence every doctor using this (and many other kinds of drugs) is constantly on the alert to detect side effects, if any, before they progress very much.

With proper dosage, many patients, when in need of cortisone, receive it for weeks, months, or even longer without ill effects. If cortisone and its derivatives are needed, they should be used.

But when patients, after two shots of cortisone, begin worrying about side effects, that is being unreasonably jittery — like taking sleeping tablets predictable. I knew of a New two nights in a row and wondering whether you have become a slave to the habit.

Certainly we guard against side effects, but let's not fly into a panic. That's putting the cart before the horse. The first task is to cure whatever is ailing the patient. The side effects are just a secondary result which may, sometimes, develop but most of the time doesn't.

Thanks for the suggestion about the booklets, but I think it more to the point merely to mention one or another when a question calls for it. Anyway, all the booklets include a listing of others that are available. Or just send a self-addressed, stamped envelope in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., and ask for it, and I'll send you the whole list.

Dear Dr. Molner: My granddaughter, aged 2, likes to eat and also suck on a bar of soap or eat soap suds. Is this a sign of something missing in her diet? Her own folks have never consulted a doctor about this, but it worries me. — Mrs. E. J.

Whether these odd eating tastes mean "something missing in the diet," is quite un- England man who, every time he took a bath, liked to bite off a nibble of soap and chew it — which inspires me to an "ugh" reaction. He just liked it, and there was no sign of anything missing in his diet.

At other times distorted appetites may indicate a vague search for some missing diet element. In this toddler's case, I would think the safe step would be to have a doctor examine her for some possible diet deficiency. If no such sign is found, then put down the soap hunger to chance. And try to wean her from this habit.

Each Country Wants Its Own Way

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Every country insists that it wants "peace," but what every country really wants is to have its own way. If peace were truly a desideratum, it could be easily accomplished.

There is an International Court of Justice, sitting permanently in The Hague, Netherlands, which consists of 15 judges, all from different states, chosen by the General Assembly and the Security Council of the UN.

This court is empowered to decide on the interpretation of treaties, questions of international law, and breaches of international obligation. All states that are members of the UN are ipso facto members of the court, and other states are permitted to adhere to its decisions.

An international dispute—such as we have in Vietnam—may be brought before the court by consent of the parties in the particular case, or by virtue of an advance formal declaration to automatically accept the court's jurisdiction.

Some 40 states have made such declaration, but the United States is one of those that excludes all matters it chooses to regard as "domestic." This means that if the U.S. considers the Vietnam wor an "internal issue," it refuses the court the right to adjudicate it. With such restrictions, the court spends most of its time deciding matters of little international importance.

If our government sincerely desired peace, it would admit frankly that Vietnam is not a "domestic" issue — as everyone knows it is not — and ask that the International Court of Justice decide the rights and wrongs of the situation there.

We would put the whole matter before the court, agree to stop the fighting in Vietnam completely and immediately, and ask our opponents in Vietnam to do the same.

This would put the ball squarely in their court, and the brunt of the world's moral opinion would then be on their shoulders, not ours. By referring the conflict to an impartial international agency, and by agreeing to abide by its decision, we would prove that we are as much in favor of "law and order" among nations as we are among citizens within a nation.

One of the bitterly ironic paradoxes of our position today is that the President of the United States speaks out boldly against the "violence" within our borders, while at the same time we engage in bare violence outside our borders, recognizing no law or order higher than our own will. How can we expect young people to respect the law of the land, when the land itself respects no human law outside itself?

PC Leader Quits

Van Horne Keeps His Promise

FREDERICTON (CP) — J. C. Van Horne, one of New Brunswick's most flamboyant politicians, Thursday gave up the leadership of the province's Progressive Conservatives to return to a quieter life as a lawyer in Campbellton, N.B.

In a letter of resignation read to the party caucus, the 47-year-old, bilingual Van Horne said he made it clear last year he would resign if the party did not win New Brunswick's election Oct. 23.

The Liberals won 32 seats. Conservatives won 26, but lost a member by death Oct. 25.

Mr. Van Horne offered to resign after the October setback, but he was given a vote of confidence. In his letter of resignation Thursday, he said his decision was partially prompted by outstanding campaign bills of more than $200,000.

"While I have incurred no personal legal liability and in every other respect am not obligated for any of this huge indebtedness, the fact is, as it was in each of my campaigns, that these bills must be paid and if I do not undertake to pay them, who will?"

Mr. Van Horne also was faced with a writ of summons filed last week on behalf of Barry Shapiro of Montreal, acting for shareholders of a firm identified as 455 Craig Street West Corp. which is seeking to recover $54,311.

Mr. Van Horne told a reporter Thursday the writ involved a personal debt he incurred during a federal election campaign.

Sunday School Lesson

Fat Bodies and Slim Souls

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

A well-known clergyman recently surprised his congregation, and made the headlines, by announcing that they would no longer use the "Lord's Prayer" it has lost its meaning for our day. Lost its meaning — when half the world still prays, "Give us this day our daily bread?" (Matthew 6:11)

Perhaps he is right concerning middle-class and upper-class Americans who have fallen victims to the very danger of which a writer warned 4000 years ago. "When you eat and are full," he wrote, "then take heed lest you forget the Lord." (Deuteronomy 6:11-12 RSV)

Was Karl Marx right in insisting on economic determinism? Millions of people who claim to despise his very name have nevertheless fallen into his trap of believing that economics has the final answer to life's questions. Give people the material necessities of life — put bread on their table — and that's all they need.

> The Uniform Sunday School lesson for February 11: "The True Bread From Heaven," John 6.

Of course, people need bread. Neither the author of Deuteronomy, nor Jesus who quoted him, said that people could live without bread. What they did say was "man shall not live by bread alone." (Deut. 8:3; Matthew 4:4) The prophet Isaiah hammered this point home when he asked, "Why do you spend your money for that which is not bread?" (Isaiah 55:2 RSV) That he was thinking of more than physical bread is brought out by his next sentence. "Eat that which is good and (as the King James' Version brings it out) let your soul delight itself in fatness." (Isaiah 55:2) People cannot live without food, but in the United States too many people over-feed their bodies and starve their souls.

Jesus faced a serious dilemma early in His ministry. All around Him were hunger and need. Should He use His powers to provide bread for the people? Should He use economics to further the cause of God's kingdom? This was undoubtedly one of the problems underlying His first temptation. (Matthew 4:1-4)

This problem rose to plague Him again later in His ministry. He fed a large number of people who had come out to hear Him. After being fed, many of them went to great lengths to follow Him, not because they were interested in what He was saying, but because they wanted Him to continue feeding them. (John 6:26) After explaining that He had not come to turn the kingdom of God into a feeding station, most of the crowd deserted him.

Their greatest need was not more food for their stomachs, but greater understanding for their minds and hearts. Others could teach them how to grow more grain, but to whom could they go to get a larger understanding of God? What they really needed was not a handout, but an understanding of God and man that would change their lives. They needed what Jesus called "the bread of life." He insisted He had come to feed them that bread. (John 6:35)

Bread is still one of the world's greatest needs. In fact, the need for food becomes more acute as the population of the world increases. The best place to store surplus food is in the stomachs of starving people. But this very program of sharing is actually hindered by the tensions that exist between nations. People need the bread of understanding before they are free to share bread on the table.

Jesus' teaching about the bread of life gives the lie to communist doctrine. People need more than bread. They need a faith and hope that Marxism can never give them. A person is more than a stomach surrounded by an appetite. He is a living soul. His needs are not met by economics alone. He needs a religious faith that can help him to see himself as a child of God.

The truth is brought out by Arthur Miller's play, "Death of a Salesman." Willy Loman is driven by a desire to succeed in business. Everything — family, friends, religion — is sacrificed to that end. Psychologically, he wants to succeed so he will be appreciated. He even imagines a large funeral for himself so that at last his son Biff will really appreciate him. But success evades him, so he takes his own life.

The tragedy is that he could have realized his potential as a happy husband and father, a warm-hearted friend, a religious person, but he refused to think of God's claim on his life. He drove himself for bread and more bread. He needed to stop, and learn from Him who called Himself "the bread of life."

Trudeau at Ontario Convention But Won't Address Delegates

TORONTO (CP) — Justice Minister Trudeau's Ontario supporters place him on display today at the Ontario Liberal convention in a ploy to help force him into the party's leadership race.

The reluctant candidate, under pressure from many quarters to run, flies here today from Ottawa to mingle with delegates on the opening day of the two-day annual meeting.

His scheduled hotel-room appearance reinforces speculation he will become the French-Canadian Quebec candidate within a week or 10 days.

The 46-year-old minister's appearance was to be made at the urging of a Toronto-based draft-Trudeau committee, which expanded Thursday into an Ontario for Trudeau committee.

Most delegates here will be voting delegates at the April 4-6 leadership convention in Ottawa.

Mr. Trudeau will bow out before the night-time speechmaking marathon, restricted to declared candidates. All the major candidates will go through the support-seeking speech ritual.

It is understood only two fringe candidates, Rod Woodcock and Lionel Laframboise, have not accepted invitations to speak at the third platform meeting for candidates at provincial Liberal conventions.

Russell Honey (Durham), the head of the draft-Trudeau committee, is chairman of the Liberals' parliamentary caucus of MPs and senators.

Other MPs on the 11-member committee include Donald Macdonald (Toronto Rosedale), parliamentary secretary to Industry Minister Drury; James McNulty (St. Catharines) and Robert Stanbury (York-Scarborough). A former MP, Pauline Jewett, and Tim Reid, member of the Ontario legislature for Scarborough East, are also members.

Peter Green, 27, of Halifax, president of the Young Liberal Federation, also announced here the formation of a 22-member youth committee to support Health Minister MacEachen's leadership bid.

Although policy is taking a back seat, delegates will discuss a recommendation of the provincial policy committee for a special meeting to prepare policy for the national policy conference next fall.

The recommendation was seen as a move to counter organized western policy stands. Another recommendation is for an Ontario provincial policy conference in 1970. No policy will be laid down at the current conference.

Voting Methods Still Debated

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal party is trying to decide between a proven voting machine and a computer to handle the balloting at the April 4-6 leadership convention.

. . . Final decision may be a month away as convention planners debate the merits of each device.

Manual balloting in which the delegate drops a marked ballot into a box for counting by hand has been ruled out.

Voting machines, big standup mechanical boxes, have been successfully used to record and tally votes at three Conservative conventions including last September's leadership meeting.

They appear to be close to foolproof. The mechanical monsters require no electric power to operate, so a power failure cannot knock them out. The computer needs electrical power.

With a vast television audience watching, a breakdown in the balloting process is unthinkable. Voting has to be fast and accurate as the 2,450 delegates choose a party leader to succeed Lester B Pearson.

The voting machine is simple to operate. The voting delegate pulls a lever to record his choice and the machine keeps a running tally. When the voting round is completed, tallies are taken off each machine by officials and totalled.

With the computer, the voter punches a hole with a stylus opposite his choice on a card that lists all the candidates. The card goes into a small unit, perhaps the size of a typewriter.

After the vote is over, cards from all the units are removed and fed into a computer, which calculates the totals for each candidate in a minute or so.

The trouble with the computer system is the possibility of improperly-marked cars, which the computer would reject.

This raises the prospect of counts if a candidate demands one because of spoiled cards. There are no such things as spoiled ballots on the voting machine, which records the voters' choice mechanically as a speedometer records mileage.

It is also possible that a candidate could demand a recount as a stalling device to assess his position or make a deal with other candidates before another ballot was taken. Several ballots are likely to declare a winner because of the number of candidates. There are seven prominent people campaigning now.

After each ballot the low man is dropped. A simple majority of ballots cast will produce the winner.

Whichever device is chosen, backup procedures will be available in case something goes wrong with either the computer or the voting machines. Both devices are available from private firms. The Liberal party may run a test on the computer to see how it works out.

Dialogue Kept Alive

PM Asks for Continued Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson has moved to keep the constitutional dialogue alive on Parliament Hill in the wake of negotiations with provincial premiers this week.

Reporting to the House on the conference, Mr. Pearson suggested the special one-day Commons debate might be held next week and a parliamentary committee could get down to work before the present session ends, probably next month.

The Commons mood was generally one of satisfaction and optimism on results of the federal-provincial talks, although A. B. Patterson, acting Social Credit leader, echoed reservations of the Social Credit premiers of British Columbia and Alberta.

David Fulton (Kamloops), the Conservatives' constitutional expert, said credit was due to Mr. Pearson for his part in calling the conference and his conduct as chairman.

Mr. Fulton said the conference had a significant measure of success. The degree of unanimity of language rights was "remarkable and encouraging

But on the other hand, little more than a preliminary statement of position had been accomplished on the division of constitutional power and on regional economic differences.

"Clearly, too, the width of the gap between two of the positions was also demonstrated."

David Lewis (NDP—York South) said Mr. Pearson had shown "wit, wisdom and flexibility" in presiding over the conference.

Both Mr. Fulton and Mr. Lewis also praised Premier Robarts of Ontario for calling last November's Confederation of Tomorrow conference.

The two joined in calling for a parliamentary committee and in saluting the fact the federal-provincial conference had been held mainly in public.

Mr. Fulton said the same policy should be followed by the parliamentary committee. There was no immediate response, but Mr. Pearson in a later exchange said he hoped television cameras could be introduced to Parliament through the committees.

Least enthusiastic assessment of the conference came from Mr. Patterson, who suggested that some people are looking at the prospects through rose-tinted glasses and are not facing the issues realistically.

He said the obstacles ahead are very real, particularly on proposed amendments to the constitution.

Past attempts to repatriate the constitution had failed, "and if this essential first step is impossible of achievement, the consideration of further steps is somewhat premature."

Mr. Pearson confined his statement mainly to a factual report on the work of the conference, summing it up as a "very good first step" in federal-provincial consideration of constitutional reform.

Under questioning later, he promised serious consideration to requests that the Yukon and Northwest Territories be brought into future consultations. And he said he hoped Indians and Eskimos could be "associated in an appropriate way" with the process.

Trudeau Still Reluctant; Smash Hit at Convention

TORONTO (CP) — Declared Liberal leadership candidates sought support Friday at the party's Ontario convention in the shadow of non-candidate Pierre Trudeau, a smash hit in a two-hour appearance.

About 500 convention-goers gave the elegant federal justice minister a mob-scene welcome in a room hired by his supporters at the convention hotel.

One Trudeau promoter said he was flabbergasted at the welcome. Casual in a sports jacket, Mr. Trudeau stayed calm in the crowd crush, autographing convention programs, handshaking an accepting the greetings of well-wishers.

The atmosphere prompted one man to shake Mr. Trudeau's hand and say: "God bless you."

Mr. Trudeau, during a session-opening news conference, said he had yet to make up his mind on whether to become the French-Canadian Quebec candidate in the race.

He expected to say one way or the other within 10 days after more private talks with supporters across the country.

Careful not to upset convention routine, Mr. Trudeau left before the evening's speechmaking mar-thon by nine declared candidates began. As a non-candidate, Mr. Trudeau was not permitted to speak.

Mr. Trudeau's political foray into English Canada was the work of the newly-formed Ontario for Trudeau committee, which hoped the reception might put the slim and smiling minister into the race.

The speech-making saw declared candidates stick to generalities in their attempts to impress the audience of 2,400 packed into a hotel ballroom.

One candidate, Consumer Affairs Minister Turner, arrived late because of parliamentary duties in the capital. His apology to the crowd recognized the big Trudeau shadow as the Montreal minister noted that he arrived in Toronto "just as another Montrealer left town."

Mr. Turner, at 38 the youngest declared candidate, got the longest ovation, but External Affairs Minister Martin at 64 the oldest candidate, aroused the crowd with such lines as: "We want experience, not experiment, in the highest office of the nation.'"

In a pre-talk question-period that warmed the crowd up, Agriculture Minister J. J. Greene told a questioner the general decision to remove the six-percent ceiling on personal bank loans deserved review.

There was talk that Mr. Greene might have violated the traditional cabinet solidarity rule that has prevented cabinet aspirants from criticizing government policy.

Finance Minister Sharp's speech was in a lower key than the high-powered Martin and Greene talks and that of Transport Ministe. Hellyer.

Mr. Hellyer promised to find a way to keep Prime Minister Pearson active in international diplomacy following the leader's retirement after the April 4-6 leadership convention.

Similarly low-key was Quebec's Eric Kierans, who laid down his wealth-producing policy to make Canada economically and politically independent.

It was the third platform confrontation at provincial Liberal conventions for leadership candidates, and many said it was the most successful.

Lionel Laframboise, a political unknown from Elliott Lake, Ont., made his campaign debut with a rambling talk that included the information that he was the seventh of 13 children. A French-Canadian, he talked in both English and French.

A questioner asked the short man in a blue suit about his air policy. It is over my head," he admitted and that was that.

Health Minister MacEachen and clergyman Lloyd Henderson also spoke. Only absentee was Rod Woodcock, an unemployed camera salesman who declined the invitation to appear.

25,000 Employees Strike GM—Officially

TORONTO (CP) — More than 25,000 hourly-rated workers at seven General Motors plants in six Canadian cities officially went on strike at midnight.

Bargaining between the company and the United Auto Workers Union broke off at 11:15 p.m., 45 minutes before the union's strike deadline. There are no signs of further negotiations.

The strike has already hit into the labor forces of companies who feed parts to GM.

Duplate of Canada Ltd., supplier of auto windshields to GM, has laid off 500 workers in its Oshawa plant and 50 at its Oakville plant.

General Spring Products Ltd., Kitchener, has laid of 410 men.

The strike directly affects 12,300 GM wokers in Oshawa; 7,300 in St. Catherines; 2,200 in Windsor; 1,900 in Ste. Therese, Que.; 1,000 in Toronto, and 800 in London, Ont.

The two sides are at loggerheads over several issues. However, the stumbling block to a settlement is the issue of work practice.

GM wants to end the practice of shutting down assembly lines for 30 minutes each eight-hour shift before it will meet union proposals for wage parity with workers in the United States.

In Canada, with the exception of the Ste. Therese plant, production lines stop twice each shift to allow 10-minute coffee breaks and twice for five-minute wash-up periods.

It has proposed that the U.S. practice of providing relief on an individual basis be substituted.

Other issues include layoff and transfers.

Earlier this week wokers at three GM plants staged wildcat walkouts at Windsor, Oshawa and Ste. Therese.

Six hours before the deadline 300 workers at McKinnon Industries Ltd. of St. Catharines, a GM subsidiary, walked off.

An aftermath of the walkout at Oshawa Thursday was the firing of five workers who, the company said, either made no effort to prevent the walkout or persuaded workers to walk out.

Secret Meeting

Hopes Raised in Pueblo Incident

SEOUL (AP) — Hopes for release of the Pueblo crew members rose again today with reports on the fifth U.S.-North Korean secret meeting and the impending arrival from Washington of U.S. trouble-shooter Cyrus Vance. The crew members have been held prisoner in North Korea for 17 days.

A source close to the South Korean government reported Seoul officials believe the North Koreans may hand over the one dead crew member and three injured men in the not too distant future, but that the other 79 U.S. prisoners will have a longer wait.

Vance was scheduled to arrive in Seoul Sunday morning. He recently won attention with his successful mediation efforts to head off war between Greece and Turkey over Cyprus

Smoothing things over with South Korean leaders is seen as a major though unannounced purpose of Vance's visit. The South Koreans have been piqued by what they regard as the U.S. stress on the Pueblo incident and relative inattention to the North Korean guerrilla attempt on the life of President Chung Hee Park.

Wilson Meets Pearson

OTTAWA (CP) — British Prime Minister Wilson met with His Canadian counterpart, Lester Pearson, in private talks today after a three-day Washington visit he said was satisfying.

Mr. Pearson told the House of Commons here Friday that he would discuss Vietnam with Mr. Wilson.

The Canadian prime minister said in passing that he would like to see "an escalation" of the feeling that the war should be brought to an end and negotiations started.

Withdrawal of British forces from Asia also was to be part of the Canadian discussion. Mr. Pearson said in the Commons this decision was regrettable.

Mr. Pearson also indicated that Rhodesia and the possibility of a conference of Commonwealth prime ministers would be discussed.

Mr. Wilson arrived in the capital by air late Friday night from Washington and was to spend most of today at Mr. Pearson's official residence at 24 Sussex Drive.

'Drink-in' Cancelled

TORONTO (CP) — If 30 students from six Toronto high schools held their planned drink-in at a suburban Scarborough beverage room Friday night, police knew nothing about it..

A police spokesman said early today officers on regular patrol in hotels found nothing resembling an organized beer drinking contest.

"Perhaps all the publicity they got in the local newspapers scared them off," the spokesman said.

Six five-man teams were entered in the contest. The students were to drink an average of 15 glasses of beer each to see which team could consume $15 worth of draught beer first.

A contest official said the two fastest teams would then enter a sudden-death "drink-off" to determine which team could drink the most beer in a two-hour period.

The spokesman said the competition was arranged because the Toronto Secondary School Athletic Association has no competition to test students' beer-drinking capacity.

The students formed the Toronto Schools Draft Drinkers Association and only those "21 years old or appear to be and have proof of age" could belong.

Clowning Around

The inventive minds that organize the Tweed Winter Carnival every year couldn't figure out what to use for torches for awhile. However, they solved the problem by buying rolls of toilet paper and soaking them in gasoline. Judging from last night's parade they work very well.

Restraint Ended --U.S. Bombs Haiphong Area

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. warplanes raided the Haiphong area Friday for the first time in a month, apparently ending a bombing restraint ordered by President Johnson while U.S. officials looked into peace prospects.

State Secretary Dean Rusk indicated that the peace probe ended after the Viet Cong launched their biggest offensive of the war Jan. 30.

Reuters news agency said the strike was by a single naval jet using radar-controlled bombs and that the U.S. command did not consider this a raid on the Haiphong area.

Reuters quoted a U.S. command spokesman as saying that the raid was not considered a raid on the port area and adding: "We have not bombed targets in Hanoi or Haiphong since Jan. 4 when we hit bridges inside both cities."

"This was a strike by one aircraft. Attacks on Hanoi or Haiphong are characterized by large numbers of aircraft striking in visual weather. This was a radar strike in bad weather."

Fighting from that campaign against major South Vietnamese cities has died out in all but Hue and Saigon, where the combined U.S.-South Vietnamese forces reported some success in efforts to clear out Communist-held aeas.

The U.S. command said the Viet Cong-North Vietnamese death toll climbed by 1,085 Friday, reaching a total of 27,706 since Jan. 29. The combined forces death toll was reported as 2,707, including 920 Americans, 1,733 South Vietnamese and 54 other forces.

The president's bombing ban applied to the areas around Hanoi, the North Vietnamese capital, and Haiphong, the key port city, officials in Washington said.

Torchlight Parade Opens Tweed Carnival

Off with a bang! And it wasn't because of the hundred or so torches that people were carrying either.

The fourth annual Tweed Winter Carnival began last night with a torchlight parade. Everybody was more comfortable than last year as the temperature wasn't the 20 below it was a year ago.

Lining the streets the residents of Tweed and their guests for the evening watched a parade of bands, floats, and of course, people, all led by a police color guard.

Participating in the parade were five bands, floats from Tweed's various industries as well as stock cars, majorettes and the citizens of Tweed.

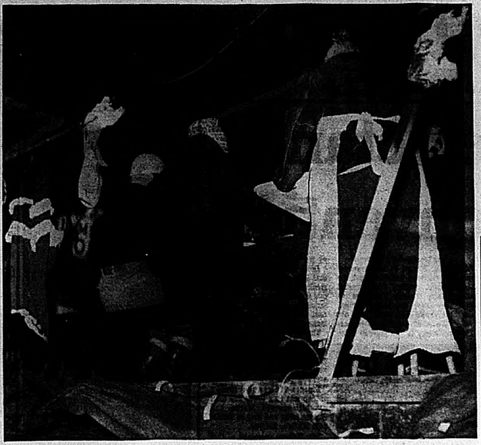
The parade came down the Main St. in Tweed from the station to the community centre where a band tatoo on ice was held. Although the parade was a little late getting started nobody minded the wait.

Besides the torchlight parade to the community centre there was also a snow queen presentation, a street dance with both modern and square music, sleigh rides and a giant bonfire.

It was just the start, though, of a full weekend of festivities. The parade was followed by a street dance held in front of the community centre and a barbecue.

Today and Sunday will be filled with snowmobile races, airplane rides, stock car races, sleigh rides and according to one citizen of the community, "one big three day party."

Today's activities will consist of stock car races this afternoon, hockey, an ice revue this evening with a tug-of-war, beard growing contest, and a dance on ice. Sunday's activities will be led off by a pancake breakfast beginning at 9.30 a.m.



Practising For Pancakes

These loggers on one of the floats at the Tweed Winter Carnival's parade last night really knew how to eat. They'll really get an opportunity to demonstrate their capacities for food this Sunday morning at the pancake breakfast.

Association of Women Electors May Be Formed in Napanee

NAPANEE—Women's groups here have been asked to consider forming a branch of the Association of Women Electors.

Mrs. Carman Hyland, a member of Grace United Church Women, suggested the move Thursday night.

"If you feel we have a need, go back to your groups and discuss it," Mrs. Hyland told delegates of several women groups, invited by Grace UCW to their meeting.

The occasion was the appearance of Mrs. D. W. Geiger, vice-president of the Kingston Association of Women Electors. She outlined the activities of her 40-member group.

The organization is non-partison, non-sectarian and non-profit. It sends observers to meeting of city and township councils, boards of education and planning boards.

Members of AWE take no part in the meetings they attend. Only after a report is circulated among members and a committee formed to study a situation do they take a definite stand.

The group differs from ratepayers' associations which "fight like fury over one issue and then die out for a while," Mrs. Geiger said. "We try to be even-tempered."

Her group was able to retain public access to waterfront property in one case, helped form a conservation authority and blocked a developer's application for an apartment building in an area lacking bus service, sewers and water.

Mrs. Hyland suggested the third or fourth Thursday in March would be a suitable date for Napanee groups to meet to discuss the idea of a local AWE.

Grace UCW president, Mrs. Robert Hicks, offered the use of the church's meeting room for a preliminary meeting.

'Spring Thaw' in Town Tuesday

Spring Thaw brightens another mid-winter for the Quinte district Tuesday.

In fact it does it twice in one night.

For the second successive year the famed revue is playing two performances at Centennial Secondary School.

With its Belleville audiences building since its first presentation here four years ago, two shows were needed to fill the clamor for seats at Centennial in 1967.

The show was introduced to Belleville by the city branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association and proceeds go to the pioneering community of the local organization.

The celebrated national revue also has something to celebrate this year.

Each time the stage lights go up its another big birthday party.

Spring Thaw is celebrating its 21st birthday in show business.

Tickets for Tuesday night's performances — at 6 p.m. and 9.15 p.m. — are still on sale at Thomas Cigar Store, Front Street.

Teacher's Aides Possible

PICTON — Following the lead of Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, Picton Public School Board is considering hiring lay help to aid teachers.

The high school announced last fall its intention to hire persons to control classes during a teacher's absence and to help with details of education not requiring trained teachers. The measure was taken to reduce costs of hiring supplementary staff.

Management chairman George Powers, who made the proposal, said the plan has worked well in Birmingham schools.

Board chairman W. W. Evans said he had sought advice from PECI principal John H. McNeil before the public school board meeting Thursday night. He was in favor of the scheme.

A proposal was made to arrange a course for handicapped children through the provincial government. The question was not discussed at length.

He is gone but not forgotten,
And as dawns another year,
In our lonely hours of thinking
Thoughts of him are always near,

But they little know the sorrow,
That lies within the heart concealed.

I'd give it, yes, and more,
To hear her voice, see her smile,
And greet her at the door.
But all I can do, dear mother,
Is go and tend your grave,
And leave behind tokens of love
To the best mother God ever made.
I like to think when life is done,
Wherever heaven may be,
She'll be standing at the door
Up there to welcome me.

The Trent River-End of Pleasure Boating Season

This abandoned punt lies yards from the spot where dozens of yachts and pleasure craft pass out of the Trent Canal system every summer. Far out on the ice can be seen tiny dots . . . shanties for this season's sport of ice fishing.

ANTHONY GRAY

Technicians Graduate

Local Man Medal Winner

Mr. Anthony Gray from the Belleville General Hospital School of X-Ray Technology was the gold medal winner at the tenth annual graduation exercises of the Eastern Section of the Ontario Society of Radiological Technicians being held in Kingston this Saturday.

Mr. Gray was one of two Belleville students receiving certficates and was the only man in the 24 member graduating class.

The other Belleville student was Miss Barbara Mazerall. Both students are now working at the Belleville hospital.

Guest speaker at the graduating exercises was Dr. William R. Ghent, chief of surgery at Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston.

Dr. Ghent told graduates that the success of any health-science team depends upon them working as equals and "not as master and servant as it has been in the past."

He said that progress in the field of radiology has been astounding in the past 70 years but it was not a case that "they have gone as far as they can go."

"Remarkable discoveries were being made almost daily in the medical-science world," he said.

The Canadian Society of Radiology Technicians certificates and pins were presented by Dr. B. T. Colwell of Hotel Dieu Hospital and Dr. D. G. Wollin of the committee on qualifications, CSRT.

Dr. P. G. Loder, radiologist at Belleville General Hospital presented the radiologists medal, awarded to the student best combining outstanding scholarship, technical ability, and professional conduct.

Students from Hotel Dieu Hospital and Kingston General Hospital, from Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay, Hotel Dieu Hospital, Cornwall, The Cottage Hospital, Pembroke, and St. Vincent de Paul Hospital Brockville, were included in the graduating class.

Heart and Health

In today's complex world a healthy mind and a healthy body are essential attributes. Such qualities are all the more significant at this time as Canadians prepare to further heart research through next week's fund-raising campaign.

Allied with the proper functioning of the heart is the need of a positive attitude toward life. That elusive quality "happiness" is often no more than the sense of well-being that goes with peak physical and mental fitness.

A person who is well yet is always complaining about the way life is treating him has only to visit a hospital to realize how lucky he is. And if people are bored today, because of lack of challenge, it is their own fault. There are countless things to be done in this world. There is need at every turn — services to be performed ,whether on behalf of one's family or the community.

"It has to be part of one's being, observed Lord Chandos, that one is interested in practically anyone and everything. Or as Thomas Carlyle once said, "You should live every day as if it were your last." These are concepts that encourage a sense of happiness.

For all that life does not run quite so smoothly. There are stresses and strains at every turn and they tax men's time and energy. In a distressing number of cases people succumb to heart disease.

As a Heart Fund circular points out, the effects of heart disease are two-fold. They create economic and emotional havoc within the family circle. They also seriously impair the security of the community. Many victims are at the peak of their skills — between the ages of 45 and 60 — often holding key positions in industry or in civic affairs as well as being family breadwinners.

In cold statistics no fewer than 72,000 people die of various heart ailments every year. That is, more than the combined total from all other diseases and causes of death. Cardiovascular diseases in fact account for more than 50 per cent of all deaths.

Expressed another way, about half the death notices in daily newspapers mention heart attack, stroke or heart disease as the cause of death. Often the people involved are family breadwinners in the prime of life — between 45 and 60.

From the economic standpoint there is an annual production loss of $30 million.

Research into this perplexing problem goes on. However, it depends to a large extent on the contributions of Canadians through the Heart Fund campaign this month, with the emphasis on this coming week.

A Smile or Two

Those pictures of the premiers at the federal-provincial constitutional conference in Ottawa . . . you would never have thought a single angry word had been exchanged throughout the whole affair.

And all those smiling faces. Well of course people do have their public and private faces. The conference was held in public — television and all — but the serious image the leaders presented publicly was in sharp contrast to the informal contacts outside the parley.

That is politics. There was even the post-conference spectacle of Federal Justice Minister Trudeau shaking hands with Quebec Premier Johnson. Earlier the pair had engaged in heated debate over Mr. Johnson's demands for more provincial power — an encounter all the more remarkable for the fact both men are French Canadians.

Politicians of course cannot afford to lose their tempers. It is part of the political art that any display of emotion be restrained. In Ottawa it has been mostly smiling faces. Here for instance is a beaming Premier Bennett, looking for all the world like one who is loving every minute of his stay in the capital and not wishing he were back in Victoria. And here is another picture of him grasping Mr. Johnson by the shoulder and perhaps suggesting he come out to B. C. for a fishing trip.

And the ever-smiling Prime Minister Pearson — in one picture he is joshing with Mr. Trudeau and telling him he cannot be seen walking into the Government House dining room with him since "you're after my job."

In yet another shot, even the usually bleak visage of Finance Minister Sharp is creased in a smile. And what is he smiling at? None other than Mr. Johnson leaning across a table to pick up a fallen "Canada" sign in front of Mr. Pearson, and place it "on its feet."

If you are looking for symbols that one is as eloquent of the survival of Confederation as any to have come out of the conference. Keep Quebec happy — within reason — and the nation will prevail.

Taxpayer Suffers for Sins of Government Excesses

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — They were cutting, Prime Minister Pearson exulted, "hundreds upon hundreds of millions of dollars" from the government's $12 billion spending program.

That was just three months ago.

The government was running a deficit far in excess of $1 billion.

Its bonds were at a discount.

Its credit questionable.

And it was encountering difficulty in borrowing — such difficulty that it had to put a gun at the head of the Bank of Canada to force it to stuff the chartered banks with more of its unwelcome securities.

In triumphantly trumpeting the "hundreds upon hundreds of millions of dollars" of savings in prospect, the prime minister was trying to calm down the government's financial advisers and shore up its slipping credit.

For Bank of Canada governor Louis Rasminsky had joined former chairman John Deutch of the government's own Economic Council in the warning that if the reckless pace of federal spending continued unchecked, the national economy could be destroyed.

That just about made it unanimous, with all the financial experts, public and private, agreed that ever-increasing federal spending would bankrupt the nation.

Since then, in these more recent weeks, Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp has clamped his five per cent surcharge on already wickedly high income tax rates, compelling the taxpayer, as always happens, to cover the bill for the governmet's own extravagance.

And meanwhile, the value, the true worth of the dollar has been dicey.

Dicey not just here at home where the inflated dollar has bought less and less, but dicey on the international money markets.

This seems evidence that not everyone quite believed the prime minister's panic-sworn oath of 'emergency economy.

Why not?

Well, there are signs — little signs to be sure — everywhere, especially in Hansard, Parliament's word-for-word record.

But many little things go to make bigger things don't they? And small amounts added together make large amounts.

Just in one day's issue of Hansard there were a dozen different little items of federal spending, one of them:

Payment for the royal commission on the status of women, sitting then for only 15 days, $218,946.

Shucks, what is $218,946? Who cares?

Well, among others, New Brunswick's construction workers should care.

For the department of national revenue's "Green Book" shows that the $218,946 the royal commission on women has cost in 15 days of work is almost as much as New Brunswick's 477 construction workers paid in $221,000 of income tax for the working year. The province's construction men earned $2,392,000 of which $1,148,000 was taxable.

Then on the same day, Hansard reported External Affairs Minister Paul Martin conceding his department had spent exactly $37,694.40 bringing some French African doctors from Upper Volta, Ivory Coast, Tohad, Gabon and 13 other former colonies of France to Montreal for a convention last September.

They were flown over, housed, fed, entertained and flown back to Africa at external affairs expense.

So what? And again, does anybody care about $37,694.40?

Well, the non-taxable old age pensioners living in Prince George, B.C. perhaps care. For the same revenue department's "Green Book" discloses the federal pensions paid to all the eligible elderly in Prince George run just $36,000 annually. These are the elderly who have only their pensions, with no other income, so don't draw enough to be liable for tax.

Who else might care?

To strike an odd note, North Bay's divorcees may, for the "Green Book" shows that their taxable income from alimony totals just a yearly $36,000.

There is another little item — in fact, there are hundreds of such spending gems — in the same Hansard, disclosing that $164,153.18 has been paid in "honoraria and expenses" to co-chairmen Davidson Dunton ($57,106.08) and Andre Laurendeau ($107,047.10) of the royal commission on bilingualism.

So what is $164,153.18? Let us look in the "Green Book" and discover that it is more than:

1. The total income tax paid by Canada's 4,195 heads of families with five dependents earning between $4,200 and $4,300, who cough up an annual total $162,000.

2. The total taxable rental income ($147,000) of all of Stratford's landlords, of St. Thomas' ($125,000), of Owen Sound's ($148,000).

Sort of puts federal spending in perspective, what!

Family Planning Program in British Columbia Spurred By High Illegitimacy Rate

Vancouver Sun

The annual report of the provincial department of social welfare is at once a discouraging and encouraging document. It is appalling to learn that one out of every eight children being born in British Columbia is illegitimate whereas in 1960 the figure — quite depressing enough — was one out of 15. Yet it is heartening to know that the department is squarely facing the issue, is dispassionately searching for answers, and is more than ready — eager is the better word — to sponsor birth control whenever it is permitted to do so.

When that will be will depend on the speed with which Parliament implements the recommendations of the Commons health comittee for removal of the outrageous Criminal Code prohibition of the sale and advertising of contraceptives. It will depend, too, on the sort of encouragement that child welfare officers such as T. D. Bingham and J. V. Belknap receive from Premier Bennett's government. As has been well shown by the annual condemnation of conditions at Oakalla prison farm by corrections director S. Rocksborough Smith, enlightened officials and reform do not necessarily go hand in hand.

The fact is, of course, that the social and financial burden of illegitimacy is such that junior government, with a wink here and a nod there, already is making a well-deserved mockery of the federal law.

Since September, the Family Planning Association of B.C. has been conducting twice-a-week birth control clinics—supplying group advice, personal counselling and, horrors, the pill — in metropolitan health units in this city. These clinics are so greatly in demand that they are booked full a week and more ahead and the association is planning others, one of them for the North Shore. With metropolitan health facilities and United Services funds involved, the clinics, although flouting the law as it exists, constitute an official birth control program in almost everything else but name.

Although family planning efforts of this sort are a credit to the social conscience and the courage of all involved, they do not meet British Columbia's pressing problem as both the statistics and the experience of provincial child welfare officers make clear.

Here is what the department's annual report has to say:

"From a review of individual cases, social workers quickly arrive at the conclusion that there are many persons who, if provided with birth - control knowledge and the means, would willingly limit their families.

"We as social workers believe it is in the best interest of families and children to help those who wish to limit their families to do so.

If there is to be a reduction in the tragic cost to society imposed by this naivete, it will be because the state has stopped interfering in people's personal decisions, and because the hands of those ready and willing to help have been unfettered.

Defending the Family Unit Dr. Penfield Blasts Trend Toward "Loveless Society"

Brockville Recorder and Times

Dr. Wilder Penfield, of Montreal, one of the world's great neurosurgeons and a man who knows more about the human brain than any other living soul, is concerned about the changes in moral standards and attitudes taking place in the world today. He is fearful that the moral changes may be a prelude to decadence.

It is of more than passing interest that Dr. Penfield views some of the new attitudes towards sex as less than progressive. In fact one gets the impression from his opinions that he feels mankind is starting to revert to his animal state again. It has taken several thousand years to get out of the trees but it will take much less time to return to the jungle. . .or the barnyard.

Dr. Penfield views the family unit as the strength of our civilization. He admits that no one would want the family structure, which was adequate years ago, protected or defended now but on the other hand certain values have to be protected. He's against free love. He feels that free love, which some people advocate, is all very well for cattle but something different is written into the nature of mankind. Free love doesn't make for a good society and people who practise it never really know what love is. There is so much talk about sex and free love that we could develop a loveless society. He feels there should be more talk about children since our future is in their hands.

As an aside, and an appropriate one, Dr. Penfield said he prefers the monogamous Canada goose to a cow. It's something to think about the next time a TV program boosting free love comes beaming into the living room.

Trade Missions Broaden Horizons

Montreal Gazette

Canada's traditional markets for export sales are the United States, Britain and Western Europe.

Last year, the Federal Trade Department made a special effort to reach a special overall target. The effort included 40 trade missions, with 31 of them timed to correspond with trade visits to Expo 67.

The target was not only reached, but exceeded, with foreign sales registering an increase of 10.5 per cent at $1,411,400,000, more than $1 billion higher than the 1966 total.

The increase, however, came almost entirely from these three traditional areas and in sales of traditional products such as furs, timber and agricultural and mineral raw materials.

Outside the traditional areas— the U.S., U.K., Britain and the down because grain shipments were down, by six per cent.

This year, the Trade Department has set a target of $12.3 billion, an increase of $900 million over last year, and has made some changes in the program which is intended to achieve it.

This year, 35 trade missions of businessmen and Trade Department promotion officers will go beyond the traditional areas to seek new markets, to Japan and Southeast Asia, Australia and New Zealand, Latin America, Spain, the Middle East and possibly Eastern Europe.

And they will be seeking to widen the traditional list of exports. Electric and electronic goods, medical and scientific equipment will be promoted.

This is an excellent program, a welcome demonstration of Canada's new confidence in its own abilities. Because U.S. manufactured products play such a large part in Canadian life, Canadians are inclined to think of themselves as backward in the manufacturing field.

But there are many places in the world where Canadian manufactures will be welcomed. The job of the trade missions is to find them.

Charles Darnley, unpopular husband of Mary Queen of Scots, was murdered 401 years ago today—in 1567—while sick with smallpox. The house was blown up by gunpowder but he was found strangled in the garden. The Queen could not be directly accused of complicity in the plot, but there are many who believe she is not altogether guiltless—especially as the chief instigator of the murder had been her new favorite, Bothwell. He was brought to trial and acquitted.

1931—New Delhi was inaugurated.

NHA Costs Coming Down

Peterborough Examiner

For the first time in months there is good news on the housing front — for middle-income families anyway. Federal Treasury Board President Edgar Benson has announced he hopes to introduce soon a scheme that will reduce down payment requirements on NHA houses. The proposed changes would make possible loans of 90 per cent of the total cost — up to $18,000 — rather than the present system of 95 per cent on the first $13,000 of a property's assessed lending value and 70 per cent on the remainder. This will have the effect of lowering down-payment requirements on a $15,000 home from $1,250 to $750 and on an $18,000 home from $2,150 to $900.

Simultaneous with Mr. Benson's announcement came the news that Alcan Universal Homes, a Toronto manufacturer of pre-fab houses, will soon begin the mass-production of comfortable if unelaborate houses to sell at between $8,500 to $12,500, broadloom, furniture and appliances included. They will qualify for CMHC mortgages and will be set, if and when desired, on HOME lots.

While these two developments would seem to suggest that soon almost any family will be able to buy a home, it must be remembered (a) that the lower down-payments will mean proportionately higher carrying charges, particularly at today's high interest rates; (b) that the absence of a national building code will mean that the pre-fab homes will be unacceptable in some areas; (c) that speculation continues to force up land costs and (d) that pre - fab homes, while a good deal better than nothing, are plain in the extreme.

Even so, it's nice to know that something is being done on the home front.

February 10, 1948.

The Quinte Skating Club of this city has sent a telegram of congratulation to Barbara Ann Scott, Canada's Olympic figure-skating champion. The Quinte Club has a special interest in the blonde beauty of the ice-lanes for she was one of their guests at their annual Winter Show here four or five years ago.

Officials at the Belleville Agricultural Society are in Toronto this week attending the annual convention of the Ontario Fairs Association. Attending the convention are President Harry Rollins, past president Elmer Sandercock; treasurer Ben Bleecker and secretary E. S. Denyes.

February 10, 1938.

John Shaw, well known and veteran lawn bowler, was elected president of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club at the annual meeting of the club which was held at the YMCA. A complete new slate of officers was presented for approval. Retiring president George Watkin reviewed the past year's activities of the club and reported much progress. Treasurer Bert Backus reported a favorable bank balance. The club handed over $1600 during the season, much of which was spent on new greens. The election of officers resulted as follows: president, John Shaw; vice president, Harry Stock; chairman of the greens committee, Charles Doran; chairman of the games committee, E. Zaron; secretary treasurer, M. J. Vanner.

40 YEARS AGO

February 10, 1928.

In the early part of 1886 the citizens of Belleville had no idea that in two years' time they would have a system of waterworks second to none in the Dominion. Yet such proved to be the case as in February 1888, the system was in operation and proving very satisfactory. The contract to construct the system was signed on October 12th., 1886. The extent of pipes was to be at least 14 miles from the pump house with at least 164 hydrants. The last pipe was laid about January 10th., 1888. Between $75,000. and $85,000. was paid for labor. The total cost of the work in round figures was $225,000.

50 YEARS AGO

February 10, 1918.

The fuel situation here: Mayor Dr. Platt has issued the following statement: "The fuel situation in Belleville is such as to make it imperative that every economy should be practised for the next two weeks in the consumption of coal. No persons who have fuel sufficient for more than four days' use, need apply at the city hall or to the Fuel Controller for a supply. All persons who have a quantity of coal larger than needed for the next few weeks are urged to share it with their neighbors who may be in want."

'Flower Pit' Anglican Priest Tries to Help Young and Poor

MONTREAL (CP) — Rev. John E. Burke is a boyish bachelor who laughs easily and can talk hippy slang unself-consciously.

He's not in the least worried by the notoriety he acquired while he was proprietor of a church-sponsored coffee shop, the Flower Pit, which was raided in December by police in search of marijuana, but he fears that "people will begin to think I'm some kind of kook, and that might destroy what I'm trying to do." The Flower Pit closed the same night as the police raid after operating for six months on an experimental basis.

What the 37-year-old Anglican priest has been trying to do for the last three years, he says, is "to be a sort of interpreter between the urban poor and the confused kids on the one hand, and the ordinary 'straight' society on the other."

Mr. Burke began his fight for the underdog in what he calls the "inner city" — the congested, dirty centre of Montreal—when he returned from six years of helping his fishermen parishioners on the Labrador coast organize co-operatives to sell their fish.

"I came back from Labrador in 1965 physically pooped," he says with a smile, "because that job took a lot out of me, and I looked around for a parish right in the centre of the city."

As assistant priest at downtown St. John the Evangelist Anglican Church, he soon discovered that 20 per cent of his parishioners were below the official poverty line—earning less than $3,000 a year—and he decided that poverty is "a vicious circle it's almost impossible to escape from."

At a meeting last spring of the Montreal Council of Social Agencies, he declared: "The biggest contributor to poverty is our provincial government. As long as we have a system that seeks to keep down the costs of welfare we will have spreading pools of poverty."

"Once you're in the poverty circle," he says now, "you struggle to keep alive, because you're getting less money than officials estimate as the minimum for existence. You do what people tell you. It saps you of all energy, all initiative. It's a terrible thing to see."

So Mr. Burke helped to establish a citizens' group in his downtown parish. At four meetings held over a period of two months he and his co-workers advised about 100 unemployed men and welfare recipients to organize themselves

With the difficulty, as he describes it, of those unaccustomed to making decisions for themselves, the group succeeded in drawing up two petitions, one requesting a local medical clinic and the other asking for welfare payment increases. The city is still debating whether to set up the clinic. There has been a small increase in welfare payments.

Nine such citizens' groups now are operating in Montreal.

Mr. Burke, in addition to his present position as curate of St. Saviour's mission in northwest Montreal, is director of the Quebec Welfare Council, a co-ordinating association for social agencies, and the director of the Family Services Association of Montreal.

Last year the energetic young priest turned his attention to the crowds of young people in his parish. He started a Friday night discotheque —still successfully operating —for the "teeny-boppers" and a Sunday night coffee house, the Flower Pit, for the so called "hippies."

To Mr. Burke, the teeny boppers include most teen agers, who are full of energy interested in their own fast changing fashions and looking for a good time.

But the "hippies," he says, are a far more serious element. The obvious dropouts from society with the long hair and the fascination with drugs "are only the top tenth of an iceberg of young people everywhere that are looking desperately for ways to communicate with each other and with their parents' generation."

"The St. John the Evangelist Church started the Pit as a six-month experiment last June to try to make a place where serious young people could come—free—and talk about their problems with about six 'straight' people, including a professor, a housewife and a couple of priests," Mr. Burke says.

His telephone still rings constantly with requests for help from troubled teen-agers he befriended in the Flower Pit.

Despite the temporary lapse of the project, he says, he is looking for new ways to fulfil his self-appointed role as human bridge between the "straight" society—the comfortable middle class—and "the others."

Holy Man of Jains On Fast to Death

By RAM SUNDAR
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — Thousands of followers of India's Jain religion have been visiting a forest monastery in Bihar province in northern India to seek the blessings of a holy man who has been on a fast to the death since Dec. 23.

The Jain religion says monks can attain "nirvana"—emancipation from earthly life—through fasting.

But it is only rarely that a Jain religions leader undertakes such a step. The slow death by starvation may take anything from a month to three months and the Jains say that only a truly saintly man can face the spiritual ordeal.

Seventy-year-old Sri Jagjivan Maharaj is believed by Indians to be such a man. Every day, some 10,000 Jains visit his monastery to touch his feet reverently and participate in round-the-clock prayers.

There are more than 1,500,000 Jains, whose religion is an offshoot of Hinduism, in India

Maharaj's followers say that 2,000 years ago a great Jain saint named Tirthankara Sheelbhadra attained his emancipation through a fast which lasted more than 250 days.

The Bihar provincial government is running special buses to the monastery to enable pilgrims from all over India to pay their respects to the fasting monk.

Among those visiting the monastery are cabinet ministers, top government officials and many foreign tourists.

Maharaj's dsiciples say that the fast may last some 70 days.

Pilgrims who have returned from the monastery say the atmosphere there is one of "spiritual joy and tranquillity."

A wealthy Bombay merchant who made the 1,300-mile pilgrimage said: "His Holiness was the picture of heavenly bliss. He is preparing for his end with a smile on his lips."

A Jain woman of 75 who stayed in the monastery for a fortnight said her audience with the monk was "a wonderful spiritual experience."

Indian courts have held that come under India's anti-suicide the Jain religious custom of "pre-arranged death" does not law and is not illegal.

AUSTRALIA — FIRST HAND

"Surfer's Paradise is a town on the Gold Coast about 30 miles from Brisbane." — Judi Linton.

* * *

Judi, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Linton of Belleville, who is teaching in Sydney, Australia, describes the 580 mile trip to Brisbane and Surfer's Paradise:

"The train trip, at first, was beautiful. We passed the largest oyster beds in the South Hemisphere and then got into partial Outback." (Australians use the term "Outback" to describe the vast rugged inland regions of their country.) "The houses are just shacks. We would go for a half hour or so without seeing so much as a trace of human existence. We came up slightly inland so we missed most of the coast.

"We passed a banana plantation. Here they cover the bunches of bananas with blue laundry bags to protect the bananas from frost as well as bugs. So all we could see were hills covered with palm trees which appeared to have blue appendages!

That was the day we saw two kangaroos. I was looking out the window and what should I see hopping off into the woods but an honest-to-goodness wild kangaroo. About three minutes later, we saw another one in the woods. That was a thrill, believe me!

Some of the countryside is truly beautiful. It is right out of Western movies, only they use cars and trucks and jeeps instead of horses.

Brisbane is known as a king-sized bush town. It is an old city filled with retired and middle-aged married people. There is little activity. The university there is lovely though. The cab driver, who treated us to a rushed tour, showed us this in particular.

All the houses are built on stilts, usually high enough to drive a car under the house. I asked people why and they said that in the early days, it kept the house cool, kept it also from being infested with snakes and if there was a flood the house could float away. Now they are just built that way so the house will have a storage space or car-port.

The Gold Coast itself, just beyond Brisbane is almost one continuous beach where, on its 20 miles of sands, it is said, some 150,000 holiday-makers occupy a sort of huge fun fair of chalets and motels.

We had been told that Surfer's Beach is just like Miami. Actually, it's like a midway. When the season begins, rates triple. That season starts soon! The Americans are due any day or week now, so the population will swell. Army people also come from Vietnam . . . It's fantastic the reception for strangers here.

Surfing is tremendous in this area. I didn't try it but some kids were practising while we watched. High rise buildings are just not allowed. Consequently, even the big hotels are small compared to what we are used to. Fortunately, no one in Australia can own beach property. All beaches are public . . .

I was going to tell you about the meter - maids. These are girls who collect money from the parking meters. They ride a motorcycle and all they wear is a gold lame bikini like you've never seen before, with six-pences sewn on the bikinis. People are so used to this they don't even notice. I felt like I was wearing overalls in my bikini compared to some of them; this includes fellows in brief bikinis. Also everyone wanders all over town in this outfit, even into places for lunch, shopping, etc.

The trip back to Sydney, by bus, was much more interesting than the train trip up. All the population is along the coast. The weeping willow trees grow so that you can look across the countryside and trace the paths of the millions of streams, because the willows are just thick along both banks.

The roads are something else again. The main highway consists of a narrow two-laned, pot-holed, curvy and sometimes paved road. Quite often it is just a gravel road. We were driving through the mountains and instead of seeing dead skunks and porcupines on the road, we saw a dead kangaroo and a koala bear. Also I got a view of sheep farming; hundreds of sheep in one spot at one time.

The Jacaranda trees are in bloom (for October is spring here) and all the flowers are out in profusion. These trees are the size of our maple trees, just a mass of purple flowers. They appear to grow wild as the countryside is covered with them. One town, Casino, has all its streets lined with Jacarandas, so that the whole town is purple."

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM D. SPARLING

Sparling — Sproule

A candlelight double-ring wedding ceremony was performed in College Hill United Church on Saturday February 3, 1968, when Lynda Marie Sproule of Toronto, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Sproule, Belleville became the bride of William David Sparling, Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Sparling of Hamilton. Rev. Roy Vessey officiated and wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Lorne Blakely who accompanied the soloist Alan Healey, uncle of the bride.

Given in marriage by her father and mother, the bride wore a floor-length gown of ivory satin with long lily-point sleeves and highlighted with a panel of guipure lace extending from the neck to hemline. The back of the dress was enhanced with a sweeping cathedral of matching satin. A four-tier silk illusion veil was caught to a satin bow headdress and she carried a cascade crescent bouquet of white Shasta daisies and ivy. In keeping with tradition the bride also wore a bracelet worn by her grandmother Richmond at her wedding.

Miss Elinor Beaith as maid of honor wore a Kelly green French silk velvet A-line gown with matching bow at back of head. The bridesmaids Miss Janet Sparling of Hamilton, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Sandra Wood of Peterborough were identically attired. The junior bridesmaids Miss Barbara Sproule and Miss Marny Heatley of Brampton, cousins of the bride wore dresses similar to the others but in Empire style. Each carried a cascade bouquet of white pom pom 'mums and fern.

Groomsman was John Waugh of Kingston, while the ushers were Dr. James R. Sparling of Kingston, brother of the bridegroom, William Sproule of Belleville, brother of the bride, Barry Walters of London and Bob Cox of Toronto.

The reception was held in the church parlors where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a blue and green brocade dress and matching jacket, winter white Swiss mohair hat, matching accessories and a flowered hat with a purse corsage of pink Sweetheart-roses.

For the honeymoon trip to the Laurentians, the bride choose a cranberry wool suit, navy accessories and a corsage of gardenias and feathered carnations.

Upon return the couple will reside at 100 Gamble Ave., Apt. 9, Toronto 6.

Montreal Grandmother Helps Revive Long-lost Peruvian Handicraft Arts

MONTREAL (CP) — A bustling, grandmotherly Montrealer planned to go south to Florida this winter, but she's changed her mind — she's going to Peru.

Rosalie Finestone won't just be soaking up the South American sunshine during her seven months in Lima. She will be teaching Peace Corp workers and Peruvian villagers a host of long-lost handicraft arts.

An amateur of the handicraft arts of many countries since she was a girl, Mrs. Finestone has worked for 40 years in Montreal to revive crafts at colleges, hospitals, veterans' homes and the YWCA.

"My son keeps telling me I'm a Peace Corp girl," Mrs. Finestone says. "Well, let him have his fun. I think he's getting quite a bang out of the fact that I want to go to Peru."

She had intended to take a vacation in Florida this winter, "but this is so much more fun and challenging."

"Originally I was just going to go for three months but now I'm staying seven because John Davis who heads the UNESCO program down there wants me to help him with a world conference on crafts which will be held in Lima from Aug. 25 to Sept. 5."

There is not a country in the world whose crafts do not interest Mrs. Finestone.

In 1953 she went to Stockholm to study modern Swedish designs and color. Later she went to Finland to study damask weaving.

Several years ago she went to Spain to study sculpture and learn Spanish, and found herself teaching handicrafts at the art school in San Miguel de Allende.

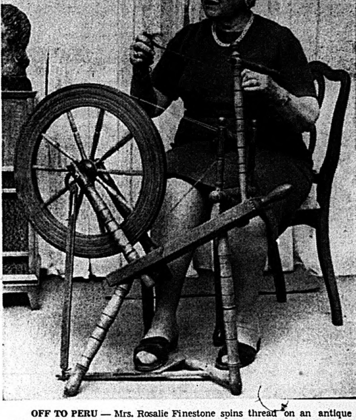
Many of her students now are professional handicraft teachers or boutique owners. They have taken their skills as far away as Trinidad, Israel and Switzerland.

Mrs. Finestone's motto, she says, is "each one teach one, each one help one."

Her goal is not only to revive handicraft arts, but to make people feel more alive and productive by giving them a way of making a living or filling up idle hours.

She will live with friends in Lima but plans to spend much of her time in districts outside the Peruvian capital teaching and translating English textbooks into Spanish.

Cheerful, energetic Mrs. Finestone regards herself as a teacher, but her own work has been widely acclaimed. In 1958 a piece of damask she wove was chosen for exhibit at the Brussels world's fair and was later shown at the National Gallery in Ottawa.



OFF TO PERU — Mrs. Rosalie Finestone spins thread on an antique spinning wheel, one of the many crafts she has mastered since she was a girl. Mrs. Finestone will soon be leaving for Peru to teach Peace Corps workers and Peruvian villagers handicraft arts. Apart from teaching handicrafts, she plans to translate English textbooks into Spanish. (CP Photo).

Argyll IODE Names Officers

The monthly meeting of Argyll Chapter IODE was held in the officers' mess in the armories, with Mrs. A. Cunningham, vice Regent, in charge.

The treasurer reported the Winter Fantasy Ball was a financial success and Mrs. R. Allan reported all cook books had been sold. Mrs. H. Vaughan, educational secretary, reported she had distributed all calendars to the schools.

Mrs. C. Bristol read the final edition of The Alert. The bulletin is being discontinued for the present.

Women's Liberal Delegates Defeat Tax Resolution

TORONTO CP — Delegate opinion is divided on why Ontario's Liberal women defeated a resolution asking tax deductions for babysitters hired by working mothers.

Delegates said later such deductions would discriminate against the woman who stays home. Others felt that members are too old to care about the problem, that they misunderstood the resolution's intent and that they believe women have a duty to pay taxes.

The resolution was presented to the 224 delegates at the association's annual meeting Thursday. It said there is a brain drain to the kitchen among Canada's women university graduates and suggested tax relief might help encourage professionally trained women to use their educations.

Two types of tax relief were suggested. One was a raise in the amount a wife may earn before any deductions are exemptions.

The other was that women be able to deduct a "reasonable amount of money" from taxable income for babysitters and household help necessary to enable them to go to work.

Husband Downs Drink Becomes Obnoxious

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is for "Accompanied But Alone" — the woman who complained because every time she and her husband go to a party he belts down three martinis the moment they arrive and within half an hour he passes out cold and misses everything.

She is lucky. At least he is out of the way. She can forget about the fool and have a good time.

Whenever we go to a party, my husband tosses down half a tumbler of Scotch and in 30 minutes he changes from a decent, likeable person into the biggest jackass in 50 states. He becomes obnoxious, tries to grab the women and they run away from him. His conversation becomes vulgar and utterly pointless. He repeats himself until I want to scream, "Shut up, you idiot!"

Last Saturday, we went to a party in a rather small apartment. He got dead drunk as usual and went to the bathroom to throw up. Everyone in the place heard him retching and I wanted to drop through the floor.

Why would a highly intelligent man want to present such an unattractive image of himself? If you can figure it out you are a lot smarter than I am. Please print this. If he reads it, it might help. — BAFFLED.

DEAR BAFF: This "highly intelligent man" hasn't the foggiest notion of the image he presents when he's bombed. If you try to tell him he is sure you are exaggerating.

To quote Robert Burns — O wad some Power the giftie gie us
To see oursels as others see us!
It would from many a blunder free us, an' foolish notion.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter was born six days too late to enter school last fall. I went twice to talk to the principal but she said she was sorry, nothing could be done.

Lizette is an extremely bright child and could keep up or surpass any child in the kindergarten. I know this to be a fact because Lizette plays with many of those youngsters and she is miles ahead of them all, mentally.

My husband and I feel that the school system is outmoded and that the rules should be changed. Doesn't it make sense that children should be accepted on the basis of what they know rather than the day of the year they happen to be born? Please comment. — WANT JUSTICE.

DEAR WANT: The experts say it is better for a child to enter school a little late than a little early. The precocious child has problems when his intellectual development exceeds his emotional development. He enjoys a distinct advantage when placed with children who are a few months younger, rather than older.

Keep your child occupied and intellectually challenged. And please stop feeling that the school authorities have done you a dirty trick. They have really done you a favor.

Confidential to TOUGH SLEDDING AND READY TO QUIT: I agree you have had a very trying time, but there are no easy answers to this one. Be patient until nature makes the final disposition. It takes a great deal of maturity to make a molehill out of a mountain, but you can do it. Others have.

Findlay Glass Commits Suicide in Warm Room

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

The art glass that "commits suicide" has interested collectors for many years. The fragile glass will survive years of use and then suddenly shatter in a sunny window. Findlay glass was made by Dalzell, Gilmore, Leighton, Company of Findlay, Ohio. The glass ware was molded with a characteristic flower design impressed in the glass.

A finished piece had flow s in one color. Most of the flowers were gold or silver. The background was usually a creamy white. Other shades are known but are rare.

The metallic color used in the glassware caused a manufacturing problem. Many pieces cracked before completion. The problems of heating and cooling the glass with this coloring matter was tricky. Years later the glasswares that were not properly cooled would shatter in a hot room or particularly in a sunny window.

Q. How old is tea leaf pattern ironstone?

A. The first tea leaf pattern ironstone was made about 1850. The pattern became popular during the 1870's. The design had an open tea leaf of copper lustre in the centre of ch plate. There was a band copper lustre around the rim.

The original design was not named and may really have represented a strawberry or coffee leaf. Traditionally, an open full leaf of tea in the bottom of the cup meant good luck. The name "tea leaf" was probably given for that reason.

Tea leaf lustre ironstone was made by many English firms. The pattern was evidently made for export. Very little can be found in England but it is plentiful in the United States and Canada.

Over 100 firms made the tea leaf pattern during the nineteenth century. By the early 1900's it was no longer popular. The pattern is being made again in Germany and Japan.

Q. A Negro slave in chains and the words "Am I not a man and a brother" are the design in the centre of a set of dishes brought from England. The pattern seems unusual to me and I wondered if it had a history.

A. In 1787 Josiah Wedgwood, famous potter, sent Benjamin Franklin a shipment of medallions picturing the slave plus the words found on your dishes. They were the official symbol of the English Committee of the Society for the Abolition of Slavery. Franklin and a group of 23 Philadelphia men formed a group in America to abolish slavery.

The medallions were distributed to friends of the antislavery group. They were worn as hatpins, buttons, rings or brooches.

The slave medallion has been reproduced in several ways. The medallion itself was reproduced in 1957.

Successful Living

Adopted Girl Wants to Know About Natural Parents

Dear Doris: I am a girl 14 who was adopted when I was three weeks old. During the last two months I have developed an unsupressible urge to know who my real parents were.

I am very happy living where I am, but I feel that I must know what my parents were like. Some time ago I stumbled on my adoption papers, and found out that my real name was P— W—.

Please tell me where I can find out where I came from. My adopted parents say they do not know anything about why I had to be adopted, and I believe them. — Uncertain Past.

Dear Uncertain: No need to apologize for wondering. Many teen-agers return to their adopting agency with questions about themselves.

If you were placed by a recognized Canadian adoption agency, it is probably not too late to ask about these things (with the consent of your adopting parents, of course.)

No detail as to names and addresses would be available, but if they have the information the social workers might consider giving you some idea as to the kind of people your natural parents were, what they looked like, what their interests were.

• • •

Dear Doris: I also have been elected president of a group, and would like to know the duties of a president. — F. A.

Dear F. A.: The president runs the show, but democratically. Which means she conducts meetings in such a way as to find out what everybody is thinking about the current project or topic. Yet she does not let anybody run away with the discussion or take on too many jobs.

She resists the impulse to make decisions by herself between meetings, even if they are urgent, at least consulting other executive members. The best leader is the one who inspires her followers to carry through a project to a successful conclusion and then delights to hear the whole club saying "We did this ourselves!"

The name of the book about conducting meetings according to Hoyle is on its way.

• • •

Dear Doris: I went out with Mike before and lately I have been seeing him again. The problem is he always wants to pet with me now.

Petting is against my principles. Every time we neck and I won't give in he laughs at me and asks "Why not?" I really don't know what to answer him. Please give me a good answer that would make him understand; that would convince him.

I think I love him and I don't want to lose his respect or mine. — Both Eighteen.

Dear Eighteen: No girl need give a long list of reasons why she won't pet; but sometimes a statement that it is against her principles just won't satisfy a self-indulgent, urgent boy.

Try this for size: Since you plan to wait until marriage for sexual relations, you think a girl unfair to lead a boy on. The girls set the limits and you have set yours.

If he only wants sex you don't want him. I'm sending you the name of a helpful book on the subject.

(Don't just muddle along. Doris knows human behavior and can help. Write to her and enclose a stamped, self - addressed envelope for private reply.)

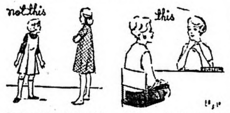
Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Louise: "I hate junior high. I don't have any friends there. I wish I didn't have to go to school."

Mother: "It's not any harder than grade school. I should think it would be more interesting to have different teachers for every subject."

Mother: "Louise seems so lonely and unhappy about school this year. Perhaps you can suggest some ways to help her."

Counsellor: "I see she's interested in writing. Perhaps she would enjoy working on the school paper. It's a good way to make friends."

The change to junior high school comes at a time when children are emotionally vulnerable. A bigger school may seem frightening and unfriendly. Teachers and parents should understand and help in every way they can.

Reader Requests Vegetable Salad Recipe

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I always read your interesting recipes but am an old fashioned cook. But going out to the parties this Christmas makes me desire to try my hand at making vegetable salads. We eat so many delicious ones, and very tasty, - mixed bean salad, potato salad, and other vegetable salads. I can't say I cared very much for those made with jelly. But I tried them all, and must congratulate you and this modern way of serving food. I feel that in the future my meals will be more interesting and less cooking. So I am hoping you will be able to put salads in your column. I think I have read some but had to prove it by eating them. — Grandma.

ANSWER: Thanks! I have sent requests. Here is another beauty.

EPICURE'S TOSSED SALAD

Twelve spinach leaves, 6 average-sized leaves of curly endive, ½ medium head of Iceberg lettuce, wafer-thin slices of cucumber, green pepper and radishes — about 1 cup altogether, ¼ cup shredded Swiss cheese, watercress and parsley are optional.

Wash and dry and shred coarsely the greens and slice the cucumber, green pepper and radishes paper-thin. Toss with the Swiss cheese and add Garlic French Dressing to coat all ingredients lightly. Serve crisp and cold.

QUESTION: I love your recipes but the one for Lemon Meringue Pie is too big for our family of four rather small eaters. My mother used to make an 8" pie that had only 2 eggs in it, and the meringue was light as down. —Ida C.

ANSWER: My secretary, Shirley's mother makes exactly you end for. I have tasted its lovely fresh lemon flavor and it is delicious.

SHIRLEY'S MOTHER'S LEMON PIE (8") one 8" baked pie shell (cooled)

2-3 cup granulated sugar
2 tablespoons corn starch
3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1¾ cups hot water
2 teaspoons grated fresh lemon rind
2 eggs — yolks and whites separated
¼ cup granulated sugar (second amount)
2 teaspoons butter
¼ cup freshly squeezed lemon juice

In top of double boiler mix sugar, corn starch, flour and salt. Gradually add the hot water and lemon rind. Cook stirring over boiling water until thick and clear — about 10 minutes. Beat egg yolks and add the ¼ cup sugar. Stir some hot lemon mixture into the egg yolk mixture then add all to the double boiler and cook 2 minutes more, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Stir in butter. Let cool 5 minutes, then stir in lemon juice. Cool. Pour into pie shell.

MAKE DOWNY MERINGUE:

Whip egg whites with ⅛ teaspoon salt and 1½ tablespoons sugar until it peaks. Pile on top of pie in the middle leaving a margin of yellow showing. Put in oven on bottom shelf with top burner on with the door open and watch it constantly to just brown the meringue.

Meet the best reason in the world for having a Cascade 40 electric water heater

It's surprising how someone so small can be so hard on hot water.

But, tiny as he is, this little fellow will go through four or five thousand diapers in his first eighteen months. Not to mention coveralls, sleepers and scads of other pint-sized apparel. With very little effort, he can conjure up many other ways of increasing your need for hot water. For instance, stubborn little finger marks caused by sticky little fingers. It all adds up to a whale of a lot of hot water.

If your present water heater can't meet your growing needs, perhaps your home could do with one more addition—a Cascade 40 electric water heater. It will provide all the hot water you're ever likely to need ... for only a few cents a day.

Take the sensible step to lots of hot water. Get a Cascade 40 electric water heater.

Nova Scotia MP Fires Exchange Over Steel Plant Closing

OTTAWA (CP) — Cape Breton MP Donald MacInnis ignited a fiery Commons exchange between Nova Scotia Conservatives and the Liberal cabinet Friday when he compared the amount being spent on foreign aid to the federal funds being spent to keep the Sydney steel plant going.

Mr. MacInnis asked Prime Minister Pearson to adopt "the same generous attitude" to Nova Scotia, to help the province buy the plant, that the government had in lending $20,000,000 to India.

"As far as Nova Scotia is concerned, it is not a question of generosity, it is a question of justice," Mr. Pearson replied.

Mr. MacInnis asked if it was justice to give "millions and millions" in foreign aid when Nova Scotia was seeking money to maintain the steel plant.

"That's a silly comparison," interjected Agriculture Minister Greene.

Lloyd Crouse (PC—Queen's-Lunenburg) accused Mr. Greene of saying "don't be stupid' and added:

"What kind of government do we have over there? Will he stand up and say that?'

Mr. MacInnis returned to the main theme, asking why Ottawa was providing Nova Scotia with "far less" than the $20,000,000 India would get.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux had to call order as Mr. MacInnis was drowned out in a cross-fire of angry comment.

Mr. MacInnis said Nova Scotia wanted money to enable the steel industry, which paid federal taxes, to keep operating. If Mr. Pearson referred to federal aid programs to the province.

"I can refer to many foreign assistance programs on which money is being thrown down the drain."

Robert Muir (PC—Cape Breton North and Victoria) complained that every time Maritime MPs speak in the Commons, "we are howled down like idiots by the cabinet."

Mr. Muir referred to cabinet members as "popinjays, idiots and pseudo-cabinet members" and said Mr. Greene and Mines Minister Pepin "find this a big joke."

"We have the sincere sympathy of the prime minister and I think we should get it from the rest of the cabinet."

Prices Tumble on Exchanges As Markets Hit by War Scare

By FRITS ROOS

Canadian Press Staff Writer

A market hit by a new war scare sent prices tumbling on Canada's major stock exchanges this week.

There was no panic selling, however. Volume was moderate throughout the week.

Oils again paced the decline and only gold issues—which traditionally do well in an atmosphere of international uncertainty—posted strong gains.

Canadian markets followed the trend on Wall Street and much of the decline in major issues was caused by selling pressure in New York.

Prices were down throughout the week but the drop assumed near-crisis proportions Thursday when North American markets became subject to fears of a new war in Korea.

The Toronto exchange absorbed its sharpest loss in more than 2½ years as an estimated $1,800,000,000 was knocked off stocks' market values.

The plunge continued through the first hours of trading Friday, but losses were cut in a brief afternoon rally and then prices held stationary, despite continuing heavy selling on Wall Street.

Analysts said the rally was of a technical nature with investors picking up bargains.

One analyst said the serious international political situation now has added its full weight to the three-week-old bearish market which is troubled by a lack of promising economic and business indicators.

Retail and communication issues and pipelines suffered the largest losses among industrial groups in Toronto.

Oshawa Wholesale A fell 4⅞ to 29⅛, Simpsons 2¾ to 31¼, Hudson's Bay Co. 1⅜ to 20 and M. Loeb 1¼ to 13⅜.

Southam News tumbled 4½ to 46 following lower fourth-quarter profits, Thomson Newspapers 1¾ to 37 and Western Broadcasting 1½ to 18½.

Pembina Pipe Line dropped 2⅝ to 14⅞, Interprovincial 1¾ to 18½ and Westcoast Transmission 1⅜ to 22⅞.

Among blue chips, Inco was down 5⅛ to 11⅝, Falconbridge 3½ to 96½ after reporting lower net annual profits, Bell 2⅞ to 42⅞, Moore Corp. 2 to 26 and CPR 1⅞ to 52.

Premium Iron Ores advanced 45 cents to 2.25 on the announcement of a possible takeover by Georgia-Pacific Corp. of Portland.

At Montreal, Inco was off 5¼ to 111¾, Scott-Lasalle 5 to 40½, Southam 4½ to 46, Falconbridge 2½ to 96⅝ and Bell 2¼ to 42⅞.

At Vancouver, Bank of British Columbia closed unchanged at 23 in trade of 353 shares.

Oils took a beating as Toronto's group average plummeted 22.22 points to 180.73—down about 46 points from last month's 226-point record.

Analysts blamed a lashback from high expectations at the start of the current winter drilling season. There was a lack of favorable drilling results and a possible withdrawal of U.S. capital from exploration in Canada.

Scurry-Rainbow, announcing indefinite postponement of a planned debenture issue, tumbled 7⅛ to 38.

Dome Pete dropped 5 to 51½, Hudson's Bay 4¾ to 34, Husky 3¼ to 19, Imperial 3 to 63 and Canadian Superior and Central-Del 2⅞ each to 38⅛ and 17½.

At Montreal, Central-Del was off 3 to 17⅞, BA 2¾ to 38¼ and Imperial and Husky 2½ each to 63 and 20.

The base-metal drop was mainly caused by tumbling uranium stocks, especially Denison which lost 10¼ to 61¾ at Toronto.

Roman Corp. was down 3¼ to 18⅞, Rio Algom 2⅞ to 29¼, Preston 2⅛ to 16⅝ and Pine Point 2¼ to 42¼.

Denison fell 11⅞ to 61⅞ at Montreal and Hudson Bay Mining and Rio Algom 3⅛ each to 56⅞ and 29⅞.

Gold issues, which have boomed since the devaluation of the British pound last November, continued to soar. Toronto's group average gained 7.77 to 225.50 after hitting a 30-year high of 226.12 early in the week.

Dome jumped 4½ to 72, Campbell Red Lake 2 to 33, Giant Yellowknife 1⅜ to 13⅞ and Dickenson 55 cents to 4.40. Kerr Addison slipped ⅜ to 17 and Leitch 1¾ to 10¼.

On index, Toronto's industrials were down 5.83 to the January, 1967, level of 150.74 and base metals 6.52 to 95.68. Declines outnumbered advances 577 to 153 while 189 issues remained unchanged. Volume was 14,356,000 shares compared with 15,193,000 the previous week.

At Montreal, industrials tumbled 6.28 to 154.67 and the composite index 5.78 to 145.56. Volume slipped to 4,529,000 shares from 6,491,000 while declines outpaced advances 190 to 89 with 142 issues unchanged.

Vancouver's industrial index fell 3.96 to 159.38, mines 10.07 to 196.07 and pipelines 8.75 to 124.39. Volume was a moderate 6,700,000 shares.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Trading on slaughter cattle was dull on the Ontario public stockyards this week with slaughter steers and heifers trading at lower prices and good cows at barely steady prices.

Deposit Made 30 Years Ago Is Refunded

There's always the brighter side — even for public utilities.

Yesterday a Belleville woman was called by the city utiilties and requested to pick up a refund — from a deposit made 30 years ago.

The $3 down-payment (today it's $15 for getting your ligths turned on, $5. for water) was among refunds still outstanding on PUC files.

Outstanding cash-due payments dating back for years have been turned up as the PUC updates its file system, says general manager E. L. Burnham.

"People sometimes forget to pick up their deposits when they move," he explains. "But we're trying to clean them up now. After all the money doesn't belong to us."

Tracking down the depositors is a "painstaking process" the manager admits.

Merger Fever Sweeping Britain

LONDON (Reuters) — The merger fever sweeping British business rose to a new pitch this week as proposals for three giant link-ups and the biggest bank amalgamation in British history were announced.

The market value of take-over bids in the first few weeks of 1968 has already exceeded the total for the whole of 1967. It is nearly three times the annual average for 1959-63 and more than eight times the 1954-58 average.

And the trend seems likely to continue.

This huge industrial and business shake-up stretches over a wide spectrum, from banking to auto manufacture, from television to textiles, from breweries to publishing.

The most spectacular developments were in banking. Within two weeks Britain's six largest banks stunned financial circles by announcing proposals that would merge them into only three.

A proposed merger of Barclays, Lloyds and Martins announced this week could create the world's fourth largest banking concern, restoring Britain's place in the big league of international bankers.

Other recent mergers were equally dramatic. On Jan. 17 British Motor Holdings and the Leyland Motor Corp. joined forces to become the world's second largest auto manufacturer outside the United States.

Late last month moves were announced to create the world's biggest television rental group, and a huge tussle is now going on for dominance of Britain's $4,800,000,000-a-year textile industry.

Scores of smaller mergers are in the offing and financial observers expect big developments soon in the insurance and computer fields.

Main reasons for joining forces are to increase efficiency, save costs and sharpen competitive power.

The hectic merger activity was speeded by three factors—tougher trading conditions, active government encouragement and the buoyancy of the London stock market.

The government has encouraged mergers by stressing the need for larger production to compete in foreign markets.

Sometimes it has played an active part, as in last year's merger of the two largest British electrical companies—Amalgamated Electrical Industries and General Electric Co.

But there is a feeling of uneasiness in some business circles. Some say David is often as efficient as Goliath, and that oversized companies may topple under their own weight.

The mergers also caused some trouble on the labor front as industrial rationalization led to factory closings and a rise in the unemployment level.

LONDON (AP) — The Bank of England banned Friday any further mergers among British banking houses until the monopolies commission has finished its investigation into the Lloyds-Barclays-Martins link.

This, in effect, prevents any further bank-merger moves for up to six months.

The move does not affect the proposed Westminster-National Provincial merger, announced Jan. 26 or the Royal Bank of Scotland-National Commercial bank merger, announced Feb. 6, the Bank of England said.

The explosion from that Finnish bombshell that rocked Canada and the Olympics pundits, brought jolts of surprise to the hockey world in general.

Shock jolted unbelief along the rialtos of hockey from coast-to-coast in Canada.

Russia, yes; the Czechs perhaps; the Swedes possibly, but Finland, a team generally given the role of stepping stones for the Big Four — oops the Big Three and the not-so-big Fourth.

There must have been a mighty ball up there in mythical Valhalla. Lief Ericson and his doughty crew of discovery adventurers broached a few tuns of aquavik or Finnish Mist, called the horned-hats brigade to the feasting hall, and had themselves a Nordic night.

Mushmouth says that even de Gaulle waggled his nasal appendage, forgot the open market and the USA economy and wired Ottawa to replace the Nationals with a couple of platoons of Van Doos or at least a team east of Montreal and save what is left of amateur hockey Canada.

Perhaps McLeod and his Nats took that Brundage advertising edict to heart and removed the Brand X slogans from their sticks and gear. From the result a lot more plugging would have helped.

Which reminds me of a night in Helsinki where a brunette is as rare as a honey-haired belle in the Congo, when the Belleville McFarlands gave the home-town boys a lesson in hockey.

The scions and scionettes of the Vikings were draped on the peaks of miniature Alps of snow that boxed-in the playing surface.

"Ike's western "roughnecks" were putting on a good display of you-push-me-and . . ." when Johnny McLellan heaved a Finn so high and far he had to use his personal parachute to land safely.

The officials gave Johnny the heave-ho and sent him to an open-air cell to cool off.

The gentle Finns by way of showing appreciation extracted icicles from nearby bushes with points so sharp you could use 'em to pierce the ears of a humming bird, wrapped 'em in snow — and Johnny was the target for his two minutes.

Had their aim produced direct hits, Johnny would have emerged from the hoosegow looking like a porcupine with hockey-gear underwear.

It's about time we sent a team over there to battle for world honors that shows at least some kind of consistency when the chips are down. The last time the post-defeat hue-and-cry was a brand new cutting of an old lyric "Lousy officiating."

This time in the game with the Finns at least, the Nationals were caught with their figurative pants at half-staff.

As the Finn coach said afterwards "We were ready to check with the Canadians, I was surprised they were not strong enough to fight us man-to-man. My boys like it that way."

The National came up with some fine efforts during a lengthy exhibition schedule at home against top Western and European squads. These games and experience should have given the coaching staff some idea of where their scoring and defence strength was.

Stung by the turn of events, McLeod juggled his lines in a win-hungry effort, but failed to find the right combination.

The Finnsw ere a vastly improved club over the teams that have represented the country over the years. Westerners are prone to forget that European clubs like the proverbial turkey, improve with the years.

It looks like the "worms are turning" so to speak and demanding more respect from the four giants who to this point have monopolized the gold — Oops, sorry Brundage and the glory.

The Nationals can score the second major upset of the hockey Olympics by winning the remainder of their games and pulling out with a tie with Russia, at least.

(Sorry, this has to end. The guys in the white coats have me surrounded.)

Mo-Hawks Flirt With Elimination!

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

The Mo-Hawks turned Humpty-Dumpty last night and fell off the win wall with a resounding thud.

Playoff prosperity was just around the corner but the Crawford crew failed to make the turn.

They bowed 7-4 under a consistent Kingston Aces attack and are now flirting with that fickle jade "Elimination".

GEORGE GODSON

In fact their backs are up against the well-known wall with three games left to play — all away — and but four points separating them from Oakville who has a game in hand.

And a juggle in scheduling doesn't add to their well-being. They trek to Oakville tomorrow in a do-or-die clash and on Monday go to Kingston to tangle with the Aces again.

They wind up the schedule next Friday at Woodstock.

Oakville meets Orillia, Collingwood and Toronto in their remaining three-game run for the playoffs roses.

The Mo-Hawks left the "git-up-and-go" effort that sparked their last four appearances in the dressing room. Their both-way checking was missing and the speedy Kingston attackers didn't encounter too much opposition behind the Mo-Hawks' blueline.

Holmes was off form and let in two goals that should not have flashed the red light.

The Mo-Hawks were outshot 35-25 on the night's play, the Aces having a 12-6 edge in the third period.

At that it was a see-saw battle with the teams matching goal-for-goal until the middle of the third period when the Aces broke a 3-3 stalemate and scored two goals in as many minutes to tuck away the win.

They upped it to 6-3 early in the final frame but the Mo-Hawks came back to cut the margin. Kingston added the good-measure goal in the dying minutes.

The teams split six penalties, four of them minors, Ralph Plane and Tom Carty collecting majors in the first period for tossing punches.

George Godson, Ralph Plane and Greg Marchen stood out for the Mo-Hawks while the Aces Apps - Rawson - Collins line was the best trio on the ice.

Apps sparked the win with a pair of goals and an assist, John Ford, Jim Sprott, Bill Long, Charlie Covery and Jim Stinson adding the rest.

Rawson and Collins each had two assists, Long also helping.

Eddie Marineua had a goal and an assist with George Godson John Shaker Baker and Ralph Plane also scoring. Davy Jones, Bernie Gould and Bob Taylor drew assists.

John Ford opened the scoring with a long easy drive from 45 feet out that sailed past Holmes, Davy Jones laid a neat pass on Marineaus stick and Eddie made no mistake.

With Plane and Carty in the sin-bin, Jim Sprott sizzled a blueline slap shot past Holmes before period end. George Godson scored a beauty sifting through the defence and shooting off-balance.

Connery whipped through a Mo-Hawk attack on a breakaway and easily beat Holmes to give the Aces a 3-2 edge.

Shaker Baker got that one back six minutes later taking Bernie Gould's perfect pass for the score.

The Aces took over here, Apps scoring his first followed by Stinson who poked in a rebound just out of reach of Holmes.

Apps fired his second goal early in the third to give the Aces a 6-3 bulge. Ralph Plane scored a beauty streaking down the right boards and crossing over in front of the goalmouth to notch the tally.

Apps gave Long a pass for the Aces final counter.

Hawks Send Matt Ravlich To Dallas

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Matt Ravlich is waging a bitter battle to return to the National Hockey League with Chicago Black Hawks and he still has a way to go.

It had been expected the Hawks would have the veteran defenceman in the lineup tonight when they invade Montreal Forum to open a home-and-home series with the Canadiens.

The game will be on the CBC national television network.

But Friday the Hawks announced that Ravlich will be sent to Dallas of the Central Professional League to play himself back into condition before being recalled by the Hawks.

Junior B's Whip Frontenacs 5-2

KINGSTON (Special) — So you think nine smallish hockey players can't defeat 18 larger ones, eh?

Well they can — and did.

It happened down here last night.

A gaggle of win-hungry Belleville Junior B's notched their third triumph in 26 starts by making the Kingston Frontenacs sing "uncle" to a 5-2 tune.

What the Matthews-Drake youngsters lacked in manpower they more than made up in spirit, go-go and fierce desire to whip the Frontenacs in their own back yard.

"They played hockey like they never played before", chanted a happy "Snipe". "They've been practicing with the Mo-Hawks and after the seniors' performance last night, a lot of their fight and spirit must have rubbed off on our boys"

Led by Doug Potts and Peter Fleming, the Juniors threw everything into high gear at the first drop of the puck and never slackened speed throughout the game.

DOUG POTTS

"Those kids" said Trainer "Soapy" Smith "were going all-out at the final whistle looking for more goals."

The Junior B's were not to be denied. They outskated, outshot and outplayed the Frontenacs from whistle to whistle and with nine minutes to go in the game held a 5-0 lead.

At that they yielded the Kingston goals on power plays when a man short.

Doug Potts sparked the win with a pair of goals, Peter Fleming getting a goal and two assists. Ron Fuller also had a goal and two helpers with Rick Rosebush also scoring. John Smith had an assist.

McFarlane and Seale were the Kingston goalgetters, Harvey drawing a pair of assists, Seale and Lowe one each.

Doug Potts got away to an early start driving home a pass at 1.47 to give the Juniors the jump. Six minutes later he tobied in Fleming's pass for his second counter and the period ended that way.

The B's maintained the pressure and Ron Fuller upped the count the 3-0 unassisted at 7.29 of the second frame. Rick Rosebush banged home an unassisted goal with three minutes to go

Still driving hard Belleville scored their fifth goal at 50 seconds of the third period Peter Fleming firing with help from Fuller.

Kingston came back with McFarlane and Seale scoring with Juniors in the penalty box, the last goal coming with 53 seconds to go.

The winners drew six of the ten penalties, all minors and outshot Kingston 28-22.

The Juniors entertain the Frontenacs here tomorrow afternoon. Game time 1.30.

Minor Hockey

DCA Transfer and the Wings tied 3-3 and Hornets took the measure of the Leafs 9-3 in BMHA novice play last night.

Sullivan, Drummond and Suddard scored for the Transfer team, Lowry, Siddal and Glover counting for the Wings.

B. Masterson with three goals paced the Hornets win. M. Ferris and P. Murray each scored a pair with G. Goegan and D. Matthews adding singles.

Gord. Male, M. Bennett and Killars counted for the Leafs.

Orillia Hangs Up Gear

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Orillia, a team that could spring back from a long losing streak by beating the league leaders, came to the end of the road for the 1967-68 season Friday night but not without a fight.

Orillia lost 4-3 to Guelph Regals in overtime to drop the last chance they had of gaining a playoff berth in the Ontario Hockey Association senior series.

In last place with only 10 wins in 37 games, Orillia has only three games left to play and no chance to catch Belleville Mo-Hawks who hold down eighth place in the standings. The eight top in the 10-team league enter the playoffs.

The Mo-Hawks lost a chance to consolidate their hold on a playoff berth by losing 7-4 to Kingston Aces on Belleville ice.

In other Friday night action, Galt Hornets blanked Barrie Flyers 2-0, Toronto Marlboros edged Woodstock Alcans 5-4 and Collingwood Kings nudged the Oaks 4-3 at Collingwood.

At Guelph, John McMillan's goal at 5:54 of overtime gave Regals the victory, ending Orillia's struggle to stay alive in the league. Other Guelph scorers were Terry Oliver, Rob Ertel and Larry Jones.

For Orillia, the scorers were George Ford with two, and Bill Little.

Canada Vents Defeat Wrath In 11-0 Win Over East Germany

GRENOBLE, France (CP) — Nancy Greene, World Cup ski champion, went prospecting for gold today on the slopes at nearby Chamrousse.

The 24-year-old queen of the skis from Rossland, B.C., started as favorite in the women's downhill after demonstrating in Friday's non-stop training run that she no longer is handicapped by an ankle injury suffered Jan. 14 at Badgastein, Austria.

She was timed unofficially in 1:46.7 in the practice run, fastest of the session, and Canadian coach Verne Anderson promptly declared she would win the gold medal.

It was one of five golds at stake today. The others were in the men's 15-kilometre special cross-country ski race, women's 1,500-metre speed skating, women's figure skating and the two-man bobsled evnt.

Jean-Claude Killy, the 25-year-old Frenchman who was male World Cup winner last year, won the men's downhill, one of three events completed Friday.

The gold medal in the 500-metre women's speed skating went to Ludmila Titova of the Soviet Union and the women's 10-kilometre cross-country ski race to Toini Gustafsson of Sweden.

Morris Mott popped home four goals as Canada's national hockey team walloped East Germany 11-0 in a championship-round game.

Still seething from their 5-2 loss to lowly Finland the night before, the Nationals rolled up the biggest score of the tournament to date, and helped young Wayne Stephenson to his first shutout in Olympic hokey.

Russia, meanwhile, disregarded the rough tactis of the United States squad and rolled to a 10-2 victory while Sweden edged West Germany 5-4 on a fluke goal by Carl-Goran Oberg with less than two minutes to play.

Today's Group A hockey games (times EST):

6 a.m.—Czechoslovakia vs. Finland

9:39 a.m.—Sweden vs. East Germany

The four goals by Mott, a 21 year-old history student from Creelman, Sask., was the biggest scoring splurge by an individual so far in the eight-country, round-robin championship tournament.

Fran Huck had two goals while Ted Hargreaves, Danny O'Shea, Roger Bourbonnais, Steve Monteith and Her Pinder add the others.

The Canadians were so superior against a team that had lost 9-0 to Russia that Stephenson didn't make a stop for the first 14 minutes. The Canadians led 4-0 after one period and 8-0 after two.

Coach Jackie McLeod said the difference between Friday's victory and Thursday's loss was that "the puck started going into the nets for us."

The winless United States team tried to throw the Russians of balance with heavy checking. But all they got for their pains were penalties. The U.S. abandoned the rough tactis in the second period, with the Russians far ahead, and returned Pat Rupp to goal for the third period after the Russians had scored their 10 goals against Jim Logue, making his first appearance.

U.S. coach Murray Williamson was upset about the refereeing, especially that of John Kubinec of Fort William, Ont.

"This was absolutely the worst refereeing I have ever seen in hockey," said the Canadian-born coach, now a naturalized American.

His ire was roused by six U.S. penalties in the first period, including two in the second minute on which the Russians capitalized for two goals.

"The first period went to the referees," said Williamson. "We deserved penalties at times, but nothing like that.

"The Canadian coach (McLeod) agreed with me. He told me, 'If I had been close to him (Kubinec), I would have choked him.' "

The two American goals, by Don Ross and John Morrison, were the first against the Russians in three games. The Russians, with six points, have outscored the opposition 27 to 2.

Tied for second at four points are Czechoslovakia, Sweden and Canada, with Canada having suffered the only loss among the top squads.

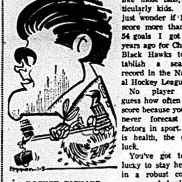
If I'm asked one question more than any other, it is "Say, when are you going to break 54 goals?"

Most fans don't ask it in a particularly demanding way, which is why I like most fans, particularly kids. They just wonder if I can score more than the 54 goals I got two years ago for Chicago Black Hawks to establish a seasonal record in the National Hockey League.



ROCKET RICHARD

No player can guess how often he'll score because you can never forecast two factors in sport. One is health, the other luck.

You've got to be lucky to stay healthy in a robust contact game, and health is the really great talent of every athlete. If you're hurt and can't play, or are reduced to half speed, naturally you can't reach whatever goals you've set for yourself.

There is one aspect of luck for a guy going for goals. You must get the benefit of breaks, such as shots hitting the goalkeeper or the goalpost and bouncing into the net instead of out.

The year I got 54, I had several shots that hit the skates of other players and deflected into the net. That was lucky for me and unlucky for goalkeepers.

This year, after 52 games, I had 36 goals; which means to break 54, I'd need 19 goals in our last 22 games. But the way things are going for us, we're all thinking team instead of personal records.

Loss of players in the expansion draft hurt us, with the result that we don't have the set club that finished first last winter for the first time in Chicago's NHL history.

We've also been unlucky with injuries. In one game in Philadelphia we had two defencemen hurt and I was switched back there to help plug the holes. To the fans who ask "When you gonna break 54?", I can only say that you don't score many goals from a defenceman's position.

The fans should also contemplate this: the really distinctive scoring record is the 50 goals which Rocket Richard got in 50 games, in 1944-45. The two times that I've broken 50, I've always a 70-game schedule in which to operate.

Some experts have always considered Richard's mark a trifle suspect because it was achieved in a wartime year when many good players were away in the armed forces. I don't put much strength in the experts' suspicion. Richard proved he could score goals after the men came back. Also, 50 goals in 50 games is something, even if you're playing against church-picnic peewees.

Leafs Suspend Pappin

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs Friday suspended right winger Jim Pappin for refusing to report to Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League.

Pappin, ordered down by manager-coach Punch Imlach, earlier said he would retire if forced to step down from the National League and did not show up for a Leafs practice Friday.

When he didn't report in Rochester Friday either, but stayed at home in Toronto, King Clancy announced that the player would be suspended and that the NHL office would be advised of the move today.

Emms; Scrap Nats, Send Juniors!

HAMILTON (CP) Hap Emms believes that the system of selecting a Canadian national team should be scrapped and that a team of junior A all-stars should represent Canada in world hockey tournaments.

Emms, owner-manager of Niagara Falls Flyers of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, was speaking after Canada's national team lost 5-2 to Finland at the Winter Olympics in Grenoble, France Thursday.

Emms said that he will present the proposals to the junior A council at its next meeting.

Eddie Bush, Hamilton Red Wing manager-coach, has already indicated that he will support the Emms' proposal.

"I would say that we would do as well, and probably better, than our Canadian team is doing at Grenoble," Emms said.

"If the junior council goes along with the proposal, we would under certain conditions, furnish a team made up of players from the OHA and western Canada leagues.

""The one thing you need is players who can skate. I would concentrate on conditioning for a week and arrange a game at Maple Leaf Gardens immediately before leaving for the world tournament," he added.

Third Fastest Indoor Mile

Ryun Clocked In 3:57.5

NEW YORK (AP) — "It looked like he could go on forever," said Sam Bair.

Bair, the little Kent State runner, turned in a fast mile Friday night, but he was still negotiating the final turn when Jim Ryun was crossing the finish line.

Ryun's 3:57.5 at the U.S. Track and Field Federation meet was the first sub-four-minute mile of the indoor season and the third fastest ever run indoors. What was supposed to be a tight competive battle betwen Ryun, Bair and Villanova's Dave Patrick turned into a rout.

"I was very pleased and surprised with my times," the world-record holder (3:51.1) from Kansas said. "I felt strong all the way."

With thre laps left, Ryun led by perhaps 15 yards. Running alone, he widened to his eventual victory of nearly 40 yards.

There was nothing wrong with the running that Patrick and Bair did. Until Friday, Patrick's 4:01 clocking would have been the best of the season; and Bair's 4:02 wasn't bad either. But the near capacity crowd of 15,002 only had eyes for Ryun.

The only person to run faster on the boards is Tom O'Hara, who in 1964 ran 3:56.6 and 3:56.4 within one month.

Blues Still Unbeaten

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

University of Toronto Blues maintained their unbeaten streak in Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association hockey Friday, while University of Western Ontario broke a three-way tie for fourth place and Guelph University moved a step closer to the last playoff spot.

The Blues defeated second-place University of Waterloo Warriors 9-5 before 4,800 hometown fans to move closer to their fifth straight O-QAA hockey title.

Leading the Toronto attack was Paul Laurent with four goals. Linemate Gord Cunningham had two and Brian St. John, Murray Stroud and Brian Jones one each.

Terry Cooke scored two goals for the Warriors, while Stu Eccles, Ron Smith and Bob Murdoch fired one apiece.

At London, the Mustangs moved out of a fourth-place deadlock with the University of Montreal and Laval Rouge et Or, defeating the latter 9-3. The win moved them into a third-place tie with McMaster University Marauders.

St. Thomas, Ottawa Duel For Title

KINGSTON (CP) — The Ontario curling championships is developing into a battle between the youngest skip in the competition and a 37-year-old dentist from St. Thomas.

Eldon Coombe, 26, of Ottawa and Dr. Don Gilbert are the only two rinks left in the 16-team, double-knockout competition. They are undefeated after six rounds and they meet today at 9 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

To win the competition, one will have to beat the other twice. If the morning and afternoon games are split, a third game will be played at 7 p.m.

Coombe, a tall, thin skip who works for the Ottawa suburban served after a 9-5 victory Friday night over Bob Mann of Kingston in the sixth round.

The game was conceded after 11 ends and it marked the 38th consecutive end that the Coombe rink has played without giving up more than one stone.

"I agree we're curling well," said Eldon, who thrilled a packed gallery at Kingston's Cataraqui Club with some deadly takeout shots to defeat Mann. "But after all, that's what we're here for."

A former schoolboy curler, Coombe entered the competition the hard way. He lost to Fred Davis of Cumberland early in division playoffs for the championship and had to come up through the losers' section and beat Davis twice to come to Kingston.

At stake today is a trip to Kelowna, B.C., for the Dominion final March 5-9. The winner will represent southern Ontario. A Northern representative will be picked this weekend.

Coombe's rink is all under 30 and each has five years experience in the Ottawa metro league, plus earlier schoolboy competition.

To Your Good Health

Antibiotics Do Not Kill Germs

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: How does the intestinal tract regain "bacterium coli" when this useful organism has been killed by use of strong antibiotics?

What are some of the other friendly and useful bacteria and how may they be replaced after intensive medication?

Besides causing diarrhea, would lack of intestinal bacteria cause a person to feel nervous and hungry most of the time? — Mrs. W. P.

I would guess that Mrs. P. encountered intestinal distress after a course of antibiotic treatments — and this can happen.

The intestinal tract normally contains a considerable variety of micro-organisms which not only do not harm us but are necessary for health.

They exist in a biological state called symbiosis — two or more unrelated organisms can live in the same place in harmony and balance. To this extent germs seem to have more sense than mankind.

These germs serve various purposes: Some are essential in formation of Vitamin K, some aid fermentation of food, or otherwise aid in efficient operation of the intestinal tract.

Various antibiotics, however, can reduce the numbers of the bacteria. Note that I said reduce them, not kill them all. This is important in answering Mrs. P's question.

An antibiotic, you see, does not kill germs. It prevents them from multiplying. Thus, if you are treated for an infection, antibiotics limit the creation of more germs, and the natural body defenses then are able to cope with the invading bacteria.

A prolonged course of antibiotic treatment, by inhibiting growth of the friendly bacteria in the intestine, that is, the colon bacilli in particular, destroys the natural balance between these bacilli and other organisms — yeasts, fungi and others.

With the others predominating, there can be irritation and diarrhea. Irritation can also cause a sore tongue and genital irritation, or vaginitis.

When the antibiotic treatment is stopped, the proper balance of these friendly germs is gradually restored.

In some instances special preparations may be used to hasten the return of this balance. Buttermilk, which contains the lactobacillus, is sometimes helpful.

Generally, however, the balance is restored automatically, given time. Some of the organisms are in the various foods we eat, but it is perhaps more important that the germs which have been retarded by antibiotics simply multiply rapidly as soon as the suppressive drugs cease. The germs have not entirely disappeared; they have, for the time being, only been drastically reduced in number.

The imbalance of the friendly germs does not in itself cause important symptoms, other than those mentioned above — diarrhea and irritation. But the diarrhea, causing loss of fluids as well as chemicals used by the body, may bring on secondary consequences, of which the common ones are weakness, hunger and irritability.

All of these fade as the diarrhea is controlled.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can a bunion be removed? I have used every kind of pad, but nothing gives me relief except a hole in the shoe. — Mrs. E. H. H.

Yes, a bunion can be removed surgically. It takes time for the foot to heal afterward, of course, but when a bunion reaches a certain stage, I don't know any other way to stop the suffering. Consult an othopedist or podiatrist.

Note to G.B.: No, warts are not the result of a diet deficiency. An elusive virus apparently is the real culprit.

Anglican Church Group Changes Name

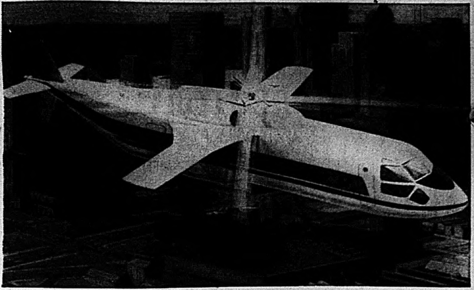
DESERONTO — The Ladies' Guild of St. Mark's Anglican Church held its final meeting as such last week, and is now affiliated with the Anglican Church Women as an evening branch.

The annual meeting was held in the church hall, and after the usual procedure of devotions, annual reports, and correspondence, the president Mrs. Robert Tucker vacated the chair and Rev. A. F. Dowdell presided for the election of officers.

President is again Mrs. Robert Tucker and vice-president is Mrs. Bert Coles. The duties of secretary and treasurer were divided, with Mrs. C. A. Sergeant retaining her work as treasurer and Mrs. John Punchard becoming secretary. Social convener is Mrs. William Jackson and Mrs. Gordon Jackson is chairman of the flowers and gifts committee.

The new officers immediately took up the business of making plans for a Valentine Day tea and bake sale which will be held in the rectory. No committees were set up as plans were completed at the meeting.

Refreshments were served, with Mrs. William Jackson and Mrs. Gordon Jackson as hostesses.



Flight Into Town

Getting away from the usual traffic of airports and bringing passengers into the heart of a city is this artist's concept of a winged helicopter which designers say could become reality in the 1970s. Lockheed-California Co., says the 30-passenger rigid-rotor transport design may be enlarged to accommodate more than 100 persons. (CP Photo)

Napanee History Fair Well Attended

NAPANEE — Displays in the History Fair which were on exhibition in Napanee last week attracted much attention and much admiration from the viewers. The general feeling was one of surprise not only at the amount of research that had been done in most cases, but also the ability of the students to recreate the scenes, the buildings and the environment about which they had read.

Workmanship varied, as, in some cases as in Deseronto only grades seven and eight had brought the project into being, while, as in others, as in Tyendinaga, no pupils beyond grade six were available.

Officials of the curriculum branch of the Department of Education examined each exhibit last Wednesday, and were well satisfied that the History Fair had been well worthwhile. It is believed to have been the first in Ontario, although similar History Fairs have been held in Quebec.

The exhibits were not judged, but the officials did express some preference for certain displays. They felt that the one from the Tyendinaga Reserve had more sense of history, and that the theme was good. Another outstanding feature of this exhibit is the fact that every article in the display was the work of the pupils. In some displays plastic dolls, cars and other plastic articles had been used. In the display from the Indian schools dolls, horses, oxen and other animals had been made by the children. There was meticulous attention to historical detail. Even the shingles on the chapel roof were hand made, whittled out of cedar.

Displays of the Deseronto Public School, and the schools at Selby, and Westbrook and the Slash Road School also received special commendation of the officials. All of these displays had one thing in common — they contained buildings. The workmanship was good, and in most cases, as in Deseronto, (which depicted Huronia), a great deal of research work had been done. In the Huronia display even the canal system was shown. The Selby school display showed Champlain's habitation at Quebec, the first Nova Scotia settlement, and the buildings on Canada's first farm, that o Louis Hebert. Westbrook Scho displayed a pioneer settleme and the Slash Road school a factor's store, his dwelling, and the bark teepee of Indians who had come to trade. In each case there were figures of human beings and of animals.

Films and slides have been taken of the work in preparation and of the exhibits, and these will be viewed by each school in the spring.

Three store fronts have been made available in Deseronto and the displays of the Slash Road School, the Deseronto School, and the Tyendinaga Reserve Schools will be on view at these locations this week.

Teachers Will Attend Science Workshop

DESERONTO — In his report to the Public School Board Tuesday evening, Principal Rodney Uens told the members that teachers of the school would be attending an in-service science workshop in the Prince Charles School in Napanee Wednesday afternoon. School would be dismissed at 2.30 to enable teachers to reach the school for the 3.00 p.m. meeting. Sessions would continue until 8.00 p.m., he informed the Board.

Mr. Jacobs, social studies consultant for the area, will visit the school next week, and on February 23, two members of the staff of the Napanee District Secondary School will speak to the grade 8 pupils to outline to them the program open to them in the secondary schools, and the necessary qualifications for the various courses. Mr. Jack Walmsley is in the commercial, and Mr. R. L. Somers in the guidance department. Parents of these children are invited and are urged to do so, the principal stated.

The teachers asked for a meeting with the management committee to begin negotiations for next year's salaries. The meeting will take place after school next Tuesday, February 13, Mrs. Diane Sergeant, committee chairman, states. Mrs. Gisselle Saunders and George Lyons are the other committee members.

Mr. Uens also urged the Board to begin negotiations for additional teachers for the staff, now that the school addition is likely to be built. He pointed out that he is the only male teacher, and said that at least one other male teacher should be hired, especially in view of the fact that the school is now to have a gymnasium.

Winter Rally Gets Under Way

TORONTO (CP) — A Renault Gordini driven by John Cross of London, Ont., was the first of 96 cars to cross the starting line in east-end Toronto Friday in the 1968 Canadian winter rally.

Ideal road conditions were reported as the cars started out on the first leg of the gruelling 1,137 mile test.

After a 10-hour stopover at Ottawa, today, the cars face a tough 300-mile swing through Quebec with only one 10-minute break before driving back into Ontario through Renfrew. The first car is due back in Toronto at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Crews are assessed 10 penalty points for each minute error in their arrival time at control points.

In 1965, weather conditions were so bad that only 23 of the original 140 starters completed the course. In 1967, 61 of 103 finished the run.

Missing from this year's rally are Paul MacClennan of Toronto, and John Wilson of London, Ont., the only three-time winners.

Klaus Ross of Montreal, is the only member of the 1967 winning crew entered this year. He is teamed with Paul Manson of Toronto.

SECOND LARGEST

Output of 8,604,712 passenger cars and 1,791,587 commercial vehicles in 1966 made it the second best year on record in the United States.

Blonde Finn Wins Speed Gold Medal

GRENOBLE (AP) — Jaika Justonen of Finland won the women's 1,500-metre speed skating event in record time today at the Winter Olympic Games.

Miss Justonen, a 26-year-old Helsinki typist, blazed around the rink in two minutes, 22.4 seconds to better the Olympic mark of 2:25.2 set by quadruple gold medal winner Linda Skoblikova of Russia four years ago at Innsbruck.

The blonde Finn speedster beat two Dutch girls, Carolina Geijssen and Stien Kaiser, for the gold medal.

Teachers Hunted

'Canadian Raiders' Deluged With Applications by Aussies

MELBOURNE (CP)-Australians called them the "Canadian raiders." They were two men from the city of Toronto's board of education and they set themselves up in a luxury Melbourne hotel and advertised that they were looking for school teachers.

They didn't have to look long. On the first day they got so many applications from disgruntled Aussies that the switchboard at the hotel was jammed and the two Canadians had to make a public appeal against any more calls.

The Torontonians, N. Allen Sweetman, superintendent of primary schools, and W. K. Bailey, assistant superintendent of secondary schools, were more than surprised at the reception they received.

Not only did they find hundreds of Australians wanting to take jobs in Canadian schools, but they came up against the anger of Victoria's director of education, Frederick Brooks.

Brooks criticized the Canadians for coming to Australia to "snatch" teachers and warned: "These recruiting raids could jeopardize the Commonwealth scheme for helping backward countries with their teacher problems."

Canada and Australia are among the countries which provide teachers for such other Commonwealth countries as Nigeria, New Guinea, Zambia and Malawi.

Victoria's Opposition Labor leader, Clyde Holding said: "This state can't afford to lose trained and qualified teachers to Canada. The government must put a stop to this."

Sweetman commented: "I am anxious not to destroy the good will between Australia and Canada. We had no conception of the response we would get from Australian teachers. If we cannot keep the good will of the Australian authorities, we will have to reconsider the whole thing."

Education Director Brooks tried to dissuade his teachers from leaving by issuing a statement which asked:

"Why does an affluent country like Canada have to come to Australia to recruit its teachers? Why do they lose so many teachers in a big turnover each year?"

Brooks said Sweetman and Bailey had set up a "recruiting station" in Melbourne and were carrying things "a little bit too far."

But Australian teachers weren't put off by their chief's pleadings. They had some impressive figures in front of them. For instance, they were told that top teachers in Canada could earn up to $13,200 a year, $900 a year more than Brooks himself gets.

And there was the case of Pierre Van den Bussche from Montreal. He came to Melbourne because his Australian wife had been "a little homesick" in Canada. Teacher Pierre got himself a job here at $50 a week. "Back home," he said, "a teacher can earn easily $10,000 a year."

Employment News

By J. CHARLTON,
Manpower Counsellor

In the past week, there has been only light activity in the labor market in Belleville. Little hiring has been done by local firms. However, we have a good labor force of young people, eager and willing to work, who are eagerly snapped up for factories in other towns. In recent weeks, employers in Sudbury, Brockville and Woodstock have hired several local men for the mining, electronic and textile industries. Employers come back repeatedly to Belleville recruiting workers, as they are pleased by the work performance of local people. It is becoming increasingly evident that the high calibre of these people is widely appreciated.

A firm in Kingston is seek-young men. They must have at least a Grade 12 education and preferably have an interest in the electronic or electrical field. These men are to be trained in IBM computer service. This would be an excellent opportunity to learn a skill which will be in increasing demand in the future. Any interested persons should call at the Belleville Canada Manpower Centre, as soon as possible to discuss the matter further.

There are immediate openings in Belleville for the following jobs:

A bakery manager — the man for this job must have considerable experience in managing a small bake shop. A baker — this man must be well-qualified in his work. A fish counter man — should have knowledge of all fresh fish. Bakery trainees — young men are wanted who are interested in becoming qualified bakers. Experience would be an asset — but not necessary.

For women, the following positions are available in Belleville:

General bakery — full and part time help is needed. Some bakeshop experience would be helpful. Delicatessen hostess — the woman applying for this job should have a knowledge of ordering, displaying, etc. Delicatessen clerk — A woman for part - time sales help is required. Experience preferred, but not necessary.

If you are interested in any of these positions, contact the Canada Manpower Centre for further information.

There are also several interesting positions open out-of-town. Qualified applicants, either male or female, are required for the following positions:

An assistant technical librarian is required by a large company in Kingston. This position entails maintaining a collection of books, periodicals and technical documents, also selecting, ordering and classifying of catalogue material. A University Graduate with BLS would be preferred, but the company will consider a General BA with library experience.

Also in the Kingston area there is a position for a dental hygienist. A graduate from a technological institute, preferably with experience in public health work is needed. He will be required to give instructions to groups in oral hygiene and to provide preventive health services.

There is an attractive job as an architectural draftsman waiting in Westport, Ont., for a single person who has a car. A Ryerson graduate is required, preferably one with 3 or 4 years experience with a registered architect. This person would be required to plan architectural and structural features of building; to sketch designs and details and estimate quantities needed and to compute costs.

U.S. Officials Expect Wave of Attacks in War

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top U.S. officials expect Communist forces to launch a second wave of attacks against the cities and towns of South Vietnam. But they say Communist losses in the first offensive have been so heavy the new onslaught should be weaker.

The offensive which began Jan. 31 is considered by officials here as a costly military defeat for the Viet Cong.

On the basis of information from prisoners and documents captured in the fighting, officials say they are convinced the Viet Cong intended to hold many population centres and to set off a popular uprising. Presumably they would have the same objective in the expected new drive.

The hope of the North Vietnamese leadership of starting an uprising against the Southern government is described as puzzling. Some high U.S. officials concede U.S. leadership may be 10-per-cent wrong in its judgments about how the conflict is going, but they argue that the leadership in Hanoi may be as much as 80-per-cent wrong.

Authorities believe U.S. and South Vienamese forces are in a better state of readiness for the expected second wave than they were for the first.

This is attributed partly to the high state of alert on which these forces are being kept and partly to the heavy Communist casualties, which U.S. authorities put at 25,000 killed and 5,000 captured.

On the positive side of the intensive fighting. Officials say no South Vietnamese military units defected.

Teachers Impressed

Radical Experiment in Ungrading School System

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Ontario's educational system will never be the same if a radical experiment in ungrading secondary schools is successful here.

Six schools in Ontario, including Oakville-Trafalgar High School here, are trying the ungraded system at the request of the department of education.

Friday, for the first time, more than 250 teachers attended a professional development day at Oakville to learn more about the program and how it has worked since it started last September.

They said they were impressed.

Under the system grades are eliminated. Students from different academic streams take courses together. Students are promoted by subjects on a credit system similar to that used in United States universities.

In a discussion, teachers agreed that if the experiment is successful, and ungraded schools are accepted in Ontario, universities will have to base their admission system more on personal interviews rather than on tests.

Features of the ungraded system are student participation in all affairs of the school and more responsibility in choosing a certain number of courses.

However, more administrative work will also be created because students have individual timetables.

Students at the Oakville school must obtain 27 subject credits to receive an Ontario secondary school graduation diploma. Thirteen subjects are compulsory while 14 are selected by the student from elective courses.

Subjects are taught at three levels: Enrichment, advanced and general. Subjects completed successfully at one of the first two levels may be taken in the 13th year while general level subjects are discontinued at the end of the 12th year.

Social Security System Needs Revision: Senator

TORONTO (CP) — Senator Maurice Lamontagne called Friday for appointment of a royal commission to investigate Canada's social security system.

The former secretary of state told the annual meeting of the Liberal party in Ontario the time has come to revise the whole approach to social security.

"I am convinced that we could make substantial savings if we were to re-organize our social security system on the minor risks, especially with respect to hospitalization and medicare."

Dr. Pauline Jewett, former Liberal MP and now a professor of political science and director of the Institute of Canadian Studies at Carleton University in Ottawa, disagreed. She said the idea of needs tests has not been clearly defined to show the distinction between needs and means tests.

Before she would agree to dispensing with the principle of universal social security she would have to be shown that a needs test would not undermine human dignity.

$110,000 Is Stolen In Postal Orders

Roluf's Robbed Over Weekend

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

Stamps and money orders with an estimated face value of $110,000 were stolen over the weekend from Carl Roluf's camera and record store on Front Street.

Mr. Roluf found the sub-postoffice section of his establishment "cleaned out" when he entered the store "to turn on the heat and sweep the floors" at 7 p.m. Sunday.

Belleville City Police Chief Douglas T. Crosbie and Deputy Chief Harold Reid say the safe had been pried open, with very little damage to it.

Police believe that the thieves gained entry to the store by means of a key or by picking the lock. There were no signs of forceful entry. The robbery took place after 7 p.m. Saturday when the store closed.

The three-year-old post office section of Mr. Roluf's store is at the rear of the building and cannot be seen from the street.

The police describe the thieves as "pros," as the remainder of the store was untouched and the cash registers were not tampered with.

In the post office area the only noticeable evidence that a robbery had taken place was a few empty boxes and papers littered on the floor and counter

Some of the stamps that were taken dated back to the year 1948.

Mr. Roluf mentioned that last evening was the first occasion that he had come to the store on a Sunday in quite a while.

He estimated that about 830 "notched" money orders worth $100 apiece were among the loot taken over the weekend.

The thieves also took the stamp used on money orders.

The stamp has a serial number and the sub-post office number.

Chief Crosbie stated that a circular would be issued with the numbers on it, to try to prevent the cashing of any of the money orders.

Mr. Roluf explained that if the money orders are not stamped they are useless, but if they are stamped they become negotiable. Mr. Roluf's stamp will be changed.

Money orders worth less than the $100 ones were also taken during the robbery.

Today the sub-post office is closed, but it is expected to re-open for business by Wednesday at the latest.

Nine of Family Perish in Fire

HOWICK, Que. (CP) — Nine members of a family died Sunday when fire of unknown origin raced through the single-storey brick home they had planned to vacate a week ago.

Neighbors said the family of 12 postponed the moving date because their new home was not quite ready.

Dead are Allain Champ, 47, and eight of his 10 children ranging in age from 2 to 23.

Mr. Champ's wife Joan, her four-months-old daughter and her eldest son Richard, 18, were the only members of the family who survived.

Thant Meets Reds

MOSCOW (AP) — UN Secretary-General U Thant talked about Vietnam with Soviet leaders today for the second day as Pravda gave renewed and unmodified support to Hanoi's peace terms.

Thant met with Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and then with Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev. The secretary-general also talked with Kosygin Sunday soon after he arrived.

Thant was flying on to London tonight to see Prime Minister Wilson, who has endorsed President Johnson's San Antonio formula of requirements for negotiations.

The Soviet and British governments are co-chairmen of the 1954 Geneva conference which ended the French war in Indochina and has often been suggested as a vehicle for peace again. But the Soviet Union has rejected all British proposals to re-open the conference.

The secretary-general came to Moscow from India in his campaign to put a brake on deterioriating peace prospects as a result of the Viet Cong offensive in Vietnam. He talked to the North Vietnamese consul in New Delhi.

Pravda, official organ of the Soviet Communist party, reports Thant's visit without comment but runs a long front-page editorial supporting what it called Hanoi's "clear-cut position . . . leading to a solution of the Vietnamese problem."

China's official New China news agency said Thant went to India last week "to peddle the U.S. peace talks scheme in colusion with Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi." The broadcast called Kosygin, Wilson and Yugoslav President Tito "American lackeys who are whipping up a new peace talks campaign."

U.S. Marines Join Fight To Retake Hue Citadel

SAIGON (AP) — Fresh U.S. marines moved Sunday night into Hue's citadel, where North Vietnamese forces have held out nearly two weeks against South Vietnamese forces. Other Americans battled Viet Cong holdouts near the Saigon racetrack.

The marines, who already have recaptured the southern part of Hue, sent 400 men up the Perfume River in assault boats, to attack the northwest flank of North Vietnamese forces in the old walled citadel.

It was the first time American troops had entered the battle for the citadel, scene of heavy fighting since the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong attacked Hue Jan. 31 in the early stage of their giant offensive against 35 major cities and towns. South Vietnamese troops had pushed the North Vietnamese into corners but had been unable to drive them out

Lt.-Col. Phan Van Khoa, province chief, mayor of Hue and district military commander, said Communist troops in Hue executed 300 civilians Friday and buried them in a mass grave south of the city. He said the grave was in an area not yet reached by combined U.S.-South Vietnamese forces, but that his reports of the executions were precise and unquestionable.

The victims were provincial officials, technicians, policemen and others who long had been marked for death by the Viet Cong, he said.

A South Vietnamese civilian reported 125 to 150 Roman Catholics being led from the city as captives Saturday.

'Lunacy' Says Wilson

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Wilson of Britain says it would be "sheer lunacy" for the United States to use nuclear weapons in the Vietnam war.

The statement of the British leader came in a CBC television interview broadcast Sunday night. Mr. Wilson spent part of the weekend here en route home from Washington.

McCarthy Believes Nuclear Arms Studied

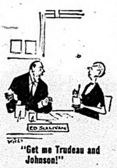
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Eugene J. McCarthy (Dem. Minn.), target of White House fire in an atomic tangle, said Sunday he would be extremely surprised if the U.S. defence department hasn't considered use of nuclear weapons in the war in Vietnam.

McCarthy, citing Washington rumors, said: "There have been suggestions around the edges that nuclear weapons—tactical weapons—have been recommended, have been considered."

He started to add, "I'm sure they've been in some way—" but stopped and went on: "If they haven't been considered by the Pentagon in some kind of program planning I would be very much surprised."

The senator said the administration's public response that it doesn't plan to use such weapons "tends to relieve me somewhat."

McCarthy is challenging President Johnson in six Democratic primaries to dramatize his opposition to U.S. policies in Vietnam.



"Get me Trudeau and Johnson!"

South Korea President May Pay Visit to LBJ

SEOUL (AP) — South Korean President Chung Hee Park is reported considering a trip to see President Johnson if U.S. presidential envoy Cyrus Vance doesn't resolve the U.S.-South Korean rift over South Korean security.

Vance and Park met for the first time today. Vance's mission is to quiet South Korean fears that the United States is tending toward appeasement in the Pueblo incident and neglecting the increased infiltration of armed North Koreans into the South.

In a move welcome to the South Koreans, the U.S. officers who head the United Nations command in Korea asked for a meeting with North Korea to air claims of North Korean truce violations "in and through the demilitarized zone."

It was indicated that the meeting will be held Wednesday.

The U.S. and North Korea have held five secret meetings since the North Koreans seized the U.S. intelligence-gathering ship Pueblo Jan. 23.

The secret meetings miffed South Koreans, who are more concerned about the security threat raised by the North Korean commando raid into Seoul Jan. 21 in an attempt to assassinate President Park.

Rusk Sees War Climax

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (Reuters) — State Secretary Dean Rusk said Saturday night the current Communist offensive in South Vietnam might well be the "climactic period" of the war.

Speaking to the National Association of Secondary School Principals, Rusk also indicated that the offensive launched during lunar new year holiday against South Vietnamese cities had ended U.S. diplomatic exploration of the latest peace talk offers from Hanoi.

After 15 Years as A Bum, Man Won't Touch $19,219

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I'd rather stay at the bottom of the barrell. I'm not ready yet to go over to the other side."

With these words bearded, tattered Clint Wescott, 51, who says he's been on the bum for 15 years, refused $19,219.

"Hand me a dollar," he said, "I'll take it—buy a little drink, a little smoke."

The money belongs to Wescott, who sleeps in weeds in a vacant downtown lot and lives with his friends "One-eyed Jack," "Big Swede," and "The Missing Man.'

His current assets are 44 cents, he says.

The money is from the foreclosure sale in 1961 of a gas station in Burnt Hills, N.Y., near Schenectady, that Wescott abandoned in 1953 when he headed west. The $15,124 sale price plus interest are in two bank accounts.

A law firm, appointed by the New York Supreme Court to handle the case, has searched for Wescott since 1961.

Two weeks ago, Wescott told reporters of his friends and their home in an undeveloped area a few blocks from the county courthouse.

In Burnt Hills, lawyer John P. Brown read the story. Brown phoned the Los Angeles Times and told of the money owed Wescott.

Reporters found Wescott during the weekend asleep in a pile of newspapers beneath a bridge. He ignored the tale of his fortune.

"It's not a bad life," Wescott said. "No cares. . . .

"One of these days I'll go straight. I'll climb out of the bottom of the barrel. But I'm not ready. Not now anyway."

Sentence on Youth Postponed

In County Court this morning the sentencing of Joseph Kenneth Morrissey, who pleaded guilty to a charge of possession of marijuana, was postponed until Feb. 27.

It was the strong recommendation of the court that Morrissey, 17, of 252 King St. in Trenton, be admitted to the Clarke Institute of Psychiatry in Toronto for treatment if possible.

Morrissey was arrested at his residence on January 3 when RCMP Cpl. Harold Pitman and Trenton detective Sidney Vickers went to his home to question him.

Co-operating in every respect with the officers, Morrissey readily admitted to them that he had possession of the drug and turned over three envelopes to them.

Upon testing the contents of the envelope it was found that the substance was marijuana, Crown Attorney John Pringle stated.

Character witnesses were called by defense counsel, Bernard W. Hurley. Among them was Dr. Eugene Conn whose report indicated that there were signs of mental disturbance in the accused. Dr. Conn recommended that Morrissey receive further phychiatric attention.

Judge Anderson adourned the case pending knowledge of whether or not Morrissey would be admitted to the institute. He asked for a public statement from Morrissey indicating that he would go co-operatively to the institute and comply with all that was asked of him.

The statement was readily given by Mr. Morrissey.

Tank Truck Springs Leak

A tank truck loaded with sulphuric acid was placed under police watch in Belleville today — after it sprang a leak.

The truck halted on North Front Street after its driver — eastbound from Montreal — noticed the deadly chemical was dripping to the roadway.

Fireman spread lime around the leak while police were standing by until the acid could be piped into another tanker called from Montreal.

Only One Call For Firemen Over Weekend

City firemen had a quiet weekend with only one call — that for a chimney fire in Sidney township — being received.

The one run was to the farm home of Mr. Hedley Hannah, 7th concession of Sidney, on Saturday evening. No damage was reported.

This morning, firemen were called to North Front Street where a tanker truck loaded with acid was reported to be leaking. Firemen stood by until the leak was stopped.

Driver Hurt As Car Hits Tree

A 28-year-old man was hospitalized early Sunday after his car crashed into a tree east of Belleville.

Verne Hartan, Camden Road, Napanee, suffered a broken jaw, concussion and severe face cuts in the mishap on the four-lane stretch of Highway 2 less than a half-mile outside the city limits.

The accident occurred shortly after midnight, when police say, Hartan lost control of the vehicle.

Cutback in Cheese Subsidy To Cost Quinte Farmers $125,000

Cheese producers in the Hastings-Prince Edward area stand to lose approximately $125,000 a year as the result of the decision of the federal government to discontinue premium subsidies on cheese.

Commencing April 1 the premiums of one and two cents per pound (depending on quality) will be cut off.

The combined cheese production of Hastings and Prince Edward is approximately 12,500,000 a year of which 71 per cent was eligible for the subsidy.

Hector Arnold of Campbellford former president of the Ontario Cheese Producers, says the overall subsidy works out at about one cent per pound for cheese. This means Hastings and Prince Edward farmers will lose out on about $125,000 in subsidy.

Mr. Arnold considers the premium cut off for cheese as a backward step.

"We produce the world's best quality cheddar," he said, "and the premiums helped produce the world's best quality cheddar suitable to the northern climate. It costs the Ontario cheesemaker more than his New Zealand competitor to come up with cheddar."

The federal agricultural department says that new federal and provincial action has been, or is being taken, to control milk quality in other ways and that the original reasons for the cheese subsidy program no longer exist.

Strike Deadline Closer

TRENTON—Contract talks between representatives of Nytronics Ltd. (formerly Essex Electronics) and Local 539, International Union of Electrical and Machine Workers, are continuing today as a Wednesday midnight strike deadline looms closer.

Local 539 represents 30 female plant workers who voted unanimously in favor of strike action last month.

Talks under a Department of Labor concilliator broke down last week and union and company officials met Saturday and are continuing today, a spokesman said. IUE field representative William Miller in Trenton to participate in the negotiations said this morning that the two sides were no closer together in the bargaining for the 1968 contract. Mr. Miller said the women strikers will begin picketing the Wall street Nytronic plant midnight Wednesday if no settlement is reached earlier.

Liquor Store Entered

TRENTON — Thieves for the second weekend in succession smashed a glass in the front entrance to the new liquor store and made off with a number of bottles of spirits.

Local police investigating the robbery said nine large bottles of rum were taken. Retail value of the loot was estimated at $45.

The break-in was discovered by a detail checking downtown properties early Sunday morning.

A week ago the liquor store was entered and 10 bottles of wine were reported missing. A similar set of circumstances were involved in both incidents police said.

Butter, Cheese Production In Quinte District Down

The production of creamery butter and cheddar cheese in Canada and in the Quinte district showed a decrease in 1967 as compared with the previous year.

The monthly dairy report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food, shows that creamery butter production was down by three per cent and cheddar cheese by about five per cent.

Butter production in Ontario declined to 99 million pounds — the first time since 1961 that it has gone below 100 million pounds — while Ontario cheese production was down six per cent to 84 million pounds.

In Hastings creamery butter production last year dropped to 1,228,254 from 1,677,249 pounds with December production at 66,408 as compared with 98,012 in the same month in 1966.

Cheddar cheese production in Hastings last year totalled 9,762,452 as compared with 9,840,475.

Chamber of Commerce Hears Defense of Free Enterprise

CAMPBELLFORD — Edward Haynes, a Cobourg printer and publisher was guest speaker at the annual meeting of Campbellford Chamber of Commerce last week.

Mr. Haynes is a past president of Cobourg Chamber of Commerce, the Cobourg Kinsment Club and the Great Pine Ridges Tourist Council.

He spoke in defence of the free enterprise system and the small businessman. The small business is the back bone of the Canadian economy, he contended, and today it faces what could develop into insurmountable odds due to the pressure placed on it by governments and increased taxation.

The speaker warned that the new regional system of school boards might spread to municipal and county government. The "give away" programs of government, which demand higher and higher taxes, are becoming an increasing burden to the small businessman.

Mr. Haynes urged a united front from all Chambers of Commerce "to combat what appears to be almost a form of dictatorship".

Retiring president of the Campbellford Chamber of Commerce, J. R. Connor, reviewed the work of the past year. He mentioned the installation of a tourist information booth in a location which serves both motoring and boating tourists. He expressed disappointment that council had not created a parking lot on Front St.

A plaque was presented to J. O .Benor, who donated the money for the Chamber of Commerce building in honor of his late wife.

Officers elected for 1968 were: president, D. R. Maybee; first vice-president, Bruce Sharpe; second vice-president, Charles Davidson; secretary, Mrs. R. Lauson; treasurer, George Free; directors, J. R. Connor, Donald Meyers, Dante Pace, E. Salkeld, David Wilson, Wayne Gunter.

Tweed's Winter Carnival Success

Temperatures may have dropped in Tweed after a very warm torchlight parade Friday night but the cold didn't inhibit anybody, either visitors or Tweeders from making every part of the winter carnival a complete success.

Friday, Saturday and Sunday were most probably the three busiest days in Tweed's history yet. After the big opening parade and street dance Friday night everybody was early to rise to begin the festivites Saturday.

During the morning hockey was one attraction as it was during most of the weekend. According to one citizen in Tweed, he didn't know there were so many hockey players in the area — the game was played continuously.

An outdoor bonspiel, sleigh rides, snowmobile rides and a girl's hockey game on Stoco Lake filled most of Saturday afternoon. Excitement ran high at Tweed Raceway Saturday afternoon when the stock car races were held.

A track of ice isn't the easiest thing in the world to drive on and there were plenty of thrills for the crowd, at least until the cars all got stuck.

The Tweed-Hungerford Community Centre was busting at the seams with a maximum capacity crowd of 1,500 plus Saturday night.

The Kingston Figure Skaters club began the entertainment with an hour long performance. Featured were singles and doubles and the grand finale was composed of a serpentine that took the skaters all over the ice.

A tug-of-war and beard growing contest along with an oldtimers hockey game tied up Saturday's activities. Awards were given for the best beard, the most unique beard and the best beard grown by a student.

Kept busy were the Tweed Kiwanians who served the pancake breakfast Sunday morning at the community centre. Response to the breakfast was so large that it had to be closed early — they ran out of food.

Keeping the pancake eaters entertained while they were eating, a hockey game between the Kingston and Belleville Pee-wees was played at the same time.

The scene of the mammoth snowmobile races was Stoco Lake. Competitors began to arrive as early as 9:30 a.m. and it wasn't long before the ice surface was completely covered by snowmobiles and cars.

The race course was set out against the shore line of Stoco Lake and the cross-country unlimited race course was almost 20 miles long.

Although it was a very cold day to go 60 mph across a lake there certainly was no problem with entries who came from as far as Kingston and Toronto.

After the races a big outdoor barbecue finished up the weekend — the best yet for Tweed according to those who had attended the carnival for the past three years.

"Now all that remains is to start planning for next year's festivities," said Barbara Allen, reeve of the town.

Pancakes a la Fingers

Krista English of Tweed finds there is only one way to enjoy a pancake breakfast and that's resorting to fingers. After all, they were made before forks. Krista is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett English of Tweed.

20 Miles to Go

Ski-doos come out of the starting gate at Stoco Lake at the beginning of the snowmobile races at Tweed on Sunday. Almost 200 of the motorized toboggans were present and 10 times as many spectators.

Barbecue at Ten Below

Barry Hunter, president of the Tweed Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the 1968 winter carnival, puts more wood on his barbecue on Stoco Lake, during Sunday's program. Whether it was to cook a fast meal or to ward off the cold is a question only Mr. Hunter could answer.

Scouting Around District

There has been considerable activity at the various Groups during the past few weeks in preparation for Boy Scout Week, Feb. 18 - 25. Many activities are planned, the biggest of which is the "Scouters Annual Get-together" at Masonic Hall, Feb. 19 at 6.30 Starting with a sumptuous dinner served by the ever dependable ladies auxiliary, the evening will be spent in music, games, dancing with special guests from Provincial and other offices.

Throughout the week the Groups will be having "Open House" or "Family Nights" as well as a few traditional "Father and Son" Banquets. Church parades on February 18 and 25 in commemeration of the Founder Lord Baden-Powell of Gilwell. Most of the Groups have incorporated their plans into their regular meetings.

4th Belleville
(Emmanuel Baptist)

Since the organization of Cubs in November last year, this Unit has increased from five to 20 boys. Under the leadership of Cubmaster Larry Gear and Assistant Cubmasters Eric Jense and Dr. and Mrs. W. Ludolp very satisfactory progress is being made. The investiture of 14 boys as Cubs will be held during the next week. As a special item, in which boys are always interested, a special hike and camp program was held on Saturday, Jan. 27. Inter-six competition is underway and the boys have been working on a few merit badges as a part of their "Five Star Program". Meetings are on Thursdays at 6.30 p.m. in Emmanuel Hall.

Boy Scout Troop has also been organized, and although only small in number, with a nucleus of 6 boys, there is keen interest in the program. An investiture is being planned for February 13th.

The Troop consists of boys of Venturer age (14 and 15) and would welcome other boys to become one of their number. Meetings are held on Tuesdays at 6.45 p.m. in the Emmanuel Church Hall. The boys are under the leadership of Rev. C. H. Savage as acting Scoutmaster, with H. Raffael, J. Savage and R. Fort as assistants.

Boy Scout Week will be observed with a "B.P." Church parade on Sunday, February 18, with special meetings and a real Scouty hike for the Scouts on Saturday of Boy Scout Week. The group committee is now well organized under Messrs. K. Allison, D. White and G. Manthorne.

16th BELLEVILLE (O.S.D.) TROOP

This Troop under the leadership of Scoutmaster Medley Mayo and Assistant Scoutmaster John McKay visited on Saturday morning with the 3rd Trenton (Armed Forces) Troop under the leadership of Scoutmaster Bernie Gorin and Assistant Roland Chartrand. A feature of the get-together was a visit to the Armed Forces Base.

Major B. F. Beeprose conducted the boys around the base and they had the opportunity to examine several aircraft and the thrill of sitting in the pilot's seat in many of the planes. The Scouts certainly bubbled over with enthusiasm and topped off the morning with a treat of cocoa and sandwiches, always appreciated by hungry boys. As a special added feature of the visit, a film of the 1966 Stanley Cup play-offs was shown through the courtesy of the Armed Forces.

Mr. Wilf. Doyle, Resident Councillor of the Ontario School for the Deaf also accompanied the boys during this educational tour. A hike is planned for a Saturday in the near future.

Economic Realism

Amid all the palaver about the constitution at last week's conference in Ottawa there was a tendency to overlook some of the bread-and-butter issues of importance affecting the welfare of Canadians.

Aid to the Atlantic provinces for instance. As Premier Smith of Nova Scotia put it: "We delude ourselves if we think that satisfaction of the demands respecting constitutional or provincial rights matter very much to the man in any province who is unemployed for months each year." He called for federal assistance to stimulate industry in the region.

His words take on added significance when it is realized that the country's current high unemployment is concentrated mainly in the Atlantic provinces, Quebec and British Columbia.

As of mid-January 464,000 Canadians were out of work. For the first time in years this figure exceeds six per cent of the labor force. In the Maritimes it is worse. The unemployment rate there has reached 10.9 per cent, while in Quebec and British Columbia it stands at 7.8 per cent.

Although the overall figure of more than 400,000 is 110,000 higher than it had been a month earlier seasonal factors are said to have a strong bearing on this. The trend, none the less is disturbing.

Significantly, Quebec with 166,000 jobless, has the largest single pool of unemployment in Canada. Yet they talk there of special status and secession. However, emphasis on the latter prospects has receded somewhat with the success of last week's conference. That is all to the good, for more than ever Quebec cannot afford to go it alone.

Meanwhile it is interesting to observe that Canada's population as of January was 20,630,000, an increase of 378,000 or 1.9 per cent above the figure of a year before. The increase since June 1, 1966 has been 3.1 per cent.

Discipline — or Sadism?

"Spare the rod and spoil the child" is an old saw of the disciplinary field which still holds true.

Times have changed though to the point where the emphasis is more on IQ tests and "understanding" the nature of the little beast.

Then there is a third dimension in this business of discipline for the young. It concerns what actually takes place in Ontario primary schools today.

We are not sure what Department of Education recommendations are with regard to discipline, or what is expected of teachers in controlling their classes. However, the department, not to mention parents, might be interested in the following examples of the kind of punishment meted out to miscreants in schools today. Students in the Quinte area are familiar with some of them.

The student who is caught chewing gum in class is made to stick the offending morsel on his nose.

Food eaten in class may be taped to the nose.

For talking in class a student wearing spectacles may be asked to turn them upside down. Others in this category may have tape placed over their mouth or be asked to sing to the class.

For creating a disturbance a student may be made to stand against the wall, nose and toes touching it, with the hands raised over the head as far as possible, and sometimes standing on tiptoe.

Variations include making students sit on a chair in the hallway during recess and noon hour.

Oh yes, for serious offences a student may get the strap . . . which by comparison with the incredible strictures listed above at least has the virtue of directness and honesty.

Granted students can be a nuisance, possessed of the devil and sundry other undesirable qualities that are anathema to school authorities and teachers alike. By the same token it is time the school system came up with effective disciplinary measures that are not based so obviously on inability to command respect and keep control.

There are grounds for believing that measures of this nature can give rise to serious psychological disturbances in young students. Such methods of discipline are as sadistic as they are outdated.

Belgian Government Resigns Over Bilingualism Issue

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Belgium is an example of how a language problem can threaten to tear a country to shreds. The latest struggle over bilingualism has split the country and its church and forced resignation of the government.

The difficulties may have lessons for other countries, for Belgium is older than Canada and still is unable to reunite the Dutch-speaking Flemings of the north and the French-speaking Walloons of the south.

Argument similar to that heard in Quebec is found in the Flemings' claims that, though they make up the majority of the more than 9,000,000 population, they have been dominated politically and economically by the Walloons.

Belgium, with its booming capital made prosperous by NATO and the Common Maket, has witnessed many demonstrations and riots that forced repeated changes in government. Belgium is a Roman Catholic state but the crisis has split bishops just as it has politicians.

The current crisis centres on Flemish demands that the French student and faculty body move out of the ancient University of Louvain, in Flemish linguistic territory about 15 miles east of bilingual Brussels.

Of the total 21,000 students, about one-half are French-speaking. In 1962, the government, exhausted by the continuing strife between the linguistic antagonists, ruled that Flemish would be used in schools in the northern half and French in the south.

But that compromise didn't cover the University of Louvain, the world's biggest Roman Catholic university that houses one of the world's best French libraries. The French simply didn't want to move, feeling that if they did so, their cause would be lost forever.

Flemish students and their supporters argued that the French not only wanted to dominate the university but the city of Louvain itself.

King Baudouin now has accepted the resignation of the coalition government of Prime Minister Paul Vanden Boeynants. And undoubtedly a new attempt will be made to develop a fresh coalition.

But there is doubt this will work in the current spirit of national disunity. Fresh elections may provide new ground for riots. Some observers look on the future with deep pessimism.

However, pressure from the outside may force Belgium to continue some form of makeshift administration. The country has become of major importance to the North Atlantic alliance which has its headquarters there.

A forced removal of NATO and the Common Market commission could jeopardize Belgium's economic future. This might impress both sides.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

February 12, 1948.

Belleville Cubs and Boy Scouts have planned a busy schedule in observance of National Boy Scout Week being observed next week. Every day during the week, as in any other week, each Scout and Cub will be prepared to render his "Good Deed," one of the achievements of Scout training for which Scouts are so well known.

The annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce will be held in the Hotel Quinte on March 5. Guest speaker for the occasion will be Professor Watson Kirkconnell of Hamilton, who was recently appointed head of Acadia College, Kentville, N.S. Also coming as a special guest is Trevor Hammill, field secretary of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, Toronto.

30 YEARS AGO

February 12, 1938

At the recent meeting of the Belleville Branch of the Retail Merchants Association, the following officers were elected: president, R. J. Hennessy; first vice president, Robert Wray; second vice president, E. Shapiro; secretary-treasurer, W. C. Doyle.

New Company Formed: Idle for the past seven years or more, the old Carthage Machine Co. plant at the foot of Mary St., has again been opened for production by the locally formed "Carthage Machine Company of Canada" which is composed of W. C. Springer, Harry W. Ackerman and Fred S. Wilson. The newly remodelled plant has been equipped for the manufacture of paper-making machinery.

The Radio Quartet of this city composed of A. F. Stillman, J. Arnold Thomson, Harry R. Moorman and Dr. A. B. Haffner has been engaged to sing morning and evening at the anniversary services in King St. Church, Oshawa.

Clearing House Established: Belleville bankers have organized a bank clearing house. John Elliott, manager of the Standard Bank is the president and Martin Dunsford, accountant with the Canadian Bank of Commerce, is the secretary.

50 YEARS AGO

February 12, 1918

At the annual meeting of Marsh and Henthorn Limited, the reports showed that the company enjoyed a prosperous year. The following officers were elected: president and general manager, Lorne W. Marsh; vice-president, J. A. Marsh, superintendent of shops and production, Albert P. White; assistant manager, Gladstone R. Brower; secretary - treasurer, Fred P. Henry. The above mentioned officers compose the board of directors.

The hundreds of fans who gathered at the arena here last night to witness the struggle for supremacy between Oshawa and Belleville were sorely disappointed as Oshawa won, the score being 3 to 2.

Runaway Girls Prefer Home to Never-Never Land of the Hippies

Brockville Recorder and Times

It's a strange world we're living in. Police now report that more girls than boys are running away from home. The only difference is that most return home quickly . . . . and stay home.

Last year, acording to police files, 60 percent of all teen-age runaways were girls in the age bracket of 14 to 16. Many of them head for "hippie land", drawn by the influence of television coverage of "hippie" activities. They think they're heading for a spiritual awakening, total acceptance and freedom from supervision. Eighty-five percent of them return home within 72 hours, disillusioned by the tawdriness that goes with communal living.

Among the reasons cited by specialists in behavior patterns, young girls run away from home and society for three basic reasons: Pressures of modern life; earlier maturity, and constant exposure via TV to the advantages of adulthood, entertainment, fashion, travel, drinking and sex. It is significant that the importance of the influence of TV should be stressed, we feel. The hippies have been played up to the point where the girls feel they are running away to something. But they soon learn that life among the flower people is no bed of roses. A trusting girl who believes all the TV nonsense about free love, communal living and the expanding of one's vision, can end up the victim of a mass sexual assault. And instead of reaching heights through the use of drugs, they often find it a pagan and disastrous experience.

The best argument against young girls running away, police have found, is that the girls rarely try it twice.

Japanese Canadian's Lawsuit

Canada's conscience will be rubbed a bit raw by a $1,500,000 damage suit entered against the Queen — which means all of us — by an aged Japanese Canadian.

The complainant was one of more than 17,000 Canadian citizens of Japanese racial origin and several thousand non-nationalized who were deprived of their possessions and moved from their homes during the 1941-42 wartime hysteria that followed Pearl Harbor.

The history of Canada's dealings with Japanese peoples, both immigrants and Canadian-born, has been one that, in the light of present views, is deeply shameful.

In the census of 1901 only 4,738 Japanese lived in Canada, almost all of them in British Columbia. By 1931 the Japanese population had risen to 23,342, all of them still official foreigners because they could not become citizens.

This barrier was technically removed in 1934 but a British Columbia law passed in 1902 prevented them not only from voting provincially or federally but from holding office or acting in any official capacity.

Despite this, by 1941 no fewer than 17,225 had accepted this second-class citizenship. Nearly 9,000 were gainfully employed, mostly in agriculture, fishing, laboring and manufacturing.

The decline in the war fortunes of the Allies and the Japanese assault on British and U.S. forces in the Orient created a continuing panic in British Columbia. Pressure from that part of Canada resulted in an order-in-council removing all people of Japanese origin from a 100-mile wide strip along the B.C. coast.

This measure went into effect in February, 1942, and was ruthlessly carried out. Property was seized, cars, boats and other belongings removed and sold at auction, in many cases well below current values.

As early as 1944 some of the dispossessed sought remedy through the courts. Their case was finally lost in 1947, but some token recompense was offered and accepted.

In the new suit the complainant was one of those who settled for the 1947 pittance. But he is demanding justice rather than a handout and his age suggests it is a symbolical suit in behalf of all the others who were similarly treated.

Canada's wartime action, while not to be condoned now, can at least be understood, for we were fighting for our lives and looked to be in good chance of losing them.

B. C. Odd Man Out Over Expo

Vancouver Sun

The three Prairie premiers seem to have put Cece Bennett on the spot. It is one of the smaller spots to be occupied by our premier recently, true. Still the announcement that Premier Manning, Premier Thatcher and Premier Weir wish to donate Expo's Western Pavilion to Montreal has a tone of challenge to it. There remains only one odd man out, and that man is our Mr. Bennett.

Mr. Bennett boycotted the opening of Expo, alone among provincial premiers. When it came time to dispose of B.C.'s modest asset, one-quarter share in the Western Pavilion, his deputy provincial secretary, Lawrie Wallace, found all sorts of fascinating reasons why it should not fall into the hands of Montreal. One was that B.C. would feel morally responsible for keeping the pavilion "shipshape."

So far, Mr. Bennett's response to the broad hint from his Prairie colleagues to be a good fellow has not been encouraging. He says the decision is up to Mr. Wallace — a laughable statement — and if Mr. Wallace insists on demolition he will not interfere. Mr. Wallace hadn't changed his mind, the last we heard.

British Columbians, who have been watching one Expo contributor after another present their pavilions to Jean Drapeau, will expect Mr. Bennett to give his okay. It will cost nothing to give it away. We can't afford to be a spoilsport.

Pulp and Paper Firm Invests in Its Staff

Montreal Gazette

There is a growing awareness in Canadian industry that employee abilities can and should be improved, just as the performance of machines can be enlarged and adapted.

The programs, whether in time off for study, grants of tuition fees, or both, are considered of direct benefit to both employee and employer.

One such program was outlined at a recent meeting of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association. G. M. Minard, president of the Kimberley-Clark Corporation, said his company spends some $100,000 a year supporting courses taken by members of its research and engineering department. The company felt, he said, that this money was better spent in improving the equalifications of 125 engineers than in hiring a few more.

A survey on industrial educational programs has shown that the courses most sought in "continuing education" are those in management, labor relations, and mill operation. Such courses have direct application. They improve the employee's position by improving his value to his company.

The swift changes which are taking place throughout industry, both in equipment and in systems, make continuing education a growing necessity. It is often the executive who finds he needs to take a course, one perhaps which was not available when he was a junior in the business.

If a plant instals computers, for instance, management as well as employees may find computer instruction necessary, if the machines are to be used to best advantage.

The growth of knowledge is so swift today, in all walks of life, that refresher courses are necessary to keep up. Education is no longer confined to the youthful years of formal schooling. It is, more and more, a continuing process and an enriching one.

Industry also discovers it is an excellent investment.

Lake Boats Go Out Of Business

Windsor Star

If the cold affairs of business are susceptible to emotion, it must have been a sad meeting in Detroit this week when eight stockholders gathered to approve the liquidation of the Georgian Bay Lines.

Winding up of the company means the end of cruise ship service on the Great Lakes, a trade which once kept dozens of vessels operating. Georgian Bay Lines could not find a successor to the South American, which was sold at the close of the last sailing season.

Some of the sadness of the meeting was reduced by the fact that stockholders made a profit on the winding up. For the more sentimental, there was satisfaction that the line's two vessels ended their service by retirement, not by fire or accident as so many Great Lakes ships had done.

Passenger cruise service on the Lakes is gone, and part of the color of the Lakes has gone with it.

Remittance Men

Portland Oregonian

Webster's International dictionary defines the term "remittance man" as "a person living away from the British Isles but subsisting chiefly on remittances from home." Times have changed. Now it is Uncle Sam, not John Bull, who is the world's champion remitter.

A small measure of the dollars that flow regularly out of America to remittance men and women abroad is to be found in Social Security records. Each month, more than $13 million in government cheques go to more than 180,000 Social Security beneficiaries in foreign countries.

Italy has the largest number of recipients — 36,000, who receive a total of more than $2.5 million monthly. There are more than 1,000 in various parts of Africa, receiving about $70,000 monthly; more than 15,000 in Greece; about 13,000 in Mexico; more than 25,000 in Canada.

Most of these pensioners live where the dollar buys much more than it does in America. The coming increase in Social Security payments will mean more to them than it will to those who stay at home to get their remittances.

International Threat

General Motors Plants Affected by Strike Over Rest Periods

TORONTO (CP) — Subsidiaries of General Motors of Canada Ltd. are feeling the pinch of a strike by the United Auto Workers at GM plants in six Canadian cities.

Contract talks between the company and the UAW—representing 25,000 hourly-paid workers at seven plants—broke off Friday, 45 minutes before the noon strike deadline set by the union a week ago.

Six hours before the deadline, 300 workers walked out at McKinnon Industries Ltd., a GM subsidiary at St. Catharines.

General Spring Products Ltd., Kitchener, a supplier of parts to GM, has laid off 410 men.

At Frigidaire Products of Canada Ltd., a GM subsidiary in Toronto, only two accountants worked Saturday. The plant employs 1,300 workers.

The strike directly affects 12,300 GM workers in Oshawa, 7,300 in St. Catharines, 2,200 in Windsor, 1,000 in Toronto and 800 in London, all Ontario cities, and 1,900 in St. Therese, Que.

Wages are not an issue.

The company wants to end the practice of shutting down assembly lines for 30 minutes in each eight-hour shift for rest and wash-up periods before it will meet union proposals for Canadian wage parity with workers in the United States.

The company claims the coffee breaks and rest periods affect productivity. It has proposed substituting the American practice of providing relief on an individual basis.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The United Auto Workers union is prepared to use its international power to strike United States auto firms to put leverage on Canadian subsidiaries, a senior UAW official said Sunday.

Dennis McDermott, the union's Toronto area director, told a labor seminar that if Canadian auto workers encounter problems because they are not permitted by law to strike over grievances during the life of the contract, the union would strike the parent firm in the U.S.

He said that when the UAW struck the General Motors of Canada Ltd. plant at St. Therese, Que. in 1966 in support of wage parity with the Oshawa plant, the union closed U.S. plants that were filling the market normally supplied by St. Therese.

"We cooked up a bunch of grievances and we closed the plant down," said Mr. cDermott, who is slated to assume the UAW's top spot in Canada. "Then we went back to St. Therese and said 'How do you like these apples?' They settled the strike in a week."

Mr. cDermott also told of a letter sent to the Chrysler Corp. in Detroit by the international union warning the company the union would not tolerate a situation in which Chrysler Canada took advantage of its workers because they did not have the legal right to strike during the life of their contract.

In the United States, the union has the right to strike at any time over certain grievances—such as disputes over work standards—that are considered non-arbitable.

Industrial Expansion Slowed Down Last Year

OTTAWA (CP) — The rate of expansion in almost every field of industrial production slowed down in 1967, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The DBS index of industrial production showed an increase of 2.7 per cent during 1967, compared with an annual growth rate of 5.7 per cent from 1946 to 1966.

Mining production increased 6.3 per cent, compared with an annual rise of 8.9 per cent through 1946-66. Manufacturing climbed 1.1 per cent, against a 20-year average of 4.9 per cent, and electric power and gas utilities showed an increase of 10.4 per cent, compared with a 1946-66 annual growth rate of 9.6 per cent.

The DBS index climbed to 291.7 last December from 289.2 the p: .vious month.

Late-year increases in durable goods manufacturing and in mininy accounted for the advance, the bureau reported.

Motor vehicle production ran 13 per cent ahead of November to spark the advance in the durable goods section. Production of parts and accessories also was nigher.

But there was an eight-percent decline in the non-durable goods section of manufacturing.

One reason was a drop in production of synthetic textiles and silks after an unusually high November level. Another was a fall-off in pulp and paper production because of newspaer strikes in the United States.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were mixed to fractionally down in light mid-morning activity on the Toronto Stock Exchange today, interrupting last week's steep war-scare tumble.

The women's section of the Quinte Curling Club are in the midst of their biggest bonspiel of the year. Play started this morning and will continue until late Tuesday afternoon for The Intelligencer trophy and under the chairmanship of Beverley Neill with co-helpers Audrey Cowsell and Jane Shepherd. Betty Weymark, Helen McCorquodale and Gwyn Monson are in charge of prizes and it is understood they are well worth winning. This is the tenth annual competition for the beautiful trophy and the winners will be given suitable minatures as a reminder of their vctory. In the second event the women will play for the trophy presented by Bill Spinelli and the Pepsi-Cola company.

There are 24 rinks in competition, thirteen of them being from outside the local club and include the Kingston, Brighton, CFB, Napanee, Trenton and Toronto curling clubs. The women will break off from their competition on Tuesday afternoon for tea and a social hour.

It is expected that the final draw will start about 5:30 on Tuesday and the prizes will be distributed immediately after play is concluded.

At the Quinte Curling Club on Sunday in the Colts Division for District 3 Napanee beat Brockville, champions of District 3A in two straight games. The first one was close 13-12 but in the second game the Napanee rink had an easy 15-4 victory. Al French was the skip of the winning rink.

Also played at the same time was a 3B District junior rink from Brighton skipped by Jim Morrow, who defeated a rink from CFB. Bill Gault was convener of the games.

A rink of Wilf Weymark, Al McCullam, Dr. McCorquodale with Ron Benn as skip won the Victoria and Grey bonspiel staged at the Quinte Curling Club on Saturday. There were sixteen rinks in competition and on the third draw the curlers appeared in costume and the Ross Booth rink of Al Glover, Wilf Mills, Dawson Boyd and the skip appeared as ballerinas and easily won the prize offered for the best dressed rink. A committee of Jim Petticrew, Murray Johnson, Dave Davey and Jim Thicke conducted the draws and Connie Wilkinson and her energetic committee from the women's section of the club provided delicious refreshments, the hamburgers being especially good.

A rink of doctors, Frank McCue, Bill Hipwell, Jim Nelles with Jim Loynes as skip also won three games but were short a few points from the top rung. The two-game high winner was a rink of Ivan Hillborn, Bruce Parsons, Doug Bennett with Stan Reston as skip and the runners-up in this section were Bill Henderson, Bill Gault, Art Bannon with Bill Spinelli as skip

The one-game high winner was a rink of Jim Dallas, Dick Barrett, Gil Wamboldt with Ernie Wilkinson as skip followed by the V and G rink skipped by the local manager Jack Mosley and included D. Gill, R. Walker and D. Puffer.

It was an excellent spiel and thoroughly enjoyed by all the curlers.

Union, Firm To Resume Talks

Labor negotiations will be renewed this week with Stewart-Warner Corporation in Belleville after United Automobile Workers officials sought opinion from plant employees.

The UAW now resumes talks backed by a stike-if-necessary vote of Stewart-Warner workers.

Employees met in the Orange Hall in Belleville Sunday and voted 98 per cent in favor of a strike.

The UAW was certified in October as bargaining agents for 125 Stewart-Warner workers.

Negotiations have been going on since Nov. 9 with company vice-president W. W. Miller representing Stewart-Warner. The union is represented by T. D. Green.

The vote yesterday does not necessarily mean that a strike will result but it does give the authority to the bargaining agents to call a strike if they feel it is necessary.

The conciliation report was submitted on Feb. 9 which means that the earliest possible date for a strike would be Feb. 23.

Negotiations between the company and the union will be continuing this Thursday.

Const. G. H. Rollins of Madoc OPP investigated, and it is said charges are pending.

Insulators Kept Clean

Ontario Hydro workmen remove salt and grime that collect on power line insulators along highways. The idea is to prevent power failures or radio or TV interference caused by the buildup of dirt. High-pressure jet of water breaks into non-conducting spray so there's no danger to workmen.

President of Realtors Wants Central Mortgage Disbanded

TORONTO (CP) — Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. should be disbanded and replaced by a privately-owned provincial mortgage corporation, R. W. Telford, president of the Ontario Association of Real Estate Boards, said today.

He told the association's 46th annual meeting that the proposed provincial corporation should be managed in such a way as to make it attractive to private investors.

In addition to long-term bonds, it could sell participation certificates on its mortgage holdings and so attract long term investors who now are oriented in that direction, he said.

"In the same way, small investors could buy mortgage certificates and earn higher yields on their savings without the inconvenience of non-liquidity."

He said the other major problem facing the industry is the lack of serviced land.

He recommended a crash program of installing trunk services, financed through the Ontario Development Corp. which could borrow money and lend it to municipalities.

"This would open up thousands upon thousands of acres of land adjacent to urban areas and lower land costs immediately."

Mr. Telford also criticized "antiquated and stultifying laws" inhibiting the production of low-cost housing.

Zoning laws and building codes bore heavily on the industry's ability to create the quality and quantity of housing needed.

Canada Will Have Only Push-button Puppet Show

OTTAWA (CP) — In two years Canada will have the only push-button puppet show in the world, says Dr. Carman Roy, head of the National Museum's folklore division.

For an estimated $75,000, specialists in Montreal and Quebec expect shortly to start preparing 60 puppets — 20 mechanized — for use in folk tale performances.

The carefully - costumed puppets, ranging in height from a few inches to about 1½ feet, will have 13 movements initiated by programmers of 100 pounds each driven by electric motors. Action will be through pulleys. The 25-minute shows will be performed on a 30-foot stage by an experienced puppet operator. Sound will come from a special four-track tape recorder.

Automation is being used to reduce the large staff that would otherwise be needed to operate the puppets' strings. Like the space program, mechanizing puppets is an experimental thing, Dr. Roy says, and everything must be tested. A technician, designer, puppet operator, narrator and composer are working on the project.

"For such an undertaking the cost is very cheap," she told an interviewer. "They do it out of love for the new and worth while."

The idea for the unusual display is typical of Dr. Roy who "just got up one morning and thought that it would be nice to get out of the old century."

"A tale is very hard to put on display. Our archives and scholars will be enough to prove the value of our work but you cannot put this on display.

"A museum should be very alive."

Dr. Roy, who grew up in the Gaspe Peninsula, attended Laval University where she was "pushed" into studying folklore by Dr. Marius Barbeau, the eminent ethno-folklorist.

After attending the University of Montreal, she received her doctorate from the Sorbonne in Paris and did field work for 10 years before joining its permanent staff in 1957.

Her major personal interest, shoved into the background since she became head of the folklore division, is French - Canadian culture and verbal lore. Dr. Roy especially likes to study recipes and eating habits.

"This is the best way to reach the bottom of the human being . . . the daily life."

Her main concern now, however, is a museum study started in 1962 to survey 33 ethnic groups.

"These people are Canadian and there is still time to investigate their culture. In 100 years people will be able to see how these groups contributed to our society and what they got out of it."

Folklore, however, is not merely old songs and traditions, Dr. Roy says. It is something which changes and is replaced. It must be studied with an eye to sociology and history.

"My people told me about the legend of the flying canoe. Now people tell tales of flying saucers."

U.C.W. Meeting

DESERONTO UCW

DESERONTO — Mrs. Percy VanVlack opened her home Thursday evening for the well attended meeting of the evening unit of the Deseronto UCW. Committee in charge consisted of the hostess, her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Howard VanVlack, and Mrs. L. E. Tunnicliffe. The leader, Mrs. George Lyons conducted the meeting.

Mrs. Tunnicliffe conducted the worship service, whose theme was "God's Love," with Mrs. VanVlack, Sr.

At the conclusion of the regular business meeting, the leader announced a special speaker at a meeting the afternoon of February 16 in the church. His address will deal with missionary work.

The men of the church are carrying out a project of their own, a pancake supper on Shrove Tuesday, February 27, and the group received a report on plans, and made their own plans for assisting. They learned that the Hi-C's are already selling tickets, and that they are to take an active part during the event, acting as servers, for example.

A report on the UCW annual Presbyterial the previous week in Stirling was heard. Mrs. Lyons reported the morning session, and Mrs. VanVlack, Sr., the afternoon session.

A number of "thank you" notes were reported from recipients of Christmas remembrances. At the end of the formal meeting a social hour was enjoyed, which included the singing of a number by Miss Sandra VanVlack, a contest, and refreshments served by the committee in charge.

Movement Afoot in India To Reduce Food Imports

BOMBAY (CP) — A movement against imported foods and consequent Indian dependence on foreign governments has been started by a citizens' committee in the town of Aurangabad, 350 miles from here.

The committee has hit on a novel method to dramatize its efforts to persuade the government and the people to do without imported food grains.

More than 500 Aurangabad residents have begun a pilgrimage on foot to Bombay this great port which handles the bulk of the grain imports.

On the way, they will address meetings in towns and villages, telling the people how the country's self-respect has been undermined because of the dependence on foreign governments.

The committee feels that if Indians make a determined effort, the country can become not only seuf-sufficient in food but will also be in a position to export grains.

The sponsors of the pilgrimage say Indians should rather starve than import food from abroad.

"The continued and almost chronic reliance on foreign countries has made us international beggars," they say.

Organizers of the march include newspaper editors, social workers, politicians, school teachers and business men.

They say the government is not anti-American. India imports the bulk of its food requirements from the United States.

"But this dependence on foreign governments has sapped our will and affected our dignity. Our movement is only intended to preserve our reputation as a self-respecting nation."

On reaching Bombay—the march may take some 60 days —the marchers will address a mass rally at Chowpatty Beach where 200,000 people are expected to sign a petition against further food imports.

A move is also under way to persuade political parties in Bombay to observe a "no-more-food-imports" day.

Skinny Babies May Have Trouble at School

VANCOUVER (CP)—Skinny babies are more likely to have trouble at school in later life than fat ones, says a survey by a University of British Columbia research group.

The survey, produced for the Canadian Society for Clinical Investigation, shows that dysmature babies — those born underweight after full-term pregnancy — had more school problems than premature and normal babies.

The survey also says the prospects of brain damage are as great for dysmature babies as for premature babies. However, cerebral palsy was significantly more prevalent among premature babies than among dysmature babies.

Dr. Margaret Cox, who also is the mother of two boys and a girl, said her UBC team found that low bodyweight at birth may cause complications later regardless of whether the low weight results from premature delivery or other factors.

Work, Hobbies Cannot Replace Marital Love

Dear Doris: Being over 30 years old, I'm feeling very often not a woman but just something turned on and off as need be. I have a good husband but am still often denied the bliss and affection of marital love. No amount of work and hobbies can replace this.

Is a woman to express her love by cleaning and cooking for her family, only? I know it is all part of love. Furs and these modern to-do's make one secure and comfortable, but often not satisfied.

Many men figure their women have all they need. Talking about these things often hurts, but it would be enlightening to those concerned. — Be Wildered.

Dear Be Wildered: "She did not die from thorns, but from a lack of roses." So an old story runs.

A man looks at his mate and wonders what she could possibly want that she doesn't already have. And forgets to woo her. A woman needs affection and a little time taken in making a fuss over her.

There are books and talk about it a-plenty. The man who cares enough learns to be a good lover. Want the list I send out, of recommended books?

Dear Doris: We took in my sister and her little boy when her marriage broke up. Now they are on their own again but my sister is very strict with the boy and seems to have no feeling for him.

She has men in to see her who stay overnight. She resents us. But the boy, who is six, wants to come and live with us.

My wife and the boy are still in shock. Is there anything we can do? — Worried Father.

Dear Worried: Nothing is harder than to stand by and see a youngster short-changed. At this point the mother resents life itself and takes it out on him. Guilt feelings, a sense of inadequacy, quarrel with her efforts at demanding passing satisfactions.

Both she and the boy need help. Your best line of action is to talk with the child care agency in her area. Tell what you know of the situation; of your willingness to take care of the little fellow.

If a mother is not providing a proper home, this is where child protection laws make it possible to take a stand in a child's behalf.

Dear Doris: We have two new boys going to our school; they pass my house going and coming from school. They seem fairly shy.

Mom says it's the girl who breaks the ice first. Is this so? If so, how do I go about it? I just want to become good friends. I'm in grade eight and perhaps the one who is in grade 11 could help me with modern math, or give me some tips on studying, don't you think? — Shy Too.

Dear Shy Too: The gentleman waits for the lady to speak first. The newcomer waits for a welcome from the natives. Say "Hi!"

On second thought, do you need my advice? You have a nice scheme already thought up for breaking the ice. Go ahead.

(Longer, fuller replies went privately to those correspondents who enclosed a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Properly Cooked Steaks Should Be Broiled, Moist

By MARY MOORE

A lovely girl who shall remain nameless tells me she was afraid to buy a steak for four years after she was married because she did not want to admit to her loving husband that she did not know how to cook it.

Be a pro. Learn to cook steaks properly. It dismays me to see expensive steaks slapped into frying pans and cooked until they are ruined beyond repair.

Properly cooked steaks should be broiled and moist and pink inside and rich brown outside and salted and peppered if desired.

But proper cooking will not restore a poor steak. Expert steak buying comes first. Look for 1) red brand beef, then look for 2) thick steak, then 3) meat marbled with fat; 4) large undercut at one side of T-bone in Porterhouse or upper sirloin steaks. Allow one-half pound per person. Girls and women may eat less. Boys and men may eat more.

BROILED STEAK

Score fat edge with sharp knife to prevent curling. Place on rack on cold broiler pan which has been greased with a little surplus fat. Slide under broiler burner, which, if electric, should have been preheated for 10 minutes. Top surface of steak should be 4" from burner. Broil until top side is dark golden brown. Turn over and broil second side. If desired sprinkle steak with salt, pepper and garlic salt. To test for doneness make a slit alongside bone. Steak at centre should be a bright pink — for steak continues to cook after it is removed from broiler.

Variations for different thicknesses of steaks:

Put room temperature steaks on cold broiler pan. Have meat 4" from burner. Broil a 1" steak: 5 to 7 minutes for "rare", 7 to 9 minutes for "medium"; 9 to 15 minutes for "well done". Broil a 1½" steak: 9 to 12 minutes for "rare"; 12 to 15 minutes for "medium"; 15 to 22 minutes for "well done". If desired, when steaks are turned at half-time they may be brushed with butter or French dressing.

Ann Landers

Female Student Has Oddball Roommate

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read the letter from the college student who complained because of an oddball roommate who liked to stand on his head. This is a problem?

ANN LANDERS

I came to college from a small town in Michigan. I was prepared to be broadminded and tolerant of the peculiarities of others. Well, when I met my roommate I nearly dropped dead. She looked like the lead character in Shock Theatre — long hair with bangs down to her nose, white lipstick and dark glasses which she wore day and night.

I could have stood all of this but she had one habit that almost drove me crazy. The minute she came into the room she took off all her clothes. That girl walked around constantly in the nude. She slept nude, did her studying in the nude, and it would not have surprised me if she had tried to go to the cafeteria in the nude.

When I mentioned this to her she replied emphatically, "Clothes are an effectation of society. Man was meant to be a free spirit." If there's an answer to this I would like to have it. — BARE FACTS.

DEAR FACTS: The answer is as follows: "The freedom to swing your arms ends where the other person's nose begins. Part of being civilized is having respect for the feelings and wishes of others. Put on a bathrobe, Lady Godiva, or I'm going to the Dean with this."

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several letters have appeared in your column from women who complain about poor manners on the part of the American male. The cry is, "Chivalry is dead!" Well, I'd like to say that if chivalry is dead, American women killed it.

I'm a male who enjoys opening doors for women. I like to help them with their coats and allow them to pass through doors first. But the women I've been running into don't want to be treated like ladies. They race me to the door-knobs and hop out of cars before I can get over to assist them. They struggle with their own coats, pick up things they have dropped, hail taxis, interrupt to give an order to the waiter and in general remove any and all inventive a man might have to be a gentleman.

Please print this letter and let the women of America who decry the "decline of the male" ask themselves, "Can this be me " — A MOURNER.

DEAR MOURNER: Here's your letter and now, women of America, ask yourselves, "Can this be you?"

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I are being divorced. We have two children, a boy 6 and a girl 14. The boy wants to stay with me. His father has paid very little attention to the boy and there is no rapport whatsoever between them.

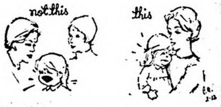
Debbie wants to live with her father because he has always been duck soup for her. She can wheedle anything she wants out of him. We have been having some terrific arguments over this and I am weary of fighting and ready to give in. What do you say? — CLEVELAND MESS.

DEAR C.M.: Don't flunk the crunch, mother. Your daughter needs a firm hand and you know very well her father will not provide it.

If you allow Debbie to go live with her father you will regret it. And so will she. One day she'll say, "Why didn't you make me stay with you? You should have insisted on it!"

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Mother: "Becky is such a difficult child. When she gets angry, she makes me think of a spitting, fighting little kitten. I have to give her a good spanking before she straightens out."

If your preschooler acts like a frightened kitten, perhaps that's the way she feels. Cuddle her a bit and soothe her as you would a kitten, and you may be surprised at how reasonable she becomes.

Most aggressive behavior stems from a child's need to feel secure and loved. Of course, you can't always let a child have her own way — but it's impossible to control behavior without arousing constant antagonism — even during the negative years.

Elliot Lake Staking Rush Starts Next Monday

ELLIOT LAKE, Ont. (CP) — Twenty years ago this spring Aime Breton, a Sault Ste. Marie hotel owner and amateur prospector, walked into this Lake Huron bush country carrying a primitive geiger counter, and made the initial discovery of what was to become the world's largest concentration of uranium mines.

Next Monday, in what may be the first prearranged staking rush in Canada, several hundred prospectors will swarm over much of the same swampy, rock-bottomed forest midway between Sault Ste. Marie and Sudbury.

On 100,000 acres of the roughest country in Northern Ontario between 500 and 1,000 men will, beginning at noon Feb. 19, stake an estimated 3,000 claims on land where numerous encouraging mineral occurrences are known to exist.

"We expect they will be standing in three feet of snow wtih hammers raised waiting for the opening gun," said Ralph V. Scott, who will supervise the staking rush for the Ontario department of mines. "The best ground will go in a matter of hours, and all of about 3,000 claims should be staked by Tuesday night."

Mr. Scott, director of the department's mining lands branch, and five inspectors will police the staking rush, using snowmobiles and a Beaver aircraft.

The nine townships open to staking lie north of Elliot Lake and adjacent to the world's largest known reserves of uranium-bearing ores.

All claims in the area, 20 miles east to west and 12 miles deep beginning eight miles north of the townsite, were staked in 1953, the year Elliot Lake began to earn its title of the uranium capital of the world.

But the claims lapsed when the uranium market fell off as contracts for military purposes were dropped in 1959, and in 1961 the area was removed from staking.

In the interval, the department has conducted extensive geological surveys.

The land opened to staking lies beyond the Z-shaped underground roof where all of Elliot Lake's 13 mines were located in the 1950s, but some of it is close —the nearest just three miles from Denison Mines, largest of the three that are still active.

Control over the more attractive claims will go to whoever can stake them and be first to register them at the Sault or Sudbury—and in many cases that will be the man with a plane or a helicopter.

Claims in six townships have to be registered, by the man who did the staking, at the Sault, 85 miles west; and those in three townships must be registered at Sudbury, about the same distance east. Prospectors without planes will have to make the trip by the one road running 18 miles south to Lake Huron and two-lane Highway 17.

Recorders' offices say there is booming demand for all small planes and helicopters in the Sault-to-Sudbury district.

Preliminary sales of maps indicate up to 1,000 people may join the rush. Some of them already are going in over hip-deep snow to survey the land and select campsites. They cannot, however, blaze a boundary line, drive a stake or erect a marker before the official opening time. Mr. Scott is patrolling the area by plane to make sure they don't.

"It may not be the largest staking rush in history, but it sure is going to be the damndest," said Jack Gauthier, chairman of Elliot Lake's industrial advisory committee.

He is organizing accommodation in private homes and in hotels that have never been overcrowded since the uranium market collapse of 1959 closed all but three of the mines here and dropped the townsite's population from 26,000 to an ultimate 6,000.

Uranium will be the dream of most of the prospectors, but geological maps show the land is a potential source of other wealth. Denison Mines already produces yttrium, used in color television tubes and the growing laser industries.

There also are hopeful signs of thorium, a radioactive material.

U. S. Farmers Hold Grains

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The National Farmers Organization said today it will "Outlast the grain trade" with its withholding action despite no appreciable price gains after a month of boycotting markets in 30 states.

Prices for corn, oats, wheat, rye, soybeans and sorghums have edged upward only pennies since the militant farmer organization announced its sales embargo Jan. 11.

Trade specialists say that in addition to the NFO action factors involved in higher prices include increased exports, a big farmer turnout to join the government's 1968 acreage diversion program, grains held off the market under government loan and the political tension in Southeast Asia.

The result is a cloudy picture of what effect the withholding action has had, if any.

NFO President Oren Lee Staley points to a fresh one-cent increase in corn prices at Chicago as evidence that the flow of corn is beginning to stop. Dealers, however, report neither shortage nor stockpiling.

Staley says farmers can outlast the grain traders as long as grain can be stored under government loan at prices equal to or higher than the market price, a current condition.

But Bob Skinner of the Iowa Grain and Feed Dealers Association thinks the boycott has stalled.

U.S. Representative Mark Andrews (Rep. N.D.), feels the boycott was ill-timed. "Once the grain is produced, individual holding back doesn't work too well."

On the Chicago market Friday, No. 2 corn sold for $1.18 a bushel, about five cents more than on Jan. 11. The NFO is holding out for $1.50.

Soybeans traded Friday went for $2.73, seven cents above the Jan. 11 price. The NFO is seeking $3 a bushel. Wheat was near $1.66—up 36 cents from Jan. 11 —with the NFO asking $2 in its pledge of "no price, no production."

Staley is urging his members to hold back 50 per cent of their grain acreage next season and to seal the current supply for distribution over the next 18 months.

Plans remained firm to extend the withholding action to meat and then to milk at undisclosed later dates.

Withholding actions were called on livestock in 1962 and 1964, and on milk last March. The NFO claimed some success in each, which dealers discounted.

The U.S. justice department stepped in to halt the milk boycott.

Rockefeller Gets Garbage Collected as Mayor Lindsay Fumes

NEW YORK (AP) — Men are busy today collecting tons of garbage rotting on New York City's streets. That's about all Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Mayor John V. Lindsay agree on.

Differences between the two prominent Republicans increased during the weekend, spurred by Rockefeller's action Saturday night to end the city's nine-day, illegal strike by the Uniformed Sanitationmen's Association.

Rockefeller, in an unprecedented move, placed the city's 10,000 sanitationmen under New York state control and put them back on the streets. By then, garbage had a 10-to-1 edge on the collectors—10 tons for each man.

Lindsay, already fuming because Rockefeller balked at the mayor's request for a national guard call-up, exploded at the state takeover, calling it unsound and a threat to every city in the U.S.

Rockefeller's plan, which gave the union a settlement Lindsay termed "blackmail," would put the city's sanitation department under state control during a temporary health emergency.

It still left the union without a contract.

Rockefeller was to ask the state legislature today to drop its regular business and pass the special legislation.

The governor announced Sunday night he would ask for a three-day delay in the effective date of the legislation, "to give the mayor an opportunity to work out a settlement with the sanitation union."

Lindsay didn't comment on the proposed delay, but an aide called it unrealistic.

"How can you bargain with the union," the Lindsay aide said, "when they know that just by waiting three days they can get the maximum amount promised them by the governor?"

Lindsay said the plan would reward a union that violated a state law banning strikes by public employees and at best was "a makeshift labor peace bought at a price decreed by the state."

How to buy a good used car

Take to the road and see how it runs

One in a series

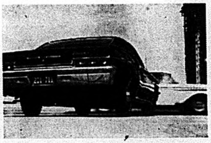
More than two-thirds of all cars sold are used cars. This means there's a big choice available whether you're looking for a first car, a second car or a replacement for your present car. Decide what your needs are. Don't buy by price alone if another car comes closer to meeting your particular needs. Here, then, are some ideas on what to look for once you've decided what you want. Keep it for reference and look for more good advice in the rest of the series.

Road Test—This is the most important and decisive test of all to check out the car's performance. If possible, take a familiar route until you get to know the car. By the time you return from a road test, you should know the used car well.

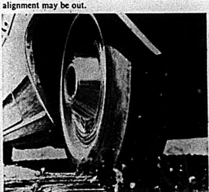
Control—Check its manoeuvrability. Get to feel the car's response. When you see it's safe to do so, increase your speed and test the car on a sharp corner. If it corners in a steady, well-balanced manner, it means the shock absorbers and springs are in good shape.

Acceleration—Stop the car and test its acceleration by taking it up to 40 miles an hour. Acceleration should be steady. The performance should be smooth. If not, the ignition system or carburetion may need checking.

Braking—First, stop the car at 20 miles an hour, then 30 miles an hour and finally at 50 miles an hour. If the brakes squeal and chatter or if the car swerves, the braking system needs attention.



Balance, Alignment—Take the car over a smooth stretch of road. If the front end hops, the front wheels may be out of balance. If the front end vibrates, the wheel alignment may be out.



Suspension—If possible, take the car over a rough and bumpy road for a further check on the car's front and rear-end suspensions, the springs and shock absorbers. If the front end whips up and down freely or the rear end bounces on the rear axle, the springs or shock absorbers may need replacing. A good used car will ride steady. It won't jump from side to side and the steering is easy.

Gauges—Finally, another look at the instruments to make sure the gauges are all working properly. Watch that the temperature reaches normal or doesn't go too high. The speedometer should move up the scale evenly as you accelerate. Make sure the odometer is measuring off the miles. If the direction signal warning light isn't working, chances are the signals aren't working either.

Your awareness is your protection. When you know what to look for, you can buy with confidence. This series has been developed to help build your confidence in used-car buying.

Of course, an even better way to gain confidence is to talk to a Chevrolet-Oldsmobile OK Used Car Dealer. Habs Crush Hawks Twice

Leafs Stagger Out Of Oakland Four Points Out Of 4th Place

By GRAHAM COX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Oakland Seals had Billy Harris on display and Toronto Maple Leafs on the ropes in the National Hockey League Sunday.

The Seals, last in the expansion Western Division, spotted the Leafs a two-goal lead after the second period to win 4-3.

The loss held the Leafs in fifth place in the Eastern race for playoff berths, four points behind New York Rangers.

At the same time the Seals used weekend games against the Leafs and Minnesota North Stars to try and sell Harris as possible trading material

Harris, suspended until the weekend for walking out of a Jan. 19 game with the Rangers, failed to show well in either a 5-2 loss to Minnesota Saturday or Sunday's victory.

Seals officials indicated he had been offered both to New York and St. Louis Blues without any response and the club now is trying to trade him to anyone.

Harris has six goals and 10 assists in his 43 games for Oakland this year.

The big series of the weekend saw Montreal Canadiens throttle Chicago Black Hawks twice —6-4 in Montreal Saturday and 6-0 at Chicago Sunday.

The two victories moved the Canadiens five points ahead of second-place Boston Bruins in the east with Chicago another point back and two ahead of New York.

Philadelphia Flyers had as successful a weekend as the Canadiens and padded their western lead to five points over Minnesota by beating the Blues 2-1 Saturday and the North Stars 3-2 Sunday.

The rest of the weekend was a sawoff with Boston Bruins tying Detroit Red Wings 1-1 Saturday and St. Louis 3-3 Sunday while the Rangers tied Pittsburgh Penguins 2-2 Saturday before playing to a 3-3 tie with Detroit Sunday.

In the only game scheduled today, the Leafs visit Los Angeles Kings, rested after a weekend of inactivity and battling to hold onto third place in the west.

The victory for the Seals was their first in 18 days but that wasn't the worst of it as far as Toronto was concerned.

Former Toronto farmhand Charlie Burns scored twice for the Seals, including the winner, while John Brenneman, a Leaf reject last year, started them on their way in the third period.

Bob Pulford and Ron Ellis scored Toronto goals in the second period but the Leafs appeared to run out of legs in the third. The Seals outshot the Leafs 30-28 on the game.

The Canadiens welcomed Henri Richard back at centre Sunday and he celebrated by scoring a goal after taking last week off to consider his future.

Hampered by leg injuries most of this season, he tried to return when the team was running hot and was unable to crack coach Toe Blake's lineup. This led to a play-me-or-trade-me demand from Richard.

Montreal also got a goal and two assists from rookie Jacques Lemaire. Others went to Bob Rousseau, Jean Beliveau, Claude Provost and Yvan Cournoyer as Rogatien Vachon turned aside 27 Chicago shots for his third shutout of the year.

Dick Duff scored twice for Montreal Saturday with Lemaire, Beliveau, Ted Harris and John Ferguson offsetting Chicago goals by Bobby Hull, Stan Mikita, Pit Martin and Bill Orban.

The single goals kept Hull and Mikita tied for the league scoring lead, each with 61 points. Hull now has 38 goals and Mikita 30.

Philadelphia's Sunday goals went to Jean Gauthier, Leon Rochefort and Brit Selby while Bronco Horvath and Bill Collins scored for Minnesota.

At New York, the Rangers closed the old Madison Square Garden with two goals by Jean Ratelle and one by Don Marshall while the Wings retaliated with two goals by Norm Ullman and one by Alex Delvecchio.

Ullman was one of 60 NHL all-stars introduced in ceremonies prior to the game, the last spring event in the old building.

It was the first time in 13 Sunday home games that the Rangers were not winners.

New York's next home game will be in the new $15,000,000 Madison Square Garden, located over Pennsylvania station at 33rd Street and Seventh Avenue.

The Bruins built their tie with St. Louis, extending their unbeaten streak to five games, on Fred Stanfield's goal with 53 seconds left in the game.

Ted Greene and John Bucyk had scored earlier. Ron Schock, Larry Keenan and Frank St. Marseilles scored for the Blues.

Boston was without defensive star Bobby Orr, who will undergo an operation today for damaged knee cartilages. He is expected to be out of action five to six weeks.

Philadelphia won Saturday on goals by Gauthier and Don Blackburn while Red Berenson scored the only St. Louis goal.

New York's Saturday tie came on goals by Marshall and Rod Gilbert with George Konik and Gene Ubriaco replying for Pittsburgh.

Derek Sanderson for Boston and Ron Anderson for Detroit exchanged goals in their tie.

Bill Collins scored twice to lead the North Stars over the Seals with other Minnesota goals going to Andre Boudrias, Wayne Connelly and Milan Marcetta.

Oakland goals were scored by Larry Cahan and Ted Hampson.

One That Got Away

In Chicago Stadium Sunday, all eyes are on puck, foreground, as second period scoring attempt by Chicago Black Hawks' Eric Nesterenko (15) is kicked out by Montreal goalie Rogatieu Vachon, sprawled before net. In background are Montreal players, Claude Provost (14), Jacques LaPerriere (2) and Ralph Backstrom (6). Montreal won the game 6-0.

Mo-Hawks Feel Icy Hand After 6-2 Loss To Oaks

OAKVILLE (Special) — Eight short days ago the Belleville Mo-Hawks appeared ready to clinch a berth in the OHA Senior "A" playoffs.

Today, after suffering their third consecutive loss, the same Mo-Hawks look ready to fold up their collective tent and fade away into the darkness of elimination.

They fell 6-2 before Oakville Oaks here last evening in what amounted to the key game of the schedule for both clubs.

The Oaks rose to the challenge. The Mo-Hawks didn't.

Oakville drew to within two slim points of the eighth and final playoff spot, held by Belleville, with still a game in hand.

Belleville has two chances left, one in Kingston tonight and the other in Woodstock Friday. The Oaks visit Toronto Tuesday, Orillia Friday and play at home against Collingwood in the final scheduled game next Sunday. It will be all over for one club or the other by then.

A disheartened Belleville coach, Floyd Crawford, had little to say after yesterday's defeat, in which the Oaks scored four consecutive goals to snap a 2-2 second-period deadlock.

"We have needed just that little extra effort to be sure of the playoffs but in the last two games we just haven't given it," remarked the strangely-quiet Crawford.

He did say that goaltender Larry Holmes seems to have lost his confidence and indicated that Joe Junkin would get the call in Kingston tonight.

The Oaks never trailed here yesterday, opening the scoring on Bob Cossburn's unassisted goal at 5.58. Belleville tied it late in the period when Hec Lalande banged home a rebound from near the corner of the net, assisted by Wayne McConnell and Bob McAlpine.

Three goals were scored in a matter of one minute and 18 seconds near the middle of the second heat. Jackie Price shoved the Oaks up 2-1 at 8.26 and George Godson, the pick of the losers, finished a passing play with "Wiener" Brown and Dave Jones to even it again at 9.26.

It took John Maney just 18 seconds to get that back and put Oakville in front to stay. Bob Bishop scored the goal "that broke the camel's back" after Pete Bettiol had outhustled the Mo-Hawks for a puck deep in their zone at 19:37 of the period. Earlier Belleville had enjoyed a two-man advantage for 1:35 without putting the puck past a sharp George Tracey.

Bob Cossburn at 7:21 made it 5-2 before the Mo-Hawks began to show spirit in the third — but by then it was too late. Tracey pulled off a fantastic stop against Brown and Maney's second goal, at 16:27, was but icing on the Oaks' victory cake.

The winners absorbed six of the nine minor penalties assessed. Included were two-minute fighting minors to LaLonde and Don Cossburn early in the second period.

In all, Oakville fired 46 shots at a shakey Holmes while the visitors tested Tracey on 29 occasions.

As one observer, close to the Mo-Hawks remarked: "It's a matter now of who wants that playoff spot the most, Belleville or Oakville, and those Oaks sure look hungry."

In other weekend games, Toronto Marlboros moved into second place by defeating the league-leading Galt Hornets 4-3 and Barrie Flyers edged Collingwood Kings 2-1. Orillia, idle during the weekend, has been eliminated.

Toronto pulled within one point of first-place Galt on Gary Milroy's goal at 6:05 of a sudden-death overtime period. Paid attendance was 1,676.

The Hornets forced overtime when Vance Millar scored with six seconds left.

Ted Power and Fern Belanger scored the other Galt goals. Moe Galand, Carl Hymers and Earl Balfour were the other Toronto scorers.

Jon Weeks scored midway through the third period to give Barrie its win. Barrie led 1-0 late in the second period on a goal by Dave Nicholson. But Dave McComb got it back for Collingwood early in the third period.

Bobby Orr Goes Back To Hospital For Surgery

BOBBY ORR

BOSTON (AP) — The Bruins are going to have to do things the hard way—without defenceman Bobby Orr—in their bid to earn a National Hockey League playoff berth for the first time since 1959.

Orr watched the first period before retiring Sunday night as the Bruins regained second place from Chicago by extending their unbeaten string to five games in a 3-3 tie with the St. Louis Blues.

Orr, the NHL's Rookie of the Year in the 1966-67 campaign, was scheduled for surgery at Newton-Wellesley Hospital today to repair cartilage damage in his left knee.

The 19-year-old Parry Sound, Ont., native, rated the best in his business by most observers, said he first felt twinges in the knee after a game in Montreal a month ago.

"I didn't know anything about it," General Manager Milt Schmidt said. "As far as I know, the knee locked on him in St. Louis Wednesday night. Apparently the knee has been getting worse.

"He tried to play in Detroit Saturday, but had to give up. When he lifts the leg up and tries to skate, the joint sticks and won't come back down easily."

The decision to operate immediately was made by Schmidt after the young player was examined by club physician Dr. Ronald Adams.

The doctor said Orr will be sidelined four to five weeks, and the Bruins held out hope their young star will be available before the regular season ends March 31.

Orr has been plagued by injuries since he signed with the Bruins for a reported $40,000 contract for two years. He underwent surgery on his right knee after being injured in an exhibition game last summer and missed the start of the season.

On Dec. 9 he suffered a cracked left collarbone that sidelined him for three weeks. Then he was shelved again when he suffered a severe muscle bruise in the right shoulder in the all-star game at Toronto Jan. 16.

"Maybe I'm brittle, but I hope not," Orr said.

Schmidt scoffed at comments that Orr may be brittle.

"Even the greatest and strongest athletes get injured," Schmidt said. "And when you're on the ice and have the puck 75 per cent of the time, like Bobby, you're going to get run at. And who knows anything about knees? They can get banged up easily."

Coach Harry Sinden explained the injuries to Orr with a brief statement: "He's where the action is."

Minor Hockey

Six Peewee and four Bantam games were played Saturday in BMHA action.

In Peewee, the Canadiens hammered the Bruins 8-1, with Ron Woods, Terry Bridge and Tom Bateman getting two goals apiece while Jeff Soule and Lee Williams scored one each. David Cochrane potted the lone Bruin goal.

The Hawks turned back the Wings with an 8-4 assault. R. Barbeau and M. Rollins each scored twice for the victors, with single goals going to D. Hillborn, K. McCallum, J. Aitken, and J. Muldoon. D. Thompson, B. MacDonald, T. Ray and B. Calanan scored for the Wings.

The Leafs edged the Rangers, 4-3. P. Vos, I. Hayman, R. Rose and R. Culkin scored for the Leafs, while D. Dent, C. Sager and D. Murry got the Ranger tallies.

The Amerks and Pirates tied, 3-3. Keith Parry scored twice for the Pirates, with Michael MacDonald getting the other goal. Howie also scored a pair of goals for the Amerks, with Redquest getting a singleton.

The Aces topped the Barons, 4-2, with Ross Lawrenson and Michael Taylor getting two goals apiece for the Aces. K. Tougas and G. Schwager scored the Baron goals.

The Uniroyal Indians and the Bisons played to a 2-2 draw with Jeff Gorman and Gerald Kerik scoring for the Indians, and George Heisz getting both Bison markers.

In Bantam, the Aces blanked the Amerks, 1-0, on a goal by Ken Taylor while goalie Dave Hanson kept the Amerks scoreless.

The Hornets and Bears tied, 3-3, Graham, McCreary, and Howes each scored three goals for the Hornets, while M. Graham, B. Mullins, and R. Tipper getting the Bear goals.

The Leafs clobbered the Rangers, 10-1, as Wayne Farrell scored six goals for the Leafs. Sonny Farrell, scored three more goals for the victors and Gary Ray had one, while Kevin Joudwa got the lone Ranger goal.

The Wings and Canadians drew, 2-2. B. Coughlan and D. England scored for the Wings, while Ford and Fralick got the Canadien goals.

Novices Win Exhibition 6-0

Belleville's novice team turned back Brighton 6-0 in an exhibition game played Sunday.

Bruce, Hamilton recorded the shutout. Eric Powell led the Belleville scoring effort with two goals. Single scores went to Edde Grills, Peter Coates, Tony Meagher and Mike Meeker.

Cloyne Wins Twice; Gray Scores 6 Goals

A pair of three-goal nights by E. Gray of Cloyne paced the Blazers to twin wins over the weekend in the Central Hastings Hockey League.

Gray scored his first hat trick against Stirling on Saturday as the Rebels lost 7-1. He repeated on Sunday when the Blazers defeated the Frankford Shoemen 6-4.

Gray received assistance from C. Whiteman, N. Barnes, R. Darrah, and R. Gray in the Saturday contest. K. McConnell got the lone Stirling goal.

On Sunday, R. Gray, R. Darrah, and C. Whiteman complemented Gray, getting one goal apiece. A. Partington scored twice for Frankford. B. Chesher and B. Wright added the other Frankford goals.

Another Sunday contest found the Foxboro Merchants victorious over Stirling, 8-3.

Juniors Tie Kingston

A three-goal first period stood the Belleville Junior "B"'s in good stead yesterday as they battled the Kingston Frontenacs to a 3-3 draw at the Arena.

Pete Fleming scored twice for the "B"'s in the opening period. Doug Potts assisted on both goals. Assists also went to Harold Townsend and Ron Fuller. Ray Summers scored the third Belleville goal, with Rick Rosebush and Ted Schwager assisting. Dave Balsom replied with a Kingston goal.

In the second period, Hugh Harvey scored Kingston's second goal, and, in the final 20 minutes, Gary Feeley tied it with the third Kingston goal.

The "B"'s outshot Kingston 33-22. Belleville collected six penalties to five for the visitors.

The second period found Picton getting one goal and the Oil Kings blanked. S. Faulkner was the lone scorer.

Picton added four more goals in the final period, with Belleville getting just two. Faulkner scored twice more for Picton with Asseltine and D. Dafoe getting the others. P. Keller and Lesage got the Belleville markers.

The shots on goal were close, at 31-30 for Picton and the penalties were divided at three apiece.

Tough Games Still To Come

Canadian Nationals Unimpressive In 3-2 Win Over U.S.

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — Canada's National Hockey team remained in medal contention at the Winter Olympic Games here Sunday, but coach Jackie McLeod was anything but impressed with his club's 3-2 victory over the United States.

"We didn't skate well until the third period," McLeod said after the national team scored twice in the last 20 minutes to overcome a 2-1 U.S. lead.

All three Canadian goals were screened shots. Ray Cadieux scored twice, including the winner. Marsh Johnston set him up both times and also got the tying goal.

Johnston, a 26-year-old defenceman, leads the team in points with seven. He has a goal and six assists. Morris Mott is Canada's leading goal scorer with five. Russia's Anatoly Firsov is the top tournament scorer with eight.

Johnston's goal was scored from the right point against U.S. goalie Pat Rupp, who had stymied the Canadians close in. He fired from the point again a little more than five minutes later and Cadieux, a 25-year-old chartered accoutant from Winnipeg, tipped in the shot that meant victory.

McLeod said the fact that the Americans left the points open wrecked their chances for an upset win.

With the exception of the two German games, McLeod has had a rough time guiding the Nationals to a 3-1 won-lost record against the lower half of the draw in the eight-country championship tournament.

Finland beat Canada 5-2. And the win over the Americans was the lowest score chalked up by any of the four contenders who have beaten the U.S. Russia won 10-2, Czechoslovakia 5-1 and Sweden 4-3 against the Americans.

The toughest part of the Canadian's seven-game schedule comes during the next days when Canada plays the Czechs, Swedes and Russians in that order.

The Russians mopped up the weak clubs in fine order, winning all four starts in one-sided fashion and piling up a 36-3 margin in the scoring column.

The Russians lead the tournament with eight points. The two other unbeaten countries, Czechoslovakia and Sweden, are 3-0, and tied with Canada for second place, each with six points.

But that tie should be broken today as the idle Russians and Canadians watch Czechoslovakia play East Germany and Sweden takes on Finland.

The all-Scandinavian game should be an interesting one. The Finns upset Sweden 3-1 in the world tournament last year.

Today schedule (times EST):

7 a.m.—Czechoslovakia vs. E. Germany

10:30 a.m.—Sweden vs. Finland

3 p.m.—United States vs. W. Germany

In the only other champion game scheduled Sunday, Russia clobbered West Germany 9-1, three goals better than Canada's showing against the same team. Saturday, Sweden defeated East Germany 5-2 and Czechoslovakia tripped Finland 4-3.

The Russians pumped goals at the rate of one every 80 seconds during a four-goal scoring spree in the first period against the West Germans. Soviet defenceman Victor Blinov, a newcomer, accidentally put the puck into his own net, accounting for the lone West German goal. It was credited to Lorenz Funk.

Veniamin Alexandrov and Victor Polupanov were the Soviet pace-setters, each with two goals. Anatoly Ionov, Vyacheslav Starshinov, Boris Mayorov, Juri Moiseyev and Firsov got the others.

The Canadians are second to the Russians in the scoring column with a mark of 22-8. Canada defeated East Germany 11-0, two goals better than the Russians, West Germany 6-1 and the Americans Sunday.

The Czechs and Swedes are far off that scoring pace, a fact that could hurt them in the event of a tie for medals.

Ties are first broken by picking the winner of the game between the teams involved. If that system doesn't apply as in the case of a three-way tie, goal spread—the difference between the goals scored and allowed—is used.

If there still is a tie, then goal average—goals scored divided by goals allowed—will be the deciding factor.

A three-way tie for second place occurred in the 1964 Olympics when Canada missed a third-place bronze by just two goals. Sweden, Czechoslovakia and Canada ended with 5-2 records, but the Swedes took the second-place silver on a higher goal spread and the Czechs the bronze.

Canada takes on the Czechs Tuesday, Sweden Thursday and Russia Saturday. The Russians play the Swedes Tuesday and the Czechs Thursday. The Czechs meet Sweden Saturday before the Canadians and Russians wind up the tournament.

Goalie Ken Broderick, 25-year-old teacher at St. John's-Ravenscout school in Winnipeg, came back from his five-goal nightmare against Finland to shut out the Americans for two periods Sunday.

Wayne Stephenson, a native of Fort William, Ont., now living in Winnipeg, was injured just as the first period ended. He went out for repairs to a cut above his left eye after Len Lilyholm banged into him and drew a major penalty, the first of the tournament.

McLeod put Broderick in goal and Ken had to handle only eight shots.

Lilyholm spent the first five minutes of the second period in the penalty box and then drew a minor. U.S. coach Murray Williamson, who was born in Winnipeg, said the penalty-killing chores the Americans had to perform took the starch out of them.

"We had to use our best eight men to kill penalties for almost half the period," he said. "It is no wonder the boys were tired in the last period."

All three Canadian goals were scored directly or indirectly from the blue line, and Rupp said he was screened on all of them.

Johnston took the puck down the right side and passed to Cadieux at 12:35 for the initial Canadian score. Twenty-five seconds later Stephenson wandered out to handle a high puck, but it got away and Larry Pleau, the former Montreal Junior Canadien centre star, flicked it into an empty net.

Defenceman Bruce Riutta gave the U.S. the lead while Dan O'Shea of Ajax, Ont., a student at the University of Winnipeg, was serving a tripping penalty. Riutta connected from the left point at 18:53.

After a scoreless second period, the Canadians started peppering Rupp from long range. Johnston knotted the score at 2:28 and then at 7:30 came Cadieux's big goal.

Canada outshot the U.S. 25-16 and drew five of the nine penalties.

Austria Leads Olympic Games

GRENOBLE, France (CP) — Jean-Claude Killy, the World Cup Alpine ski champion, has been grabbing more space in the world's newspapers than President de Gaulle.

The 24-year-old Frenchman collared the Winter Olympics downhill last week and was favored to add the giant slalom to his gold-medal collection today.

In Sunday's initial giant slalom heat, Killy had the best time, 1:42.74. He edged runner-up Willy Favre of Switzerland by 1.2 seconds. Frenchman Guy Perillat was third in 1:44.78.

The 1,800-metre course, with a drop of 450 metres, had 70 gates.

If anyone stops Killy's march today, it probably will be Favre. The 24-year-old Swiss was to start third today, before the course got chewed up, and Killy was to start 13th—the position Favre had Sunday.

This year, for the first time, the Olympic giant slalom was split into two yeats.

With 12 events completed Sunday night, Italy had two gold medals and 10 other countries one apiece. The U.S. had one gold—Peggy Fleming's women's figure-skating award Saturday—three silver and a bronze.

Italy Has 2 Golds

In the standings by countries, based on the 10-5-4-3-2-1 traditional scoring system for the first six finishers in each event, Austria was on top this morning with 36 points followed by Norway 32, Finland 31, United States 30, Italy 25, and Russia 24. Canada still hadn't recorded a team point.

Eugenio Monti of Italy, nine times world champion in bobsleds, finally won an Olympic gold medal. Monti and his brakeman, Luciano de Paolis, wound up in a 4:41.54 tie on aggregate time with a West German team at the end of the third and fourth two-man bobsled heats Sunday.

Olympic officials first announced gold medals would be given both to the Italian pair and to West Germans Horst Floth and Pepi Bader. After further consultation they invoked an international bobsledding rule and announced that Monti and his partner had placed first because they had the fastest single run, a course-record 1:10.5.

Canadians 19th

Canada's No. 1 sled, manned by Purvis McDougall of Montreal and Bob Storey of Collingwood, Ont., placed 19th in 4:54.10. The two-man bob of Hans Gehrig and Harry Geotschi, Montreal, had been disqualified after a mishap on the initial run last week.

The 1,000-metre women's speed-skating gold medal was won Sunday by a Dutch blonde, Carolina Geijssen, in the Olympic-record time of 1:32.6. Ludmila Titova, second in 1:32.9, also snapped the mark of 1:33.2 set by Russia's Lidia Skoblikova in 1964.

Jiri Raska became the first Czech ever to win an Olympic medal in Nordic skiing, winning the 70-metre special ski jump with 216.5 points. He was followed by Austrians Reinhold Bachler at 214.2 and Baldur Preiml at 212.6.

In the field of 58, Ulf Kvendbo of Montreal placed 53rd with 153.3 points, John McGinnis of Revelstoke, B.C., 55th with 148.3 and Claude Trahan, Trois-Rivieres, Que., 57th with 130.6.

The event was described as the dullest and weakest ever seen at the Olympics.

The Nordic combined, made up of jumping and cross-country skiing, was won by Franz Keller, a 23-year-old West German sergeant, with 449.04 points.

Peggy Perfect

Peggy Fleming did as expected in winning the figure-skating title Saturday night and continued to deny reports that she would turn professional.

"My aim is to win my third world championship—I am not thinking of anything else," she said Monday. The world championships will be held in Geneva Fen. 27-March 3.

The Associated Press has reported the 19-year-old ice ballerina will sign a $500,000, five-year contract with the Ice Follies after the world championships are out of the way.

Gabriele Seyfert of East Germany took the bronze medal as expected and Hana Maskova of Czechoslovakia, with a scintillating free-skating show, climbed past Austria's Beatrix Schuba to take the bronze.

Right behind the three winners in the quality of her free-skating performance was Karen Magnussen, the Canadian cham-

Nancy Greene, of Rossland, B.C., 10th in Saturday's downhill, gets two more cracks at winning Olympic gold medals here—Tuesday in the women's slalom and Thursday in the giant slalom.

Canada Scores Goal Against U. S.

Madison Square Gardens

Auld Lang Syne Ends Era

NEW YORK (AP) — There was a funny feeling running through Rod Gilbert's body as he watched about 60 former National Hockey League stars being introduced before the final hockey game in Madison Square Garden.

"It's tough to describe," said Gilbert later, after assisting on all three New York goals as the Rangers battled to a 3-3 NHL standoff with Detroit Red Wings in the Garden's sports swan song Sunday.

"I wanted to make my last game here a good one," said Gilbert. "I've had many thrills in my six years here. I was very young when I first came up and the building made quite an impression on me."

Gilbert was 20 when he first joined the Rangers and it's likely in the six years since, he's never set up an easier goal than Jean Ratelle's game-tying score in the third period Sunday.

Detroit goalie Roger Crozier had slid 40 feet out of his net to meet a Ranger rush and Rod simply shoved the puck to Ratelle at the side of the net.

"I wasn't surprised that he came out," said Gilbert. "He had to cut down the angle. But as soon as he made that move, I knew what I was going to do."

So, apparently, did Ratelle, who scored two goals against the Wings.

Earlier, Gilbert had set up Ratelle's 19th goal of the season and Donnie Marshall's 12th, both power play tallies.

Norm Ullman, one of 60 all stars introduced in ceremonies marking the final game in the Garden, scored two Detroit goals.

Reunited for the final sports event in the 42-year-old building were Detroit's Production Line of Gordie Howe, Sid Abel and Ted Lindsay, and the Rangers' first high scoring line of Bill and Bun Cook and Frank Boucher.

Also on hand were a host of former NHL all stars led by Maurice (Rocket) Richard, Jacques Plante, Eddie Shore, Ching Johnson, Turk Broda, and Roy Conacher among others.

Gilbert Wins Trip to Brier

KINGSTON (CP) — A handshake has turned into a trip to the Dominion curling finals for a 37-year-old dentist from St. Thomas.

Dr. Don Gilbert skipped his St. Thomas rink to an 8-5 victory over Eldon Coombe of Ottawa Saturday night to win the provincial championships and earn the right to represent southern Ontario at the Dominion playoff March 5-9 in Kelowna, B.C.

The handshake came in the 11th end of a thrilling 12-end final match when Coombe conceded the game to Gilbert without throwing his last rock.

"I just couldn't believe it," said Gilbert. "For a couple of minutes I just stood there.

"We were counting three and I had last rock, but Eldon had another shot. He looked at the house and then turned to me and shook my hand."

The spell lasted about a minute and then pandemonium broke loose. Brooms flew into the air as Gilbert's rink of third Al Zikman, 31, second Jim Waite, 27, and lead Dick Ronald, 23, rushed up the ice to congratulate their skip.

"I knew we couldn't win," said Coombe, the youngest skip in the competition at 26. "I conceded because Don was curling too well. I had only one rock to throw in the 11th and they were counting three.

"Even with a perfect shot I couldn't cut them out of more than two so I packed it in. They're the best."

The 16-rink, double-knockout competition turned into a best-of-three series Saturday morning when Coombe and Gilbert advanced to the final round with unbeaten records.

One had to beat the other twice to win and they started their first 12-end game at 9 a.m. It was billed as the major match of the tournament, but it turned into a runaway when Gilbert scored five in the first end and went on to a 13-7 victory.

Then in the afternoon round, Coombe's rink started to find itself and the Ottawa curlers scored two in the first and stole two in the second to open a 4-0 lead.

Gilbert tried to build a house, but Coombe's rink of third Keith Forgues, 25, second Jim Patrick, 27, and lead Barry Prevost, 22, closed the door. St. Thomas conceded in the 11th end and set the stage for the evening final.

For four ends it was close in the final, but Gilbert counted two in the fifth to open a 6-4 lead. Coombe blanked the sixth and seventh, but it backfired and Gilbert stole one in the eighth and two in the ninth.

"That was the turning point," said Coombe. "They were counting three in the ninth but I had last rock. I played an open draw to the four-foot but it pulled up light and they picked up two."

Association for Retarded Views Appropriate Film

NAPANEE — If, as the old nursery rhyme says "Tuesday's child is full of grace," then "Tuesday's Child" was aptly chosen as the title for the film shown at Happy Day School at the monthly meeting of the Lennox and Addington Association for the Mentally Retarded. It dealt with the story of a mentally retarded child, shunned and feared by all neighbors, and of her progress and the understanding which came about after her parents had united with others who had retarded children, and set up a school for their little ones.

One characteristic of the mongoloid is his affection. He loves everyone and expects everyone to love him. Unless people know this, they may not understand him. Mongoloidism is a common cause of retardation. Five of the 16 children in the Happy Day School are mongoloids.

It is unfortunate that more of the general public did not attend the meeting to gain a better understanding of the problem, and of the great improvement which can be brought about by training. These children are not sick and so cannot be cured. But they can be trained. A handful of county residents realize this and are doing what they can.

When asked what help the Association needed, the answer come quickly, "More people to attend our meetings and gain an understanding of what we are trying to do." Once the need and the realization of what seeming miracles can be brought about by training are brought home, the members feel that help will come from many more quarters.

A second need is to find little ones for the nursery school. For two years this was hold twice weekly in Trinity Church, but there is no nursery school this year because there are no pupils. Mrs. Peter Miller would re-open the school tomorrow if even one child would be brought to her. They will be accepted at any age up to five years, when they go to the Happy Day School.

At the meeting a news letter from the Rideau Regional School at Smith's Falls stated that $55,539 had been collected for the swimming pool which the school so badly needs for therapy. The objective is $275,000.

Plans were completed for the executive meeting February 20, and for the next fund-raising euchre party the following evening, and the date of the next general meeting was announced as March 5.

Past-president of the county Association is Harold Todd. Fritz Juliussen is president, and Mrs. Roy (Joan) Hinch, Mrs. James (Marion) Miller, and Charles Brooks are the three vice-presidents. Recording secreary is Mrs. Gerald (Patricia) Benn, and corresponding secretary is Mrs. Gerald (Jean) McCracken. Treasurer is Mrs. Clifford (Bernice) Pringle.

Received Trophy

LENNOXVILLE, Que. (CP) — Sylvia Gass, 17, has received the Ronnie Taylor Memorial Trophy for the highest marks in participation in calf club events, attendance at meetings and quality exhibits. The award was made by senior leader W. G. MacDougall at the Lennoxville Experimental Farm.

Town Council Discusses Routine Items

NAPANEE — Last week's meeting of the Town Council was a quiet one, with little more than routine business considered. There is a great deal of activity behind the scenes, however, with committees meeting almost nightly to review last year's expenditures and estimate the amount for which they must budget in 1968. Napanee's tax bills habitually reach the tax - payers early in April.

Permission was given to the Lennox and Addington branch of Red Cross Society to hold a campaign in March, and to the Cancer Society for a campaign in April. The Victorian Order of Nurses will be permitted to have tag days May 10 and 11. The "Do-It-Now" movement will be supported by advertising in the local paper. Napanee is again a member of the Lake Ontario Regional Development Commission, at a cost of $321.37, as agreed by council. Alvin Wartman, assessor for Napanee, reported an increased assessment of $90,000 during 1967.

A bylaw was passed re - appointing last year's members of the Recreation Committee: Mayor Lorne A. Smart, Donald Holmes, Grant Clark, Lorne Verabioff, Bruce Davis, William Charlton, and Mrs. H. M. Smith.

The town gratefully accepted a gift of 100 silver maple trees from the Historical Society. These will be transplanted at the proper time by the Department of Public Works to sites along the streets where they are needed. Mr. Edson, of the local office of the Department of Lands and Forests, and a member of the Historical Society as well, explained that these had been given to the Society by the Department as seedlings, and had been grown in a nursery on the Macpherson house property. Several had been planted on the grounds.

Two Vital Projects Approved by Council

DESERONTO — Deseronto's council meeting recently lasted for nearly four hours, but in that time two momentous questions were approved: the proposal of the OWRC to install sewers in Deseronto on a rental basis, with ownership in 40 years; and the $250,000 addition to the public school.

Several other matters were dealt with, also, some of major importance. The police department was increased to a three-man force, with radio equipped cruiser; a Centennial Parks Board was set up; the question of a necessary water tower was considered; arrangements were made to hold a meeting with the Public Utilities Commission; steps were taken to consult the OWRC with respect to the rates that should be set both for residents and for industry to pay for the new sewer system; and approval was given to the selection of Mrs. Grace Martin as the town's recipient of the Centennial medal.

Several minor matters were dealt with. The Deseronto branch of the Red Cross Society was given permission to conduct a canvass in March. A grant was made to the St. John Ambulance Corps. and payment of the annual fee, to continue as a member of the Lake Ontario Regional Development Council was approved. The fee was $124.94.

A report was received that hand rails had been installed at the post office steps. The request had been made to the Federal Government only two weeks earlier, following complaints of older citizens.

Chairman of the Welfare committee, Councillor Mrs. Dorothy McCullough reported that in January 22 heads of families, 90 dependents, and four single people had received assistance from the town.

A complaint was received from the Ontario Hydro that insulators at the town dump had been damaged by shooting, resulting in a power failure about two weeks earlier. Council decided to look into plans for preventing a repetition of such vandalism.

Cold Water Best Treatment for Burn

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: Something took my attention for a moment, and when I turned around I accidentally plunged my hand into scalding water up to the wrist.

The pain was so great all I could do was grab a tray of ice and put it in a bowl of water and put my hand in. The pain disappeared right away but soon my hand was freezing, so I poured out the ice water and ran cold water from the tap. It did as well.

After 30 minutes I decided I could not keep my hand in water all day so I took petroleum jelly and a handful of aspirins and made a paste and put it on my hand.

But I had to put my hand in the water again. I put more paste on several times, each time returning my hand to the water. After about two hours I was able to remove my hand from the water and the pain was entirely gone. No redness, no blisters, no soreness. By evening no one would believe I had burned my hand.

Since then I have been puzzled as to which treatment did the trick, the water or the paste. Could you explain why it worked? And in severe cases could it save lives? — N. M.

The experts on burns have been trying to spread the word — and I've been trying to help do it—that immersion in cold water is the best possible first aid for a burn.

The ones in whom I place great trust urge ordinary tap water — not ice water. Your experience bears them out.

I doubt that your aspirin-grease paste did anything for you except give you something to do. Indeed, the surgeons who treat serious burns urge strongly that people put nothing on a burn, and especially grease or salves. Reason: Too often it has to be removed at the hospital and tissues, already damaged, are harmed still more.

Tap water is the best first aid for severe and extensive burns, too — getting the patient into a tub of cool water.

But in extensive burns more than the pain is important. There is shock to the system, and when a burn (even an ordinary scalding) covers 10 per cent or more of the body, the patient should be taken to the hospital quickly. Burns as "small" as 10 per cent have been fatal in some cases because people decided to "wait and see."

With less severe burns, keep the burned area in cool water until the pain ceases. This may take an hour, more or less. You may have needed more time because of removing your hand to put the paste on.

Important: Get the burn into the water as quickly as possible.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it true that once a vitamin bottle is opened to the air, the vitamins inside are useless in a week? A friend said that anything made to dissolve in the stomach will be useless when exposed to the air. — W. R. M.

Your friend, sir, is a mite mixed up. It is true that vitamins deteriorate gradually. Many things do. The brown bottles, commonly used for vitamins, are a means of protecting the capsules from the action of light.

They will not, in any event, deteriorate as rapidly as your friend seems to think. If you just use them at the ordinary rate, they will remain fully potent as long as need be.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a badly sprained knee from a fall. My doctor said to keep heat on it and take aspirin. It doesn't seem to help much, and I was told to soak red pepper in kerosene and rub that on. Would it be all right to try? — Mrs. E. D.

A sprained muscle needs time to recover. Heat and aspirin will do as much as anything to make it more comfortable. I don't think the red pepper and kerosene will do any good — nor any harm, except to make a mess.

Courtroom Drama Holds Interest of Television Viewers

NEW YORK (AP)—It is difficult to find an entertainment form that holds interest better and is as well adapted to television's needs as a courtroom drama. And ABC's two-hour adaptation of Henry Denker's Broadway play A Case of Libel Sunday night was a dandy example.

In addition to a tight script that built to a tense climax, there were some outstanding performances, particularly by Van Heflin in the role of plaintiff's lawyer which he played in the 1963 stage production.

The drama, based on My Life in Court, the memoirs of lawyer Louis Nizer, was the story of a libel suit brought by a magazine writer and reporter called Dennis Corcoran, against a nationally published columnist and television commentator named Boyc Bendix.

Bendix, in print and on the air, had attacked Corcoran's courage and morals, apparently in reprisal for Corcoran's favorable review of a book that had been highly critical of the columnist.

Lloyd Bridges played Corcoran as an angry, determined man anxious to clear his name. Jose Ferrer, as Bendix, gave the character arrogance, incredible righteousness and just a suggestion of eccentricity.

Angie Dickenson, as Corcoran's wife, had little to do except look worried and act affectionate.

The best casting was the choice of the two lawyers. Heflin's opponent was E. G. Marshall, a veteran of the theatrical courtroom. But in his style, attitude—and mustache—he was completely different in the unsympathetic role from the role he played for years in The Defenders.

It was a satisfying two hours, and made good television sense because it had never been made into a motion picture, hence was fresh to most viewers.

NBC, unfortunately, picked the first hour of the drama was the time in which to show an off-beat and amusing special, The Fabulous Funnies. With Carl Reiner as guide, viewers were able to sample comic strips that ranged from the old, such as The Captain and the Kids to the new, such as B.C. and Peanuts.

It was a gay potpourri of animation, interviews with cartoonists, trick photography and songs.

Kinsmen Wallop Kingston

The Belleville Kinsmen advanced to the third round of the OMHA bantam playoffs by drubbing Kingston Lakeshores 12-0 and 10-0 in a pair of weekend games.

In Saturday's contest, R. Meagher led Belleville with four goals. D. Lupenette and D. Smith scored two goals apiece, and C. Janitsch, M. Rollins, D. James and D. Cone one each. Roger Lamorre and Bruce Clark shared the goaltending duties for the shutout.

Richardson and James led the Belleville assault on Sunday with two goals apiece. Single goals were scored by Janitsch, Smith, Rollins, Burley, Kirby and Cone. Lamorre and Clark once again split the goaltending job.

NHL Scoring

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Neither centre Jean Ratelle and his winger, Rod Gilbert, have never been tagged as battlers. They leave that end of the game to their more robust New York Ranger team-mates.

But the one-two scoring punch for New York has kept the Rangers in the thick of the National Hockey League playoff race and during the weekend the diminutive duo were at their best.

Ratelle scored twice and added two assists while Gilbert tallied once and ssisted on three others as the Rangers tied Detroit Red Wings 3-3 Sunday and fought to a 2-2 stalemate with Pittsburgh Penguins Saturday.

Coupled with Toronto Maple Leafs 4-3 loss Sunday to Oakland Seals, tail-enders in the Western Division, the Rangers now have a four-point edge on the fifth-place Leafs.

Gilbert now has 21 goals and 33 assists for 54 points, Ratelle 20 goals and 33 assists for 53 points.

The co-leaders in the scoring race still are Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks. Each scored once during the weekend when the Hawks lost 6-0 Sunday and 6-4 Saturday to Montreal Canadiens.

Hull, the scoring leader with 38 goals, also has 23 assists for his 61 points while Mikita has 30 goals and 31 assists.

Betty Grable Keeps Working And Enjoying Every Minute

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—During the two years Betty Grable played in Hello, Dolly, each performance produced an electric moment that didn't exist in other versions of a hit musical.

That moment came before a dance number when she lifted her skirts to expose her still gorgeous gams. Remembering audiences inevitably cheered.

The same effect was achieved during the taping of tonight's Carol Burnett Show, on which Miss Grable appears as guest. When she appeared in tights, the studio audience broke into applause.

"I thought it was all over, that bit with the legs," says Betty, 51.

"But now I go into novelty shops in New York, and I see these great big posters of me looking over my shoulder. Me, along with Marlon Brando on a motorcycle and W. C. Fields playing poker. When will it end?"

Miss Grable couldn't hide her obvious delight that it hasn't.

Those legs, plus her ebullient personality, have kept her working almost continuously since she started singing with bands as a teen-ager in 1933. Although she hasn't made a film since How To Be Very Very Popular a dozen years ago, she continues to work as much as she wants. Maybe a little more.

"I am by nature quite lazy," she commented. "Once I get working, I really enjoy it.

"But it is like pulling teeth to get me started.

"Let's face it: I've been lucky. Well, call it timing, if you want. Anyway, things have happened to me just at the right moment. If Alice Faye hadn't gotten sick, I wouldn't have been cast in Down Argentine Way, which started the whole thing at Fox. Timing. It didn't hurt, either, that the war came along and the pin-up business started.

"Later, when my picture career was over, I might easily have quit. But then Frank Sennes came down from Vegas and offered to put me in a big Donn Arden production at the Desert Inn. That started my nightclub career, and I did tours with three diffrerent acts.

"Then I got an offer to do Guys and Dolls in Vegas, and that led to Hello, Dolly. I was just going to do it in Vegas, but David Merrick wanted me to tour and then he asked me to come into New York. When I finally closed last November, I had been in the show for two years."

Las Vegas has been Betty's home for the last eight years. She explained that she made the move because husband Harry James was playing his trumpet in the hotel-casinos eight months of the year—"and they had excellent schools for Vickie and Jessica."

Now the marriage to James has ended, and their two daughters are married and have made Betty the grandmother of three.

James has since re-married, but Betty said there is no such prospect for her, not right now, at any rate. She intends to continue with her career and hankers for a return to Broadway.

Now Reporter Walks From Home To Do His Job on Battlefront

The events of the last two weeks in Vietnam have been tough on correspondents as well as the military forces. Here is an insight into some of the problems of news coverage, written by a reporter who has been in Vietnam six years.

By PETER ARNETT

SAIGON (AP)-The war in South Vietnam used to be at least a helicopter ride away from sun-splashed Saigon, my home and family.

Now you can walk to war in minutes.

One day, for example, I kissed my wife on the cheek, chucked the baby under the chin and pulled the barbed-wire barricades across the front gate as I left the house.

Thirty minutes later just 11 blocks to the north, six press colleagues and I were pinned down on our bellies amidst a fusillade of Viet Cong guerrilla automatic weapons fire. The Communists were counter-attacking through suburban stucco homes.

The South Vietnamese government paratroopers around us began withdrawing quickly. We scrambled back after them, our colorful summer shirts perfect targets. Two paratroopers were hit by flying pieces from a Communist rocket.

We counted our blessings and moved on to the next trouble spot in the capital, for more incidents to flesh out our stories.

That evening, as I paid a last quick visit to my family before the nightly curfew cut me off at the office, my wife made no comment on my filthy shirt and torn trouser knees.

She prefers not to hear my war stories; the realities of Vietnam are too close. She just looked at me as if I were crazy, handed me a clean set of clothes that I changed into hastily, and watched me depart.

Scores of reporters are covering the Vietnam story. Many are arriving from some other trouble spot and will soon move on. Our Associated Press team of 20, reporters and photographers, covers Vietnam year in and year out.

The AP has suffered two casualties in the last week. Photographers Rich Merron was lightly wounded in the leg with a rocket fragment while covering U.S. marines fighting in Hue. One of our crack South Vietnamese photographers, Dand Van Phuoc, took shell fragments in the head while covering street fighting in Saigon.

We don't take needless risks. We don't say, "I might get killed when I go out into the streets today." We say, "That couldn't happen to me."

Vietnam has a habit of flaring up in headlines in a dozen places at one time. The AP runs its news operation like a battalion command post, with activities centred in Saigon where instant communication of news and photos is available with the outside world.

From a communications viewpoint, covering Saigon is easy.

Graves' Version of Rubaiyat Arouses Literary Controversy

LONDON (CP) — A literary slugging match among British highbrows that threatens to rival the durable Shakespeare-Bacon squabble is resounding over poet Robert Graves' new version of the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam.

The savants are brawling lustily as they compare the 72-year-old Graves' sober-sided rendition of the 12th century Persian verses with Edward FitzGerald's lilting hymn to the joys of living it up with jug and girl friend.

The controversy has become so acrid that the latest expert to get into it claims that the advertised new-found manuscript used by Graves actually is a fake.

FitzGerald turned out several free and swinging "translations" of the Persian astronomer-bard's writings about a century ago, so well that no one tried a rival Rubaiyat until Graves came along. He contends FitzGerald distorted Omar's "noble and mystic" poetry into a paean to the roistering life.

Graves stacked his free verse effort against FitzGerald's rhyming quatrains in collaboration with Omar Ali-Shah, a Persian scholar using a manuscript claimed to have been written by a Persian scribe soon after old Omar's death in 1123. FitzGerald is generally believed to have used one of later date from Oxford University.

Critics have been wondering about the origins of Graves' manuscript. He and Ali-Shah have been fending them off in letters to the editor and simultaneously knocking FitzGerald.

"It is more important to have access to a truthful . . . version of a great writer than a farrago of sugary, Christmas-cracker rhyme," Alli-Shah observed sharply in his latest letter.

Graves comes in with a reply to the sceptics curious about how his version—if based on a manuscript FitzGerald didn't know about—happened to follow the verse sequence the 19th century translator.

He concludes that FitzGerald must have had the original manuscript after all. It is perfectly plain, he says, that a literary colleague sent him a "purloined copy" from Calcutta.

But L. P. Elwell-Sutton, senior lecturer in Persian at Edinburgh University, now states flatly in The New Statesman that the reverse is the case and that the sequence of the "new" manuscript actually traces back to FitzGerald. He says that in 1899 critic Edward Heron-Allen in notes to a new FitzGerald edition included what he believed to be the original Persian inspiration for each verse.

High Octane Gasoline Helps To Clear Out Excess Carbon

By RAY STAPLEY

A reader writes: "I may have missed a few of your columns but I don't think you have touched on the difference between high and low octane gasolines. My understanding is that high octane fuel is only useful in high compression engines to prevent pre-firing in the cylinders and is a waste of money if used in lower compression engines. I work part time in a service station and would appreciate your comments."

I have had several enquiries from readers seeking information on the pros and cons of today's modern fuels. Many motorists assume that the choice of high octane fuel automatically improves engine performance, but this is not necessarily true. Performance depends on the engine's compression ratio, displacement, horsepower, ignition timing, type of carburetor and other variables. Some engines are built with a high compression ratio, some are not. Some engines have considerable horsepower and some do not.

The majority of modern domestic six cylinder engines and "two barrel carburetor" v8 engines fitted to cars in the low and intermediate price range have a compression of possibly 8 to 1 and call for regular fuel. The manufacturers recommend regular fuel for these engines in the "Owners Manual."

These engines are designed to operate efficiently on regular fuel and, under normal circumstances, to use premium high octane is a waste of money. However, carbon deposits can build up rapidly in the combustion chamber when a car is driven continually at low speeds on city runs. Excessive carbon deposits increase compression ratios resulting in a tell-tale "pinging" noise which forewarns of potential engine damage. Usually, the cylinder heads must be removed to scrape out this carbon, but this is expensive. A more economical approach is to switch to higher octane fuel until a few long fast highway runs loosen the carbon enough to blow it out the tail pipe, restoring the compression to something like normal. Chemical additives also help remove the carbon.

High compression engines with a compression ratio of around 10 to 1 do run better with premium fuel. The manufacturers recommend it and it should be used to avoid engine damage. The combustion chambers of a high compression engine generate more heat, which, coupled with the higher compression ratio can cause a violent explosion within the combustion chamber. Fuel should burn evenly and smoothly. When it explodes too violently, severe damaging shock is transmitted through the engine.

The greater resistance of premium fuel to temperature and pressure reduces the sudden explosion and its energy is applied more evenly and smoothly. Regular fuel can explode violently in a high compression engine, delivering a smashing sledge-hammer blow instead of a steady push.

Don't waste premium fuels in lower compression engines that don't need them, and don't ruin a high compression engine by burning fuel with too low an octane rating.

Understanding Words Vital

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Learning to use the correct word for the correct thing will not resolve human conflicts, as some people think, but it will clarify them and help us understand what we are arguing about. For most arguments do not really join the issue, and thus can never be truly settled.

Consider the words "information," "opinion," "knowledge," and "wisdom." Unless one understands exactly how these four words differ, what each one includes and excludes, it is impossible to have a meaningful dialogue or discussion.

For example, the familiar statement that "everyone is entitled to his opinion," is a mischievous and meaningless remark masquerading as a piece of tolerance. A man who believes the world is flat is not entitled to that opinion, because he is not expressing an opinion — he is defending a prejudice.

We are entitled to an opinion only after we have (1) made a strenuous effort to acquire as much information about the subject as possible; (2) endeavored to organize this information into a coherent body of knowledge; and (3) thought deeply about the implications and consequences of this knowledge, which is the exercise of wisdom.

An "opinion" is a valuable thing, and it is only cheapened when we use the word to signify any half-baked attitude or deeply-rooted prejudice we may happen to entertain, because it fits our self-image or serves our self-interest.

When U.S. Founding Fathers suggested that U.S. national policy be based, in part, "upon a decent respect for the opinion of mankind," they did not mean we should cater to the uninformed and often bigoted views about Americans that were held by so many people in that day. They meant that we should respect the views of those foreigners who really understood what we stand for and what civilization is all about.

Many "opinions" that Europeans hold about us are as shallow and false as our "opinions" about some foreign countries; for in both cases, there is not enough information, it is not organized into knowledge, and no practical wisdom has gone into the judgment. Nobody in the world is "entitled" to such fallacious "opinions."

But it is far easier to feel than to think, and it is far more comfortable to believe (on insufficient evidence) what confirms our prejudices than to seek for evidence that refutes it. When Darwin was working on his theory of evolution, he scrupulously set down in his notebook every bit of evidence that seemed to contradict his theory; and only when he could satisfactorily explain these difficulties, did he feel entitled to advance his opinion on the origin of species.

Heath Assails Wilson for 'Lecturing' Johnson

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson returned home from the United States and Canada Sunday and was assailed by Conservative Leader Edward Heath for "lecturing" instead of supporting President Johnson Vietnam.

Heath strongly endorsed the American position on Vietnam in a speech to young Conservatives.

He implied that Wilson should have done the same in White House talks last week.

Heath said: "In this critical situation the least that a Labor government can do is to stop lecturing those who are bearing the burden and making the sacrifices."

The remark apparently referred to Wilson's speech at a White House banquet Friday night when he advised Johnson to ignore "impatient and exasperated demands" for intensified fighting in Vietnam.

Wilson's speech was widely interpreted in the British press as suggesting Johnson should ignore the "hawks" and go slow on Vietnam.

The prime minister has so far resisted pressure from leftist members of his own party to drop British support of the American position on Vietnam, including bombing of the North.

But there was speculation here that Wilson may soon shift this stand in manoeuvres to improve his political standing at home.

Wilson himself said nothing to reporters on his arrival in London.

Heath said if the United States withdrew from Vietnam the Communists would soon put new pressure on Europe, perhaps Berlin.

"For us it is not just a question of some small far off country. This is the crux of the great conflict which could engulf us here in our European continent."

While endorsing the U.S. position Heath once again stopped short of urging the use of British troops in Vietnam. The Conservative publication Spectator criticized his qualified view of the Conservative leader in its current issue as lamentable, "hypocritical and hardly honorable."

Nine Die in Fires, Woman Found Frozen

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 34 persons died accidentally across Canada during the weekend, 19 on the roads.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday, local times, showed nine persons killed in a fire, two persons drowned, two men killed when trees fell on them, a woman found frozen and a boy killed when his sled was hit by a car.

Quebec had the heaviest toll, 17 killed, including seven persons in traffic, a man and eight children in a house fire and a boy killed on his sled.

Four persons died on Ontario roads. Two men were killed in separate accidents by falling trees they were cutting, and a woman was found frozen near her home.

British Columbia recorded one traffic fatality and two drownings while Saskatchewan had one road death and Alberta two.

Two persons died in traffic in both New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

Manitoba, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland were accident-free during the weekend.

Known suicides and slayings and industrial and natural deaths are not included in the survey.

Winters Pleased By Warm Greetings

TORONTO (CP) — Trade Minister Winters edged closer to candidate status in the Liberal leadership race in an attention-taking appearance Saturday at the closing session of the party's Ontario convention.

The 57-year-old minister told reporters he was "heartened" by the warm reception and "I'll have to see what is behind it."

Mr. Winters said he had not reversed his announced decision of last month to stay out of the race and quit politics. But many people had asked him since then to become a candidate to succeed Prime Minister Pearson.

"I'll give it some consideration of course," he said. "I've got to."

Mr. Winters dropped in as delegates began heading home after the two-day annual meeting. He was applauded by well-wishers as he moved through a lobby into the main convention hall where he got another big hand.

There was another ovation, with most of the 300 delegates in the hall standing up, when he was introduced from the floor. His advisers thought it "impolitic" to go on stage and he did not.

The Winters reception was mild by comparison with the mob-scene welcome given the previous day to another as-yet-undeclared candidate, Justice Minister Trudeau, by a crowd of 500 in a specially-hired room at the convention hotel. Mr. Trudeau said he would announce his leadership decision within 10 days.

Mr. Winters said his main purpose in dropping in was to shake hands with Clemens Neiman, 40, his York West constituency campaign manager in the 1965 federal election. Mr. Neiman had just been elected president of the Ontario party and the two did shake hands. Mr. Nieman succeeds Gordon Blair of Ottawa.

Pearson To Get Scroll

TORONTO (CP) — The annual meeting of the Liberal party in Ontario voted unanimously Saturday to send Prime Minister Pearson a scroll bearing a resolution which praised his work as a world leader and peacemaker.

The resolution said Ontario Liberals "desire to express their gratitude to you for your enduring contribution to Canada and all mankind as a world leader, humanitarian and as the prime minister who charted the course for Canada's exciting second century, and to assure you of their continuing esteem and affection."

Liberals Require More Money If They Are to Beat Robarts

TORONTO (CP) — Eddie Sargent, Liberal member of the Ontario legislature for Grey-Bruce, said Saturday the Liberal party will have to raise more money than it did before the 1967 Ontario election if it hopes to unseat the Conservatives in Queen's Park.

Mr. Sargent told the annual meeting of the Liberal Party in Ontario that the party raised only about $368,000 to support the campaigns of 117 candidates in the Oct. 17 vote.

He estimated that the contributions worked out to about one cent a year per capita and compared with an average of $500,000 spent by candidates for the United States Senate.

The MPP won a round of applause when he proposed that the party constitution be amended to require the executive to give annual reports to the membership on funds-raising activities.

He suggested the party set a target of $2,000,000 as its fund for the next provincial election. "We never can hope to unseat the Robarts government with less than that."

He won support from Ted Hammond, unsuccessful Liberal candidate in Hamilton East, who said one union gave $20,000 to the campaign fund of a New Democratic Party MPP in the Hamilton area.

"We don't have much of a chance in industrial areas without some funds," he said, declaring that without the help of Liberal MPs, the party wouldn't have been able to field a full slate of candidates in the Hamilton district.

Liberal leader Robert Nixon said he favored overhaul of the provincial Elections Act to place curbs on election spending and provide government aid to bona-fide candidates for office but doubted the Robarts government would agree to such changes.

Britain Needs Strong Economic Base

OTTAWA (CP) — Britain's social advances at home and her influence abroad depend on her ability to build a strong economic base, Prime Minister Wilson told a Canadian television audience Sunday night.

In a CBC interview taped here before he returned to London Saturday and shown on the public affairs program The Way It Is, the British leader said his government's belt-tightening measures are slowly beginning to yield results and "I think people recognize that they are necessary."

Industry after industry was showing good progress towards modernization with a resulting impact on export markets, he said.

"And a Britain with a strong economic base, partly as a result of withdrawal from our old imperial role, will have much more influence in the world than a Britain that tries to live up to pretensions that are no longer real."

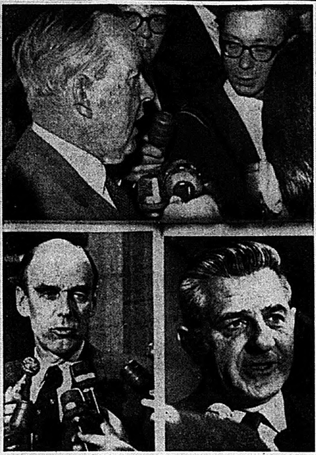
Ottawa's Estimates Kept Within Targets



Medicare Debaters

Newsmen question the three central figures involved in a Commons debate Monday after Prime Minister Pearson announced the government will stand fast on its medical care insurance program. Opposition Leader Stanfield, left, called the decision a "grave disappointment" that will do a "grave disservice to Canada." David Lewis, (NDP/York South) right, attacked Mr. Stanfield's Commons speech as "economic balderdash."

Medicare Plan Starts July 1

OTTAWA (CP) — As matters now stand, fewer thane one Canadian in seven will be covered by the federal medical care insurance plan when it starts July 1.

Prime Minister Pearson, announcing a decision to go ahead on schedule despite provincial government objections, told the Commons Monday only one or two provinces are expected to participate at first.

While he did not identify them, Saskatchewan and British Columbia, with 3,000,000 out of the total population of 20,600,000, have said they will be starters.

Residents of other provinces presumably will get along with the current mixture of private coverage, government-supported plans for the needy or no insurance at all.

With the federal government paying half the average per-capita costs of participating provincial plans, the first year's cost to the federal treasury for Saskatchewan and B.C. is expected to be about $45,000,000.

Finance Minister Sharp has said the federal share will come out of general tax revenues paid by all Canadians. Provinces are free to raise their share by tax or by premium.

The federal decision to proceed was sharply assailed by Opposition Leader Stanfield who said the decision reveals the "pretence" of federal-provincial consultation, makes a farce of the government's policy of spending restraint and increases the country's financial difficulties.

In his sharpest attack on government policy since becoming Progressive Conservative leader last September, Mr. Stanfield said the government should put country ahead of party commitments and "be prepared to practise restraint and not simply preach it."

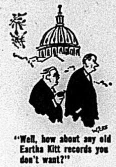
David Lewis, deputy leader of the New Democrats, accused Mr. Stanfield of expressing reactionary Toryism with the support of his followers, most of whom had voted for the plan when it passed Parliament 13 months ago.

Robarts Won't Alter Decision

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Health Minister R. A. Donahoe of Nova Scotia said his province has made no final decision on medical care insurance but the plan would be costly if only one or two provinces participated.

In Ontario, the provincial government stand was unchanged. Premier John Robarts said, "I have made my position very clear . . . and it won't in any way be changed by this decision."



"Well, how about any old Eartha Kitt records you don't want?"

Bennett Demands Election

VICTORIA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson's announcement that the national medical care insurance program will begin July 1 does not necessarily mean that it will, Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia said Monday.

The Social Credit premier told reporters a final decision on the national plan cannot be made until a new prime minister is elected.

"They (the federal government) must close the House at once, hold their convention to, choose a new leader, and then call a federal election," said Mr. Bennett.

Rise Smallest In Five Years'

OTTAWA (CP) — Fingers crossed, the federal government tabled 1968-69 spending estimates Monday that come just within its own well-advertised targets.

True to predictions budgetary spending would be held to $10,300,000,000, Monday's estimates came in at $10,284,700,000.

It was an increase of barely $357,000,000 or 3.6 per cent over anticipated expenditures for the current fiscal year ending March 31, and the smallest rise in five years.

But most of it—all but $42,000,000—depends on the accuracy of predictions about expensive programs only partly under federal control.

Such programs as hospital insurance, equalization payments and the Canada Assistance Plan, rest a little on fate, a lot on economic conditions and to some extent on provincial decisions.

The annual projections are the spending side of the government ledger. Federal budgets reveal where the income will be found for program commitments.

Initial estimates will be followed by supplementary estimates later in the year, but Treasury Board President Benson predicts unspent allocations will balance out the "supps" and leave actual expenditures at about $10,300,000,000.

J. Waldo Monteith, Conservative financial critic, told reporters that although the increase over the last fiscal year was not as great as in other recent years, "it is a very considerable increase which the Canadian taxpayer is going to have to bear." He predicted an increase in personal taxes before the 1968-69 fiscal year ends.

Policies Please Rich

OTTAWA (CP) — The cabinet was sharply criticized today by the Canadian Labor Congress for policies it said are designed to satisfy "the rich and the powerful" at the cost of economic stagnation and high unemployment.

"Once again it looks as though the burden of poor economic management will be borne by Canadian workers in the form of increasing joblessness," the 1,500,000-member central labor body declared in its annual brief to the government.

"In a period of a few months your government has given the appearance of retreating from its commitment to implement medicare legislation. It has taken actions which made the acquisition of adequate housing within their economic means an impossibility for many thousands of Canadians.

"It has introduced a budget which can only have the result of reducing consumer power and thereby leading to a spread of unemployment. It has compounded the mistake of a deflationary budget by cutting back government programs, which will inevitably lead to an increase in the number of unemployed."

Nancy Greene Second In Olympic Slalom

CHAMROUSSE, France (CP) — Marielle Goitschel of France won the Olympic women's slalom gold medal today by a bare 29-100ths of a second over Nancy Greene of Rossland, B.C., who got the second-place silver medal, the first medal of the Winter Games for Canada.

Marielle, silver medallist behind her sister Christine in the 1964 Olympics, captured France's third skiing gold of the Games with a total time of one minute, 25.86 seconds.

Miss Greene, who barely beat out Miss Goitschel for the World Cup in 1967, was clocked in 1:26.15 for two runs over the sloping course.

"This is the title I wanted to win most in the world," Marielle said after her near faultless second run of 45.59 seconds.

The French champion had been in second place after the first run with a time of 40.27 seconds.

Nancy, third after the first run when she clocked 41:45 seconds, zig-zagged down the second run in 44:70.

"It was a very hard race," Nancy said. "I hoped to do well and I did, but I still could have done better."

Annie Famose of France captured the third-place bronze with a total time of 1:27,89. First down the second run, she was clocked in 45.68 seconds.

Judy Nagel of the United States, the leader after the first run time in 40.19, fell on the second run and was disqualified.

Reds Repulse Marines

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese marines launched a ground assault against strong North Vietnamese forces inside the walled citadel at Hue today, but heavy small-arms, machine-gun and rocket fire drove them back.

The North Vietnamese troops fought from gunpits burrowed deep inside the grimy black stone walls of the inner citadel in the former imperial capital 400 miles northeast of Saigon.

More than 1,000 U.S. marines and South Vietnamese troops were tightening the vise beside the north bank of the Perfume River. On the south bank, in Hue's modern quarter the Americans had regained control, and the population crept out of refugee camps and shell-marked homes to bury the dead in hastily dug graves.

Spokesmen for the combined U.S.-South Vietnamese forces said that the 14 days of fighting in Hue have cost the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong 2,303 dead, about half of them inside the citadel. South Vietnamese casualties were reported moderate, meaning the government force was hard hit. There was no announcement of U.S. casualties.

Hue is the last of 35 South Vietnam cities and towns where Viet Cong or North Vietnamese forces are still fighting as organized units two weeks after the start of their biggest offensive of the war. It has cost them, by government count, 32,245 men killed, or more than half of the 60,000 troops U.S. officers believe they committed to the offensive.

Park Wants End to Truce If Raids Made

SEOUL (AP) — President Chung Hee Park is asking the U.S. government to tell North Korea it will denounce the 1953 armistice agreement if the North Koreans send down any more raiders like the team that tried to assassinate Park, informed sources reported today.

Park in his talks with Cyrus Vance, a special envoy from President Johnson, was also reported trying to get the United States to demand that North Korea apologize for the assassination attempt Jan. 21.

U. S. Has Peace Emissary in Hanoi

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson says despite the massive Viet Cong offensive in South Vietnam he will halt bombing of North Vietnam, start peace talks tomorrow and let the Communists "write the agenda"—if Hanoi doesn't try a doublecross.

Representative Roman C. Pucinski (Dem. Ill.) earlier told a Chicago audience a presidential emissary was in Hanoi to discuss a possible bombing halt and negotiations to end the war when the Viet Cong attacked the U.S. Embassy in Saigon last month.

Pucinski said: "As a matter of fact, the U.S. had to stop the bombing of Hanoi to assure safe passage for the emissary," whom he declined to name.

But he said the emissary was still in Hanoi "as far as we know and he may still be talking to the North Vietnamese."

The White House and state department declined comment.

Ted Kennedy Says Vietnam Corruption Mounts

WASHINGTON (CP) — Corruption in South Vietnam at all levels has "increased dramatically," Senator Edward Kennedy reports after a 12-day visit — his first since 1965

"The issue of corruption is by far the strongest propaganda factor for the Viet Cong," he contends. In the refugee field alone, which he has made his specialty, he estimates that up to 75 per cent of the $30,000,000 allocated annually by the U.S. "never reaches the refugees themselves."

"Fifty per cent of the commodities that are earmarked for refugees are not received by the refugees."

South Vietnam's cost of living has trebled in two years; the latest fighting has shoved food prices even higher.

Civil servants and secretaries earning as little as $43 monthly are contrasted with the other side of the Saigon coin: Thousands who attended horse races regularly, at least until the latest Viet Cong offensive, brisk nightlift and thousands of young male "cowboys," obvious draft dodgers.

One estimate is that 85 per cent of all Saigon construction since 1963 has been for such luxury products as bars, night-clubs or special housing.

"I paid off nine times just to get the papers to the ministry that was supposed to pay me," one Saigon contractor is quoted here as saying about a government project. "Then I waited months for my payment."

Payoffs ranging from a few cents to a few thousand dollars are demanded and obtained.

Trenton Workers to Strike Thursday: Union Spokesman

TRENTON — A spokesman for International Union of Electrical Radio and Machine Workers says that 30 female workers of Essex Electronics, will strike Thursday.

William Miller, IUE field representative, said 11th-hour attempts to draft a 1968-69 contract with the electronics firm here were stalemated Monday.

Essex all-woman work force will take to the picket lines one minute after midnight Thursday, he said.

The union has lowered its wage demands from a 20 per cent hourly increase in a one-year contract to 25 per cent spread over two years, Mr Miller claims.

At present the women are paid a starting rate of $1.12 an hour, increasing to $1.36 for senior employees — a worker with five years' service.

Mr. Miller said the company is offering a 10 per cent increase over two years, effective the day the contract is signed. It also has extended $30 settlement pay.

The union wants any pay hike retroactive to Oct. 1, when the previous two - year contract expired.

Previous to today's union announcement a letter was sent the women workers bearing the signature of company president J. E. Kalfus.

. It advises. "You may be assured that your company intends to operate after Feb. 15 and work will be available for any employee who wishes to continue at her job. There will be no lockout."

The letter promises a five per cent wage increase to employees continuing at their jobs after the strike deadline.

The women are members of the IUE's local 539.

The local voted unanimously for strike action in January if negotiations broke down.

Mr. Kalfus, spokesman for the company, said "the offer we made is in line with offers in previous years and in line with wages at similar local industries."

He said half the company employees have been here 10 years or more and qualify for the senior pay category.

He was opposed to union demands that union membership should be a condition of employment.

At present, no worker is required to join the union until after 30 days employment.

"We consider the closed - shop arrangement satisfactory union security," said Mr. Kalfus.

But, he added, "we consider employment first and the union second."

The letter sent to employees merely proposes the immediate five per cent pay raise contained in the company contract offer he explained. It promises the employees there will be no lockout after the strike begins.

Added the president. "Because the situation was dictated primarily by economic circumstances, we're resigned to the fact of the strike."

No Trace of Loot In Roluf Robbery

Belleville's biggest theft has refused to yield any clues as yet, as police probe the disappearance of $110,000 in stamps and money orders from a downtown post office.

More than 100 circulars were hurriedly mailed around Ontario and to major Canadian police departments last night as investigations continued.

Deputy Chief Harold Reid, a veteran of city crime investigation, today believed the theft was probably the largest in Belleville's history.

The break-in was staged at Roluf's on Front Street, where thieves smoothly slipped into a sub post office, leaving no visible signs of burglary.

The theft occurred late Saturday or early Sunday. It was accidentally discovered by proprietor Carl Roluf Sunday night.

City Man 'Lucky' In Freak Accident

A Belleville man was reported in improved condition in the Belleville General Hospital after he was admitted yesterday following a morning accident.

In the hospital is Russell Babcock, 61, of 260 Herchimer Ave. Mr. Babcock, an employee of the CNR, was on his way to work when he fell between the tracks in the yard. It is not known how he fell but police assume that he took a weak spell.

Witnesses stated that a train passed over Mr. Babcock for about ten feet, but the engine never touched his body.

It is assumed that his injuries, a fractured shoulder and arm and head lacerations were sustained when he fell to the tracks.

The driver of the engine, whose name was not released by the police saw something between the tracks but he couldn't stop the engine in time to prevent passing over Mr. Babcock.

Police were not informed of the accident until yesterday afternoon.

Bloomfield Council Opposed

PICTON (Staff) — Bloomfield Village Council has taken a stand against the proposal to place school administration on a county basis. The proposal, announced about three months ago, is scheduled to take effect starting the first of next year, and a bill to make the necessary changes is now before the Ontario Legislature.

At the regular meeting for February, the council voted unanimously to ask Norris Whitney, MLA for Prince Edward-Lennox, to oppose the proposed measure on behalf of the village.

Reeve Allan Anderson said that council made the decision on its own and that it did not result from any correspondence from, nor meetings with the township school board.

IN MEMORIAM

SERO — In sad and loving memory of a dear son Freeman Franklin (Johnny) who passed away Feb. 13, 1964.

Time rolls on and I am reminded,
Of a day my heart was crushed,
When God took you, oh, so quickly,
And we all in gloom were thrust,
In the bloom of life, death claimed you,
In the prime of manhood days,
But I hope some day to meet you,
And to be with you always.

—Always remembered and never forgotten by mother and dad, and Peggy and Tom.

BUSH — In loving memory of a dear aunt Idella Bush who passed away February 13, 1967.

In a lonely country graveyard,
Where the breezes softly blow,
Lies the one we loved so well,
Who died one year ago,
Tho' her smile is gone,
And her hand we cannot touch,
Yet we have so many memories,
Of the one we loved so much.

—Sadly missed and always remembered. Harry and Elva Fisher, children Burton and Trudy.

Education Official Claims . . .

Trenton Belongs in Hastings County

By MAURICE SWITZER

Staff Reporter

TRENTON — As far as the Department of Education is concerned, Trenton belongs in Hastings County.

Regional Superintendent R. W. Froats of Kingston was in town last night to explain government policy to local school trustees. And for him, speculation that this town's future in education lies outside of Hastings County is just that — speculation.

"At present, there is no question about it — Trenton is part of Hastings," Mr. Froats told a special meeting of Board of Education members.

It has always been considered as such by "powers that be," and nothing, "outside of a legal hasale" could begin to alter that geographical fact, Mr. Froats stressed.

Chairman of the board's Larger Units Committee, W. Douglas Whitley has been conducting a "Trenton-westward" campaign — insisting to fellow trustees that Trenton's educational, social, and financial destiny lies away from Belleville—dominated" Hastings.

Mr. Whitley was unable to attend last night's meeting, but some of his most pointed queries about the new - look school board proposal were dealt with by Mr. Froats in his repsonses to questions from the local trustees.

Was sprawling Hastings County an "unviable unit"?

"It's going to be hard, admittedly, to integrate some areas. But we had to start somewhere, and the county lines were it.

"We realize Bancroft, for instance, has different problems than Trenton — it's even different socially. But what we're trying to do is give equal educational opportunities to children in all parts of a county."

In the event the original county, - size board lines don't work out, Mr. Froats said there could be a later "sophistication" of the system to accommodate hard-to-integrate areas.

"Bancroft for example could conceivably be assimilated with the Peterborough board later if the present arrangement proved unsatisfactory. We realize nothing is necessarily permanent."

Under larger units of school "extras" such as television classroom instruction and special classes for the physically handicapped stand a better chance of being made available to children in all parts of the county, Mr. Froats predicted.

"After all, when you're talking about who would pick up the tab, in a Hastings County Board, you'd have representation for 100,000 taxpayers and more resources than are now available to individual municipalities.

Is representation on the soon - to - be - established interim study committees unfair? (Trenton trustees argued they are being penalized for having the only board of education in the county, instead of distinct public and high school boards as are found in other communities. The department of education allows school board in a county to serve on the interim fact-finding committees.) Tweed will thus have two members on the interim Hastings committee, and Trenton one.

"This would be a sound argument if these interim bodies had any teeth," answers Mr. Froats. "They are non-representative, non-policy—making committees whose job is to provide a catalogue of knowledge of schools for use by the new county board.

"There has been a greatdeal of misinterpretation about their function."

The department of education spokesman noted the interim committees will have no part in selecting either the county boards or county education superintendents.

The voting public of Ontario will elect their new representatives to consolidated boards (on a ward basis) and the first function of each new county board will be to determine a candidate as county supervisor of education, Mr. Froats said.

Laying out electoral wards to assure each area of the 3,-000 - square - mile Hastings representation on a consolidated board of education, would be the responsibility of county council.

Mr. Froats also told the local board:

— the county education superintendents will be the key to the whole plan . . . "they'll make it or break it."

— future negotiations between county boards may remedy situations which find a student required to travel further to his designated school than he might to a closer school not in his county;

— he doubted any requests for educational improvements by an area would be held up because that area's representation on the county board happens to be a minority — "we shouldn't be concentrating on the "minority" aspect of thec ounty board representation; each representative should consider himself as part of a common-purposed group."

"There'll be a lot of wailing and gnashing of teeth in Ontario for the next couple of years. It'll be hell getting this program straightened out."

Mr. Froats concluded: "But after five years, we'll all look back and be grateful.

Labor Council Berates Opponents of Medicare

The Belleville and District Labor Council hopes to launch a program boosting medicare.

The action follows expressed disappointment with response of the Robarts government and a local MPP to the federal health scheme.

Council president Ray Bradshaw said the BDLC last night noted with approval Prime Minister Pearson's decision that medicare would be introduced as scheduled.

The council hopes to introduce speakers to explain "to the people of this area" he said.

"We're disappointed that Premier Robarts doesn't see fit to join the program for at least a year," added Mr. Bradshaw.

The council president took exception to Dr. R. T. Potter, MPP Quinte, and "his program against medicare."

(Before Mr. Robarts announced deferral of Ontario participation in the plan, Dr. Potter was an outspoken critic of any move to join federal medicare).

"I personally feel he is putting the insurance companies and the finance companies ahead of the people of Canada," charged Mr. Bradshaw. "Because the more people that participate in the the cost per capita—and the cost per capita — and the people of Canada need this."

The council hopes to "have medicare explained" because "in this area people don't know the advantages of medicare."

New Armed Unit Designed For Action Rotarians Told

Although unification of the armed forces was difficult for servicemen to accept there undoubtedly had been duplication of their activities as well as high administrative overhead, Lt.-Col. Charles Read told Bellevile Rotarians yesterday.

Col. Read, chief transport officer of Mobile Command based at St. Hubert, Quebec, added however: "I now work under a completely unified environment and when we get down to it we (the three services) were not that different."

A brother of Belleville high school principal Linton Read, he said the new force was designed for swift action in any military eventuality, in the defence of Canada and of its committments overseas.

To the question, just what Canada's military force does in time of peace, Col. Read replied that it was kept busy training and rotating personnel to serve this country's committments here and abroad.

"The Canadian armed forces are a highly professional body and unification has not changed that. The average serviceman works just as hard and in some cases longer hours than those in contemporary civilian occupations."

Col. Read cited as an example of regular training programs the dispatch of units from Camp Picton to Puerto Rico. This was aimed at testing their combat readiness in the event of trouble arising abroad, as in the case of Cyprus and other areas where United Nations peacekeeping forces are based.

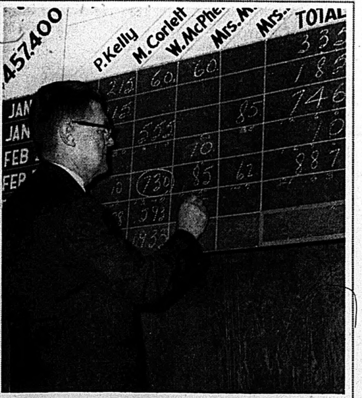
Of Canada's contribution overseas, Col. Read said in addition to the men based in Cyprus, and until recently in Egypt, there was an observer team in Viet Nam, another one on the India-Pakistan border and a third group on the Israel-Lebanon border.

In addition there were military advisor groups in Ghana, Tanzania and Malaya.

Canada's main effort overseas is with the NATO forces in Europe where military and air force units are mantained.

In all Canada has some 100.000 men under arms and supports 38 bases at home and overseas. A substantial number of people are employed in military research and development in co-operation with the military establishments of the United States, Britain and Australia.

As a result of integration Canada now has six Commands. They are Mobile Command, Maritime Command, Air Defence Command, Air Transport Command, Training Command and Material Command.



Bert Messacar, general secretary of the YMCA campaign, puts the latest figures on the fund boards during last night's meeting.

'Y' Fund Totals $164,789

The YMCA has reached $164,789 in its battle to reach $457,000 campaign goal. The money is to be used for a physical fitness centre.

Team chairman of the campaign, James Driscoll, said last night at a meeting that now the campaign was over, "mopping up operations" would begin.

Mr. Driscoll told canvassers that during the next week to 10 days they should commence collecting promised monies and start making call backs.

"The flu and other circumstances beyond our control cut our canvassing strength with the result a number of prospects have not been contacted at all."

Mr. Driscoll announced that anyone still wishing to contribute to the YMCA building fund could do so either by phoning and having the donation picked up or by personally sending it to the YMCA.

Harry Fast, general chairman of the campaign, told the canvassers that the final figures would not be available for some time.

"We will have a physical fitness centre and that's what we struck out to do," he said.

He spoke of his attempts to obtain contributions from companies outside of Belleville.

"They don't want to give money to a losing cause, but they will to a winning campaign."

"If outside companies are interested in our community, then we in the community should be interested."

It was mentioned at the meeting last night at Club Canara that many contributions are still to come and that some may be as late as October.

An agricultural attache from the Russian Embassy in Ottawa, Boris A. Runov, spoke to 200 members of the Prince Edward Farmers' Union at a Picton meeting last night. Here Mr. and Mrs. Dan Nielsen hear Mr. Runov describe farm production in the Soviet Union.

Russian Attache Discusses Agriculture in USSR

PICTON (Staff) — A country which extends some 6,000 miles from east to west and about 3,000 from north to south and contains some 50 languages makes the task of describing the agriculture of the USSR very difficult said Boris A. Runov, agricultural attache from the Russian Embassy in Ottawa. He was speaking to 200 persons who attended the Prince Edward County Farmer''s Union banquet Monday night.

Speaking on the USSR, which he said was 2.2 times larger than Canada, he described a colorful picture of the country as it is today and pointed out that many of the agricultural crops were the same as those of Canada. In some areas he described the growing of citrus fruits and cotton, two products the average Canadian would not picture being produced in that country.

He compared the two types of farms found in the USSR, state farms and collective farms. He told Prince Edward farmers that on state farms workers received salaries, bonuses, insurance and medical care. Also, he added they have annual vacations.

Commenting on the growth of agriculture, he said, 290,000 tractors were manufactured in one year.

Of the 237 millions population, he said 83 million were on the labor force and some 25 million were employed in agriculture.

He suggested Canada should pay more attention to trade with Russia and that perhaps Canadians should import beef and butter from that country. "I would like to see, he said, trade contracts and an increase in trade between our two great countries."

Mr. Runov's talk was illustrated with slides depicting many phases of agriculture in the USSR — pictures of sheep were prominent in the collection of color slides and Mr. Runov pointed out that there were 250 million sheep in Russia.

In the Georgian State, photos showed the rich soil and the growing of grapes, and the harvesting of tea by combine.

The many peoples, and their colorful costumes, which make up the population of the USSR were also shown and described as well as pictorial scenes of architecture, old and new, the Czar's Palace, old historic forts and buildings.

Expressing greetings at the meeting were head table guests, Norris Whitney, MLA for Prince Edward-Lennox; A. Douglas Alkenbrack, MP; Gordon Demore, warden of Prince Edward County and Mrs. Veronica Opsitnik, women's president of the Ontario Farmers Union.

Act as National Union Farmers Are Advised

PICTON (Staff) — "We can no longer be individualistic and live by ourselves — for we cannot and survive. We must group nationally to obtain bargaining power" was the message passed to over 200 farmers and interested citizens at last night's Prince Edward County Farmer's Union banquet.

The meeting "jam-packed" the Parish Hall of St. Mary Magdalene Church to hear the agricultural attache of the USSR from the Russian embassy in Ottawa and Mrs. Veronica Opsitnik, wife of a tobacco farmer from Pontypool and women's president of the Ontario Farmers Union.

Mrs. Opsitnik said, "A brief was presented to the Ontario Government today — this is an annual ritual, which never seems to be too productive. We farmers should think in terms of reconstruction to provide a bargaining power. We farmers have never had control of a market place and as long as we don't, we'll not be around much longer".

Provinces, she said, are in agreement and a committee has been set up to study the possibility of providing a national farm organization.

"As long as we operate provincially, at a provincial level, rather than nationally, we cannot survive," she said.

Viet Nam Dilemma

"I don't want any damned Dien Bien Phu," President Johnson is reported to have told his military chiefs of staff recently following reports that the all-out communist offensives in Viet Nam have such an end in view.

Dien Bien Phu was the scene of the last stand of the French against the Viet Minh in what then — some 20 years ago — was French Indo-China.

Certainly the communists' switch from a mainly guerrilla tactics to mass attacks of infantry supported by heavy weapons and even tanks has introduced a serious new threat to the American position in Viet Nam.

And as United States' losses mount, both on the ground and in the air, word comes that the U.S. air force is facing a chronic pilot shortage. This is all the more understandable when it is realized that helicopter warfare as practised by the U.S. in Viet Nam places an extra strain on manpower resources in this sphere.

The upshot is that the air force is running tests to see if its most advanced jets can be flown by one pilot rather than two. Pentagon officials say they would like to limit the crews of F-4C Phantoms and F-111A fighters to a single pilot with a non-flying navigator in the rear cockpit. They say this would ease the pilot shortage and save $400 million over the next five years.

Meanwhile opposition to President Johnson's policies grows. Perhaps the most influential critic is Senator Robert Kennedy who takes a pessimistic view of the whole sorry business. According to Mr. Kennedy a military decision in Viet Nam is impossible. The United States, he says, should end the conflict by negotiation while recognizing the right of the Viet Cong and so-called National Liberation Front to have a voice in any future government of war-torn Viet Nam.

The trouble is, Mr. Kennedy is speaking from the outside. He is not in the hot seat and the question may be asked, would he take a similar view if he were president? Would his late brother the president (who in his inaugural speech pledged his country to contain the advance of communism whatever the cost) have taken such a stand?

Cars and Parking

Remember the days when cars were getting bigger and bigger, becoming so wide and gruesome that a barn let alone a garage would not hold them.

"The fantastic and insolent products of the United States car industry," they were dubbed. And by an American at that — a delegate to a conference in The Hague on traffic congestion, highway needs and related matters.

Well, there are still a few of these autos around and the discomfiture of their owners when it comes to parking is usually something to behold.

But generally today's motor vehicle has better styling. They may not endure any longer than before but they have less junk on them to rust or go wrong. And they are not quite as monstrous as in years gone by.

Several have a sleek sporty look allied with roominess that formerly went only with specially-designed sports cars.

Yet the automobile per se does remain a problem. As more and more pour off the assembly lines more of them clog the highways. More new drivers of varying degrees of efficiency appear on the scene. More accidents . . . more pollution from exhaust fumes. And so on.

They are a problem in congested downtown Belleville. They are a problem — and often a menace — everywhere else. But what would we do without them?

Alert Passanger

If a man is experienced in his field there are still things he needs to know — and the additional knowledge gained could even save his life.

For instance, retired Air Vice Marshal Leigh Stevenson, 73, was not above reading the directions for emergency procedures on a recent flight from Honolulu. When the jet in which he was a passenger went off the runway at Vancouver the other day he was able to open the emergency exit near where he and his wife were sitting. All but two of the passengers and crew escaped with their lives.

It is a good lesson. Because he had read the procedure, Mr. Stevenson knew what to do. To be as alert and aware as that, whatever one's age, is to be alive. And life is all the more enjoyable for such awareness.

"Status of Women" Commission Gobbles Up Tax Dollars

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — So, ho hum, and what else is new . . . the royal commission on the status of women has managed in only 15 working days to spend just about what it took all of New Brunswick's construction workers a full year to pay in income tax.

Fifteen-day cost of the commission, reveals Parliament's Hansard, is $218,946.

Year's payment of income tax by 477 New Brunswick construction men, discloses the revenue department's official "Green Book," was $221,000.

So okay, you perhaps shrug, that is how the tax money goes.

Go indeed it does, quite routinely.

But now, not so routinely, cries are being heard in Parliament: stop!

Among the protesting, questioning voices, Creditiste Real Caouette charges that it is "a shameful waste of money," and asks "what is going on?"

Since he made his outraged enquiry in the formal parliamentary manner on the Commons order paper with a set of probing questions, Prime Minister Pearson's office has had no alternative but to tell all — or almost all.

These are the bare bones of it:

The prime minister, just a year ago, appointed a six-member commission, each one at the going $100-daily royal commission rate, headed by CBC broadcaster Anne Francis, to look into "the status of women," as the assignment specified.

(There have been a couple of unexplained resignations — the one male member of the commission took a walk — but the gaps, bravely, have been filled.)

Prime Ottawa office space was leased and equipped and staff hired with salaries ranging down from a top of $22,000.

("More," agonizes Real Caouette, "than an MP gets!)

Five "research contracts" have been let, one of them to professor Donald D. Lambert, BA, MA, PhD, of the Unviersity of Waterloo for what the prime minister's office specifies is"a study entitled "the Formation of Sex-Role Conceptions in Young People.' "

("What in Heaven's name," wonders Real Caouette, "are they trying to find out about women?")

The commission's report, promises the prime minister's office, "will be submitted with all reasonable despatch, as soon as possible after the research program, public hearings and other proceedings as is customary with such enquiries."

(But that is not going to be soon. For professor Lambert's study on those youthful sex-conception roles is not scheduled for completion until next year. And then, of course, the commission will have to consider it — and any other studies subsequently assigned — getting around to writing its report only after all the research is in and everyone interested has been heard.)

"Stop, stop," storms Real Caouette, "for if after only 15 working days this boondoggle cost $218,946, what's the price going to be after two more years?"

Halt, halt, scolds Real Caouette, before these status-of-women girls outspend the B-and-B boys.

(The royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, sitting since August, 1963, so far has spent $6,957,382—a tab Real Caouette fears will read $10,000,000 before they are through.

By comparison with the B-and-B boys, then, the status-of-women girls are pretty small potatoes.

But how small?

Flip open the fascinating pages of the "Green Book" and you find that the $218,946 the girls spent so far about equals:

1. The combined income tax of Nova Scotia's 272 manufacturers ($115,000) and 72 insurance agency operators ($90,000). Total tax: $205,000.

2. The tax of all Newfoundland's 506 pensioners ($104,000) plus that of her total 164 property owners, those whose income accrues solely from property ($115,000). Total: $219,000.

3. The total value ($210,000) of taxable mortgage interest in Belleville.

4. The income tax paid in the under-$1,000 bracket by 4,461 people in the three prairie provinces, with 1,621 in Manitoba coughing up $82,000, another 880 in Saskatchewan laying $45,000 on the line, and 1,960 in Alberta shelling out $95,000. Total: $222,000.

5. The total of all taxable rental income ($125,000) plus old age pension payments ($96,000) in Prince Rupert. Total: $221,000.

6. The value of taxable foreign investment income ($214,000) in Nanaimo.

Just consider, for another moment, that number four item again: it takes a full year's combined income tax of 4,461 people in the very lowest and least-able-to-afford-it bracket in three provinces to pay for 15 days of spending by the status of women commission.

How about that!

Bilingualism—Is It Legal or Just A "Gigantic Hoax?"

Editor,

The Intelligencer.

Many people, including the writer, will strongly object to your Feb. 8th front-page headline, "French Language Rights Approved", by reason of the utterly false implications which it reflects. Legally the only language "rights" that could be approved, are those set out in Section 133 of our Constitution; but morally and ethically there were none that warranted approval in any measure.

It must be stressed that in no manner and in no form, had French been given any legal status at any time, excepting that which is referred to above. In brief, this section of the BNA Act provides that either English or French may be used in Canada's parliament and courts, (of which there are two) and in Quebec's legislature and courts, and that is all. The total area in which French had any authoritative use would be approximately one square mile of walled space.

However, within the past 45 years and in practically every federal election, the minority vote but a solidarity vote of les quebecois et les canadois was the dominating factor in the elections. This minority vote decided which political party would form the government. Because of this odious situation, and because of the competitive madness of all parties wooing this controlling vote, this one section, this section 133 was ravaged beyond recognition, while all other sections of the Act were held sacred and inviolate. In the matter of printing, a lesser scope is provided for French, as only the Acts may be printed in both languages. Courts are not mentioned. In complete disregard of this constitutional law, every scrap of paper issuing from any and every department at Ottawa is bilingually printed. To some considerable extent the Ontario government follows Ottawa's footsteps.

In the past several years, aspiring politicians and the respective servile partisan press, have been rhetorically fulsome in singing the praises of the French in Canada. Such grandiose terms as "founding nation", "special status", "bilingual justice," have been shouted and printed, but not a single basic fact was offered in support or in substantiation. This cry of bilingualism is a gigantic hoax perpetrated upon the English and non-French speaking Canadians, because it is strictly unilateral; it is a one-way street and a one-way street only. These politicians and their supporting press have tearfully urged the desirability of all Canadians speaking French, so that Jean Baptists from Quebec, speaking no English, would feel at home anywhere in Canada. In not one single instance has it been noted where either politician or partisan press has suggested that the 77 per cent of those people in Quebec whose mother tongue is French and who speak French and only French, should learn English so that Tom, Dick and Harry could feel at home in Quebec. The mere thought of this would be sacrilege; it would be heresy; it would be treachery.

Every proponent of the expansion of French in any form, should be required to answer the following question: "What has French Quebec or French Canada done in the past that warrants any special treatment, consideration, or concessions?" From the chronicles of history and from our own knowledge of the past half century, very little of anything could be found to offer in justification. On the contrary an unflattering and discreditable pattern would be revealed, and therefore it becomes evident that this minority vote, but a solidarity vote, transcends all other considerations in the minds and actions of our governing politicians.

Commenting on conferences in respect to the French language, Dr. Eugene Forsey, a leading constitutional expert, made this interesting observation: — "The great danger is that in a mood of saccharine amiability, the governments (premiers) will shut their eyes, open their mouths, and swallow. And Canada will die." At the three-day conference at Ottawa, the provincial premiers did just that; they shut their eyes, they opened their mouths, and they swallowed. And Canada will die.

City's "Man of the Year" Is Praised

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

It was most gratifying to read the article proclaiming Belleville's citizen of the year. The Jaycees and their panel of judges are to be congratulated for what I consider, and I am sure many others will agree, to be an excellent choice. Past Mayor Jack Ellis gave untiringly of his time and efforts to make Belleville a better place in which to live, work and raise our children.

We will wait a long time before we have as a leader, a man as dedicated, energetic, or keenly interested in this city as was former Mayor Jack Ellis.

We live and thrive in smug contentment. We desire all the benefits of our affluent society. We want and demand a progressive and prosperous community yet we want cautious and thrifty leadership. We are quick and sharp with our criticism yet we rarely take the time to avail ourselves of factual information in order to present an objective view rather than an opinion. If only we were as quick and extravagant with our praise, when deserved, then perhaps more criticism would be justified. In our usual lethargic manner the citizens of Belleville have left the responsibility of saying "thank you" to Past Mayor Ellis to others. I may underestimate sir, the impact and power of your limited fifth page news item but I personally believe that the services rendered as a dedicated Mayor were more meritorious than the appreciation which has been shown.

Mr. Ellis and I have disagreed many times in discussions on city projects. I believe that some of his plans were beyond the economic means of this city, as are some of the plans of the present administration. However, Mr. Ellis always left me with the same impression, whatever his views, whatever his plans, they always stemmed from a deep rooted and sincere desire to make Belleville a better community. With a council capable of tempering his imaginative plans with sound progressive decisions we had an excellent team. He has been accused of being a dictator — nonsense — but an aggressive leader he had to be in order to accomplish anything. As long as aldermen are elected and have the right to vote as they please, one member of council could never be a dictator.

I wish to thank the Jaycees for portraying the gratitude of many citizens of Belleville to Past Mayor Jack Ellis for his years of service to this community.

Increase Smallest In Years

in programs subject only to federal jurisdiction.

The departments of transport, trade, defence and industry will all spend less if projections are borne out. There will be little change in total spending by the energy, fisheries and works departments.

Old age security payments, which the government does not count as budgetary expenditures because they are recorded in a separate fund, are expected to rise to $1,581,000,000 in 1968-69 from $1,432,000,000 this year.

Another non-budgetary category is cash requirements for loans and investments, which Finance Minister Sharp is anxious to cut next year to relieve pressure on the capital market.

They will be reduced to $484,900,000 from $645,105,609, hitting the CBC, national harbors board, and lending and investment programs of the Indian affairs, industry, works, transport and energy departments.

The budgetary figures do not include a 50-per-cent federal share of the Expo 67 deficit, which has not been announced but was last projected as $250,000,000. Nor do they include federal costs for the medical care insurance program starting July 1.

It is believed only Saskatchewan and British Columbia will join the plan July 1. This would mean only about $33,750,000 in federal payments in the 1968-69 fiscal year.

Mr. Sharp said in his Nov. 30 budget speech that he wants a 1968-69 budget as close as possible to balance, and that he will increase taxes as necessary to cover costs of the medical care plan.

Available estimates indicate the government will need at least $250,000,000 in additional revenue to make that balance. Whether this can be provided at existing tax rates may depend on the pace of the economy, expected to quicken later this year.

The biggest single item in the government estimates is the public debt at $1,273,906,400. It will increase more than any other item next year—by $132,942,800 to a grand total of $1,406,849,200.

Other major increases:

—$91,000,000 for payments to the provinces for hospital insurance, totalling $515,000,000.

—$58,000,000 in payments to the provinces as statutory subsidies and transfers under the Fiscal Arrangements Act, totalling $767,626,000.

—$47,316,700 for post office operations, totalling $353,739,000.

Defence spending drops for the first time in years. The department's budget is $1,723,851,000, down $23,418,000.

The government also plans to cut $48,000,000 from the transport department, $11,000,000 from the manpower department and $10,000,000 from the industry department.

Total bill for budgetary and old age security payments, and for loans and investments, is $12,350,632,032, a 2.9-per-cent increase over $12,004,804,240 in the current fiscal year.

No Word Back On Petition

PICTON (Staff) — Picton and Hallowell Township are still negotiating their boundaries following Picton's loss of an annexation hearing last fall, it was brought out at this month's meeting of Town Council last week.

Following the Ontario Municipal Board's decision which ruled out any transfer of land from Hallowell to Picton, the town launched an appeal of the verdict by filing a petition for review.

Town solicitor R. E. Nourse, said that the petition for review still stands and there has been no word back yet on whether a review has been granted or not.

UAW Begins Negotiations With GM

OSHAWA (CP) — General Motors of Canada and the United Auto Workers began meetings Monday in an effort to renew contract negotiations which broke off Friday 45 minutes before 25,000 workers went on strike.

Meetings began here and in Windsor.

A third meeting was tentatively arranged in Ste. Therese, Que., where 1,850 workers are out.

A. G. Stapleton, head of personnel for the 12,300 employees here, said bargaining invitations had been extended to the UAW in St. Catharines, where 7,300 are on strike, London, Ont., and the Toronto suburb of Scarborough.

He said it is hoped a master contract for all plants can be worked out by mid-week.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — It's either picket lines or school for about 2,300 United Auto Workers of Local 195, on strike at General Motors of Canada Ltd. plants here.

The workers were told Monday they would be allocated to either picket line duties or to several courses being run by the union.

The courses were organized to bring the hourly-rated workers up to date on the latest developments in union operations and relations between the workers and the company.

Local President Alex Sinkevitch said the courses are compulsory if the workers are to receive strike pay.

In the Community Interest

Members of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire Argyll Chapter yesterday were busy at work for the Canadian Cancer Society. With its sister St. Julien organization, it fills IODE community service role in Belleville and district.

Daughters of Empire Force For Good in Community

Two Belleville groups are participating in a birthday celebration today being observed by thousands.

Some 27,000 in facts — and all of them women.

It's the 68th anniversary of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, an organization which focusses its energy on community service on a international scale.

Among the statistics of its accomplishments the IODE:

Spent $494,000 on Canada and developing nations last year — $130,000 of it overseas.

Shipped nearly 550 cases of clothing to the emerging nations.

Is providing a $10,000 x-ray machine to combat Korea's high TB rate.

At home, the IODE is closely engaged in such endeavors as assisting immigrants to adjust to their adopted country, providing materials for underprivileged groups.

In the Northwest Territories alone 56 school have been adopted by the IODE's chapters, along with similar projects in isolated areas of Labrador and Newfoundland.

The IODE also has "adopted" secondary schools in the West Indies, in British Honduras. There is assistance to workshops for the handicapped, schools for the retarded and emotionally disturbed.

In Belleville, there are two IODE chapters, the Argyll and St. Julien, similarly engaged in community work on the local level.

Centennial Year was one of their busiest.

The Argyll ladies sponsored the debutantes presented at the lieutenant-governor's Centennial ball at the armory.

The St. Julien group sponsors the Eastern Ontario Orchestra.

Both groups assist Red Cross blood clinics, and Canadian Cancer Society work and the Canadian Mental Health Association.

A continuing project is the regular entertaining of New Canadians after citizen courts in Belleville.

Currently, both chapters are engaged in a project of lasting importance — furnishing of a playroom in the children's ward at the new Belleville General Hospital project.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were mixed in moderate mid-morning activity on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Industrials slipped fractionally but oils, metals and golds were up.

Among industrials at Toronto, Inco fell 1 to 111 and CPR and Noranda ⅝ each to 51 and 45½. Oshawa A advanced ⅞ to 31¼ and Falconbridge and Beaver Lumber each to 96½ and 42.

Canadian Superior paced advancing western oils, gaining 1 to 38½. Great Plains was up ¾ to 17¼ and Consolidated West Petroleum 18 cents to 2.38 in sales of about 95,000 shares.

In base metals, Denison rallied 1½ to 64, Rio Algom 1 to 29⅝ and Preston ⅝ to 16½.

Dome Mines jumped 1 to 75, pushing the gold index 3.08 points to a 30-year high of 227.38.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 681,000 shares compared with 595,000 at the same time Monday when New York markets were closed on account of Lincoln Day.

Splendid Curling In Spiel

Out of eleven local rinks that started in the bonspiel for The Intelligencer trophy on Monday morning only four skipped by Mrs. Ann Acton, Mrs. Hazel Blair, Mrs. Jane Shepherd and Mrs. Doris Bannon respectively are still in the running. Two of these rinks will be out of the event as they were drawn against each other in the first draw this Tuesday morning. Of the rinks remaining undefeated in the main event, one from Humber Highland in Toronto and the other from the Kingston Curling Club look like the rinks to beat and could meet in the final game for the trophy.

There were no major upsets in the opening rounds of the bonspiel. The girls had perfect ice to curl on and there was a warmth of hospitality in the clubhouse after the games were concluded. After the first round on Monday morning the local rink members entertained visiting curlers at their homes for lunch and a social hour. This afternoon the curlers will enjoy a tea hour before starting the final games of the spiel.

The rink skipped by Mrs. Dixie Rhodes of Humber Highland showed a lot of skill in winning from Mrs. Braine of CFB and then took on a first round winner in Agnes Benn of the local club in the next draw. This was another victory for the Toronto rink. Probably the match of the bonspiel will be when Mrs. Bell of the Kingston Club hooks up with the Toronto entry.

Breakfast Clinic Highlights Canadian Fashions for Spring

TORONTO — Any woman wondering what skirt length to wear should go out shopping with three vital pieces of equipment: a full length mirror, a sense of proportion, and her birth certificate.

This sage advice was given by Lissa Taylor, Du Pont of Canada's fashion director, at a breakfast clinic highlighting Canadian spring fashions presented at the Garment Salesmen Ontario Market.

Held at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, the market sets the pace for retail buying for the new season. Some 1,500 buyers select merchandise from lines presented by 150 salesmen. These are the fashions that will be on sale in stores across Canada this spring and summer.

Mrs. Taylor told retailers that skirt lengths are a controversial point across Canada. Despite some attempts to introduce the "maxi" or "midi" mid-calf length skirt, Mrs. Taylor said she felt it unlikely that the younger set would give up short skirt lengths in 1968. But she sees skirt lengths getting longer — in due course — with the mid-calf length making a tentative appearance for late-day wear in the spring and summer. This could serve to "train a woman's eye" for an acceptance of longer skirts in the future, Mrs. Taylor suggested.

Spring showings at the Garment Salesmen Ontario Market opened to a swinging tempo as Du Pont of Canada presented a song and dance fashion spectacular entitled "How to Make a Buck." Some 1,200 retailers from all over Ontario (plus some from Montreal, the Maritimes and the U.S.) started the day with a lively breakfast clinic as two orchestras played wide awake music and a cast of 20 dancers presented the spring, '68 fashion themes.

Apparel presented at the Toronto market came from Canadian manufacturers across the country. Montreal, Toronto, Vancouver, Edmonton and Winnipeg garment houses were all represented in the show.

Presenting the fashion highlights, the Du Pont breakfast show pointed up a "Return to the Twenties and Thirties" fashion theme. Influenced partly by the current "Bonnie and Clyde" movie, and partly by the natural evolution of fashion, the show was strong on feminine ruffles, side draped effects, knits with V-necks and dropped waistlines, "maxi" (hip length) sweaters, and the blouse-and-skirt look. There were blazers and blazer ensembles, and a total atmosphere of "Twenty-three skidoo" and "Yes, sir, that's my baby."

Accessories were a big part of the theme. Most models wore white tams or berets, pulled well forward over their brows. Scarves were tied around the forehead, like those of early tennis stars.

In color, white predominated, either in accessories, in a smash of total white, or in multi-color or striped dresses in which white was the accent color. Grey and brown emerge as the big colors for spring. In rainwear and sportswear, the hot shades of orange, green and vibrant yellow predominate.

The overall spring picture is dedicated to making a girl look like a girl again. Whether slinking along, a la Jean Harlow, in the crepes and ruffles of the '30's, or swinging in a bubble knit mini-skirt, gone are the days when only the boys could tell the girls from the guys.

For 1968, a girl is a girl again.

Alouette Club Marks Valentine's

Saturday night, the French Alouette Club for Belleville and region celebrated Valentine's Day. Unfortunately, the proposed sleigh-ride for the occasion had to be cancelled due to the shortage of snow at this time and unsuitable country road conditions.

However, 70 members and friends gathered in St. Joseph's parish hall appropriately decorated with Valentine drawings made by Mrs. Bianca St.-Onge, Messrs. Gerard Poirier and Richard Beaulieu. Officers of the club were present to greet the guests among whom was Mr. Julien Pronovost, of Gatineau, P. Que.

The program, music and dance, was under the direction of Mr. Ernie Dempster and his wife, Lucille. All participants enjoyed the various contests, dances and plays conducted during the evening. Dance prizes were awarded to Mr. Julien Pronovost, Miss T. Paquin, Mrs. Huguette Boisvert and Mr. Telesphore Forand. Mrs. Adele Berube prepared the lunch, with the help of other women of the club. The menu included Italian spaghetti, bread seasoned with garlic, banana loaves, sandwiches and tasty desserts.

Door prizes were awarded, in order, to Mr. Olivier Gibault, Miss oLuise Hultquist, Mrs. Rose Hamel, Mrs. Lise Menard and Mrs. Cecile Bedard. Before departing, the president, Mr. Bernard Gagnier, expressed thanks to all for their participation, and in particular to Mr. Donat Clement, chairman of the entertainment committee and vice-president, with his organizers, for the success of the evening; also the women of the club for lunch.

On Sunday afternoon. eleven cars left St. Joseph's parish hall in Belleville, to drive some 60 children to the country where a hay-ride, organized by the Alouette Club, took place.

Adults present to look after the children were Bernard Gagnier, president of the club, Donat Clement, vice-president and in charge of the event, Mrs. Cecile Bedard, Mrs. Yolande Paquin, Conde Berube, Telesphore Forand, and Mrs. Forand, Gilles Morin, Germain Pilon, Alban Beaulieu, Edmond Hall, and Bruno Rivard.

After the ride, all came back to the warmth of St. Joseph's parish hall where the mothers had arranged to have hot chocolate and cookies ready for them under the direction of Mrs. Adele Berube, Mrs. Rejeanne Morin and Mrs. Jacqueline Rivard.

World of Painting Explored at Seminar

The first in a series of art appreciation seminars was held at Corby Public Library last week.

Mrs. H. R. Gibson and Mrs. John T. Lewis read the portfolio from the Metropolitan Museum at the morning and evening sessions. The course is sponsored by the Belleville Art Association and Corby Library.

The subject, What is a Painting, made clear that the world of art is not a mysterious place, although relatively unfamiliar territory to many people. Twelve paintings were presented to the group and it was agreed that "every painting enjoyed through clear understanding will increase our enjoyment and understanding of all other paintings".

The average person never doubts that his enjoyment of Whistler's Arrangement in Gray and Black is derived from the appealing likeness of his mother and the sentimental association with old age. But the real subject is the mood, compounded of gentleness, dignity, reflection and resignation.

Ingres's Madame Leblanc is a projection of the age that produced it and Renoir's personal philosophy made his painting of Madame Renoir a great painting. The picture's message is universal and pure French, with a love and respect of simple things. While Renoir is enraptured by life in its wholesomeness, Degas is fascinated by its fragments.

In Woman with Chrysanthemums this basic attitude toward life and the world is deliberately expressed while in the Mona Lisa, Leonardo de Vinci expresses women's enigmatic quality.

The basic contrast between the romantic and classical point of view is demonstrated in Durand's Imaginary Landscape and Cezanne's Mont Sante-Victoire. The Peaceable Kingdom of Edward Hicks enlarges experience by admitting the viewer to a world of gentle faith.

The seminar concluded with a discussion of good art, bad art and modern art.

Realism in the world as it has been reflected in different ways by painters of different centuries will be the subject of the next seminar.

Classes are conducted on the first Tuesday of each month in both morning and evening.

Wife Prescribes Outside Interests for Frustrations

Dear Doris: I felt your answer to Frustrated was heartless and nil. "Get expert counselling," you say, but where, unless you are in a big city, can you get expert counselling? It does not exist in rural areas.

Maybe you have never lacked companionship with others so could not possibly know what it is like to sit alone by the hour and not have a person to talk to intelligently. My husband does not drink but is a TV addict, also anti-social; does not like to go out or have people in or want you to go out.

How can you carry on a conversation with a person who most of the time is running down other people, or saying how he told them off? The only opinions are his, and yours are all wrong.

I have overcome my frustration a lot by:

(1) Joining a library and reading, with the idea of learning something.

(2) Getting into church work where I am on adult program, giving book reviews and interesting programs.

(3) Taking on a part time interviewing job where I meet all kinds of people.

(4) Taking a correspondence course in bookkeeping

(5) Doing knitting for a Red Cross group.

Maybe Frustrated could try some of the above.

When You Help Others You Help Yourself.

Dear Help: Right. Your example will sow a seed for someone. Skilled counselling has often saved the day, but we still have not nearly enough trained people doing this work.

I didn't mean to be heartless; would have written at length privately, to Frustrated, if she had supplied a name.

City of Winnipeg Acquires Rare Sculpture for $1,000

WINNIPEG (CP) — Barely a ripple was raised on the art world's calm by news that, for only $1,000, the City of Winipeg had acquired a rare Bodi scultpure to grace the foyer of its administration building.

There was some comment:

Alderman Alan Wade, who confessed he was not a student of fine art, said "I don't think we can justify an expenditure for something like this that is non-productive."

Dr. Ferdinand Eckhardt, Winnipeg Art Gallery director, said the sculpture was the work of a young man who lacks technique and artistic experience.

Tibor Bodi, the sculptor, who is 20 years old, said: "I always like to have criticism. After all, it is a basis for learning".

The studio where Tibor spent 250 hours over six months turning out the sheet-metal and iron rod scultpure is the auto mechanics shop at Elmwood high school. There he is worrying his way through Grade 12, thinking of nothing so much as getting into university art school.

His fortune in selling his first major work is "just sortq of a break. I'm afraid it's an illusion."

With his parents and his brother and sister, Tibor escaped from Hungary at the age of 10 after seeing Russian tanks rumble down the streets of his home town.

When he got into high school in Canada he took the art course and proudly brought his first offering, a painting of trees to his teacher. "Trash!" said the teacher.

For a year Tibor avoided art classes. Finally he returned, determined to give up photographic likeness in his art.

He tried modelling clay and turned out an impressionistic head. He was pleased. He sold it.

Ever ready for new adventures, he tried working with welding rod and scrap metal. The result was a small figure. "Good!" said the teacher and suggested Tibor try something big.

So Tibor tried something big — a man, woman and child, called Canada 100, standing 11 feet tall. Again he was pleased. That one he sold to the city.

Tibor Bodi stood amid the scattered auto bodies in his studio and, softly above the murmur of a class at the other end of the room, spoke of his work and of art:

"I can't pinpoint the purpose of art, the truth is different for everyone. Right now I'm interested in symbolism — man's faults, man's good side.

"You have a lot of talk of the futility of war, of racial problems; this is what I want to illustrate."

He said if his work related to the viewer then it was successful. But it would not do to make the message too obvious: "A piece of art gets better if people can interpret it in different ways."

The sculpture he now is working on stands about two feet high. It is to be a group showing a running white woman pulling her child away from a Negro child. The white child's hands are to be reaching out to the Negro.

University means not only a chance to study art and see how other sculptors have overcome their problems; it also means a chance to get a good job, a job that will be necessary, "because I know, for one thing, you can't make a living out of sculpture."

Guests' Ditties for Pineapple Fritters

By MARY MOORE

Remember the old ditty —
"When you eat banana fritters
Every undertaker titters
And the casketmakers
Nearly go insane"?

Well, that does not apply to these pineapple fritters.

What does apply is you. These fritters are attended to by you personally and served hot off the griddle. To span the time lag between the main and dessert courses I provided pens and papers and asked my guests to write a poem about their partner on the right while I was in the kitchen frying fritters. But I insisted on them waiting until I rejoined them before they were read. These dittylike rhymes, some quite insulting, nearly stole the show from my fritters.

PINEAPPLE FRITTERS
(Serves 6)
(See below for variations)

- 2 eggs, yolks and whites divided
- 2 tbsps. sugar
- 1 tbsp. melted butter
- 1 tbsp. lemon juice
- 2-3 cup milk
- 1 cup stirred but unsifted all-purpose flour
- ¼ tsp. salt
- One 20-oz. can pineapple tidbits (well drained, these measure 2 cups)

Before mealtime beat egg yolks with sugar until thick. Add butter, lemon juice, milk, flour and salt and beat until smooth and creamy. When serving time nearly arrives, beat whites stiffly and fold in along with well drained pineapple tidbits. Heat in shallow pan cooking oil or shortening to 1" depth, to 375 deg. Fahr. Dip dessertspoon in hot fat to grease it then carefully spoon batter into hot fat making each fritter roughly 2½" in diameter. Cook no more than 5 at one time. With slotted spoon turn over as soon as bottom is rich gold and cook top. Remove to paper towel to drain for a moment. Serve two to each guest. Pass icing sugar in powdered-sugar-shaker.

NOTE: 1) Never leave the stove while you are frying fritters for they cook faster than you can imagine.

2) Sliced bananas, drained, canned peaches or cherries may be substituted for the 2 cups drained canned pineapple tidbits.

Ann Landers

Wives' Assistance Irks Sales Clerk

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I work in the haberdashery department on the main floor of a well-known men's store in Chicago. Every day I see dozens of women shopping with their husbands. What is this country coming to when a man can't even pick out a suit by himself?

ANN LANDERS

Since you are so frank and forthright when it comes to other people's problems, let's see if you can take it as well as dish it out, Ann Landers. I have seen you in the store with your husband twice in the last six months. Isn't the guy capable of selecting a suit without you? I'll bet this is one letter that will never get published. — THE REDHEAD.

DEAR RED: My husband is perfectly capable of selecting a suit without me but he would still be wearing his high school knickers if I didn't practically drag him into a clothing store. I am willing to bet that most women who show up in men's departments are there for the very same reason — namely to make sure their husbands get some new threads.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please let me be you for a few minutes. I am a 16-year-old girl who has something important to say. I wish someone had told me last year what I am about to tell all the girls in America right now.

Girls: Don't let a guy move in on you as if you owed him exploring privileges just because he asked you out for an evening. The time to put a fellow in his place is at the very beginning — before he makes too many gains. The further he goes the more trouble you are going to have with him. I was one of those dumb bunnies who thought I had to give reasons why a date had to keep his hands to himself.

One thing I learned too late is this: You should never get into an argument over it. This is what sunk me. The guy was a fast talker and I was no match for him. Before I knew it I had lost the argument and I ended up losing something else I had no business losing.

Now I see all things I did wrong but it's too late. The damage is done. For those of you out there who are still virgins, I hope you will remember this letter and think of me when some groovy character tries to take over. — CELESTE.

DEAR CELESTE: Thanks for your letter. And now I'd like to make a suggestion to the girls for whom it is not too late. Clip this column and put it in your compact. When some 8-handed idiot gets out of line and you find yourself on the defensive, pull this column out and read it to him. He will probably fall down laughing but it will interrupt his flow of fancy oratory, at which time you can change the subject.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My father-in-law is a grand person but he needs dental work so bad it makes me sick. I have to cook special food for him because he has so few teeth left. The ones he has left should come out. I lose my appetite when I have to look at the old gentleman across the table, gumming his food.

I've asked my husband to please speak to his father but he refuses to do it. Should I say something or should I be "tolerant" as my husband advises? — A.M.B.

DEAR A.M.B.: Make a dental appointment for the old gentleman and take him to the dentist. You could be adding years to his life. Some older folks die sooner than they should because of poor nutrition — and their teeth cause it.

* * *

Confidential to PEOPLE ARE NO DAMNED GOOD: You haven't 25 years' experience, Mister; you've had one year's experience 25 times. When are you going to start getting smarter instead of just older?

Motel Operators Appeal Ruling On Pools

TORONTO (CP) — The manager of the Ontario Motel Association said Monday the association will appeal an amendment to the Public Health Act that he says could force some motel operators to close their swimming pools.

The amendment classifies motel and resort pools as public and stipulates a lifeguard must be on duty when the pool is in use.

When pools are used by other than motel guests, the operator will be required to supply showers, washrooms and separate change houses for men and women.

Cole Locke, association manager, said in an interview if the regulation concerning lifeguards is enforced, many small operators will have to close their pools. He said many cannot afford to pay lifeguards.

Mr. Locke said the association is preparing a brief to the health department and the department of tourism and information.

He said the OMA, which has about 80 members with pools, was not consulted about the amendment.

Nixon Wants Changes In Release of Information

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon says he would like standing committees of the legislature to have the same access to information from senior civil servants as the press has had recently.

He made the remark in reiterating his proposal that provincial spending estimates be turned over to standing committees with the power to call expert witnesses.

"I have been encouraged to see that the government has broken the ice to some degree," Mr. Nixon said Monday night in a speech to the Toronto Mechanical Constructors chapter of Industrial Management Clubs of Canada.

"Two weeks ago, the minister of education (William Davis) permitted his deputy (Dr. Jack McCarthy) to address a delegation in his absence, and later that day, and again later in the week, to discuss issues directly with the press.

"If he is prepared to go to that extent, then surely there can be no objection to elected members of the legislature enjoying the same privilege that members of delegations and the press have recently enjoyed."

A snow storm prevented Mr. Davis from meeting a delegation representing 29 school boards and 23 municipal councils in southwestern Ontario Jan. 29.

Dr. McCarthy talked to reporters after meeting with the delegation that had come to Queen's Park to protest the government's decision to consolidate school boards along county lines next Jan. 1.

On Feb. 1, Dr. McCarthy spoke to reporters at a news conference Mr. Davis called to explain details of the consolidation plan.

A text of Mr. Nixon's remarks was released in advance of delivery.

Glass Blowing Expert Can't Find Position

TORONTO (CP) — Gerry Van Amelsvoort claims people treat him like whisky—no good until aged.

Gerry, 19, claims to be one of the best glass-blowers in Canada but can't get a good job because everybody believes that anyone younger than 40 isn't old enough to be good.

Gerry says Canadian glass-blowers are not skilled until they are in their 40s because they have to learn their trade in industry, a process that takes years.

He said he learned everything there is to know about the business in four years at a school in Holland.

So instead of working at a university where the best in glassblowing is done, Gerry works for a glass company, which manufactures custom-made scientific equipment ordered by small industries and small universities.

He says he got a job at the University of Alberta only because the chief glassblower there was a graduate of the Holland school and knew age was no factor in ability. But he left the job later because of the cold winters.

While he works here blowing intricate mercury diffusion pumps at $300 each, he says he may have to wait, as whisky does, to grow to an acceptable age.

One Chance Left

Junkin "Fantastic", Crawford Optimistic But Mo-Hawks Lose 5-3

KINGSTON (Special) — If faith were points, Floyd Crawford would have the Belleville Mo-Hawks battling for the OHA Senior "A" lead instead of the eighth and final playoff position.

The Mo-Hawks came close here last night but failed to regain the winning habit and bowed 5-3 to a speedy Kingston Aces squad, leaving them just one more opportunity to pick up some much-needed points.

Despite the loss, coach Crawford was optimistic over his club's chances in Friday's game in Woodstock.

"If the guys all give it as much effort on the small ice surface in Woodstock as they did here tonight and Joe turns in another game like that, we'll come home a winner," he said.

Joe Junkin returned to the Mo-Hawk nets and according to Crawford, "was fantastic."

"In fact the whole crew played well except for a couple of lapses. I feel that the three games in four days and the fact that we didn't have Hec or Mickey cost us the game. Godson was just great again, even with the extra work, and Ralph Plane played a hell of a game too I can't fault anybody out there tonight."

Mickey Cherevaty missed the game with a groin injury and Hec Lalonde was dressed but could not play because of a lame shoulder, both picked up in Oakville Sunday.

The clubs split a pair of first-period goals and Kingston led 3-2 after two heats. The Aces peppered 38 shots at Junkin, many of them labelled, while Neil Perry was also strong in facing 34 Mo-Hawk shots.

Ralph Plane triggered two Belleville goals and Dave Jones got the other, his 20th of the campaign. George Godson, "Weiner" Brown, "Shaker" Baker and Bob Taylor had assists.

Syl Apps paced the Aces with a goal and two assists. The other marksmen were Bob Collins, Bob Olajos, Jim Sprott and Rod Graham.

The Mo-Hawks moved slowly at the start and Apps shoved the Aces up one on a tip-in from the corner of the net at 5.51. Plane got that back, going in to beat one defender on assists from Taylor and Baker, at 12.18. That's the way the period ended.

Junkin pulled off several hot saves early in the middle period but near the mid-way mark, the Aces struck quickly for a pair. Bob Collins notched the first on a rebound 22 seconds after Wayne McConnell went off for holding and Bob Olajos got the other exactly two minutes later. Attempting to pass out from the side of the net, he banked the puck in off Junkin's skate.

A penalty to Apps gave Belleville a lift and Perry robbed Brown and Godson at the doorstep before Olajos was again involved in a deflection goal. Plane's blast from the side shot past Perry off Olajos' foot at 16.57 but a sustained attack for the rest of the period failed to produce an equalizer.

The goalies traded hot shots in the opening minutes of the third before Kingston again moved ahead by two, Jim Sprott scoring at 10.40.

Less than two minutes later, Jones raced in on the front end of a pretty passing play with Brown and Godson — and there was still hope.

It was shortlived. Rod Graham streaked in from the face-off and after Lionel Botly knocked down his first shot, quickly recovered to score on the short side.

In the penalty department, the clubs split six evenly, including fighting majors to Garfield Ball and Bob Taylor.

Oakville visits Toronto tonight in a game that may well help decide the future of the Mo-Hawks. The Oaks are two points back with three games to play.

Leafs Home After Disastrous Road Trip Only To Face High Flying Habitants

By GRAHAM COX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

When Toronto Maple Leafs started their annual road trek Jan. 28, manager-coach Punch Imlach said it would be a period of decision for last year's Stanley Cup champions.

It has, but not the way Imlach expected. At that time, his club was in a three-way tie one point behind Montreal Canadiens, leaders of the Eastern Division of the National Hockey League.

The professional ice show that Leaf Gardens now is gone and stead of being in the thick of the championship battle, Toronto is fighting for dear life to make the playoffs at all.

They played seven games in the period, winning only the first and then managing only a tie the rest of the way.

The final ignominy was saved for the last as they dropped their final road game in the series 2-0 to Los Angeles Kings Monday. They lost 4-3 Sunday to Oakland Seals.

And to make matters worse, players who once were Toronto property figured prominently in both losses.

Eddie Joyal scored the final goal Monday with Howie Menard opening scoring in the first period.

Joyal, who grew up in the Detroit Red Wings farm system, was a Leaf in 1965-66 and 1966-67. The goal was his 13th of the year and his fourth against Toronto, which can boast only an 8-9-2 won-lost-tied record against expansion teams this season.

Sunday in Oakland, the Seals got two goals from Charlie Burns and one from John Brenneman as well as outstanding goaltending from Gary Smith, all former Leaf property.

The goalies were outstanding again Monday with Wayne Rutledge flawless on 31 Toronto drives, including a goal by Andre Hinse that was called back in the third period because it was scored after a whistle.

The shutout was the second of the year for Rutledge.

John Bower was equally brilliant for Toronto, safely handling 32 of the 34 Los Angeles shots behind a lacklustre defence showing the ravages of too many days on the road.

So upset at the showing of his players was Imlach that he ordered them back on to the ice this morning for a two-hour session before taking them back to Toronto.

The Leafs have only one victory to show for their last nine games, and now have the chore of trying to catch the four playoff-bound eastern teams ahead of them.

The Canadians hold a five-point bulge over Boston Bruins, who are a point ahead of Chicago Black Hawks with New York two more points further back. The Leafs are another four points behind the Rangers.

The Kings are third in the Western Division, three points behind Minnesota North Stars and eight back of Philadelphia Flyers, but three ahead of St. Louis Blues.

Wednesday they get a chance to widen the gap a little more by playing in St. Louis while Boston is at Chicago, Philadelphia is at Oakland and Minnesota is in Pittsburgh against the Penguins.

Although Los Angeles outshot Toronto 13-6 in the third period, it was a different story in the first period when Rutledge handled 14 shots including breakaway drives by Ron Ellis, Frank Mahovlich and Wayne Carleton.

Then, in the third period, the Leafs had a two-man advantage for 57 seconds while Doug Robinson and Dave Amadio sat out over-lapping penalties. But they still couldn't beat the 26-year-old Barrie, Ont., native who is on the Los Angeles roster as co-goalie with Terry Sawchuk, another former Leaf.

Olmstead Scouts Own Team

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Coach Bert Olmstead of Oakland Seals went high in the arena for a scout's eye view of his National Hockey League team, hoping to discover why it is floundering.

What did he see?

"I saw a lack of effort, a lack of trying," said Olmstead. "They're not passing and not checking and not skating. Ninety-nine per cent of the time when you're not skating you're not putting out."

Olmstead, a fiery competitor known as a hard loser, was named to the NHL all-star team in 1952-53 and 1955-56.

He still hates to lose. The Seals have won only 10 games of 53 played and are deep in the West Division cellar.

In answer to questions, Olmstead explained why he suddenly turned rinkside direction of the team to his assistant, Gordon Fashoway, and went into the stands.

"I was sick and tired of looking at them," he said of the Seals. "And I'm sure they were sick and tired of looking at me."

The coach at 40. looks as if he still could be a top athlete.

He was a star left winger for Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs.

He plans to scout the Seals from on high for a few more games.

"I'm getting a new perspective," he said. "Maybe the players and I are made of different material.

"When I was playing, if you lost your spot on the line, you were pretty sick and did something about it. You fought to get back into the lineup. Today, players are happy just to sit on the bench."

The Seals were picked in pre-season polls to finish first or second in the new West Division of the six expansion teams. They won their opening game—then flopped.

En route to their current sixth place, they had a winless streak of 13 straight games, 10 defeats and three ties.

They have defeated only three East Division teams, Boston, Toronto and Montreal once each.

Worsley Now Top Goaltender

MONTREAL (CP) — While left winger Bobby Hull and centre Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks remain tied for first place in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race, another battle is going on to see who wins the $500 as top scorer and $250 as runner-up in the second half of the schedule.

Hull and Mikita ran one-two as the first half closed several weeks ago and took home $500 and $250 respectively for that feat. The pair may have enough momentum to carry them to the $1000 and $500 over-all prizes at season's end, but there is a scramble for the $500 and $250 awarded the two players scoring the most points in the second half.

Both Hull and Mikita lost a bit of ground last week in the over-all race, but with 61 points each, they still hold a four-point lead over their nearest rivals—Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins and Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings. Esposito and Howe are locked in third place with 57 points each, while Hull is still the league's top goal-getter with 38.

Moving up the ladder were two New York Rangers—Rod Gilbert and Jean Ratelle—Gilbert took over fifth place with 55 points and Ratelle moved into a sixth-place tie with veteran Alex Delvecchio of Detroit with 53.

Delvecchio leads the league in assists with 36.

Fred Stanfield of Boston is in eight place with 52 points, followed by Ken Wharram of Chicago with 51 and Johnny Bucyk of Boston with 50.

Although he is currently tied for 11th place with Detroit's Norm Ullman in the season scoring, Jean Beliveau of Montreal Canadiens is the leading point-getter of the second half.

The veteran centre and captain has 23 points, two more than Gilbert, Ratelle and Howe in this half. Six players enjoy fifth place in the second-half countdown, each with 18 points. They are Mikita, Hull, Esposito, Wharram, Yvon Cournoyer of Montreal and Gordon (Red) Berenson of St. Louis Blues.

Top goal-scorers in the Western Division since he second half began are Ray Cullen of Minnesota North Stars and Berenson—both with 11. Cullen now is out of action with a hairline fracture of the ankle which is expected to sideline him for two to three weeks.

Lou Angotti, captain of Philadelphia Flyers is the top over-all point-getter in the new division with 45 on 11 goals and 34 assists.

Beliveau and Hull lead second-half goal scorers in the Eastern Divison with 11 goals.

Montreal's netminding pair—Lorne (Gump) Worsley and Rogatien Vachon—widened their lead in the goaltenders' race last week. They have a combined goals-against average of 2.11 and Worsley's personal 1.98 mark is the best in either division.

Philadelphia's Doug Favell and Bernie Parent have a 2.28 average going for them in the nets. Cesare Maniago of Minnesota, Les Binkley of Pittsburgh Penguins and Ed Giacomin of New York share the lead in shutouts with five each.

Noel Picard of St. Louis is the individual leader in penalties with 113 minutes in 49 games. Boston Bruins, however, still lead the team totals with 747 minutes, an average of 13.8 minutes in 54 games.

Monday's game—Toronto at Los Angeles not included.

THEY RE-GREW HAIR!

IN 12 MONTHS
IN 3 MONTHS

Hair Specialist Here Thursday
Will Show Men and Women How to Save
Hair and Prevent Baldness

OTTAWA, Ont. New home treatment methods for saving hair and improving its growth will be demonstrated in Belleville on Wednesday, February 14, 1968 at the Hotel Quinte.

Specialist J. Alberti will be in charge representing the dynamic Roberts Hair & Scalp Specialists organization. He will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 1.00 to 8.00 p.m.

This new treatment is neither "mail order" nor "cure-all" It is adapted to the individual after a personal examination and progress is checked at regular intervals by a Roberts Specialist.

Who Can Be Helped?

Will the new Roberts' treatment cure baldness? "No!" For we cannot help men and women who are slick-bald after years of gradual hair loss But if you still have fuzz and your scalp is still creating hair, you can at least save and thicken what you have. Some conditions, such as "spot baldness" usually have complete coverage if caught in time!

Other conditions that usually bring on excessive hair-loss — dandruff, itching, over-oiliness or dryness, follicle clogged with sebum or seborrhea — can be corrected by the Roberts home treatment if caught in time.

"DON'T WAIT UNTIL IT'S TOO LATE."

Baldness won't wait for doubters to be convinced, you're going to keep right on losing hair 'til you're bald — unless you get your scalp in healthy, hair-growing condition again.

Examine You Free

We want to make it clear that you incur absolutely no charge or obligation by coming in for an examination.

Your only obligation is to yourself. We do not accept cases that will not respond.

Guarantee Satisfaction

The Roberts' Specialists will give you a written guarantee that you must be satisfied within 30 days or it will cost you nothing.

For a free examination and discussion of your hair problems ask the desk clerk for Mr. Alberti's room number. Mr. Alberti does not make appointments so come in at your convenience.

Examinations are given in private.

Angry Nancy Greene Out To Make Up For Poor Showing

GRENOBLE, France (CP) — Today is grudge day at the Winter Olympic Games, and that spells excitement.

Nancy Greene and a bevy of skiing beauties from France, Austria, the United States and elsewhere had one thing on their minds—the gold medal in the women's slalom rainbow.

Miss Greene, the 24-year-old World Cup Alpine champion from Rossland, B.C., was ready to "go for broke" in today's two heats which will decide the slalom winner.

Team sources reported she spent Monday avoiding people and building up a head of anger about finishing 10th in the downhill last Saturday, when she was handicapped by mechanical and technical errors.

Verne Anderson of Pointe Claire, Que., women's Alpine coach, confirmed that the five-foot-four Miss Greene will be going all out today to capture the gold medal which has been her main objective for months.

Today's starry field included Marielle Goitschel, Isabelle Mir, Annie Famose and Florence Steurer of France, Gertrud Gabl of Austria and Kiki Cutter and Wendy Allen of the U.S.

Jean Claude Killy, 24-year-old idol of French skiing, showed the girls how it's done when he grabbed his second gold medal Monday, adding the giant slalom to his earlier downhill triumph.

The second medal event down for decision today is the women's five-kilometre cross-country ski race at Autrans. Toini Gustafsson of Sweden, who won the 10-kilometre race, was the favorite. Canada has no entries.

Also on today's program is the start of men's figure-skating singles with two compulsory school figures.

Emmerich Danzer and Wolfgang Schwarz of Austria and Gary Visconti of the United States, who finished one-two-three in the last two world championships, are competing. Canada's three men are Jay Humphry and Steven Hutchinson of Vancouver and David McGillivray of Toronto.

Two exicting hockey games are on tap as the undefeated Russians played the Swedes and the Czechs meet Canada.

Barbs began flying at the Chamrousse ski centre immediately after Olga Pall won the downhill last Saturday.

"See you at the slalom track," Marielle Goitschel told Miss Pall, a remark that meant more than was evident to the uninitiated.

Miss Pall is not regarded as brilliant in the slalom and Marielle is. The French miss had a better record in the slalom during World Cup competition last year than did Miss Greene, whose best event was giant slalom.

Miss Greene had plenty of fuel on which to feed her growing anger in advance of today's race.

After producing the best times in downhill practice runs, she played the course for more speed than it had Saturday—or as Toni Sailer of Austria said, she was "too hard on her edges" in the downhill's initial stages.

Killy's second gold medal put France even with Norway, The Netherlands and Italy at two golds each.

Johanna Schut won the 3,000-metre women's speed-skating race for the Dutch and Norwegian policeman Magnar Solberg captured the 20-kilometre individual biathlon in other medal decisions Monday.

Killy on the Way

France's super skier Jean Claude Killy moves down the slopes at Chamrousse, France, as he races to victory in the men's downhill ski race. He came down the 2,890-metre course in one minute, 59.85 seconds to capture the gold medal by a slim margin over his countryman, Guy Perillat. (AP Photo)

Brash Jean-Claude Killy Has All France Goggle-Eyed

CHAMROUSSE, France (AP) — Jean-Claude Killy, lionized after winning his second skiing gold medal Monday, was reminded that President de Gaulle would be on hand Saturday to watch him try for the rare Olympic grandslam in the men's slalom.

"Will that make you nervous?" a reporter asked at the press conference following the French ace's victory in the giant slalom.

Jean-Claude threw back his head and laughed heartily.

"No, not at all," he replied. "I think Gen. de Gaulle will be more nervous than I."

It is the trade mark of this rugged, handsome Frenchman, whose daring on the Alpine slopes of Chamrousse has turned him from a national idol into a semi-god and made him the outstanding personality of the 10th Winter Olympic Games.

Killy is brash and cocky. But he is loaded with charm—an easy, confident manner that characterizes most great champions. He skis like a maniac. He has all of France goggle-eyed.

The 24-year-old daredevil of the slopes feels sure he can pull off the triple Alpine sweep of winning the downhill, giant slalom and special slalom as Austria's famed Toni Sailer did in 1956.

Killy is an exponent of the hara-kiri, or suicide, style of racing. He is unorthodox. He violates almost every rule of style in the book. He leans back on his skis sometimes.

He just shoots down the hill like a runaway truck, cutting the flags so close that he leaves them trembling.

Killy made winning look easy with a 1:46.54 clocking in Monday's giant slalom run. Added to his Sunday first run, this gave him a total time of 3:29.28, for victory by 2.22 seconds over Willy Favre of Switzerland. Heini Mesaner of Austria was third in 3:31.83, edging France's Guy Perillat, who had been third after Sunday's run.

Best showing by a Canadian was Peter Duncan's 3:38.17, which earned him 18th place. Duncan is from Mont Tremblant, Que.

The flamboyant Killy will be going for a sweep of the men's Alpine events, a feat acomplished by only one other skier —Sailer in 1956.

But Killy noted at a Monday press conference there are a number of hurdles to leap before the gruelling slalom is decided with two runs next Saturday.

Killy voiced his opposition to the prolonged slalom qualification system instituted here, which spreads the event over three days, and Messner, seated at his elbow, agreed with him.

The man who already has two Alpine gold medals draped around his neck will have to go through all the qualification procedure just as any rookie.

Wednesday he has to compete in the "qualification slalom," apparently to demonstrate he knows how to make a snowplow turn.

If he clears this hurdle, he takes his chances in the "classification slalom," possibly designed to put skiers who don't know how to stop in a separate bracket from those who do.

Then, if he hasn't fallen and broken a leg or been disqualified, he is ready to start racing.

All he has to do win the gold medal is beat the survivors in a pair of slalom runs Saturday in front of President de Gaulle, who is to make a special trip to Chamrousse with full expectations of seeing Killy bring new glories to the Tricolor.

"I ski all year to get ski federation points," said Killy, "and I have been on top of the list for years.

"Yet now I have to go through the qualifying and compete against the British and the Lebanese and the rest just to get into the finals."

Mott's Extra Hours On Shooting Make Him Top Scorer For Canada

GRENOBLE, France (CP) — Morris Mott made an investment six months ago that started paying dividends in the form of goals for Canada at the Olympic hockey tournament.

He invested time. He turned up early at the rookie training camp for the national hockey team last August.

"I decided to go to camp early and concentrate on my shooting," the University of Manitoba history student said in an interview. "I kept at it all season and just lately I feel confident out there that I can hit pretty close to wherever I want."

Mott, 21, is top Canadian goal-getter with five, plus one assist. He plays left wing with Fran Huck as centreman and Ray Cadieux on right wing. The line has produced 11 of Canada's 22 goals in four games.

"I got of about three good shots in the game against the Americans, but their goaler was just too fast," Mott, a three-year veteran, said in reference to Canada's 3-2 squeaker over the United States Sunday.

Huck, 22-year-old political science student, has three goals and three assists. Cadieux, 26, Winnipeg-based chartered accountant, has three goals—two scored against the U.S. including the winner—and an assist.

Defenceman Marsh Johnston with one goal and six assists leads the squad in points.

With the Gary Dineen-Steve Monteith-Gerry Pinder line stalled at one goal apiece for Dineen and Monteith, coach Jackie McLeod is counting on Mott and his linemates for the big games against Czechoslovakia, Sweden and Russia coming up in the next five days starting today.

Canada meets the Czechs today at 3 p.m. EST and Russia plays Sweden at 11 a.m. They are the only games scheduled in the championship competition.

In Monday's Group A play, the Czechs defeated East Germany 10-3, Sweden beat Finland 5-1, and the U.S. won its first game after four straight losses to the top four clubs, crushing West Germany 8-1. Canada and Russia were idle.

The first three Czech wins were by 5-1 scores against the U.S. and West Germany and 4-3 against Finland.

System Horrible But It Continues

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — They're the nine men and women of the Winter Olympics —and no one is more maligned, more feared, more cultivated and more pampered.

They are the judges of the figure-skating competition.

"They can take a dislike to you if they don't like the way you fix your hair, and they can mark you down for it," said one of the women competitors.

"This sport always has been riddled with politics," said an official of the United States team. "You put your whole career in their hands."

A Japanese newspaper, the Tokyo Shimbun, became enraged at the judging in the women's singles last week. It called the system "horrible" and asked: "Is this sport?"

The judges are a strange and mysterious group. They stand around the ice in long coats and with their arms loaded with papers and rating cards.

In the school figures, in which the competitors trace intricate designs on the ice, they get down on their hands and knees to examine the tracings.

Then they line up and flash cards—one for a number and the other for tenths of a degree. The scores come out 5.4, 5.2, 4.8 and so on. The ultimate is six.

The numbers are added—the highest and lowest scores being dropped to prevent bias—and the figure skaters are graded accordingly.

Often the crowd disagrees so violently with the official markings that you fear it might start throwing chairs onto the rink.

The Iron Curtain judges—from the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Romania—almost always downgrade Western skaters. The Western judges hit back by low-rating the skaters from Communist lands.

The International Figure Skating Federation recently took note of the discrepancies in judging and called for the end of politics. The plea apparently fell on deaf ears.

Families and coaches of figure skaters have been known to wine and dine judges to curry their favor. It works.

The word around the Stade de Glace at the Winter Olympics is that Emmerich Danzer of Austria, the world champion, has lost favor with the judges and may not get an Olympic gold medal.

"He's become awfully cocky," a rival said. "The judges notice that."

Lonborg's Recovery On Schedule

BOSTON (AP) — Jim Lonborg's progress in recovering from surgery to repair knee damage suffered in a skiing accident is right on schedule.

The Boston Red Sox' ace right-hander had a smaller cast placed on his left leg Monday, then donned a sock and shoe for the first time in six weeks and cast aside his crutches.

"They told me I'd be in a cast for about eight weeks, and if all goes well, I'll have it removed Feb. 21, right on schedule," he said.

The lanky right-hander, who pitched the Red Sox to the pennant with 22 victories before adding two World Series triumphs last fall, figures he'll be late in reporting to training camp, which opens Feb. 24.

"I've got to go through a rehabilitation period," he said.

Cobourg Wins

Juniors Defeated 13-4

A five-goal performance by John Gray paced Cobourg to a 13-4 victory over the Belleville Junior "B's" in a game played in Cobourg last night.

The hometown Cougars scored three unanswered goals in the first period. Steve Harold scored two, and Gray got the first of his five.

The Belleville squad scored twice in the second period, but Cobourg fired six goals into the Belleville nets to widen the margin. Gray collected three of the Cobourg goals. Gord Brooks, Bruce Ravensdale, and Dave Milne got the others. Rick Rosebush and Doug Potts scored for Belleville.

"The "B's" scored two more goals in the final period but the Cougars replied with four. Pete Fleming and Ron Fuller were the Belleville goal-scorers. Gray scored his fifth for the Cougars, and Harold his third. Bill Ryan and Doug Campbell notched the other Cobourg goals.

The game was a rough one, and 20 penalties were handed out, 12 to Cobourg and eight to Belleville. Six majors for fighting were assessed.

The shots on goal indicate a substantial margin of play for Cobourg. They outshot the "B's" 42-33.

New Madison Square Garden Opened with Bob Hope Special

NEW YORK (AP)-Bob Hope is a fine entertainer. The new Madison Square Garden is an impressive auditorium. The combination, however, did not add up to a happy hour for television viewers tuned to NBC.

The problem, quite simply, was one of size and shape. Hope, with Bing Crosby and Pearl Bailey, performed on an enormous bare platform in the centre of the vast place. While the microphones functioned satisfactorily, the visual part left much to be desired.

Hope and friends were before the cameras during the show Sunday night. The tape was edited to be broadcast less than 24 hours later. It was pretty ragged.

The comedian walked onto the stage with a lot of jokes about the city's strike of sanitation workers—which to New York were like Hope's smog jokes when he is in Los Angeles and his jokes about military life when he is in iVetnam — more amusing to the folks on the scene than in other places.

Bing Crosby and Hope predictably insulted each other with good humor—and some of the time their printed cue cards were highly visible to the TV audience.

Barbara Edcı and some chorus boys had a song-and-dance number that was pretty difficult to handle—Miss Eden had to change costume in front of the audience since there was no place to hide.

Most awkward of all was the fact that all performers, trying to reach the live audience seated around them, circled the platform trailing microphone wires, like restless creatures on long leashes. Much of the time their backs were to the cameras.

The show concluded with a long and unfunny boxing match between Rocky Marciano and Hope—it never came off at all.

Immediately following that special, Andy Williams popped onto the NBC screen presiding over an awards ceremony—the Golden Globes of the Hollywood Foreign Press Association—from the grand ballroom of a West Coast hotel. The facilities, while far from perfect, were a little better for television.

There were a large number of awards, and while handled in the classic manner of the Oscars, it went rather fast. Since most of the fun for the audience in an awards show is looking at the celebrities, it was a little disappointing that so few of the winners were present to pick up their trophies.

While most of the awards were for motion pictures and motion picture performances, the association members chose Mission Impossible as the most popular TV show of the year. Martin Landau of Mission Impossible and Carol Burnett were picked the most popular male and female stars of the medium.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Rangers Hold Practice To Try Out New Home

NEW YORK (AP) — The stockholders can rest easy. The New Madison Square Garden makes ice.

Emile Francis, general manager-coach of New York Rangers, is a stickler for details and he decided to make sure his team would have something to skate on when they make their first appearance in their new home Sunday.

So, Francis ordered a rare Monday evening workout after a tough three-game-in-four-night stretch. He seemed satisfied with the $43,000,000 structure and its one-quarter inch layer of ice afterwards.

"It was our only chance to get the feel of it," said Francis. "I didn't want to have them playing on it without at least one practice on it."

Then Francis winked.

"Besides, I wanted to make sure we wouldn't wind up with a swimming pool when we turned the water on."

Francis can relax. The ice froze. Workmen, who hurriedly constructed the rink for Monday's workout, didn't bother with the regulation white paint underneath, leaving the surface a ghostly gray. The markings came up pastel blues and pinks and the faceoff circles were missing—it was ice.

The new surface is about 15 feet longer than the old Garden.

"It will take some adjustment in our play," said Rod Gilbert.

"Seemed very fast tonight," added Harry Howell.

The club tried to find out about the boards and the different angles the more rounded corners would provide. They spent about 45 minutes on the ice and Francis was satisfeid that they had learned all they needed to know.

Reay Says Hawks Total Disgrace

CHICAGO (AP) — Coach Billy Reay of the champion Chicago Black Hawks has termed his team's play during the weekend against Montreal a disgrace and all but conceded first place in the National Hockey League's Eastern Division to the Canadiens.

The Hawks were trimmed 6-4 and 6-0 by the Canadiens, who lead in the East by five points over Boston and six over Chicago.

"When you give up 12 goals in two games, it's a total disgrace," Reay said Monday. "Everybody has to share the blame. We only had one player, Bobby Hull, who did anything at all. He at least handed out a few body checks.

"No team can touch Montreal from here on in."

Four Goals In Third Lift Napanee To Win

A four-goal final period clinched a 10-5 victory for Napanee over the Belleville Oil Kings in an Intermediate "B" hockey contest in Napanee last night.

Napanee scored twice in the first period. Ron Vanalstine and Willie Menard were the goal-scorers The Oil Kings were held scoreless.

In the second period each team scored four goals. Hylie Bryant scored twice for the Oil Kings, and Jim Woodcock and Carl Boomhower once each. Don Alyesworth, Dave Fox, Rick Gerow, and Paul McGill scored for Napanee.

Belleville outshot Napanee, 11-7 in the third period, but the home team scored four goals to Belleville's one. Willie Menard, Bill McNevin, Dave Grady, and Bob Davey scored for Napanee. Boomhower got the lone Oil Kings' goal of the period.

Napanee outshot Belleville on the game, 30-27, and had five penalties against just two for the Oil Kings.

Birthday Victory For Abby

MOSCOW (CP) — Abby Hoffman celebrated her 21st birthday Monday by winning the 800 metres in the Four Cities international indoor track meet at Tallin, capital of the Soviet Baltic republic of Estonia.

Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., won the men's 880 metres in 1:57.6, shaving five seconds off the local track record.

Miss Hoffman, of Toronto, had a time of 2:13.8.

These were the only Canadian victories in the Monday events dominated by Russian competitors. Teams from the Soviet Union, Canada, Finland and East Germany are competing in the competitions which started in Leningrad and later will be staged in Riga and Moscow.

Minor Hockey

Two games were played in BMHA Juvenile action last night.

In the first, the Tigers edged Amodeo's Aces, 3-2. D. Hunter, B. Curtain and G. Sero scored for the winners. J. Dafoe and T. Sullivan scored for the Aces.

In the second contest, Melrose blanked OSD, 5-0. Doug Botting was the winning goalie. R. Preston, B. Beecher, W. Allen, G. Hopkins and J. McLaughlin scored for Melrose.

Surgery For Orr "Success"

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Bobby Orr, spectacular defenceman for Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, underwent surgery Monday for damaged cartilage in his left knee.

Dr. Ronald Adams, team physician who performed surgery, said the operation was entirely successful and badly needed. He said the cartilage was entirely removed.

To Your Good Health

Freezing Not Substitute for Surgery

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 89 and have cataracts, not yet ready for an operation. I have recently read of a discovery that they can now freeze cataracts away. Is this true? I have, on my own, been putting hot compresses on my eyes. Have I been doing right? — B. S. G.

I'm afraid the article you read didn't make clear what the "freezing" method is all about. The freezing part of it is merely a new method of removing the "cataract" or cloudy lens of the eye. A special probe, kept freezing-cold, is used instead of the instruments usually used to remove the lens.

For certain types of cases, eye surgeons tell me, the method affords improvements over the older methods.

However, this is not a substitute for usual eye surgery. It is just an adjunct — albeit, perhaps one which will prove very valuable. These freezing probes have by now been used many hundreds, perhaps thousands of times, in cases which indicated a need for them.

Meantime, thousands of cataracts are being removed by the conventional methods.

The principle remains the same: When a lens in an eye becomes so cloudy that it makes vision difficult or impossible, remove the lens, and make up for its absence by suitable glasses.

I doubt that the hot compresses you have been using on your eyes have done either good or harm. They may have made you more comfortable, but there is no reason to think that the compresses have retarded (or accelerated) the development of the cataracts.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: I had a prostate operation which was successful but I have developed a dripping of urine and am compelled to wear a drip bag. Do you believe this will get back to normal in time? — J. K.

This is often a complication of prostate surgery, frequent enough so I have devoted part of my booklet, "The Pesky Prostate," to that part of the problem. The answer is that this generally can be relieved but usually it requires more than just waiting for it to correct itself. The booklet describes the things you can do at home to retain control. If you wish the booklet, send 30 cents in coin and an unstamped, self-addressed envelope, plus 6 cents for postage to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Please advise Mrs. T. E. that I went through many tests, and nights of no sleep, with the same symptoms of itching. Result: Pin worms. I pray this helps her because I went through torture with the itch. — Mrs. D. G.

Pin worms certainly should be suspected in cases of rectal itching — not that there aren't plenty of other causes. The "sticky tape" test is such a simple way to trap some of the worms, if they are present, that it is well worth including in tests.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been taking six capsules of dicalcium phosphate, calcium gluconate and viosterol daily for three weeks in hopes of getting rid of my arthritis. My health otherwise is excellent. I am 48. Could any harm result from taking these capsules over a period of years? — E. R.

Probably no harm, but benefits are highly dubious. Treatment for arthritis depends on the type one is dealing with. There is no single form of treatment — diet, vitamins, minerals, or what have you— that will do the trick.

Medicare and Expo May Make Tax Revenue Boost Necessary

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government's spending program for 1968-69 may reach $10,500,000,000 and require an increase in tax revenues of nearly $250,000,000 to achieve Finance Minister Sharp's hope of balancing the budget.

The initial spending program tabled in the Commons Monday totals $10,284,700,000 apart from old age security payments which are met out of the old age security fund, and government loans and investments which the treasury hopes to recover in future years.

Despite the certainty further spending items will be added later to the basic program, Treasury Board President Benson said the government is confident of holding it to the $10,300,000,000 limit set by Mr. Sharp last November.

However, Mr. Sharp exempted two big items from the ceiling he imposed on spending in the fiscal year starting next April 1, and said to the extent they are included, new taxes will have to be levied. They are:

—The cost of medical care insurance where it comes into effect on July 1. It now appears that only Saskatchewan and British Columbia will join then.

—The cost of writing off the federal government's share of the Expo 67 deficit. While essentially a book-keeping item, it will count as a federal expenditure.

Estimates 18 months ago placed cost of medical insurance in Saskatchewan and B.C. at $45,000,000 in a full fiscal year, to the federal treasury alone. It probably is higher now, but it would run for only three-quarters of the fiscal year when it commences July 1.

Thus the additional treasury burden in 1968-69 for medical care insurance is $33,750,000—or more.

The Expo deficit was last reported to be $250,000,000. Final accounting, together with adjustments resulting from realizing some cash return on sale of assets, may change this figure up or down. The federal government's responsibility was for half the expense of Expo, so the additional treasury burden in 1968-69 is about $125,000,000.

When Mr. Sharp presented his mini-budget Nov. 30, he said the additional personal income, tobacco and alcohol taxes, together with speeding up collection of corporation profits taxes, would bring the government to within $80,000,000 of balancing its budget in 1968-69.

That was estimated on the basis of budgetary expenditures in the new fiscal year being held to $10,300,000,000—something Mr. Benson says is still possible.

Paying for medical care insurance in the two provinces, writing off the Expo deficit and balancing the budget would therefore cost the treasury $238,750,000—or more, if the figures are outdated by more recent facts now available to the government.

What course Mr. Sharp might take to raise the needed revenues is, of course, speculation at this stage. It is unlikely that a new budget will be presented before the Liberal party leadership convention here April 4-6.

Officials indicate a new budget is more likely to be presented to Parliament in June when Mr. Sharp—a candidate for the leadership—may or may not still be finance minister.

Tight Rein on Spending Does Not Apply to All

OTTAWA (CP) — A tight rein on federal lending and on programs of the defence, industry, manpower and energy departments is revealed in 1968-69 spending estimates tabled Monday in the Commons.

But the estimates also show that some of the biggest departments of government will buck the austerity trend and increase their outlays by tens of millions in the fiscal year beginning April 1.

The documents tabled by Treasury Board President Benson make good the government's pledge last November to trim its main budgetary program below $10,300,000,000.

Monday's initial estimates total $10,284,700,000, not counting the non-budgetary payments from the old age security fund. The increase from anticipated actual expenditures in 1967-68 is 3.6 per cent.

Mr. Benson's celebrated 51-point outline of spending cuts, announced in the Commons last Dec. 7 and applying to most departments, appears to have served to hold most departmental spending around existing levels.

But finance department estimates total $2,289,800,000, up almost eight per cent from $2,122,694,590 in the current year. The health department is budgeted for $1,521,300,000, up nine per cent from $1,395,535,401.

These two departments are bound by commitments for social security programs and continuing agreements with the provinces that involve fast-rising expenditures every year.

The health department's costs, for example, include an increase of $91,000,000 in hospital insurance payments alone. The finance department must make allocations for rapidly growing equalization payments to the Atlantic provinces, Quebec and Manitoba.

Finance also carries the official charges for servicing the public debt, a burden that will grow by $133,000,000 in 1968-69.

The government has shielded research programs from its restraints, and they will increase by 33 1-3 per cent.

Loans and investments are a big, non-budgetary item that the government is chopping hard this year to relieve pressure on the capital market.

This category, representing authority to advance money that will eventually be recovered, drops to $484,900,000 from $645,105,609.

In the main spending categories, the defence department is budgeted for $1,723,900,000 in initial spending appropriations, compared with actual indicated defence spending of $1,747,269,001 in the current year. The department has put off plans for an Ottawa headquarters and for construction at Halifax and Kingston.

The industry department's initial budget last year jumped by $96,000,000 with allocations for industrial research and technology, shipbuilding subsidies and area incentives. This year the department is held to $160,400,000, down from actual 1967-68 expenditures of $170,586,302. It is dropping the shipbuilding subsidies and cutting down its support for defence industries.

Training programs of the manpower department underwent an explosive growth in 1967, bringing the department's total spending to $413,812,201 from an initial estimate of $312,912,200.

The department is budgeting this year for $402,392,200.

Mr. Benson said Dec. 7 that the energy and fisheries departments would delay many construction programs. Their budgets are almost identical with last year. Public works spending will be virtually unchanged and for the second consecutive year, transport department spending will drop.

The federal government is making a second straight cut in allocations for the Atlantic Development Board, to $38,700,000 from $60,663,000, and the Dominion coal board will receive only $9,100,000, down from $37,263,000.

This provision is made pending abolition of the board, whose functions will be absorbed by the Cape Breton Development Corp. and the energy department.

Reductions in loans and investments hit the CBC, the National Harbors Board, and the Indian affairs, industry, works, transport and energy departments.

Research Escapes Economy Measures

OTTAWA (CP) — Major federal scientific research endeavors generally escaped the belt-tightening spending philosophy in the government's 1968-69 spending estimates unveiled Monday.

The National Research Council and the Medical Research Council together will get a big $21,999,000 increase from the current year in their spending for research grants and scholarships.

Atomic Energy of Canada Limited's research program gets an additional $3,500,000. The energy, mines and resources department emerged with an extra $1,160,000.

NRC's scholarships and research grants program will cost $60,589,000, up sharply from $45,583,000 in the fiscal year ending March 31.

The Medical Research Council's spending climbs to $27,493,000 in scholarships and research grants, compared with $20,500,000 this year.

The spending plans of the two agencies are expected to rise to $145,695,000, up $24,002,000 from the $121,693,000 forecast for this year.

Atomic Energy's research program is forecast to cost $70,000,000 compared with $66,500,000. The AECL and atomic energy control board's spending program totals $74,400,000 against $69,307,000, an increase of $5,092,000.

The energy department's spending is to rise to an estimated $113,825,000 from $112,665,000.

Departmental activities in the fields of mines, minerals, energy and geosciences were forecast to rise $2,325,385 to $59,997,700 from $57,672,315.

In addition, the water and coordination of renewable resources program was expected to cost $48,518,700, down slightly from $51,006,000.

CBC Cost To Be $7.70 Per Capita

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC radio and television service will cost Canadians about $7.70 a head in the 1968-69 fiscal year.

Spending estimates tabled in the Commons Monday put the operating cost of the corporation at $154,200,000, up from $144,000,000 in the current fiscal year ending March 31.

The grant to the publicly-owned corporation does not include an estimated $25,000,000 loan for capital expenditures during 1968-69.

The CBC got loans totalling $30,398,000 for capital costs in the current year.

The 1967-68 spending took in a special non-recurring grant of $7,100,000 for centennial programs. Loans for capital costs reflected the setting up of CBC facilities at Expo 67.

The figures for 1968-69 includes the cost of operating the CBC international service, which beams short-wave radio programs to Europe, Latin America and into the Arctic.

Previous spending estimates listed the international service separately. Cost of this service for 1967-68 was $3,813,000.

Small Rise in Spending

The government plans to increase budgetary spending by 3.6 per cent in the fiscal year starting April 1, the smallest increase in five years. Pay Boosts Push Defence Costs Up

OTTAWA (CP) — A late bill to cover pay increases has pushed 1967-68 defence costs close to the record year of 1956-57.

The government tabled Monday a supplementary spending estimate for the defence department of $59,269,000 to meet added costs because of pay increases for servicemen and civilians during the current fiscal year ending March 31.

This ran the total defence outlay for the year to $1,747,269,000. At the same time, the government tabled estimates 1968-69 expenditures for the department of $1,723,851,000.

The supplementary estimate for 1967-68 pushed the total bill close to the $1,759,000,000 the department spent in 1956-57, tops since the Second World War.

Officials said the extra $59,000,000 was needed because recruiting intake was "unexpectedly high" last summer.

There also was a lower release rate than expected and civilian salaries edged upward.

The bill was higher although there were fewer servicemen and civilian employees at Dec. 31 than when the fiscal year started last April 1.

Military strength April 1 was 105,584 and civilian employees totalled 37,667. By Dec. 31 there were 104,604 servicemen and 37,207 civilians.

By next April 1 it is expected there will be about 102,000 servicemen and 35,000 civilians.

The tabled figures show the department is having a tough battle to channel a higher percentage of its spending into weapons and equipment.

Officials now calculate that for 1967-68 outlays for weapons, equipment and construction will total $278,454,000 — 15.9 per cent of the total budget. The original aim was 17.5 per cent.

The percentage slated for weapons, equipment and construction in 1968-69 is even lower at $265,570,000, or 15.1 per cent of the department's total spending program.

Building and modernization of ships is expected to provide the largest single item in this area — $76,399,000.

Expenditure on aircraft is next at $68,489,000.

Electronic equipment at $31,860,000 and ammunition and bombs at $31,193,000 are other big items. Also forecast is a $9,250,000 outlay for armored fighting vehicles.

The big expenditures for ships and aircraft cover a destroyer modernization program and purchase of the CF-5 jet fighter-bomber due to start rolling off assembly lines in quantity this year.

Doctors' Views Are Divided On Bill Affecting Drug Trade

OTTAWA (CP) — Changes in the Patent Act and the Trade Marks Act designed to bring more competition into the prescription drug business, were alternately praised and criticized in the Commons Monday.

Dr. P. B. Rynard (PC—Simcoe East) complained that Canadian patent laws covering drugs already are weak and that the new bill would discourage incentive and research.

Dr. William Howe (NDP—Hamilton South) described the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association of Canada as "the high profit boys" and praised the bill as "an excellent start on trying to rid ourselves of this monopoly."

Consumer Affairs Minister John Turner was strongly critical of the drug industry in an 80-minute speech explaining the amendments as the House began debate on second reading of the bill amending both the Patent and Trade Marks acts.

He said the amendments will exert a "downward pressure" on prices.

The amendments, which will allow firms to import patented drugs in finished form under licence, will also permit the importing of trade-marked pharmaceuticals from parent firms in competition with their Canadian subsidiaries. They were the first steps in a government scheme to put pressure on the industry to lower prices.

Other proposed measures include:

—A bulletin to physicians informing them about new drugs and new regulations;

—Plans to strengthen small Canadian-owned drug firms which now account for only 15 per cent of Canada's drug business;

—A federal-provincial conference on ways to inject more competition into drug distribution.

Mr. Turner did not set a date for the federal-provincial talks but said that before they were held he will visit each provincial capital to seek government views on ways to step up competition in drug wholesaling.

Dr. Howe said companies have made as much as 9,700-per-cent profit on a drug.

"Illness to the PMAC is their most valuable asset."

He said the industry had sent the most intensive lobby ever seen to fight the legislation, disparaged generic drugs by intimation, brainwashed doctors into prescribing drugs patients did not need and openly fed questions to MPs during the questioning of witnesses by the special parliamentary committee inquiring into the price of drugs.

Connaught Laboratories with annual sales of $7,000,000 and an annual research budget of $2,000,000 had been largely financed from the patent rights on insulin discovered by Dr. Banting and Dr. Best.

Mr. Turner tabled surveys of drug prices in Canada compared with the United States, Britain and five European countries. The surveys showed Canadians paid from three to 20 times as much for prescription drugs as other countries.

Industry profits averaged 20 per cent over the last 12 years compared with 10 per cent for industry in general.

Dr. Harry Harley (L—Halton) co-chairman of the parliamentary committee that investigated drug prices, said the companies could still make a profit under the proposed amendments.

Michael Forrestall (PC—Halifax) called the bill a "serious miscarriage of the intent of the drug prices-committee."

He agreed with the aim of lowering consumer prices, but denied drug prices are "too high."

Richard Cashin (L—St. John's West) replied that opponents of the bill were trying to suggest there is a connection between patents and safety.

Earlier, Prime Minister Pearson announced the federal government will go ahead July 1 with its medical care insurance program, although only one or two provinces are expected to participate at the start.

Opposition Leader Stanfield said the government's decision is inflationary and makes a mockery of Finance Minister Sharp's budget stringency.

The initial spending estimates for the 1968-69 fiscal year were tabled by Treasury Board President Benson.

They total $11,865,732,032, including old age security, an increase of 3.6 per cent over the current fiscal year ending March 31.

The figures do not include the cost of implementing the medical care insurance scheme, nor the writing off of Expo 67's deficit.

Robarts Regime to Confront Strengthened Opposition

TORONTO (CP) — A strengthened opposition armed with a long list of potential talking points promises to make the 1968 session of the Ontario legislature, which opens Wednesday, the longest and liveliest in years.

A provincial election Oct. 17 left the Progressive Conservative government of Premier Robarts firmly in the saddle with 69 seats out of a total of 117, but the 48 opposition seats compare with only 30 in the last legislature.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon will continue as opposition leader with 27 supporters in the house. Donald MacDonald, leader of the New Democratic Party since 1953, will have new-found strength with 19 colleagues to support him. In the last session the Liberals had 22 seats, the NDP eight.

Taxation and education are likely to be the favorite topics of the opposition, with lots of ground work laid by the report of the Smith committee on taxation released last September.

The report proposed a variety of measures aimed at reducing the burden of municipal taxation, but so far the government has picked up only two of them —a takeover of the administration of justice from the municipalities and promise of a "basic shelter exemption grant."

The grant, announced by Premier Robarts before the election, will amount to about $50 off the property tax bill of the average home owner.

Both Opposition parties have criticized the government's silence toward the major Smith committee recommendation that the province assume 60 per cent of over-all education costs compared with the present 45 per cent.

Both parties have called for the government to go even further and pay 80 per cent of the total education bill.

Another government position certain to provoke comment is its announced determination to consolidate school boards on a country-wide basis.

Mr. Nixon said Monday he feels two of the three major issues in the session will be over reform of the tax system and the imposition of the "inflexible" county boundaries in the consolidation process.

Laos Is at Mercy of Reds But Do They Want New Front?

VIENTIANE (AP)-Is Laos destined to become a second front in the Vietnam war? One senior Western military source says Laos "is at the mercy of the enemy," but there is wide doubt that North Vietnam wants a second front.

North Vietnam and Laotian insurgents have forged a vastly stronger and better armed force than have the government troops defending Laos, military men agree. By the best available estimates, there are about 40,000 North Vietnamese and 29,000 Pathet Lao soldiers in the country.

If they launched a full-scale offensive, the neutralist government of Prince Souvanna Phouma, the premier, probably could last only a matter of weeks—barring a major commitment of American troops.

Since nearly all U.S. troops available for overseas duty already are committed, the additional divisions needed in case of a determined insurgent push here would mean calling up the reserves and creation of a vast new supply setup to support ground operations.

It is often recalled that a major factor in the French decision to make a stand at Dien Bien Phu in Vietnam was the assumption that Laos as well as Vietnam had to be defended. In the end this spread the Military French Union forces thin, resulting in the loss of Dien Bien Phu and ultimately of all French Indochina.

American diplomats are said to believe that Hanoi fears expansion of the war to Laos would bring a vast enlargement of the bombing campaign against North Vietnam, aimed at destroying its cities and vital irrigation systems, dams and flood control works.

Diplomatic sources report the insurgents have gone to great lengths to signal Washington that the recent fighting was not meant to move the Laotian war from the back to the front burners. If so, this would presumably mean that Hanoi has no intention for the present of escalating the war beyond what the United States considers a "tolerable level of aggression."

The badly trained Laotian army of 70,000 repeatedly has caved in with only token resistance to major enemy pressures. Laotian battalions are so short of aggressiveness and fighting spirit "they make South Vietnam's army look like panzer divisions in comparison," one qualified source said.

Although a few clandestine American helicopters and a handful of Laotian air force choppers are available, the army has none of the mobility considered imperative in fighting the similar guerrilla war in South Vietnam.

Strictly Personal

Religious Lack Tolerance

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Ponderings and Perplexities:

Why is that when married couples separate, they blame each other for the very qualities that attracted them to each other in the first place?

Why is it that people who consider themselves "religious" show less tolerance and charity toward outsiders than those who do not consider themselves so?

Why is it that adults feel free to comment on the hair-style, raiment, or any other aspect of young people's looks, in their presence, but would consider it intolerably rude if the youths made similar comments about them?

Why is it that a country like Russia, which boasts daily "might," still feels so weak that it cannot allow any expression of divergent opinion in public, and must send to jail or exile anyone who disagrees with its official line?

Why is it that alien residents here will go to any sacrifice of time and energy to become citizens, while native citizens remain so indifferent to the activities and responsibilities of citizenship?

Why is it that we take everything out of bread that makes it appetizing and nutritious, only to put it all back again synthetically?

Why is it that we most respect and appreciate those periods in history when men acted from high idealistic motives, yet we refuse to do the same because "it doesn't pay these days?" (In what days did it ever "pay," in a narrow, materialistic sense?)

Why is it that poor people awaiting trial, who are most dislocated by losing their jobs if they can't make bail, are kept waiting behind bars for weeks or months, while the more affluent and more secure, are promptly released on bond?

Why is it that network newscasters on TV are so highly paid, when most of them seem hardly able to read what is put in front of them, even when 90 per cent of it is a warmed-up rehash of press service news?

Why is it that holidays bring out the worst in people, and calamities the best?

Why is it that most parents keep bringing up their own childhood, in comparing it to the advantages their children have, when those two worlds have absolutely nothing in common, and the children quite properly find the comparison utterly incomprehensible?

Why is it that the only question above that will prompt you to write to me is the one you violently disagree with?

Agricultural Minister Denies Farmers' Union's Charge

TORONTO (CP) — An allegation that the Ontario Farm Products Marketing Board "and perhaps even the minister of agriculture" are discriminating against the Ontario Farmers' Union was denied Monday by Agriculture Minister William Stewart.

The allegation was made by the OFU in a brief to the provincial cabinet presented by a 25-man delegation headed by OFU President Walter Miller of Tara.

The brief said several commodity marketing boards in the province have asked the Farm Products Marketing Board for permission to make grants to the OFU.

"In all such cases the Farm Products Marketing Board either refused or neglected to authorize the request," the brief said.

"We would like to emphasize that in many instances our application to a specific marketing board was favorably received and endorsed," the union said. "This makes it abundantly clear that the matter is invariably over-ruled by the higher authorities at the provincial level."

Mr. Stewart issued a statement following the meeting in which he said the allegation was "not only incorrect but a misunderstanding of the true facts."

He said the only request to the marketing board had come from the Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Growers Marketing Board which had sought the right to give the union a $500 grant. The application said the money was being sought for an OFU "research and education fund."

Mr. Stewart said the marketing board refused the request on grounds more information was needed on the nature of the research.

The provincial board decided last fall that to qualify for grants a farm organization's research expenses would have to be related to the production and marketing of the commodities covered under the plan.

Canadian Shipping Firms Seek Protection

OTTAWA (CP) — United States interests pose a "real and imminent" threat to the existence of Canada's bulk carrier shipping trade, the Dominion Marine Association said Monday.

The statement was contained in a 25-page brief to the water transportation committee of the Canadian transportation commission.

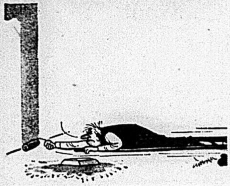
The association asked for amendments to the Canada Shipping Act to prevent "the possibility of being annihilated competitively by the growing U.S. intrusion into the Great Lakes and coastal waters."

The brief proposed that Canadian ship registry be granted only to Canadian citizens or to a corporation which has at least 75 per cent of its stock owned by Canadians.

"There is a gap in Canadian law and in the protection of Canadian-owned ships which can be found in no other country of the world," the brief said.

As the law stood now, any foreign interests could come into Canada, incorporate a wholly-owned subsidiary company and enter into competition with established Canadian carriers.

THE PICK OF Punch



Traitors Believed In Camp Garrison

KHE SANH, South Vietnam (AP) — When the North Vietnamese and their tanks overran the Lang Vei U.S. Special Forces Camp last week, the garrison undoubtedly included Communist agents and traitors, informed military sources say.

The Montagnard tribesmen in the civilian irregular defence group defending the camp four miles west of this U.S. marine base were hired mercenaries who were given no security check and could quit any time they liked.

Since the U.S. Special Forces began its program of organizing the tribesmen in the mountains years ago, they have been plagued with infiltration by the Viet Cong. A Special Forces man who commanded a camp once said he believed up to 30 per cent of his men were Communists.

One senior U.S. officer said that before the Lang Vei attack a Viet Cong ring was discovered in the camp and was crushed. But this undoubtedly did not eliminate all the Communists, sources here say.

Not all the traitors have been mountain tribesmen, Special Forces men say. One was a South Vietnamese sergeant who opened the camp's main gate to the attackers.

The problem of ferreting out the Communists in the constantly shifting membership of defence group teams is unsolvable, one officer said. Too many men drift in and out of the organization, and police records on the Montagnards are virtually non-existent.

But if some defence group men are traitors, some are heroes. American survivors of the Lang Vei attack reported some of their "yards"—slang for Montagnards—climbed up on the North Vietnamese tanks and hurled hand grenades down the hatches.

Impairment Level Will Be Set Too Low

TORONTO (CP) — A member of a parliamentary committee which studied driver impairment for eight months said Monday the impairment level Parliament will probably approve will be too low in relation to the severity of the penalties that accompany it.

Gordon Aiken, Conservative member of Parliament for Parry Sound Muskoka, said in an interview the legislation making breath tests compulsory will make it an offence for a driver to have one part of alcohol per thousand parts of blood in his blood stream.

A convicted driver would be fined heavily the first time and sentenced to jail for subsequent convictions. The bill proposes the same penalties for drivers who refuse to take the test.

Mr. Aiken said the proposed impairment level is "terribly low."

At this level of impairment, "I think as a practising lawyer I could get a client off."

He said a test performed on 12 soldier volunteers after giving them liquor indicated some motorists can be as impaired by a hangover as by the liquor that caused it.

The implication of the study, he said, is that some day driver impairment may be judged not according to the level of alcohol in the blood stream—as it is by a breath test—but by comparing ability to drive when arrested with ability to drive when sober.

Loyalist Building Ready by This Fall

British Girl Lives On Hush-hush U.S. Base

LAKENHEATH, England (AP) — The U.S. Air Force said today a British girl lived disguised as an airman on a top-security nuclear base. She said she wanted to be with her boy-friend.

The London Daily Mail reports that the 22-year-old girl visited Lakenheath base intermittently during a period of two months. One stay lasted three weeks.

Lakenheath is a key European station for U.S. planes carrying nuclear weapons. The girl stayed in a barrack block with 28 airmen. She was not identified.

She told The Mail she walked about in service denims with her short black hair tucked under a baseball-style cap until she was finally discovered during a sudden search for drugs.

"I did it in the first place to be with my boy-friend," she said. "The other boys in the block all kept our secret."

Plan Approved By Province

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A $500,000 contract will be awarded within a month for construction of temporary quarters for Loyalist College.

Provincial government approval for the project was announced today by Rev. H. J. Maloney, chairman of college governors.

The new building will go up on the Loyalist campus site on Belleville's western outskirts and will be ready to house students for the new college term starting September.

Father Maloney says the building, already designed, will have seat space for 700. The college expects second-year enrolment to reach 500.

The project apparently has been organized in detail for some time and has only been awaiting formal government endorsement.

"We have a couple of (contract) bids for consideration," revealed the chairman, "and we hope to have that decided by the end of the month and the contract let by March 1."

The building, said Father Maloney, "would look after college needs for two or three years."

By that time a permanent campus for the community college should be a reality.

Other uses will then be found for the structure, said the chairman.

The flexibility of its design presents "all sorts of possibilities," he added.

Loyalist currently is housed in leased quarters at Centennial Secondary School.

"The building is an entirely new concept," explained Loyalist president J. K. Bradford.

Building section will be bolted together at the site to produce what Mr. Bradford termed a project "breaking new ground for school buildings."

"It has been designed specifically for us," he added.

Father Maloney hoped the college "would still be able to make use of some of the facilities at Centennial — like the gymnasium and auditorium.

Organization of a permanent campus is still in the initial stages, he indicated.

"Our immediate concern has been this temporary building," said the chairman.

Rejection of Peace Bid Brings Troop Despatch

WASHINGTON (CP) — Some diplomatic observers said today President Johnson's decision to send another 10,500 troops to South Vietnam is a warning to Hanoi that the U.S. will not be driven to the conference table under military pressure.

The decision to send the troops came less than 24 hours after a report that North Vietnam apparently rejected U.S. peace moves. It also follows the recent huge Viet Cong-North Vietnamese offensive in the war.

Official confirmation Tuesday that a foreign emissary visited Hanoi within the last few weeks on a U.S. peace mission gave further credence to feelings that Washington's diplomatic patience in the current round of exchanges with Hanoi has grown thin.

Johnson himself told a group of college student editors Monday that the U.S. has "gone just as far as decent and honorable people can go" in offering to talk peace with North Vietnam.

There was speculation here Tuesday that a Canadian acted as the emissary to Hanoi.

However, a Canadian embassy spokesman here said Ormand Dier, senior Canadian representative on the International Control Commission, visited Hanoi on a "specially Canadian mission."

External Affairs Minister Martin said Dier was in Hanoi "on the instruction of the Canadian government and nobody else."

The dispatch of these "insurance" forces does not upset the authorized troop strength limit of 525,000 men expected to be reached later this year. The new deployment will raise U.S. forces in Vietnam to 510,500.

Military officers in the Pentagon express belief further ground force deployments to Vietnam will be necessary and that the current build-up objective of 525,000 will be raised. This also is under study.

Thant Pauses In Paris

PARIS (CP) — United Nations Secretary-General U Thant arrived here today and immediately went into talks with a North Vietnamese government representative, presumably to get a message from Hanoi.

Thant delayed his return to New York, previously scheduled for Tuesday night, after a tour of New Delhi, Moscow and London seeking to open the door to talks to end the Vietnam war.

Thant talked in New Delhi with a North Vietnamese representative, and there were reports in London a message from Hanoi was waiting for him in the office of Mai Van Bô North Vietnam' representative in the French capital.

Medicare Immoral Says Dalton Camp

TORONTO (CP) — Costs of the federal government's medical care plan are going to come out of provincial governments' education budgets, the president of the Progressive Conservative party said Tuesday.

Dalton Camp told a meeting of the York University Conservative Club that "for every province that accepts medicare —and some may be forced—the money is going to come out of education."

Mr. Camp said the program, which Prime Minister Pearson has said will go into effect July 1, is "immoral" and "dangerous to national union."

He said introduction of the plan is "absolutely inflammatory" to the constitutional controversy because Quebec, which opposes the federal program, will be taxed to pay for it.

A Top Bidder

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, rated a top contender for Liberal leadership listens attentively to party workers in Belleville last night. However, the veteran politician had much to tell himself. See Page 3.

Hue Target Of Raids

Quebec in Confederation To Stay Says Minister

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec under a Union Nationale government is in Confederation to stay, Provincial Secretary Yves Gabias said Tuesday night.

Speaking to the German-Canadian Businessmen's Association, the fiery provincial secretary said the present language of Quebec is not one of separatism, but rather a language of a government which wishes to remain in Confederation.

Addressing the association in English, Mr. Gabias added that ". . . it is the language of a free province of Quebec, free but not separate, free but not attached except by liberty and the will of the population."

Mr. Gabias referred to the Quebec brief to the recent constitutional conference in Ottawa, adding that "this was the plain language of the government."

"It was the language for a bigger and better Canada. It was the language of a province that wants to stay in Confederation."

Highways Department Ignored Police Plea

BURLINGTON (CP) — A provincial policeman testified Monday that the highways department ignored his urgent appeal for a sander for an icy section of the Queen Elizabeth Way last month, an hour before a car skidded across the highway median and caused a collision which killed three persons.

Constable L. W. Hebbard was testifying at a coroner's inquest into the deaths of Nelson Campbell, 60, his wife Marjorie, 67, both of Brantford, and Alan Gibson, 18, of Niagara Falls, Ont.

The Campbells died when their car went out of control on a 500-foot-long ice sheet, skidded sideways across the median and was hit broadside by an oncoming car.

Gibson, a passenger in the other car, died five days later of head injuries.

Constable Hebbard said six other cars had skidded off the highway into snowbanks on the same section of the road the same night.

When he called a highways department dispatcher for a sander, he said, he was told only that several other policemen had already made the same request.

Tom Mahoney, safety officer for the highways department, said ice condition warnings from police and private citizens are ignored because sanders have gone on "too many wild goose chases."

The jury recommended improved liaison between the highways department and provincial police.

Biafra Makes Daring Attacks

LAGOS (AP) — The hard-pressed Biafrans are talking peace but making daring attempts to counter-attack in the Nigerian civil war.

The Nigerian federal military regime says it has beaten back Biafran efforts to regain Nsukka, a university town that fell to federal soldiers 10 days after the civil war erupted last July.

High federal officials also discount a Biafran bid for peace talks which brought British Commonwealth Secretary-General Arnold Smith of Canada to Lagos for intensive talks with the federal regime during the weekend.

Moon Trip Dress Rehearsal May Be This Year

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) – Recent successes in the U.S. man-to-the moon drive may permit the space agency to squeeze in three manned Apollo flights this year, with the first launch perhaps two months sooner than scheduled.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration's announced schedule calls for astronauts Walter M. Schirra Jr., Donn F. Eisele and Walter Cunningham to ride the first manned Apollo moonship into earth orbit in the "last quarter" of this year, meaning no sooner than October.

Unofficially, however, sources say the flight could occur much earlier, perhaps August. They point out that current schedules call for the spacecraft to arrive at Cape Kennedy toward the end of March.

The success of the second Saturn V superrocket launching, now scheduled for March 21, plus some key administrative decisions to be made in the next few weeks by NASA planners, will determine whether the Schirra-commanded mission is in fact moved up and whether two manned Saturn V flights are attempted this year.

Navy Capt. Schirra, air force Maj. Eisele and Cunningham, a civilian, will be orbited by a Saturn I rocket, a smaller booster than the Saturn V which will be used to launch men to the moon.

The official schedule now includes another Saturn I launching this spring for a second unmanned test of a lunar module, the craft that will ferry astronauts between the moon's surface and an Apollo command ship in lunar orbit.

The first lunar module test last Jan. 22 was so successful that a second unmanned flight may not be necessary, permitting launch crews to concentrate on the Schirra mission.

The first manned flight aboard a Saturn V officially is not scheduled until the fourth launching of the superrocket. However, project officials have left open the possibility that—if the second Saturn V is as successful as the first—NASA may decide to skip a third unmanned test of the mighty booster.

In this event, the Apollo spaceship now scheduled to fly on the fourth Saturn V could be launched aboard the third, possibly in October or November.

Another trio of Saturn V pilots then possibly could be launched in December for a dress rehearsal in earth orbit of the man-to-the-moon flight.

University 'Salesmen'

Guidance Trends in Education Changing

The whole system of informing secondary school students of university courses and benefits may be changed if a present trend continues.

In Port Hope a few weeks ago about 400 students of grades 12 and 13 and a number of interested parents attended a meeting which was called "university night".

University counsellors, described as "salesmen" by some school officials in this area, visited Port Hope's secondary school "en masse".

Numbering about 20, the counsellors took turns answering questions from the students and parents and illustrated the benefits of the universities and colleges that they represented.

In Belleville the flocking of counsellors to the secondary schools has not occurred in the same manner. According to the guidance directors at the schools, counsellors usually come one at a time.

Quinte Secondary School is the only exception. Mrs. Norma Grant, Guidance Director for Quinte Secondary, had five or six counsellors visit at one time last year.

But what are the disadvantages and benefits of the mass migrations to the schools as opposed to singular visits by the university "salesmen."

D. C. Stirling, Superintendent of Secondary Schools for the Belleville area, thinks it's a good idea, but: "It would have to be very well organized or it would become confusing."

"Undoubtedly the students would gain a lot of information."

In the past universities have had open house wherein students could see the various campus' personally.

Guides were provided for these trips through the classes and lecture rooms.

Mr. Stirling compares the "university night" trend to the "careers night" practise, which already exists in Belleville.

On careers night professionals from all walks of life go to the schools to speak to and interview personally students interested in their occupations.

Mr. Stirling feels that, under another "if", university night might be good if interviewing areas were provided.

"I think any set-up is all to the good. The more the students find out the better."

The guidance directors of the various Belleville schools are slightly more enthusiastic about the idea.

Mrs. Grant calls it a "most worthwhile project."

"But," she says, "the universities are not always willing to do it."

Mrs. Grant mentioned, in the same area, an exposition which is in the bare, planning stages. A week - long fair showing career and school opportunities, is suggested for Belleville in the future. Ottawa and Peterborough have already held such exhibitions.

The two remainnig guidance directors who have grade 12 and 13 students, Harold Mott at BCI and Robert Henderson at Moira Secondary are not so excited about the idea.

"I prefer the old way," Mr. Mott says, "But I wouldn't object to it."

About the single visits by counsellors, he believes, "It allows more time for students to speak intimately with the counsellors."

Mr. Henderson at Moira likes the mass meeting idea with certain conditions.

Like Mr. Stirling he would like to see "personal interviews during the day with a night meeting for parents as well."

"We would assign rooms so the parents could talk to the counsellors as well."

At any rate the futures of Belleville's students are being well taken care of.

Challenge in Elementary Schools Says Quinte Guidance Director

"Canadian universities will grant degrees to twice as many graduates this year as they did only five years ago," Mrs. Norma Grant, guidance director at Quinte Secondary School said yesterday at the annual Ladies' Day luncheon meeting of the Belleville Kiwanis Club.

She was speaking of the challenge of change that must be met by student personnel services.

"The school system is becoming more personal; diplomas and promotions are now becoming the school's business."

Mrs. Grant mentioned that recommendations excusing students from final examinations are possible if marks are good.

"The implication is day-to-day work counts more than the tense studying session before these examinations that completely baffle some students and falsely assure others."

Administrative units are changing and as a result "expansion and decentralization are placing tremendous responsibilities and confidence in local superintendents."

"Department of education personnel have been freed from part of their former role, that of inspection and evaluation, to concentrate more fully on vital needs of teachers and students.

"The emphasis is swinging from strictly academic to developmental goals for the individual. Focus is being placed on the uniqueness of each child by providing for individual continuous progress."

The challenge of elementary school has presented itself, in that "the youngsters count heavily on their parents for reinforcement while the teachers assist with the development of positive attitudes and the acquisition of sound work habits."

Mrs. Grant said there are 2,870,000 people in Canada between the ages of 15 to 19.

"Are the teenagers in this stage between pigtails and cocktails really so bad? Perhaps they have more critics than models."

"Teen-agers are not capricious. They merely require a special approach based on the understanding that their attitudes and problems are different from those of adults."

"In our high schools, students are recognized as unique individuals with potential to be developed."

Mrs. Grant said that the purpose of the guidance department is to offer the student the choice of courses and options.

"Decisions are seldom made for the students. As a guidance worker, I prefer to suggest the alternatives and lead the student to select for himself the alternative most appropriate to him."

"Let's ask ourselves are we, as a team — parents, teachers, members of the community at large, alert to the challenge of change?"

Three Breaks in Watermains Keep Utility Workers Busy

One bad break followed another for Belleville Public Utilities until its officials were wading in a sea of woe today.

(1) A watermain break on West Dundas Street shut off water over a wide area including the Hastings County Home and the big Towers shopping complex.

(2) A similar situation existed in the city's east end where an underground rupture occurred on Porter Avenue.

(3 In the south end, construction workers caused a main break near the city's sewage disposal plant.

Most serious disruption was in the West Dundas Street area, which occurred about 9.15 last night.

More than 12 hours later crews were still trying to locate the break.

On Porter Avenue source of the leak also was being sought.

Film on Shoplifting Viewed by Merchants

There's about $2,000,000,000 worth of articles stoles from Canadian stores yearly." So says Joseph Lister, a representative of Rothman's Pall Mall in Toronto.

And about 260 Belleville merchants and staffs found that out when they attended a film-showing and meeting at the Tiki Club at the Plaza last night.

The films, entitled, "The Shoplifters" and "The Paperhangers" are shown as a public service of Rothman's

Mr. Lister describes them as a preventive measure against the plague of shoplifting and cheque forging that sweeps stores every year.

The shoplifting film suggests that "the greatest deterrent to shoplifters will always be an alert, informed employee."

"Paperhangers", the colloquial name given to phoney cheque passers, can be stopped in their tracks by efficient cheque-cashing procedures, the film states.

The merchants and police officials, who were also present, learned how to establish controls over the actions of shoplifters and paperhangers.

Teaching of Gospel Changed Morals in the 1st Century

Today's conditions with respect to marriage and family life don't look so bad when compared with the situation in Egypt, Italy, and Greece in the first century. Homosexualism, prostitution, abortion, divorce, and adultery were common then. Baby girls and sometimes, baby boys, were frequently left to die.

The Rev. Donald Himmelman of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, had an intensely interested audience as he gave his paper on Family Life in the Early Church to the Ministerial Association yesterday. Morals were at a very low ebb in the first century. Yet it was into this paganism that Paul and others brought the message based on the teachings of Christ and the purpose of His death and resurrection. At Thessalonica a group of envious people said of Paul and Silas before the rulers, "These that have turned the world upside down are come hither also." Unwittingly they were paying these Christians a great tribute.

Jesus in His teaching restored the ideals of marriage and the family life to their original meaning and purity as set forth in the beginning, recorded in the first two chapters of the Bible.

So great was the impact of the Christian message by the Apostles and those that followed, that early in the 4th century, Emperor Constantine of the Roman Empire, accepted Christianity before his death. Later it became the official state religion.

Many lives were changed, even in such wicked cities as the seaport of Corinth. This was done, not by laws but by people finding a new freedom and responsibility through turning in faith to Jesus Christ.

Jesus performed His first miracle at a wedding. His delight in children was demonstrated and His respect for parents was seen in His care for His aged mother.

There's no denying that morals have plunged to a new low in our generation. But far from wringing our hands in despair, it should present us with a great challenge. The gospel which transformed the Roman Empire and gave it a new lease of life, is just as powerful now.

Mr. Himmelman emphasized that the hope of the world is to be found in the proclaiming of the gospel of Jesus Christ.

IN MEMORIAM

CARR — In loving memory of my dear husband William who passed away Feb. 14th, 1967.

Since you've gone first and I remain,
One thing I'd have you do—
Walk slowly down the path of death,
For soon I'll follow you.
I want to know each step you take,
That I may walk the same,
For some day down that lonely road,
You'll hear me call your name.
—Remembered by wife Verna.

CARR — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather William Carr, who passed away Feb. 14, 1967.

God knew that he was suffering,
That the hills were hard to climb,
So He closed his weary eyelids,
And whispered, "Peace be thine",
Away in the beautiful hills of God,
By the valley of rest so fair,
Some time, some day, we know not when,
We will meet our loved one there.
—Sadly missed by son Harold, wife Valerie and granddaughters.

CARR — In loving memory of our dear dad and grandpa William Carr who passed away February 14, 1967.

He had a nature you could not help loving,
And a heart that was purer than gold,
And to those who knew him and loved him,
His memory will never grow old.
—Sadly missed by daughter Barbara, son-in-law Carl and children.

CARR — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather William Whitney who passed away Feb. 14, 1967.

The blow was great, the shock severe,
We little thought his death so near,
Only those that have lost can tell,
The sorrow of parting without farewell.
—Sadly missed by daughter Marilyn, Doug and children.

Canada Will Survive Unity Troubles Paul Martin Tells Hastings Liberals

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Canada's unity may be in crisis but External Affairs Minister Paul Martin is optimistic for the nation's future.

The political veteran — rated current front-runner in the Liberal leadership race — drew res unding applause last night from more than 300 listeners in Belleville as he predicted Canada would survive its unity troubles.

"No one will question that this is a period of crisis in Canada," Mr. Martin told a founding meeting of Hastings riding Liberals at Queen Alexandra school.

But, he added: "I have faith, as you have faith in the future of this country. I have no doubt that we're going to find a way to solve the problems that divide us in a way that's going to preserve the unity of this country.

"And," he emphasized, sparking fresh applause, "we're goin to solve this by ourselves — without any interference by anyone, by any government in any part of the world."

While national unity was a serious problem, "I wouldn't want anyone to think that I'm not optimistic about the result," said Mr. Martin.

However, the problems of national discord should not be held from public scrutiny.

"They're now in the open. That's where they should be. They should have been out in the open a long time ago," said Mr. Martin.

"While the recent constitutional conference failed to achieve a solution overnight it did help new understanding of problems threatening the nation.

He linked regional economic disparities to national discord and called for more equalization of national prosperity.

"We must spread the prosperity of Canada around—and careful government planning, and careful government preparation can achieve this on a much wider scale than we have at the present time," said Mr. Martin.

Mr. Martin's speech also paid tribute to Canada's efforts for international peace.

". . .No country has worked harder since the end of World War II to establish the conditions of peace in the world than Canada."

In Viet Nam Canada has a "frustrating responsibility" on the international truce commission.

"Whateve may be said about Canadian foreign policy, in this regard . . . the record is there for every Canadian to see. We've done our best to try and bring an end to this conflict."

A military solution is neither "desirable nor practicable and we've worked ceaselessly for a ceasefire.

"Every Canadian soldier in arms, wherever he may be, is engaged at the present time in working for peace,' added Mr. Martin.

Hastings Liberals Choose Delegates To Attend Leadership Convention

Democracy may be a vital process, but it can also be a slow one.

Particularly if you're a participant — as Liberals in the new Federal Hastings riding discovered last night.

More than 120 Liberals registered at Queen Alexandra School to launch their new organization in the far-flung constituency created by redistribution.

The situation was compounded by essential side incidents:

(1) Party supporters and public crowded the hall to hear a lengthy address from External Affairs Minister Martin, bidding for the national Liberal leadership.

(2) For the leadership convention delegates had to be selected.

(3) A stampede of nominations for the Ottawa delegation flooded the roster with names — all requiring a vote.

All this beside the task of adopting a constitution, nominating and voting for constituency executive officers.

As a result the meeting, scheduled for 8 p.m., didn't run its course until 1 a.m.

The meeting was launched by Robert Temple, former MP Hastings South and there were other veteran politicians on hand especially for the occasion.

President Clem Nieman and treasurer Ralph Gibson of the Ontario Liberal Association helped supervise the various nominations.

The meeting also brought new faces to a Belleville meeting — some of them from 100 miles distant.

The new Hastings riding was formed from pieces of at least two former ridings, but leaves Belleville with the heaviest vote concentration.

The rest of the bayshore area — including Trenton — is in Prince Edward Hastings.

Acclaimed president of the new Liberal organization was Charles Bates, Tyendinaga township farmer and last president of Hastings South Liberals. Also acclaimed were Louis Maraskas, (secretary) and Rod Cameron (treasurer). Both men are Belleville lawyers.

An election for vice presidencies returned Joel Mazer, Fd McNamara, Bill Thompson, Rick Locke and Marg Kvarda.

However, the executive balloting was slim compared to the avalanche that hit the meeting when delegates were called for the Ottawa leadership convention.

A total of 18 nominations were proposed from the floor and ballots called.

It took nearly another hour to sort out the association's choice and allow weary party workers to adjourn.

The six delegates named were: Charles Bates, Don Bristol (Madoc); Rod Cameron, John O'Flynn, Belleville; Mrs. Rea Callaghan (Bancroft); Frank Follwell, Belleville. Alternates were Mrs. Ross Burtt, Rick Locke and Paul Russell, all of Belleville.

Experience Is Greatest Qualification Needed in Selecting Leader Says Martin

The most experienced candidate of them all last night stressed to Quinte Liberals the crucial qualification of a new party leader: Experience.

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin aired the caution as he bounced into Belleville, seeking to corner party convention way ahead of other runners in the Liberal leadership race.

The next party leader automatically becomes Prime Minister "taking office at one of the most critical times in our history," he warned.

Therefore, concluded the veteran of public service under three Prime Ministers:

"He will not have the opportunity to learn his job. He will not have the chance to experiment. Within a very few hours he will have these problems on his doorstep."

The theme has emerged as Mr. Martin's most telling selling point to date in his bid for the Liberal leadership.

Unflurried by a late plane arrival at CFB Trenton after a busy day in Ottawa, Mr. Martin moves smoothly through a hectic schedule that included:

A cocktail party with delegates from Quinte and Eastern Ontario ridings;

Supper, followed by a question-answer period;

A major address to the founding meeting of Hastings riding Liberals at Queen Alexandra school.

And, between the highlights, the man still rated first by pollsters in the leadership challenge, wove in all directions, energetically exchanging views, small talk and handshakes by the score.

Then, a quick dash to a waiting limousine and he was heading for the waiting plane — and Ottawa.

His flying visit lasted three smooth hours, communicating reiteration of a wide range of Martin beliefs.

First confrontation came at supper in the Hotel Quinte, where about 40 delegates and party workers from Eastern Ontario were joined by Queen's University students.

Queried on abortion by one of the students, Mr. Martin cautioned Canada was a "plural society" and "you can't exercise simply the views that you may have."

The issue likely would be considered by a parliamentary committee which should "recognize the plurality of our society." It should also take into consideration the sentiments "of the religious bodies concerned."

Someone probed him about the monarchy.

"I think we ought to deal with priorities," retorted the External Affairs Minister.

"We're trying to unify our country. And I think we ought to look at these questions in terms of their immediate importance."

Other answers:

Viet Nam: "We've felt that a military solution was neither practical nor desirable . . . We're doing everything we can to bring the situation to an end."

Foreign Aid: "I think this is a must today. We're one of the affluent nations of the world. We've got to recognize . . . that the more fortunate countries have got to share their resources with the less - fortunate countries if we're going to confine conflict in the world. . . .We have no alternative now but to join this work."

Expanding Bureaucracy: : "I think we have recognized this is a problem and it was for this reason this year we embarked on a serious program of retrenchment in order to ensure a balanced budget."

Capital Gains Tax: "As a member of the government I must subscribe to government policy — or get out. I intend to form my own government."

Flag on City Hall Pole Just Won't Blow Away

Cold weather is holding up the taking down of that tattered emblem half way up the flag pole on the city hall tower.

City officials admit the tattered emblem doesn't look good but under the circumstances state it will have to remain until the weather warms up — unless it hopefully blows away.

Actually the flag got stuck some weeks ago when the city hall janitorial staff was putting up a new Maple Leaf national flag.

As the old emblem was being run down it wrapped itself around the flag pole and tore loose from the lanyards.

"There's just nothing that can be done about it except go up the pole and take it down," said a city official today, "and it's been too cold for that."

Two public works employees have volunteered for the flag removal job but they are waiting for warmer weather to make the climb.

"In the meantime we hope the flag will blow away," commented the city official.

Famous Clubs, Eating Places Out of Bounds for Guards

TRENTON — As a rule Canadian visitors to the Caribbean this time of year find a gay holiday atmosphere awaiting them in an inviting setting of tall palm trees, white sand beaches and great expanses of emerald green ocean wherever they look.

Depending on their requirements tourists seeking relaxation and a change from the winter scene can indulge in plenty of free swinging native entertainment, varied stores of tax free liquor in surroundings appealing to the girls that girl watchers watch.

Down in that part of the sun drenched south about the only place not programmed for what is referred to as "the good life' would be one of the remote out islands decreasing in numbers since land developers concentrated on the area in recent years.

Canadian servicemen including 700 Second Battalion Guards from Camp Picton travelled deep into the Caribean with a massive airlift of troops and equipment durin the last week but there is no dream vacation in store for them.

Their destination, a tiny island east of Puerto Rico sounds beautiful, romantic and enticing at first. In reality, however, Vieques Island as it is known is a combat training ground for the U.S. Navy because of its wretched swampland and jungle environment.

The Guards previous to boarding the transport at CFB Trenton for the 1,900-mile trip down were warned to expect mosquitoes and hard biting non poisonous species of centipede while they lived under canvas with most of the other miseries of the tropics thrown in for good measure.

The exercise, a test of air mobility for Canada's UN standby force continues through to February 23, when the troops start flying back to Canada.

San Juan the capital and chief city of Puerto Rico with its famous clubs and eating places just 45 miles from Vieques is out of bounds to the Canadian infantrymen for the duration of the scheme. No doubt it would be like adding insult to injury to remind them of this when they return.

But this kind of party spelled serious business. In fact there was so much business at last night's organization meeting of the Liberal party in new Hastings riding, at Queen Alexandra School, it lasted nearly five hours. Among the chores was election of officers, supervised by Ontario Liberal Association president Clem Nieman, who also gave hand with collecting ballots.

Contractors Show Interest In Community Centre Plans

Both local and out of town contractors are showing interest in the tender call for construction of the city's proposed community centre complex.

Tender advertisements for the community centre appeared Monday in The Intelligencer and also in the Daily Commercial News, and already several contractors have picked up plans and specifications to work out construction cost figures. Tenders close on Monday, March 11.

Plans and specifications are available at the office of Watson and Wiegand, local architects, and also may be viewed at the local builders' exchange.

Architect Paul Wiegand said today that already "several" contractors, including one out of town firm, have been in to pick up plans.

After months of discussion on the project, city council early this year voted to call tenders for construction of the arena.

However, before a contract can be awarded, approval for the project must be obtained from the Ontario Municipal Board and there is a feeling in some quarters that a vote of taxpayers may be called on the issue.

Lest We Forget

There have been two major wars in the past 50 years. Millions of soldiers died during the 1914-18 and 1939-45 conflicts.

And lest anyone has forgotten, there were innumerable civilian casualties. In the first World conflict they were comparatively few. During 1939-45 however, it was a different story. Thousands died -- in Nazi concentration camps, in the gas chambers of Belsen and Auschwitz, or on the roads of France and the Low Countries under the guns of strafing Nazi fighters and bombers.

And again, for those with short memories, which includes most people when it comes to a study of world events, a great many innocent non-combatants died during bombing raids on Britain — and subsequently in Germany too.

Remember London . . . Liverpool . . . Bristol . . . Coventry . . . Glasgow . . . and Belfast, Northern Ireland. In the Ulster capital nearly 1,000 civilians died in three successive night raids during Easter 1941. No one will ever know exactly how many lost their lives in the bombing of British cities. But one thing is sure, they were killed just as dead as in any war before or since.

A friend has reminded us of these wartime occurrences. The conversation had turned to Viet Nam and the tragic involvement of civilians there — men, women and children — who have no official combatant role.

Often however it is their own fault if they get hurt. It is said the United States forces try to warn the civilian populace to evacuate areas where fighting is expected. Instead (as in Saigon) they come out and watch what goes on. No wonder many end up in hospital — or in the morgue.

Then too, communist Viet Cong sympathizers are everywhere among the civilian population. That is another complicating factor in this war in which combatants and civilians are so tragically interwoven.

But do not forget the civilians who were killed in those other conflicts of the past. When they died — under the rubble of shattered buildings, gunned down by strafing aircraft, or in the gas chambers, their going was lamented. But no one paraded the streets with placards. It was war, and right or wrong it had to be fought.

Fairgrounds' Image

The image of Canada's agricultural societies and rural fairs — like the nation as a whole — is in a state of change.

An Ontario government official told the annual meeting of the province's 18 societies in Belleville recently that many individual competitive classes may be changed. He predicted there will be more emphasis on "showcase" or educational displays.

Certainly there is room for new concepts and more imagination in this regard. Successful as rural fairs have been here and in other parts of the province the times are such that opportunities for broadening their scope should not be missed.

Thus, while agriculture naturally will receive the most emphasis attention should also be paid to progress in other spheres. A classic example of this concept, of course, was Expo, and while no rural fair can hope to match that achievement it is none the less an example of the "total environment" approach to the creative activities of the day.

That agricultural societies and rural fairs are prospering is indicated by the fact the societies spent almost $70,000 for agricultural purposes in 1966 compared with $30,000 in 1951.

Societies are challenged to meet changing conditions, F. A. Lashley of the Ontario agricultural and horticultural branch told his Belleville audience. He said there will always be fairs but they may change as a result of population shifts. And not only because of population we might add — but because of natural growth, the trend toward regionalism and change in public tastes.

The suggestion of director Phil Dodds has merit. Make fairgrounds attractive the year round and a credit to the community, he said. Mr. Dodds knows his way around the fairs, having attended 14 of them during 1967. He suggested co-operation with horticultural societies as a means of making fairgrounds an all-year attraction.

Marriage and Morality in 1968

Old Testament Standards Versus 20th Century Liberalism

Letter in The Montreal Gazette

The highly controversial United Press International article, "experts Present Case Against Marriage," which appeared in The Gazette of January 25, will perhaps result in a flood of letters as two factions will argue the case from two irreconcilable sides.

— There is such a thing as Absolute Morality, and it is spelled out in the Old and New Testament: marriage is a sacrament and people must fit it. Morality cannot be adjusted to people's needs and fashion. People must adjust to moral dogma.

— There is no such thing as Absolute Morality. Morality is that code which in a dynamic social state best assures the life and well-being of people at a particular place and time.

The quoted experts obviously subscribe to the second of these views but do not seem to have thought their cure-alls through. It does not follow that when most of the shackles have been removed, the prisoners will be more, or even equally willing to stay captive than at present. And if they are unwilling, are children to receive no more than economic security as Dr. Greenwald is reported to believe?

What about the children born during Miss Satir's five - year contract? Does the man who keeps two households on an average income of $8,000 a year really provide even economic security for his ex-wife and children? Does the woman who leaves her husband ever really compensate him financially for depriving him of love's labor? Is there any evidence to suggest that a simple trial marriage will result in a more enduring follow-up marriage? Here we have one of the thorniest problems of our changing society and our experts seem to be unable to offer a better solution than the average teenager during a discotheque discussion.

To ameliorate the problem will cost a lot of money and take many years. Let us first propose a solvency tax instead of a tax - relief for those who are about to enter matrimony. Let us use the money to train a new type of guidance counsellor and a new type of marriage contract lawyer. Let us then have trial marriages during which couples with the aid of these people work out a marriage contract suitable for the times in which we live and suitable to the needs of each individual couple.

The marriage contracts themselves shall spell out in detail what is expected of each partner, in terms of economics, children, sex, housework, employment and the rest of the easily anticipated, common-household crises. Let each husband pay a stipened to his wife to be held in trust for her and a marriage tax to his government to take care of the results of broken contracts.

At the same time these couples should be taught to understand what a marriage breakdown means for the children. Let the bride and groom visit the juvenile courts, the welfare deparments, the social workers and the mental health workers who regularly have to deal with the frayed ends of failed marriages and careless parenthood. By the time our couple have seen all that and worked out a contract, most of them will have been through their first crisis together.

Let the contract be reviewed from time to time and threats to it dealt with before corrosion sets in.

To live together without children is the simplest thing in the world. Contractual arrangements are hardly necessary. But a complete marriage is a highly complex business to the couple and divorce is a complex business to the state. It would make sense for any government to obtain funds from couples for guidance instead of allowing them to pay it to divorce-lawyers and then making the government and the rest of us pay for their mistakes.

If there is no Absolute Morality we should stop arguing whether to give single people contraceptives but make them available to anyone free of charge. In the long run it would save us millions of dollars on welfare, hospital and mental institutions. If we do not believe in an absolute Morality, the concept of promiscuity has lost its meaning: there is nothing wrong with promiscuous sex, only with promiscuous begetting.

The alternative to this solution is to treat marriage as a sacrament, admit of no breakdown, grant no dviorce. Have children and use them as marriage-cement. Sometimes this has been known to work, sometimes the children get broken as well as the marriages.

What we need is not a commission on divorce reform but on marriage reform. The churches' failure to act is filling the mental health institutions and draining the welfare coffers. No non-legal voluntary association with ex-daddy paying for the kids will suffice as Dr. Greenwald would have us believe. No five-year contract will help us, as Miss Satir believes. No family institute will solve the problem. Let us look the issue square in the face: the mythology is wearing thin.

Times Change In Ireland

Ottawa Journal

The Irish are singing away their differences and in a world of discord it is sweet music.

The Taoiseach (Prime Minister) of the Irish Republic, Mr. John Lynch, recently went to Belfast at the invitation of Capt. Terence O'Neill, Prime Minister of Northern Ireland.

A fine time they had together, taking lunch at Stormont Castle and speaking of the progress the North and the South have made in areas of consultation and co-operation such as tourism, cultural affairs, electricity supply, trade and prevention of the invasion of foot-and-mouth disease from England.

Prime Minister ONeill was given a hearty invitation to visit Dublin and the Taoiseach went home across the border where the Irish used to scowl at each other, and sometimes throw things.

The sweet music? A popular program, "Sing North, Sing South," featuring alternately selections from the northern and southern traditions of Irish folk music, is broadcast every week by Dublin and Belfast television stations. Nocturnal Teen Capers Are Not Everyone's Idea of Fun

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I have a short tale to tell to four (or less) parents, or guardians, of two teen-age morons.

At approximately twelve-fifteen Saturday morning these two clods were kicking over garbage cans on Victoria Avenue near Bleecker and making certain they damaged them as much as they could. Then, brave little souls, they would run. They did this one morning before.

You can imagine how happy the householders and garbage collection men are, especially after dogs and cats spread this stuff everywhere.

Now for a short description of these two beauties. They both appeared to be about 15 years old; both are thin and gangling youths; the boy was wearing something which looked like a toque rolled up to sit on top of his head like a beanie and the girl was dressed in brown plaid slacks and short brown rubber boots. I assume that they were on their way home from the Friday night dance.

If any of you know these two children, tell them to grow up enough to respect other peoples' rights or buy them two all-day suckers to keep them under control, will you please?

A RESIDENT

"Go-Go" Public's Disrespect For Mourners at Funeral

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Two small (?) incidents, observed from a nearby window recently, make one wonder:

During a funeral service in a church, when street and parking lot were filled with cars, a station-wagon drove up and parked in the only open spot, behind the mourners' car immediately behind the hearse.

The young woman driver got out and went into the church by a side door, evidently on business quite apart from the funeral. Her car remained there, very much in evidence and in the way, while a police car came and escorted the cortege from the church.

Meanwhile a bakery delivery truck drew up and parked at the front of a house almost opposite the church, while the congregation were coming out. The driver could easily have turned the corner to the side street and delivered his bread at either the back or the front door of the house.

Is it ignorance, indifference, selfishness or just habitual haste that causes such indiscretions?

Olympic Coverage

Anglo-Irish Influence In Quebec

Windsor Star

There is something incongruous about Premier Daniel Johnson and Federal Minister of Justice Pierre-Elliott Trudeau competing for recognition as spokesmen for the French-origin people in Quebec. Neither is purely French in origin.

Mr. Johnson, as his name implies, is part Irish on his paternal side. Mr. Trudeau, as his second name Elliott implies, is part English-speaking on his maternal side, his mother's maiden name having been Grace Elliott.

There has been a large intermixture of races in Quebec, especially in the Montreal and Quebec City regions. Part of this dates back to the era of Irish immigration, part to the demobilization of Irish and Scottish regiments in Quebec, and part to later intermingling.

Some of the descendants have become "more French than the French" in their culture and attitudes. This phenomenon has its counterparts in other areas of the world, as in South Africa. There was a large influx of French Huguenots to that area in the 17th century, who intermarried with the native Boers. This accounts for the names such as Malan, Duplessis, etc., who have risen to prominence there, often being "more Boer than the Boers."

It is not to disparage Mr. Johnson or Mr. Trudeau to state they are not entirely French. (Rt. Hon. Louis S. St. Laurent had an Irish mother.) But it just may be that their mixed ancestry influences their present attitudes.

Boat Owners Warned About Pollution Threat

Toronto Star

The idea that anyone can dump a toilet into a lake used by the public is repulsive.

Yet that is precisely what's been happening summer after summer in Ontario. More than 29,000 pleasure boats in the province are equipped with toilet facilities and virtually all have been flushing their raw waste into our lakes.

That's why we have no sympathy for the arguments being put forth by some boat owners and marina operators who are complaining now wthat the Ontario Water Resources Commission has decided to crackdown.

Beginning June 1 all boat toilets must be equipped with a container which retains the wastage so that it can be emptied ashore.

Some pleasure boat people argue that the provincial government should clean up industrial pollution of waterways before it talks tough with boat owners.

This is a false argument for the government at least has legislation prohibiting industry from polluting public waters. But until recently it had done nothing to prevent boat owners doing the same thing.

No person should be allowed to dump human wastage in any water, river stream or lake used by the public. This policy has applied for years in the case of cottagers who must install their septic tanks far enough from shore so that no leakage from them will endanger nearby lakes. Why should owners of luxurious boats, which are in effect, floating cottages, be given special privilege to pollute our lakes?

GM Negotiators Return to Table--No Settlement in Sight

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiators are back at the bargaining table trying to settle a strike of more than 23,000 workers against General Motors of Canada Ltd.

As the strike entered its fifth day today, there was no indication a settlement between the company and the United Auto Workers union was near.

Negotiations resumed Tuesday and were to continue today.

A. G. Stapleton, head of personnel at GM's 12,300-worker Oshawa plant, said local negotiations have resumed at Oshawa, Windsor, Ont. and Ste. Therese, Que.

Bargaining invitations were extended by GM to the UAW in St. Catharines, London, Ont. and in Scarborough, where 1,000 workers have struck Frigidaire Products of Canada Ltd., a GM subsidiary.

No meetings were scheduled at GM Diesel Ltd., in London or at McKinnon Industries Ltd. at St. Catharines.

In London, striking diesel plant workers not on the picket line were expected to attend today the first of three two-hour lectures on the aims and objectives of unions.

Edith Welch, educaton committee chairman of UAW Local 27, said the compulsory classes will be held each Wednesday during the strike.

Earlier Tuesday, about 400 salaried workers crossed the picket lines at the plant without incident.

Members of UAW Local 444 at Windsor, who recently ended a strike against Chrysler Canada Ltd., began donating money to raise the strike pay of about 2,300 strikers, members of Local 195.

The international union strike fund provides only $20 a week to single workers, $25 a week to married workers and $30 a week to married men with families. The donations will add about $5 a week.

In Ottawa, Coulter Manufacturing Ltd., producers of door handles, locks, seat adjusters and similar equipment for GM, laid off 75 of its 125 employees because of the strike, company officials said.

The two major areas of dispute in the GM-UAW negotiations are GM's insistence that the shutdown of the assembly line for 30 minutes each shift—for rest and washup—be scrapped in favor of an individual relief system.

Among hundreds of other issues regarding plant conditions is a change in layoff procedures during model change periods.

American Motors Target Date – Feb. 29

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union Tuesday set a target date of Feb. 29 for completion of U.S. national contract negotiations with American Motors Corp.

The union said it hoped to settle "general economic matters and local working agreements" with the United States' fourth largest auto-maker by the target date without calling a strike or terminating the current extension of the old contract.

The old contract covering 25,000 UAW workers at AMC has been extended on a day to day basis since Oct. 16.

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County Council this week turned it's attention to debenture issues and the addition to the high school. Up for final readings was the bylaw to authorize issuing debentures totalling $480,000 for the addition to the collegiate, now under construction. The bylaw went through with little discussion. The amount represents council's share of the one and one half million dollar project. The schedule of payments will mean an annual levy of about $43,500 for 20 years beginning this year.

Mrs. Menard said this morning that she is not giving up hope but "Dr. MacLeod has told both Minnie and me that the sight is gone — or if there is any it will be very little."

"They hope to save the eye itself," she said," and as long as he has that I won't give up hope.".

He has been expecting the worst I guess and he took the news very well.

Contacted by phone Dr. D.E. MacLeod refused to make any statement to the press.

Mo-Hawk coach Floyd Crawford said the club is "shocked" by the news but "we will stand by Minnie any way we can. "There's already talk of a benefit game — perhaps with Kingston — to assist in a financial way."

The injury means the end of Menard's hockey career. He is 34 and was a member of the 1959 world champion Belleville MacFarlands after scoring 50 goals the previous season to tie a senior league record.

CPR Given Right to Operate Centralized Phone Service

TORONTO (CP) — The CPR was authorized Tuesday to replace 24 Ontario ticket and station agencies in the Trenton division with a centralized phone service.

The authorization was granted by the railway transport committee subject to delivery to the committee of a signed agreement between the company and the railway clerks organization.

The company must also arrange for heating and lighting of passenger stations from which agents are being withdrawn.

One local CPR official said the move would mainly involve smaller stations that already service little traffic.

There was no indication that the CPR Trenton office would be affected.

The CPR station ticket office in Belleville has been closed some years and there is no passenger traffic over the line between Toronto and Montreal.

L. R. Smith, vice-president of CPR's eastern division, said at a public hearing the company needs the centralized phone service to cope with the pressure from other modes of transportation.

Unless the railways are successful in meeting the competition and changing patterns of transportation, Canada will suffer the consequences, he said.

The hearing was called to consider the firm's application to replace the agencies in the 601-mile network of Trenton division with the new system for passenger and freight service.

The Trenton division extends from the outskirts of Toronto to MacTier, 50 miles north of Barrie, and to Smith Falls in the east. It includes Midland, Peterborough, Cobourg, Belleville, Perth, Oshawa and Kingston.

Included in the application is a request to drop package freight service to Port McNichol, Myrtle, Canadian Forces Base Borden and Bonarlaw.

Mr. Smith said all transportation facilities were studied before any decision was made to introduce the new system. He said passenger service in the areas would not be affected.

Under the customer service centre system, passenger service offices will be located at Peterborough, Kingston, Belleville, Trenton and Oshawa. Customers at all other communities will be able to use a pre-paid telephone system for passenger information and freight information.

Retired sea captains, that's who.

It's funny what you hear about Seagram's Mellow 83. Like, it's the whisky for old fogeys. Or, only retired sea captains drink 83. We know different. All kinds of people are drinking 83 these days — and for the best of all reasons. They like the mellow, mellow way it tastes. Who are these individuals? Well, they weren't born in 1883. And they certainly weren't born yesterday.

Readers Ask for Gourmet Recipes

By MARY MOORE

The majority of reader-writers asking for help with their budgets want more casserole recipes and different recipes for using ground beef. I mail them out by the dozens.

But when I receive letters from ambitious hostesses asking for more gourmet recipes I leap to the challenge.

During the Christmas deluge of mail I received requests for preparing Rock Cornish Game Hens and mailed the methods immediately.

Since these little birds are getting more commonly used by our Canadian hostesses I tried a really gourmet treatment: boned-out Cornish hens baked on a bed of barley and rice. You see the traditional wild rice stuffing is not only expensive (in addition to the cost of the birds) but not stocked by many grocers.

ROCK CORNISH GAME HENS ON BARLEY AND RICE (serves 6)

6 Rock Cornish Game Hens (see below re boning out)
½ cup pearl barley
2 cups water (or Cornish Hen Bone broth)
1 chicken oxo cube (see below)
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup long-grain raw rice
1½ cups hot water (or Cornish Hen Bone borth)
1 chicken oxo cube (see below)
melted butter

NOTE: To bone out frozen Rock Cornish Game Hens they must be half thawed. Ask the head meat cutter in your butcher department to do this for you. He can remove the ribs, breast and back bones. Leg bones are usually left in. If you cannot persuade your butcher to do this ask him to open the birds by splitting straight down the backbone.

If you have the bones leftover from boning out cover them with cold water and simmer covered until meat will fall away from bones. Drain and reserve liquid. (Chill bones. For future meal you can strip off the meat clinging to them.) If you do not have bone broth use the 2 cups water and 1 chicken oxo cube listed in ingredients. In double boiler add 2 cups bone broth (or water and cube) to raw barley and cook covered 2 hours until tender. Spread over bottom of large shallow buttered roasting pan. Sprinkle raw rice over and add hot water in which you have dissolved second bouillon cube. Stir rice to mix with barley. Place over-ready boned-out or split Rock Cornish Game Hens overlapping on top. Brush generously with melted butter. Bake 1½ to 2 hours at 325 deg. Fahr. If desired at halftime brush again with butter. To serve transfer birds to any kitchen plate, spoon barley-rice bed onto preheated platter, arrange birds over top garnish with parsley or heated button mushrooms. Serve one bird on some barley-rice to each guest.

Ann Landers

Fiancee Given Clump Of Dirt as Gift

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've been going with Mervyn for three years. We are not officially engaged but I am expecting a ring on my 22nd birthday which falls next April.

ANN LANDERS

Last month Mervyn won a trip to London in a sales contest. I was very proud of him because I know how hard he worked. I know, too, he was up against some mighty stiff competition. Mervyn said he would be too busy to write but he promised to bring me a nice gift.

Last night he came to the house, straight from the airport. The first thing he said was, "Here's your gift, honey. Hold out your hand and close your eyes." I was so excited I was actually shaking. I couldn't believe it when I opened my eyes and saw the clump of dirt he had placed in the palm of my hand. "It's genuine British soil," he sighed. "I couldn't take you to London so I brought London to you!"

I managed to say, "Thank you, dear," but I had a hard time concealing my disappointment, Ann. Do you think I am materialistic and unsentimental because I was expecting something more gift-like? — DOWN TO EARTH.

DEAR DOWN: Mervyn wins another prize — one for ingenuity. A clump of dirt is an unusual gift, to say the least. Furthermore, it is something a person can pick up at the last minute and bring in duty free.

It would have been nice, however, if the big sport had taken the time to go into one of those lovely British shops and purchased a small token of his affection. It needn't have been costly, mind you, just a little something with a ribbon around it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I had a fight with my sister-in-law and decided to let her know exactly how I felt. So I sat down and wrote a 10-page letter — a real blockbuster. I reviewed all the petty things she has done to me in the last 10 years. It took me three hours to write that letter and then I walked to the mailbox and mailed it.

When I got to bed I couldn't sleep. I kept thinking maybe I should not have written some of those things. I remembered the times she helped me out when my kids were sick and how she was the first one at the house when my husband was hurt at the factory. After a few miserable hours I decided I had been too hard on her and the letter was out of line. So I put on my clothes at 12:00 a.m. and walked to the mailbox to see when the next pick-up would be. It said 7:20. The next morning I was at the box at 7:20 to get the letter back but the postman wouldn't give it to me. I argued till I was blue in the face but he refused.

Well, Ann, my sister-in-law received the letter and that ended our friendship. I blame the postman. He could have been a good fellow and given me the letter if he wanted to. What is your opinion? — DALLAS.

DEAR DALLAS: The postman could also have been fired for being a "good fellow." All letters become the property of the postal authorities once they are dropped in the box.

Actually, it is sometimes possible to retrieve a letter by filling out a form at the Post Office. But the best thing to do with a letter written in anger is to drop it in a drawer, not a mailbox. Re-read it after 24 hours, and if you still want to mail it, go ahead. The chances are 10 to one you'll tear it up.

Valentine Greeting in 19th Century Style

Dear Readers: Today I received a lacy Valentine from my special browser - in - old - book - stores.

Pictured on front are a boy and girl strolling, his arm around her shoulder, a rose in her hand. Lift up this flap and find the greeting, which goes like this:

"CONFIDENCE
"I will believe you fond and true
And trust my heart with thine, —
It will be joy indeed, dear one,
To be your Valentine."

The original postmark on this little gem was Hamilton, Ontario, February 13, 1880. The much embossed envelope bore the name and address of the confident lover's ladylove. Stamp is a three-cent-er, bearing the profile of Queen Victoria (who else but?).

I hope they got married and lived happily ever afterward.

Dear Doris: Ten years ago a relative begged us for a large sum of money, which he promised to repay in three months. Since then he has made only one small repayment and that was over five years ago.

When we see him (at infrequent family gatherings), he either says "business isn't doing too well" or "the future looks a little more promising", but that's as far as it goes.

I am not angry, but ten years seems a long time to wait for repayment, when out of the goodness of our hearts (seeing he was a close relative and seemed in desperate need) we helped him.

How can I word a letter to ask him to pay at least something on it? Mr. and Mrs. E. N.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. E. N.: Let's hope you have some evidence of that one payment, five years ago. Debts are outlawed in seven years, dating from the last time one can show written proof that the debt is acknowledged, as by a payment on account.

I haven't much charity for a debt-forgetter like that, but try this:

"Ten years ago you begged for money. You were desperate; we were family. We gave it to you.

"We aren't rich and weren't then; and we are still meeting heavy expenses.

"If your situation is better — and you say it is — now is the time for you to make a substantial payment. Please let me hear from you by the end of next week."

And let me whisper: He probably thinks by now that you are just a couple of soft touches who don't know how to stick up for yourselves.

Dear Doris: What do you think of girls who can't drink only a limited amount of liquor, but get plastered every time they see a bottle?

Would you say they are socially unstable or just being rebellious—especially against parents?—A Booze Controller.

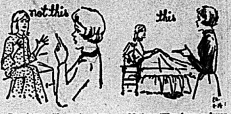
Dear Controller: Some of each. Liquor is an escape; either from themselves or someone else. Trouble is, alcohol induces another kind of slavery: to the bottle!

• • •

(Are you in doubt about the proper etiquette to use for your special occasion? Ask Doris, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for her reply.)

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Daughter: "I can't stay home from the dance just for a cold. Everybody will be there. You just don't want me to have any fun!"

Mother: "Oh, for heaven's sake. Have your own way — but don't expect me to sympathize if your cold gets worse."

Mother: "You have a fever and the doctor says you should stay in bed. I'm sorry about the dance, but it's too risky to get out in the cold. You might end up with pneumonia."

Teen-agers may be inclined to put pleasures and social life ahead of health — but parents should have more common sense than to permit it.

DON'T STARVE

LONDON (AP)—Starvation diets don't work, a Scottish medical team reported in the current British Medical Journal. The three Edinburgh doctors told of a man who weighed 410 pounds and lost only 20 in two weeks in a hospital on vitamins and unsweetened liquids only. Six months later he weighed 410 again and in two years he was up to 491. They said all their other patients in the test lost some weight on diet but soon had it back.

Fashions for Young People Will Be Definitely Casual

MONTREAL (CP) — At 24, Alain Dore, a Montreal fashion designer, knows what the young set wants and has already oversold his spring line.

"The emphasis in fashion for young people is definitely casual, virtually eliminating strictly sports lines," he says.

The young designer, still known to his friends as Allan Golden, took time out from his work in Montreal to travel to New York when he was only 21. There he worked for four fashion houses gleaning as much information as he could and haunting boutiques and shops, discotheques, Greenwich Village and other youthful scenes.

Alain had to start from the bottom in the fashion industry and his story is one of long hours of hard work.

"I was 17 so I got a job working for my uncle in the family's dress concern. I thought I'd stay there only for the summer but as it turned out I remained seven years."

Alain was trained by the head designer and used to work from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. including Saturdays and Sundays.

"The training came after my regular working hours and it was hectic. But I guess my enthusiasm kept me going.

"Once I returned to Montreal I realized I'd have to change jobs because uncle's is basically a copyist house. There was little chance for creativity."

Alain said there was a new determination among young Canadians to become leaders instead of followers.

"We can do and are doing it. The old ideas that something new has to come from outside is dead. Canadians are becoming leaders now instead of followers and it took Expo and Centennial to prove it."

Now with Playmate Casuals, the designer can buy the fabrics he likes and create the designs he likes.

His fabrics, for the most part, are acrilan and cotton blends, washable, with colors leaning to phosphorus hues. The prices are attractive.

Minis are still with us, says Alain, but he has included a five-inch unpressed hem in some of his garments, leaving it to the individual to take it up or down.

Bells are another innovation the designer wants to spring on a fun-loving young clientele and he plans to attach tiny ringers to necks, sleeves or belts.

Couple Quietly Marks 62 Years of Marriage

DESERONTO — Mr. and Mrs Percy Stover of 436 Main St. were married 62 years ago today, on February 14, 1906. They are among Deseronto's oldest residents, Mr. Stover brought here as an infant in 1881, and Mrs. Stover coming from her Kingston home as a bride.

On leaving school Mr Stover worked as a printer's devil in the office of the Deseronto Tribune, and then for two years in the sash and door factory of the Rathbun Co. From that time until his retirement in 1944 he was connected with the grocery business first with A. G. Bogart, and finally, with Cuthbert Sager, buying the Amos Richardson store

The lives of both Mr. and Mrs. Stover have centred around the Methodist, and then the United Churches where both have held practically every possible office. Mr. Stover has been a member of the official board since he was 21. He is now an honorary elder. He was treasurer of the church for 40 years and Sunday School superintendent for nine. They seldom miss attending the Sunday services.

Both have vivid memories of the days when Deseronto was a thriving town of close to 4,000. When asked his opinion of the decision of the town council at its latest meeting to install a sewer system, Mr. Stover echoed the expressed opinion of practically every citizen of the town. "We should have had them years ago. Now Deseronto will begin to grow again," he stated. Mr. and Mrs. Stover have made no plans to celebrate the day.

Multiple Sclerosis Group Founder Has Courage and Sense of Humor

MONTREAL (CP) — "Several weeks ago I went through the process of dying," said Evelyn Opal, her voice quiet and steady.

"It was one of those periods when multiple sclerosis patients get worse. When I got to the gates of hell someone told me I hadn't had enough. I'd better get back into the world and fight. They would call me when they had room."

This type of courage and sense of humor has carried 53-year-old Mrs. Opal through 33 years of crippling multiple sclerosis. It made her the founder of the Canadian Multiple Sclerosis Society in 1948 and subsequently president of the Montreal Association for Multiple Sclerosis from 1954 to the present.

She was named to receive a centennial medal from State Secretary Judy LaMarsh for her tireless efforts to raise funds for research and treatment and possible discovery of a cure for multiple sclerosis victims.

"I'm not going to die for a long time," said Mrs. Opal in an interview. She tapped her long silver and black cigarette holder against a large, flat ashtray.

"I'm not trying to impress you. When I discovered I could no longer hold a cigarette between my lips I was determined not to give up smoking, so I got the holder which I can grip between my teeth."

Paralyzed almost completely from the neck down, Mrs. Opal spoke of her struggle and her battle from the wheelchair to help conquer the disease for which there is no cure. She spoke of her husband "who wasn't smart enough to run when he met me but is very lucky I married him."

"I was 20 when I got multiple sclerosis. . . . When I became paralyzed I cried out the same question everyone asks when something terrible happens to them. Why me? Why did God punish me?

"Ours was a religious Jewish home. I remember papa turned white when I asked the question, then he looked at me steadily and said: 'God didn't punish you, he just frightened you.'

"I never questioned God again. . . Today He's my best friend. You see, I found God because I got multiple sclerosis.

"I had to get it in order to start an organization which would help the 20,000 Canadians who have the disease. If I hadn't become a victim myself, I would never have waged the war for research and treatment. I just would have donated a couple of dollars to a local charity."

At 53, Mrs. Opal is still president of the Multiple Sclerosis Association in Montreal which boasts a total Quebec membership of 800. The Montreal association is in the process of joining forces with the Multiple Sclerosis Society of Canada.

She was instrumental in fighting for the establishment of clinics at local hospitals which would provide the multiple sclerosis patient with physiotherapeutic treatments and with drugs. She started fund-raising campaigns, was responsible for seeing the provincial charter granted to the association, sold subscriptions, drafted letters, made hundreds of phone calls and sat through freezing temperatures in a wheelchair after surgery for bedsores, while a group of younger people ran a bucket brigade to raise funds.

"No task is too much when it's for multiple sclerosis," said the dark-haired president. "We have 20,000 patients in Canada and many, many more haven't been diagnosed as multiple sclerosis victims. They need help and help takes money."

The cause of the disease which attacks the nervous system is unknown. Some theories suggested are: viruses, lack of essential cell constituents, allergy, and defects in fat metabolism.

Although no cure has been found, there is treatment aimed at control of the symptoms.

"Multiple sclerosis is a disease of the brain and spinal cord," said Mrs. Opal. "Some patients experience periods of remission during which they get better and symptoms disappear sometimes completely for months. During one remission when I was much younger, I regained the ability to walk. But then we have periods when we grow worse."

The disease is called "multiple" because it attacks several areas of the nervous system at once. It is "sclerotic" because it leaves scars—sclera—where the protective covering or myelin of the nerves is destroyed. Without myelin the normal functioning of nerves is impaired.

"Multiple sclerosis is like a steep icy hill. The higher you climb the more you slide back. But I'm lucky. I'm one of the luckiest people alive.

"Do you know, everyone's my friend.

"The telephone operators who make my calls for me because I can't dial are my friends. We even exchange recipes!

"I have a wonderful husband who many times used to carry me down three flights of stairs, piggyback, so we could go on the town and have fun. And my only child, Minda, now in her early 20s, has been a tremendous and loving help and inspiration to me."

Mrs. Opal has admitted she is tired.

"I've devoted the last 33 years to raising funds and establishing research centres. Some day a cure may be found but in the meantime the organization needs young people to keep it going. Young, active members have to take over from the tired members."

Still Fun to Learn to Cook

TORONTO (CP) — Adults apparently aren't the only ones. Even girls born in the age of TV dinners enjoy spending spare time learning to cook, to grow food, to make their own clothes.

Indication that this is true lies in the fast, steady growth of 4-H Homemaking Clubs. At a time when both membership in clubs and rural population are declining, the clubs have doubled in size in 10 years.

They now have 14,445 girls in 2,459 local groups. The age range officially is 12 to 26. The average age is actually 14.5. In common with other young people's organizations, 4-H Homemaking shows a drop in membership at about age 15 and again at high school graduation age, though it does have a respectable sprinkling of members through the top age brackets.

Jean Scott says she thinks much of its success is because the program is useful and requires personal accomplishment.

Miss Scott is supervisor of junior extension for the Ontario department of agriculture and food. She has been a department home economist in several regions.

Club projects are suggested and approved by the girls, which keeps them fresh and presumably of current interest. The suggestions must fall within general categories of food or clothing work. Once accepted they are worked out in detail by department experts.

In Centennial Year, all the groups chose to do a project on Canadian food. They learned something about native foods, favorites introduced here by various peoples, and they made some of the dishes.

"The girls do try all the recipes, it isn't just a case of getting an idea."

In other projects they might make a dress, grow a garden, give a party. A current suggestion is a project on basic embroidery.

Miss Scott says another reason for the group's success may be that each member gets recognition for what she accomplishes. There is a system of certificates for completed basic units up through county and provincial honors.

The clubs are organized around county units. Projects are chosen by county. Each local club has a volunteer leader. They are trained for each project by a home economist who oversees the clubs in one or more counties, depending on size. She is supposed to visit local clubs, and she judges the members' completed work.

There is a provincial 4-H homemakers' conference every year, attended by about 200 girls. There are programs for 4-H girls at the Canadian National Exhibition and fairs at London, Ont., Peterborough, Ont., and Ottawa.

The Canadian council has an inter-provincial exchange of members, and sends delegates to a congress in the United States.

The clubs were formed in 1935, with 200 local groups and 1,000 members, each of whom made a cotton dress.

Although there is no formal connection, Miss Scott says Women's Institutes are considered "Godmothers" to the 4-H Homemaking Clubs.

GOT OUT

HONG KONG (AP) — More than 50 men and women smuggled themselves out of Red China into Hong Kong in a stolen junk, government authorities disclosed. No names were mentioned while officials decide what to do with them, but a woman doctor among them was said to have been a lecturer at Canton Chungshan Medical College.

The Experts Say

Student Should Try to Develop Career Goal

OTTAWA (CP) — A student should try to develop a career goal because he will find it easier to work up to his potential and avoid the crisis of overnight decision-making, says Earl Murdock, an Ottawa guidance counsellor.

"Even an unrealistic goal is better than none," advises the head of guidance at Champlain high school and past president of the Ontario School Counsellors' Association.

An unrealistic goal could be modified and channelled in more practical directions while still serving to motivate the student.

But the high school boy or girl who lacks a goal—even though he or she may have high potential—may not be driven sufficiently to work to capacity.

"As early as Grade 9 the student should look into many fields. When he makes an educational decision, he is to some extent making a vocational decision. He is casting aside alternatives."

The student examining career possibilities should take full advantage of career nights at school, class talks by counsellors and discussions with parents.

"Since the choices he makes in Grades 9, 10 and 11 may channel him into definite courses in the top grades, he must look carefully at his own abilities and interests and seek counselling if in doubt."

In the final school years he must have a more detailed and comprehensive view of vocations because he is trying to narrow the field.

"And in Canada," Mr. Murdock says, "there are more than 14,000 vocations to choose from."

Pamphlets, films, group discussions and parent-student-counsellor interviews are valuable helps provided by the school.

The guidance counsellor, with a wide range of material at his fingertips, may have the key to which of the more than 3,000 universities and colleges in Canada and the U.S. the student should devote several years of his life and thousands of dollars.

"Here it is step-by-step decision-making. An overnight decision becomes a crisis.

"Another very great help to graduating students is on-the-job experience.

"We have information on thousands of occupations in the files but this really comes alive when students make contacts with people in the field.

"Our own experience has been that almost any man or woman working on a particular job is willing to talk about it with an interested youth."

Harsh Words Traded

PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP) — A North Korean representative said today there will be war unless the United States gets out of Korea. The U.S. delegate replied that the North could ensure peace by stopping acts of aggression.

The harsh exchange came at a meeting of the Military Armistice Commission called to discuss charges by the United Nations Command of armistice violations by the North Koreans. There was no discussion of the fate of the 83 crew members of the Pueblo, the U.S. intelligence ship seized by North Korea Jan. 23.

Meanwhile, U.S. special envoy Cyrus Vance extended by still another day his visit to Seoul, where he is trying to patch up U.S.-South Korean differences over U.S. priorities in Korea.

The South Koreans have complained that the United States is paying more attention to the Pueblo incident than to the attempted assassination of South Korean President Chung Hee Park Jan. 21 by 31 North Korean commandos who invaded fined the union $80,000 for defy-

Rear Admiral John V. Smith, senior U.S. representative on the armistice commission, cited the assassination attempt today and said there had been 74 other serious truce violations by the North in the last 44 days.

"The decision whether there is peace or hostility depends upon the whim of an apparently irresponsible North Korea," he said. "Your side can have peace merely by unilaterally stopping acts of aggression.

"You must stop dispatching armed murderers into the Republic of Korea."

North Korean Gen. Pak Chung Kook glared at Smith and replied: "We don't want war but we are not afraid of it."

He said North Korea would match buildup for buildup, blow for blow "and all-out war with all-out war" if it should come to that.

Pak added that it would come to war unless the United States agreed to "take your bloody hands off Korea and withdraw from South Korea."

The only mention of the Pueblo was a charge by Pak that the United States was taking advantage of the incident to make "full preparations for war" and create a climate in which hostilities could be touched off "at any moment."

New Talks To Be Held On Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — The garbage crisis comes full circle today as Mayor John V. Lindsay and the sanitation union sent negotiators back to the bargaining table for new efforts at reaching a permanent contract settlement.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and legislative leader were unable Tuesday to break the deadlock over his mandated end to New York City's nine-day garbage strike and turned to Lindsay for help—as he had turned to the state six days earlier.

Lindsay, appearing to have the initiative again, said the city would resume discussions with the union if sanitation men stayed on the job and the legislature deferred action on Rockefeller's plan to take over the city sanitation department.

Paul O'Dwyer, lawyer for the Uniformed Sanitationmens' Association, agreed to the mayor's terms and talks were set.

In their telegram to Lindsay, the legislative leaders said only they would defer action on the politically sticky bill for 24 hours, but it was made clear that the postponement would continue as long as productive negotiations continued.

Meanwhile, State Supreme Court Justice Saul S. Streit fined the union $80,000 for deying back-to-work orders from the courts early in the strike, and suspended the union's dues checkoff rights for 18 months.

State law forbids strikes of public employees and John DeLury, president of the union, now is serving a 15-day contempt sentence for defying the court orders issued under that law.

DRINK COMES FIRST

The males of some species of moths and butterflies gather in swarms around mud puddles to sip water—then go looking for mates.

He Doesn't Want Money

Clint Wescott, who says he's been on the bum for 15 years, lights up after refusing $19,219.68 waiting for him in two New York banks. It's money owed Wescott on a gas station he built in Burnt Hills, N.Y., and abandoned in 1935. Wescott, 51, explained: "Hand me a dollar. I'll take it — buy a little drink, a little smoke. But I don't want the nineteen thousand." (AP Photo)

Liberal Joins Conservatives in Attack On Commons Bill to Cut Drug Prices

OTTAWA (CP) — Government legislation aimed at cutting drug prices ran into unexpected cross-fire in the Commons Tuesday as a Liberal back-bencher joined Conservatives in attacking it.

Raymond Rock (Montreal Jacques-Cartier-Lasalle) said the bill would jeopardize Canadian jobs, the future of university graduates, the balance of payments and the drug industry itself.

It would also destroy inventors' property rights, he said, and should be sent to a House committee where critics could put their views on record.

Conservatives criticized safety guarantees as the bill was debated for the second day on second reading.

The Senate, meanwhile, returned from recess a week early to open debate on the government broadcasting bill, passed by the Commons last week.

The drug legislation before the Commons would amend the Patents Act and the Trade Marks Act to allow broader importation of patented drugs in finished form under licence.

It would also permit the importing of trade-mark drugs from foreign firms in competition with their Canadian subsidiaries.

Liberal members have argued repeatedly that the measure has nothing to do with drug safety, but Conservatives Tuesday continued to raise questions in that area.

Richard Cashin (L—St. John's West) who accused Conservatives of using scare arguments planted by the drug industry, came under sharp attack from Mr. Rock, a fellow-Liberal.

He said Mr. Cashin's speech sounded like a snow-job, and suggested he would be playing a different tune if the bill allowed importation of cheaper fish—or if Mr. Cashin had drug firms in his constituency.

Marvin Howe (PC—Wellington-Huron) said Canadian drug firms have operated with an enviable record of safety and reliability for years.

"But what guarantee is there in the case of imported material, originating we know not where?"

He asked Consumer Affairs Minister Turner to give serious thought to this aspect "in order to avoid the horrible tragedies to which Canadians and many thousands who live in other countries have been subjected in the past."

David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North), said Dr. P. B Rynard (PC—Simcoe East), who spoke against the bill Monday, wanted to give the drug companies "a licence to continue stealing from the people of Canada."

Criticism of the bill had given the impression that there would be a great danger if Canadians were allowed to buy drugs under their generic names, as opposed to brand names, Mr. Orlikow said.

But the "facts are very plain" that every hospital in Canada used generic drugs, and they would not do so unless they were safe.

J. Angus MacLean (PC—Queens) said the drug industry was being depicted as a "grasping, bloated" one, but the myth that it was any better or worse than other industries had not been proved.

Several Conservatives urged referral of the bill to a committee for study, but Mr. MacLean indicated this might be avoided if the government would accept some changes.

Trudeau to Make Decision Shortly

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Trudeau either comes in or gets right out of the Liberal leadership race this week, informants say.

He's expected to enter. If he does not, he will surprise many of his supporters counting on him as the French-Canadian Quebec candidate.

Mr. Trudeau is expected to say one way or the other by Friday. He has been under pressure to run from colleagues as well as from a developing groundswell of public opinion.

Both Mr. Trudeau and Manpower Minister Marchand, the party's Quebec leaders, were to discuss the former's candidacy with Quebec MPs and senators at the group's regular weekly caucus meeting today.

Mr. Marchand, who has been urging Mr. Trudeau to run, was to use his influence to swing the support of the bulk of the Quebec caucus behind Mr. Trudeau.

It was thought that the Quebec caucus would have a clearer idea of Mr. Trudeau's leadership intentions after the meeting. It was not thought Mr. Trudeau would announce his decision at the meeting. Rather he was expected to use it to help him make the final decision.

If Mr. Trudeau comes in, he would be the 11th official candidate, leaving only Trade Minister Winters as a major doubtful starter.

If Mr. Trudeau enters the April 4-6 leadership convention, observers feel it would shake up the support lines and plans of the other seven major contenders.

For one thing, Quebec delegate votes would cease to be a happy hunting ground for all candidates. The Trudeau-Marchand combination would work for a fairly solid bloc from their home province.

In particular, two English-speaking candidates from Quebec, Consumer Affairs Minister Turner and Eric Kierans, retired president of the Quebec Liberal Federation, would be in a stiff new fight for home-province support.

No Canadian Autonomy Clause in Merger

SUDBURY (CP) — There is no guarantee of Canadian autonomy in a merger agreement signed last April by the United Steelworkers of America and the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers union (Canada), an Ontario Supreme Court judge was told Tuesday.

"If the United Steelworkers were sincere at their convention in 1966 and were going to allow Canadian autonomy, it should have been written into the agreement," said one of two men seeking to have the agreement ruled not applicable to their union local.

Norman Stephen, financial secretary of Sudbury Local 598 of the Mine-Mill union, said that "once we come under the Steelworkers constitution some members will be placed in a position that they couldn't be members. . . .

"To be in Steelworkers you have to be careful of politics," he said. "You cannot be a member of the Ku Klux Klan or Communist party, for example, a freedom we now have in Canada."

Stephen and Joseph Astgen, vice-president of Local 598, are plaintiffs in the case being heard by Mr. Justice Maurice King. They seek a ruling that the agreement, approved in a vote at a mine-mill national convention last June, is not binding on their local; and that the administration set up by the national executive after expulsion of Local 598 officers later in the year is invalid because the officers were not given a trial.

Railroaders Meet Cabinet

Prime Minister Pearson listens to a spokesman for the Canadian Railway Labor Executives' Association read its annual brief to the cabinet in Ottawa Tuesday. Upper right hand corner is association representative Charles Smith of Winnipeg. (CP Photo)

Sharp Words Exchanged By Cabinet and Labor

OTTAWA (CP) — Sharp words were exchanged Tuesday between the cabinet and the Canadan Labor Congress over government handing of the economy.

Prime Minister Pearson firmly rejected the CLC's allegation that economic policies adopted in the November budget are a concession to the "rich and powerful" at the expense of the wage-earner.

Donald MacDonald, acting president of the 1,500,000-member central labor body, countered that the poor employment outlook for 1968 can lead to no other conclusion.

Later in the two-hour session Mr. MacDonald clashed with Manpower Minister Marchand over the CLC's opposition to a labor bill now before Parliament that would revamp the Canada Labor Relations Board.

The occasion was the annual presentation of the CLC brief to the cabinet, a 13,000-word document that featured heavy criticism of Ottawa's economic decisions and the controversial labor bill.

The prime minister said the CLC's proposals for federal stimulation of the economy were "the wrong kind of advice" in th current financial situation. Heavy spending would lead to bigger deficits, higher taxes, increased prices and the threat of recession.

Mr. Marchand criticized the CLC's attack on the labor bill. The brief said it would destroy national bargaining and is a political gesture to the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

The minister, former president of the CNTU, said the aim is to give workers freedom to belong to a union of their own choice. Opposition to the measure was "propaganda."

Mr. MacDonald countered: "I say to you in all seriousness there has never been such a threat to industrial peace in this country."

Later in the day, Mr. Pearson met a separate delegation of 75 railway union leaders and heard more criticism of the bill, which would amend the basic federal labor statute.

Labor Bill Will Stand

OTTAWA (CP) — NDP Leader T. C. Douglas asked the government Tuesday whether it will consider withdrawing a controversial labor bill in view of strong Canadian Labor Congress opposition.

"No," said Prime Minister Pearson, adding in a Commons exchange that the government is anxious to see that the bill, called blatantly partisan by the CLC, gets an exhaustive study in committee.

French-Canadian Charges London Union with Discrimination

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — An Ontario Human Rights Commission board of inquiry heard 10½ hours of testimony Tuesday before reserving its decision on a charge of discrimination laid by a French-Canadian electrician against a union and two of its officers.

Professor Harry Arthurs of the Osgoode Hall law school in Toronto, chairman of the board, said it would be some weeks before he reaches a decision.

If he finds that Maurice Ruest, 40, has been discriminated against, the commission could take legal action through a civil court.

Mr. Ruest, discharged from a construction site near Embro, Jan. 18, 1967, charged he was discriminated against because of his ancestry by Local 120, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, William A. Nicholls and Fred Turner, the local's business manager and secretary - treasurer respectively.

In his testimony Tuesday, Mr. Nicholls said Ruest was discharged from a construction site because he did not qualify as a journeyman electrician.

Mr. Nicholls also denied that he had ever said anything derogatory about Ruest or about his ancestry.

Mr. Nicholls said he first became suspicious of Mr. Ruest's competence in November, 1966, when E. A. Moyse of London, Local 120 president, visited the Embro project and returned wondering why Mr. Ruest was on the job as a journeyman electrician.

Mr. Moyse had worked with Mr. Ruest in Windsor and considered him to be a "helper," not a journeyman electrician, Mr. Nicholls said.

He said he phoned John McInnis, business manager of Local 773, Windsor, to check Mr. Ruest's status and was told that Mr. Ruest, who worked in Windsor from 1964 to April 9, 1966, was fired from one job and laid off at two others and was considered a "helper."

Earlier, Mr. McInnis told the inquiry that Mr. Ruest had "poor" work practices and was only hired because there was a shortage of qualified journeymen electricians.

Mr. Nicholls said he asked Mr. Ruest to write a City of London licensing examination as a guideline for determining whether or not he was a qualified journeyman electrician.

Mr. Ruest wrote the exam on Jan. 14 and failed the test. He was dismissed from his job four days later.

Bev Du Maresq, a former president of Local 120, testified he had a conversation with Mr. Nicholls late in 1967 in which Mr. Nicholls said "I don't want any goddamm Frenchmen around here."

"No I didn't say that," Mr. Nicholls said during cross-examination.

Mr. Du Maresq denied the union has ever discriminated against anyone. "We just don't have it."

Alberta Taxes Will Go Up As Oil Revenues Are Lower

EDMONTON (CP) — In the Alberta legislature, as in the best of families, the big arguments probably will be about money after the new session opens Thursday.

Premier E. C. Manning has said there will be "no major new bills" introduced. But he has referred more than once to the Social Credit government as taking a "hard look" at tax rates.

Ebbing oil revenues and last year's $67,000,000 budget deficit are the problem. Provincial Treasurer A. O. Aalborg has said the budget can be balanced without new taxes—such as a sales tax—if spending is held down and if present taxes are raised. Alberta is the only province left without a sales tax.

The deficit and oil revenues have given an eager new opposition something to talk about. Most of the aims announced by Progressive Conservative Leader Peter Lougheed have to do with the government's financial policy.

The six Conservative members, all newly elected last May, join one new independent and three re-elected Liberals as a 10-man opposition in the 65-member house. They are the largest opposition since 1959, when the then 61-seat legislature included 24 opposition members, 15 of them Liberals.

Saskatchewan May Levy $2 A Day Fee to Limit Hospital Use

REGINA (CP) — Higher taxes and controversial legislation are likely to make this year's session of the Saskatchewan legislature livelier and longer.

Several key bills, important reports and a probable tax increase will occupy the house during the first session of the 16th legislature which opens Thursday.

The Liberals, under Premier Ross Thatcher, consolidated their hold on the legislature in the Oct. 11 provincial election and now holds 35 seats to 24 for the New Democratic Party in the 59-seat house.

Provincial Treasurer D. G. Steuart said last month provincial taxpayers shouldn't be surprised to find a tax increase in the 1968 budget. He said people and government were living beyond their means and the "day of reckoning has just come."

Raising the provincial sales tax to six per cent from four is one possibility. Another is imposition of a deterrent fee of $2 a day for patients in hospital.

Increased taxes on liquor and tobacco were also being considered, but recent federal increases are thought to have made this unlikely.

One bright budget note: Entry of the federal government into the medical care insurance field July 1 will save the Saskatchewan government more than $10,000,000 annually.

The general outline of legislation planned at the session will be contained in the speech from the throne read Thursday afternoon by Lt.-Gov. R. L. Hanbidge.

Among bills known to be on the schedule is one amending teacher bargaining legislation.

In its original form, it would have introduced area bargaining, instead of bargaining with and by individual school boards, and would have taken school principals out of the bargaining units. The teachers protested and it now is believed the section dealing with principals has been deleted.

Another topic will be the matter of government examination of expenditures by the University of Saskatchewan.

Shortly after the election, Premier Thatcher announced th-t the government would demand detailed information on this, and was immediately swamped with protest from the academic community.

Another Problem for Saskatchewan

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative MPs questioned Tuesday how portability can be retained in the national medical care insurance plan if only two provinces are participating when the plan begins July 1.

Dr. P. B. Rynard (PC—Simcoe East) asked whether the government has abandoned the portability principle.

"No," replied Prime Minister Pearson, who announced Monday the scheme will begin on schedule.

Davie Fulton (PC—Kamloops) asked whether Mr. Pearson was "satisfied that a trip to Saskatchewan from one other province and return comes within the definition of portability on a national scale."

Only Saskatchewan and British Columbia have indicated they will be ready to join when the plan begins.

Society Names Awful

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I met these people who have just moved into town and they seem most eager to break into what they fondly imagine is "society" — although, as the old lady said, what passes for society in America, outside of Boston and Philadelphia, is a very sour joke indeed.

At any rate, they asked me (and I can't imagine why me) the best way to go about it, and I said the first thing they had to do was to change the names of all their four children — who were called something like George, Kenneth, Susan and Marcia.

Because, in imitation of the British upper classes (who are about as endearing, futile and silly as any group can be), the cream of American cream would not dream for a moment of calling any of their children, or friends, by something as banal as a real first name.

"George," I told these wistful climbers, "must be called Go Go. Kenneth must be called Blick. Susan has to become Frappy. And Marcia must be addressed only as Crumpet."

Under no circumstances short of a military wedding must their true names ever be used. And it would also be helpful if the mother and father became known, instead of Edward and Edith, as Crocker and Poof.

Since hereditary noble titles are, of course, non-existent in America, and the Old School Tie is scarcely distinguishable from anybody's $2.50 repp, the baby-type nickname has become, faute de mieux, the identifying mark of the elite, soi-disant or otherwise.

For years, I have been running across people regularly whom I call by such jovial idiocies as Tum-Tum and Scraggley and Woof and Yammer and Nips and Kips and Flips — without the slightest idea of what their Christian names really are. They would be horrified, mortified and insulted if I ever addressed them as Charles or Elizabeth. That is not playing the game.

And the name-game has, so far as I can tell, three rules: the name must be asexual or bisexual, so that no outsider could possibly tell if Quag or Pomsey is a male or female; it must have no meaning whatsoever, as if its derivation were lost in noble obscurity; and it has to sound infantile, as if it had been bestowed by some primordial, cosmic Nanny.

I thought of all this today, when three valentines arrived at my office, from Tiggy, Spunker and Zim-Zim. I hope to God they're all girls.

Salvation Army Offers Musical Tribute To Belleville Bandmaster, Jack Green

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Jack Green's world always has been alive with the sounds of music.

Suitably, his retirement has inspired a musical tribute from the organization to which he dedicated his talent: The Salvation Army.

Just two weeks from now the Army will mark his demobilization as its Belleville bandmaster with a program of spirited music only Salvationists could muster.

The salute also is a measure of Jack Green's place in an organization which prizes musical prowess.

His personal niche has been carved during nearly 60 years' service, teaching trips around and outside Canada. It glitters with trophies—scoops at music festivals spanning two generations.

For 30 years he has attached himself to the Army's Belleville citadel, 19 of them as bandmaster.

Spurning professionalism, he worked as a railroader until his retirement and now patrols a school crossing four times daily.

His cheery figure is a nimble, known sight to scores of youngsters and workbound pedestrians at the Footbridge.

His talent, apparently, has been its own reward: the only acknowledgement he treasures has been Salvation Army membership.

He reveals his attitude this way:

"The Army has been my life. It's given me a busy life and I've enjoyed it. If I had it to do over again I wouldn't change a moment of it."

But there's something else.

Jack is a native of Maesteg, Wales, and his memories recall the total musical environment of his childhood:

"In that place there were three prize bands, besides the Salvation Army. There were four prize choirs, besides the finest children's choir in the world."

Music was a Welshman's birthright, something even worth fighting for:

"I remember the night three choirs came home after competing in a festival with only half - point between them. There was an argument and then a big fight outside the railway station and the police force had to be called out."

Violent attitudes also have their place in the memories of many a veteran Old World Salvationist — and Jack is among them.

Once, the Salvation Army often was the object of derision as it paraded — sometimes under police escort. And sometimes, the police themselves showed little patience.

Jack, encouraged to attend Salvation Army Sunday School by his mother, joined its ranks as an 11 year-old youngster.

"I remember on a Monday night we were having an open-air meeting on the street and the police came along and pushed the band. They arrested the officers for obstruction.

"There was a policeman — a sergeant Murphy, a great big man — and he threw me to the ground. The rest of us youngsters followed them all to the jail."

It was in the Army band that Jack met one of the most remarkable characters in his life — its bandmaster, Thomas Jenkins. Under his tutoring, says Jack, many a young musical talent flourished, graduated, and became well-known.

There was a five-year break from Salvation Army service when war broke out in 1914. Jack joined a service corps in a different army, was shipped to France, then to Salonika after the Dardanelles disaster.

Back in civvy life in 1919, he returned to the mines — and the Salvation Army Band for tours around England. With the band he met his wife Emily, also a musician with the Army, as was her father, brothers and brothers-in-law.

Job opportunities were declining in the mines, and in 1928 the Greens immigrated to Canada and Belleville, where Jack went to work for the CNR.

Offers came to join other bands — including the Toronto police band — but Jack opted out for the music at Salvation Army's Belleville citadel.

There was one more offer: When World War II broke out Jack says he was approached to take over the airforce band at Trenton. Again he refused.

The year after he landed in Belleville he was a big competition winner — he won first prize at the Canadian National Exhibition's Empire Year festival.

It set a pattern of prize-winning, either as soloist or in groups he has tutored himself.

Tutoring has made him widely travelled. For the Salvation Army Jack has been in demand for Salvation Army summer camps in Western Canada, the Maritimes, Bermuda.

Totally involved with music, he is now tutoring his hand to transcribing melodies for brass bands and writing hymns for submission to Army headquarters.

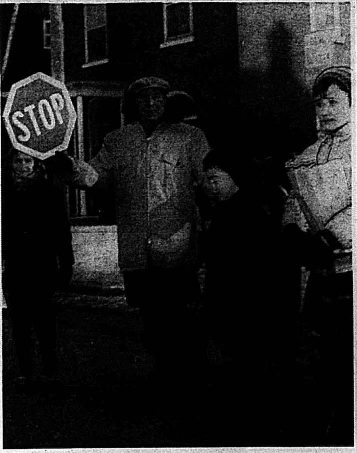
"I'm not a professor," he insists, however.

But he hopes to keep up his note work in retirement.

"Music," says Jack Green, "is one of the most fascinating things about man."

First and Last...

. . . is the placing of music in Jack Green's life. The Belleville bandmaster is retiring after lifetime work with the Salvation Army.



But Safety's Also First

Though retired from the railroad Jack has found a new job. He's a familiar sight at the Footbridge-Coleman Street crossing as school safety guard.

Discuss Tactics

Ameliasburg council and area school board officials gathered together last night to plan organized opposition to provinces proposed county system that would separate the township from the Bay of Quinte school district in good standing 50 years.

Protest Goes to Davis

Ameliasburg Takes Joint Action To Protest School Distribution

AMELIASBURG — Township council and members of the area school board meeting jointly last night decided they'd fight rather than agree to a switch to the proposed county school board system.

The representatives of the two elected bodies joined forces for an organized stand to discourage the divorce of Ameliasburg from the Bay of Quinte school district. They mapped out a plan of action starting off with a face-to-face meeting with Education Minister William Davis at Queen's Park in the near future.

In the meantime there is mounting disapproval to the suggestion Prince Edward County absorbs the townships elementary and secondary school systems. One councillor reported he had received a growing number of telephone calls regarding the matter from irate parents concerned about their children's welfare from the standpoint of future education.

A councillor said there was plenty of cause for alarm when the government in Toronto planned implementing legislation to compel school children to ride 100 miles a day on a bus besides taking a full schedule of classes. A provoked school board member said he would consider teaching his children at home if the new concept was forced upon the residents of the township against the will of the majority.

The concensus was that Ameliasburg, after more than half a century in the Belleville based high school district, should be allowed to continue the satisfactory arrangement because of economics alone.

The discussions last night revealed Ameliasburg has been eyed as a rich prize for its ability to carry education costs in Prince Edward County. The township's assessment provides 20 per cent of the county's total expenditure for schooling at present well above the individual contribution received from any of the other eight townships included in the county set-up.

A resolution adopted unanimously by council earlier expresses the desires of both council and the area school board. It reads: moved by Russell Thompson, seconded by Arnold Wetherall - whereas the Township of Ameliasburg has been part of the Bay of Quinte High school district since the formation of that district and prior to that time had purchased secondary education from Belleville. And whereas for the purpose of elementary education the Township of Ameliasburg is a part of the Hastings - Prince Edward inspectorate, No. 2. . . Now, therefore, the municipal council of the Township of Ameliasburg requests that in the formation of the new County school areas the Township of Ameliasburg remain in the area now encompassed by the Bay of Quinte school district and form a part of the Board of Education of that area and not a part of the Prince Edward County area.

Copies of the resolution have been circulated to all the parties concerned including Premier John Robarts, opposition leader Robert Nixon, NDP leader Donald MacDonald and education minister Davis.

In other business council proclaimed March 3 to 9 Education Week. The invitation to participate in the annual observance came from the Bay of Quinte district committee.

The following will represent all educational organizations, school staffs, school boards, teachers' federations, Home and School associations and provincial institutions within the Quinte district while the week's activities are in progress. Miss M. Durkin, Mrs. J. Wilson, J. Welch, R. D. Horwood and Burle Summers.

Council received a communication advising V. M. Styrno, museum adviser for the archives and records branch, parliament buildings, Toronto, would be arriving in the village on Thursday to inspect the premises for the proposed township museum and meet with the members of the museum board in the evening. The United Church building and property west of the community hall was purchased by the township for the purpose.

Council approved bylaws confirming councillor Russell Thompson's appointment to the township cemetery board and authority to relieve the Consecon branch of the Royal Canadian Legion of tax obligations on the legion hall property in the village of Consecon.

PE School Merger Too Soon Advice of Warden Demore

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County Warden Gordon Demore, during his address to the monthly meeting of county council this week, spoke out against the county school board scheme. He said newly formed township school boards still need time to get organized claiming 32 schools have not yet been given time to reach their peak efficiency.

"It looks as if we're going to have it whether we like it or not, but sometimes I wonder if we're not moving too quickly - if we take shorter steps we're less likely to stumble."

Council at this meeting endorsed a resolution by the County of Wentworth objecting to the provincial government's county school board proposal.

Wentworth councillors complained of not receiving any particulars regarding the basis for making the recommendation or the mechanics for implementing the scheme.

As a result, the council suggests Queen's Park not proceed with any legislation implementing the proposal until full details have gone to municipal councils and school boards for their consideration and comments.

Reeve of Ameliasburg Township, George Cunningham also was unhappy about the proposed system.

"We are unhappy with how the Ontario government has done this. The deputy-minister of education told us we would not have to leave the Bay of Quinte High School District and go to Prince Edward County."

After spending 20 years with the Bay of Quinte board and being one of the founding groups responsible for the district high school, Mr. Cunningham said he could not see why his township must go back to the smaller Prince Edward Collegiate Institute Board.

The reeve said he meant no disrespect for PECI board but objected to the idea of having paid for 20 years into the Bay of Quinte board before being cut-off and faced with the necessity of sending the 300 Ameliasburg Township students to a school too small to handle the increase.

Reeve Cunningham told council he expected no action here but he did promise further action by Ameliasburg Township.

Public Schools Considering Teacher Aides

Following the lead of Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, Picton Public School Board is considering hiring lay help to aid teachers.

The high school announced last fall its intention to hire persons to control classes during the teacher's absence and help with the details of education not requiring trained teachers. The measure was taken to reduce costs of hiring supplementary staff.

Management chairman Dr. George Powers, who made the proposal, said the plan has worked well in Birmingham schools. Board chairman W. W. Evans was also in favor of the plan following advice from PECI principal John N. McNeil.

Valentines Are in Vogue Today ...For Teacher, Parents and Friends

Many a likely lad and lass — and likely some unlikely ones — saw red today.

It's Valentine's Day and thousands of the cards bearing the traditional big red heart have been mailed around the Quinte district.

If one big Belleville retailer is any indication, it's been the heaviest year yet for circulating the affectionate tokens.

But then, it's hard to say. The origins of the occasion are somewhere back there in the mists of time.

It maybe started with the pagan Romans with the Lupercalia festival — when the names of young girls were placed in a box and drawn by young swains as chance directed.

Christianity didn't actually abolish the idea, but made it more respectable, naming it after Valentine, an early church martyr.

Today's million-dollar industry which churns out sweet - nothing verse-cards for the occasion, probably is rooted in the Middle Ages. Some of the first Valentine's Day poetry was penned by a French knight.

By Shakespeare's time such composition was common practice.

But before the modern greeting card industry, the festival was a money-making proposition.

Celebrated English dairyist Samuel Pepys, recorded of a famous English beauty, later to become the duchess of Richmond: "The Duke of York, being once her Valentine did give her a jewel of about $800 and my Lord Manderville, her Valentine this year, a ring ($300)".

Pepys never did say why the favored recipient ever bothered to become a duchess. Today, the significance of Valentine's Day has been broadened. Now, in play centres and kindergartens it's common practice for children to busy themselves making Valentines for parents and family.

Few adults take it seriously; no one is as dedicated to its message of woo as they were 200 years ago when one lad recalled:

"The night before Valentine's I got five bay leaves and pinned four of them to the four corners of my pillow and the fifth to the middle . . . then if I dreamt of my sweetheart we should be married before the year was out."

"To make it more sure I boiled an egg hard and took out the yolk and filled it with salt, and when I went to bed, ate it, shell and all without speaking or drinking after it."

Orr Out Five Weeks

Imlach Set For Duel With Canadians -- Boston Meets Chicago

By GRAHAM COX

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Some truths could be brought home in the National Hockey League tonight.

Coach Punch Imlach says his Toronto Maple Leafs are a great home team and he could find out if he's right when Montreal Canadiens, leaders of the Eastern Division, visit the Gardens.

BOBBY ORR
. . . INJURED

Bobby Orr won't be on defence for Boston Bruins—he's out for about five weeks after a cartilage operation Monday—and coach Milt Schmidt could find out just how important the 19-year-old Parry Sound, Ont., youngster is to Bruin plans when they are host to Chicago Black Hawks.

And coach Billy Reay of Chicago could be reminded, again, of a possible off-season faux pas when his club faces former Hawks Phil Esposito, Fred Stanfield and Ken Hodge, now in Boston uniform.

The truths could all cause considerable pain, depending on your point of view, to each of the coaches except possibly Toe Blake of Montreal whose Canadiens hold a five-point edge over Boston in the eastern standings.

Chicago and Boston are locked in a duel, a point apart, for second place while the Leafs are battling to get back into the playoff picture.

They are four points behind fourth-place New York Rangers following a near-disastrous seven-game road trip during which they managed only a win and a tie.

Other games scheduled tonight, all between Western Division clubs, have Philadelphia Flyers, western leaders, in Oakland against the Seals; Minnesota North Stars at Pittsburgh against the Penguins and Los Angeles Kings in St. Louis against the Blues.

Philadelphia has a five-point edge on Minnesota and 10 points on Los Angeles. But from there its a dog fight for the third and fourth playoff berths with Los Angeles just a point up on St. Louis and Pittsburgh, tied with 47 points.

Orr, rookie of the year in the NHL last year, has been plagued by injuries most of this season but has played 42 of the Bruins' 54 games. Now he will be out almost until playoff time.

But Schmidt still has Esposito, Stanfield and Hodge going for him and this could be enough to overcome the loss to Orr if they maintain the scoring pace that has netted them a combined 60 of Boston's 192 goals this year.

But the man with the coldest hand in the hottest race is Imlach, who faces the task of generating some momentum in an attack that has gone sour with the team that last year won the Stanley Cup.

He has ample support for his contention that Leafs are a home team. They have won only seven of 28 games on the road this year, but they're 16 for 25 in Maple Leaf Gardens.

Unfortunately for Imlach, the Canadiens have lost only one of their last 15 games.

On top of that he has rebellion in the ranks with winger Jim Pappin home in Sudbury sitting out a suspension for refusing to report to Rochester of the American League and defenceman Tim Horton is nursing an ankle injury that has sidelined him for several games.

Imlach won't decide until game time if he will make any lineup changes for the game, but Blake is considering a change in goalie for the Canadiens.

Even though Rogatien Vachon shut out the Hawks 6-0 in Chicago Sunday, Blake said Tuesday he was considering using Gump Worsley in goal tonight.

"My aim is to try and keep both sharp."

He really doesn't have much to fear on that score since as a combination they lead the league with a 2.11 goals-against average and have seven shutouts to their credit this season.

Worsley has a 1.98 average and four shutouts while Vachon is 2.27.

STOPS AND STARTS

Wren Blair, one of the smartest hockey operators we have run across, stressed the importance of a hockey club having a good general manager in the Intelligencer's Weekend magazine of February 10.

Blair has come a long way since the senior "A" heydays of the late '50s. He made the Whitby Dunlops, and in fact much of the league tick and has been just as effective while moving through the minor professional ranks and into the National Hockey League with the Minnesota North Stars.

Wren is currently holding the positions of general manager and coach of the North Stars. He says he will remain in the duel job "until I can turn the coaching over to Johnny Muckler knowing that as general manager I have built him a good hockey club."

He says: "The most important thing for me is to be a good enough general manager to get the talent that will make a good hockey club. That comes first. After that I have to keep track of the business side of the operation ,travel and all the details like that."

Blair is, of course, talking about the operation of a National Hockey League team now but he ran his amateur clubs in the same manner.

What he says about general managers and team success applies very well to any team, regardless of the classification.

Teams that complain of "injured-riddled rosters" will get plenty of sympathy from the Intelligencer sports department from now on.

Our "roster" has had a mighty rough spell beginning with Sports Editor George H. Carver's illness last August, then this writer's broken leg in December.

Now we are both on the sidelines with the bossman once again a patient in the hospital.

Needless to say we are hoping for brighter days to arrive with the spring.

DOTS AND DASHES

The Hockey News discloses that former Mo-Hawk Cloble Collins has been traded to Syracuse Blazers after a brief stay with New Jersey, both of the Eastern loop . . . Voting for the Hart Trophy (MVP) at the NHL sked's half-way point was very tight with Stan Mikita getting 34 points, Bobby Hull 32 and Bobby Orr 29 . . . The OHA Eastern Junior "B" loop's other four clubs are likely glad that Belleville hit its winning stride too late to snatch a playoff spot but the city kids' fine play of late has at least proved encouraging to "Snipe" Matthews and crew . . . The Mo-Hawks were recently foiled in an attempt to get an early recall on Steve Rexe from the Eastern Canadian National team . . . Boston's great Bobby Orr has handled everything tossed his way in the NHL — except the injury jinx, which may end up costing Bobby and the Bruins playoff and trophy money . . . If European hockey teams continue to improve and Canada fails to keep pace, how long before we will be dropped into the group B or consolation series?

West Germany Wins Skating

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — Erhardt Keller of West Germany won the 500-metre speed skating race today, defeating Olympic champion Terry McDermott of the U.S. and Magne Thomassen of Norway by two-tenths of a second.

Keller, who holds an unratified world record in the 500, completed the race in 40.3 seconds and Thomassen was holding second at 40.5 when McDermott skated to the starting line.

The 1964 gold medallist was the last to start and had no partner as he whizzed around the oval track which had been softened by the hot sun. His effort, however, fell short, and he had to settle for a tie and the United States' fourth silver medal of the Winter Games.

Nationals Beat Czechs 3-2; Nancy Greene Wins Silver Medal

Second in Slalom

Nancy Greene of Canada speeds downhill in the first heat of the women's Olympic slalom at Chamrousse, France. She finished second in the competition with a combined 86.15 for the two runs behind gold medal winner Marielle Goitschel of France who had 85.86. (AP Photo)

GRENOBLE, France (CP) — Dynamic Nancy Green zigzagged her way to a skiing silver medal at the Winter Olympic Games Tuesday, putting Canada on the scoreboard for the first time, and Canada's hockey team roared back into contention by knocking off the tough Czechs 3-2.

Miss Greene, 125-pounder from Rossland, B.C., waged a mighty battle for the women's slalom gold medal, losing by only 29-100ths of a second to Marielle Goitschel of France.

Nancy, 10th in the downhill and second in the slalom, will make one more bid for a gold medal in the giant slalom Thursday.

Today's gold-medal events include the men's 40-kilometre cross-country ski relay, the men's 500-metre speed skating, and the pairs figure skating.

There also may be repercussions today from the ousting of three East German women's lugers, charged with cheating by heating the runners of their sleds to get more speed in Tuesday's third singles heat.

With 17 events completed, France had three gold medals —all in Alpine skiing. Italy, Sweden, Norway and The Netherlands had two each.

Canada got into the unofficial point standings for the first time, with five points for Miss Greene's second-place finish. Based on the traditional 10-5-4-3-2-1 scoring for the first six finishers in each event, France was leading with 51 points and Russia had 45. Finland had amassed 52 and Austria 41.

The lugers were to make another bid today, weather permitting, to wrap up the men's and women's singles titles. They managed Tuesday to run off the third of four heats and then fall into a controversy with heavy political overtones.

The East German girls were booted out of the Olympics after being turned in for heating the runners of their luges—illegal under Olympic rules instituted since 1964.

The International Luge Federation jury, after an emergency session, disqualified Ortrun Enderlein, the defending Olympic women's champion, Anna Maria Mueller and Angela Knoesel.

Miss Enderlein was the leader in women's luge singles. Misses Mueller and Knoesel were second and fourth, respectively.

A number of luge countries thought the penalty wasn't stiff enough—that all of East Germany's lugers should have been barred.

Canadian luge coach Paul Levsque of Montreal said eight vesque of Montreal said eight threatening to withdraw from the luge unless the entire East German toboggan team was ousted.

Levesque said Canada, West Italy, Spain, Argentina and the United States had signed the petition Tuesday.

"We are not protesting because it is the East Germans. It just happens to be the East Germans in this case."

'Broken Door' Helps In Tough Victory

GRENOBLE, France (CP) — Canada's hockey team literally opened the door to an historic win—perhaps an Olympic medal —at 14:40 of the third period in a game against Czechoslovakia Tuesday night.

At that moment the Czechs looked dangerously close to getting the tying goal in a 3-2 game and the Canadians seemed to be running out of legs.

Just then, during a change of lines, the door to the Canadian bench fell of its hinges on to the ice. Repairmen had to be summoned to mend the hole in the heavy plastic rink boards.

In the seven minutes taken for the job, the Czechs cooled off and the Canadians had time to regroup and reorganize.

Coach Jackie McLeod instructed his players to drop back into a more defensive role, with only one man instead of two going in to forecheck.

The tactic worked and Canada held on to beat Czechoslovakia 3-2 for the first time in world or Olympic hockey since 1960. Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen defeated the Czechs 4-0 at the Squaw Valley, Calif., Winter Olympics that year.

Goalie Ken Broderick said beating the Czechs has given the team a mental lift before playing the Swedes Thursday and the Russians Saturday.

"We're past a big obstacle," he said. "Czechoslovakia has always been the one that slowed us down."

What's more, it was a clean, undisputed win in contrast to Czechoslovakia's 2-1 victory in 1966 and the 1-1 tie in the 1967 world tournament, which featured disallowed Canadian goals and an uproar afterwards.

Some Soviet observers didn't think the Russians played their best game in defeating Sweden 3-2 Tuesday, but the defending champions showed they still have a strong enough defence to back up the forwards when they need help. The winning goal was scored by defenceman Vic Blinov.

The Russians play the Czechs Thursday. Sweden's game against Canada also is on that day and the Swedes and Czechs clash Saturday.

The Canadians have an outside chance at the gold medal, but more likely there will be a battle for the silver for second place.

Russia leads the eight-country tournament with five wins and 10 points.

Canada, Sweden and Czechoslovakia are deadlocked for second place, each with four victories in five starts and eight points.

Fran Huck, Roger Bourbonnais and Ray Cadieux scored three goals in 10½ minutes in the second period.

Huck, 22-year-old student from Regina, broke a scoreless tie in the third minute after intercepting a wayward Czech pass.

Almost six minutes later Bourbonnais made it 2-0 with a wrist shot. Then Huck set up Cadieux and the Winnipeg-based chartered accountant made no mistake, firing a screened shot past Vlado Dzurila.

The Czech goalie had 22 saves while the busier Broderick made 32.

Olympics A Losing Cause Where Finances Concerned

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — Competitively and artistically it may be a success, but financially the 10th Winter Olympic Games are turning out to be a bust.

"We had expected 40,000 people a day," explained a Grenoble city official who asked to remain unnamed. "Frankly, we had that many opening day and last Sunday, but the rest of the time we have run far below expectations."

Ticket sales for the Olympic events are also running far below the 1964 attendance at Innsbruck. While the figure skating and important hockey games in the 12,000 seat Stade de Glace are officially sold out, the outdoor events have had sparse attendance generally.

"We didn't sell many advance tickets for the outdoor events," commented Claude Esperandieu, Olympic information chief. "Most of the French people wait to see how the weather is and if it is nice they will get on a bus at the last minute. If not, they stay home and watch it on television.

The weather has definitely been one factor in the poor attendance. Sunday, in summer weather, 18,000 people attended the men's giant slalom at Chamrousse, far more than the attendance for the men's downhill in threatening weather Saturday. This was still far less than expectations, however.

"Television is a great factor but so is the international political situation, the Grenoble city official added. "About one-third of the Americans who made reservations still have not shown up or have cut their stay short.

"The business people are very upset. Many expected to make back their investment in the 12 days of the Games, and it is just beginning to hit them what a mistake that expectation was."

Some of the shopkeepers have already given up. Many had set up stalls in an area near the Olympic Village, but some of these have already closed.

Obviously Satisfied: Devine

Gibson Signs With Cards For Reported $80,000

BOB GIBSON
. . . New Contract

ST. LOUIS (AP) — General manager Bing Devine returned here from Omaha, Neb., Tuesday and announced that pitcher Bob Gibson had agreed to terms with the baseball champion Cardinals.

Although he refused to disclose terms of the contract, it is believed the big right hander will receive $80,000 this year. Gibson won three World Series games as the Cards edged Boston Red Sox four games to three.

"We got together quickly and Gibson is obviously satisfied," Devine commented. "That we got him in this quickly is very satisfying to us. And I was never really concerned, despite the fuel added to the fire by Leo, which as I had said we never took seriously."

Devine was talking about a comment Chicago Cubs' manager Leo Durocher made recently at a sports dinner. Durocher is reported to have told Gibson that if the Cardinals didn't give him $100,000 "they are crazy."

The Cardinals apparently didn't give Gibson $100,000 and Gibson had said all along that figure just represented conclusion-jumping by writers. He said he was worth as much as any other top player in baseball.

And Gibson, 32, almost certainly is worth more than any other Cardinal pitcher in history, at least in the pocketbook. Gibson finished with a regular season 13-7 record after he suffered a broken leg in mid-July.

"I would think there's no question about that," Devine observed. "The Cardinals have had some great pitchers in the past. But with the mere rise of salaries and costs in the modern era I'm sure he's our highest paid pitcher ever."

Devine says there are just five top-line players left to sign: centre fielder Curt Flood, second baseman Julian Javier, shortstop Dal Maxvill and pitchers Larry Jaster and Dick Hughes.

Woodstock Alcans Wallop Guelph 12-4

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

In 38 games this season, Woodstock Alcans of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series have scored 173 goals for an average of 4.55 goals a game —that's good.

In that time they have allowed 175 or 4.6 goals a game— that's bad. And it's the reason why the Alcans are in sixth place.

The Alcans unleashed some of that scoring power Tuesday night when they walloped Guelph Regals 12-4 in Woodstock.

Only the first-place Toronto Marlboros, with 174, have scored more goals.

The Marlies moved into first place Tuesday night with a 3-1 victory over Oakville.

In the night's other game, Kingston Aces downed Orillia 5-2.

Art Sullivan and Gary Sharp scored three goals each for Woodstock with single goals going to Dick Smith, Jack Nair, Byrle Klinck, Wayne Boddy, Dave Delpappa and Don McGregor.

Guelph marksmen were John McMillan, Frank Hincks, Butch Martin and Terry Oliver..

Toronto's punch came from the line of Grant Moore, Gary Milroy and Wayne Weller, each with a goal. Bob Bishop scored the only Oakville goal.

Ron Graham led Kingston with two goals. Other scorers for the Aces were Jim Sprott Jim Gebhardt and Bill Burega. George Vail and Dale Rahn scored for Orillia.

Nicklaus Set For Pro-Am

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus and a number of the pro golf tour's longer hitters put their muscles to good use today in the pro-am kickoff of the $100,000 Phoenix Open over a soggy Phoenix Country Club course.

JACK NICKLAUS
. . . After $20,000 Purse

The 6,765-yard, par 71 course has been hit by five days of intermittent rain. This, coupled with a new fairway carpet of rye grass, put a premium on power.

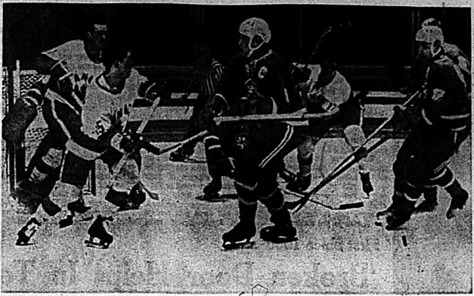
However, tourney officials and some of the pros who have been testing the course, rated the layout in good shape going into today's play and the spongy greens were rated excellent.

Rain, which the U.S. weather bureau said "could be fairly intense," was expected to remain a threat through today and possibly well into the tournament.

Tom Weiskopf, who found out last weekend that winning could be fun by capturing the $30,000 top money in the Andy Williams-San Diego Open, is another one of the longer hitters rated a good chance to cart home the $20,000 winner's purse here.

Defending Phoenix Open titlist Julius Boros, fourth best money winner on the tour last year, has been having his troubles this winter. But he always plays well at the Phoenix.

Other top names here are PGA champion Don January, Frank Beard, Bob Goalby, Dan Sikes, Al Geiberger, Doug Sanders, George Archer, Dave Marr and Gardner Dickinson.



Searching for Puck

Both Canadian and Czechoslovakian players are amiss for the puck, lower right, during action near the Czech goal after an attack in attempt to score by Canada in Olympic match Tuesday at Grenoble, France. Identifiable from left, are: Canada's Gary Dineen (7) and Herb Pinder (15); Josef Horesovsky of Czechoslovakia (5), dark jersey; Stephen Montieth, Canada (17) and Jan Suchy, Czechoslovakia (17), with teammate Frantisee Sevcik (8), behind. Winnipeg Awarded Olympic Honor

GRENOBLE (CP) — The Olympic Cup, for more than 60 years the highest award given by the International Olympic Committee, this year goes to the organizers of the Pan-American Games in Winnipeg.

The cup was instituted in 1906 by Baron de Coubertin, father of the modern Olympics, and is awarded "to an institution or association with a general reputation for integrity which has been active and efficient in the service of amateur sport and has contributed substantially to the development of the Olympic movement."

The City of Winnipeg staged the Pan-American Games last summer with a program of "total community involvement."

Recipients of the award are given a bronze plaque and a diploma.

Don Parks Best Marksman

Don Parks recorded the best score in the Quinte Marksmen Club last night with a 243. Second went to Joe Heimbach and Rory Read with a score of 221. Rounding out the top five were Dick Charlton with 214 and Cliff Smith with 208.

Frankford Defeats Stirling

The Frankford Shoemen turned in a three-goal second period to defeat the Stirling Rebels in a Central Hastings Hockey League contest in Frankford last night.

The three goals for Frankford were scored by Dave Morrison, Glenn Houlden and Bob Chesher. Stirling's two goals came in the opening period, both off the stick of Garry Mason.

Wallbridge defaulted the other scheduled league game to Ivanhoe.

Arena Approved

SEATTLE (AP) — Construction of a $40,000,000 domed, multipurpose stadium apparently was approved by voters of Seattle and King County in a special election Tuesday.

With the vote in 900 of the 1,082 reporting units counted, the stadium issue had 121,608 yes votes to 72,963 opposed. Washington law requires 60 per cent of those voting on bond issues must approve.

Faulds Leads Teachers To Basketball Victory

A 34-point effort by Bruce Faulds led the Belleville Teachers to a 76-58 victory over Lightfoot Construction in the first game of their two-game, total-point semi-final series in the Bay of Quinte Basketball League.

The Teachers had a 40-28 lead at the half, and continued to stretch it in the second half behind the quick, accurate shooting of Faulds.

Other high scorers for the Teachers were Dave Talbot, with 15 points, and Doug Irvine and Bill Latchford with 11 points apiece.

Don Smith paced Lightfoots with 13 points. Frank Long also finished in double figures with 11 points.

The second game of the series takes place Monday night at Centennial gym at 8 p.m.

Peewees Tie In Cobourg

Belleville's Peewee OMHA "AA" club fought to a 2-2 draw with Cobourg in the second game of their playoff series.

Each team scored in the first period. G. Goegan scored for Belleville. Connor was the Cobourg goal-scorer.

Following a scoreless second period, each team scored again in the final period. W. Dainard scored for Belleville, and Clarey for Cobourg.

An overtime period failed to break the tie, and the series moves to Belleville Sunday for the next game.

Minor Hockey Results

Five was the magic number in BMHA Novice play last night, as the winning team in two of the three games played, scored five goals, and the third game ended in a 5-5 tie.

The Bears defeated the Wings, 5-1. R. Sprague led the goal-scoring with a pair. G. Grant, S. Jianopoulos and M. Foster got the other Bear goals. R. Glover scored for the Wings.

The Hornets nipped the Amerks, 5-4. B. Masterson led the way for the victors with a four-goal burst. M. Ferris scored the other Hornet goal. Gray, Pearson, Scalon and McIntire scored for the Amerks.

DCA Transfer and the Leafs fought to a 5-5 draw. Suddard scored three goals for DCA. Maloney and Kykman got the other DCA goals. T. Bennett led the Leafs with two goals. M. Bennett, J. Belanger and Kollars each scored one goal for the Leafs.

Belleville Team Defeats Trenton

Belleville's "AA" Juvenile club defeated Trenton, 5-2, to capture their best-of-three series, two games to one.

Belleville took a 2-1 first period lead. Wilson and Holgate scored the Belleville goals. Reid got the lone Trenton marker.

The winners added two goals in the second period. Brown and Waite were the goal-scorers.

In the final period, Storms added the last Belleville goal, and Demille scored for Trenton.

Final Summation Underway in Suit

TORONTO (CP) — Lines on a survey map took up hours of attention Tuesday in Ontario Supreme Court—and they may figure heavily in the largest civil suit ever filed in Canada, possibly the world.

At stake is a copper-zinc-silver ore body estimated to be worth $2,000,000,000 located 14 miles north of Timmins, Ont.

Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. Inc. of New York is mining the ore body and the company says it is the owner.

Two Canadian mining companies, Leitch Gold Mines Ltd. and Mastodon-Highland Bell Mines Ltd. are claiming the ore body, or failing that, damages of $450,000,000.

In final summation of the case, which began in October, 1966, J. J. Robinette, counsel for Leitch and Mastodon-Highland, said the survey map was a "cartographic disaster." The map accompanies an agreement signed in 1963 between Leitch and Texas Gulf.

The agreement between Leitch and Texas Gulf gave Leitch development rights and access to information obtained from Texas Gulf surveys in 14 Northern Ontario areas between 1959 and 1961. The agreement provided that Texas Gulf would not explore or acquire claims in these areas without consulting Leitch.

Evidence during the trial, which resumed Tuesday after a two-month adjournment, has hinged on whether the ore body lies within the areas covered by the agreement.

Moon May Have Warmth, Moisture and Microbes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — New studies indicate the moon may have moist, warm areas—possibly conducive to microbial life—a lunar scientist reports.

Dr. Jack Green told a seminar of the University of California at Los Angeles chapter of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics Tuesday that evidence of moisture was found in specially filtered telescope pictures of an area near the crater Aristarchus.

Aristarchus, in the upper left portion of the lunar disk, is the site of red flares, possibly indicating volcanic activity, reported by several astronomers.

Green said his belief that there may be warm, moist areas near the crater is based on apparent detection of sulphur with a filter, producing photographs in which that mineral shows up black. Large black areas several miles square were found in photographs recently made to investigate earlier indications, Green said.

"On earth sulphur, the most abundant volcanic mineral, is always found in the presence of hydrous or water-bearing rock," he said. "If this holds true on the moon, then there must be large areas near volcanic craters which are warm and moist and conceivably could support small organisms."

Green, research scientist for McDonnell Douglas Corp. and a consultant on the U.S. space agency's Surveyor program, said his study covered only an area near Aristarchus but he hopes to survey other craters later.

Green said a soil-testing device taken to the moon by recent Surveyors was not equipped to detect sulphur.

Water-bearing rocks near sulphur deposits on earth, he said, can be made to yield up to a gallon of water per cubic foot of rock by heating them to 500 to 800 degrees Fahrenheit. On the moon, where surface temperatures rise to 250 degrees at noon, such temperatures could be achieved by focusing solar rays on hydrous rock, Green said.

He suggested that if his interpretation of the "black" areas is correct, manned bases on the moon should be established near volcanic craters to take advantage of water and warmth.

Nixon's Claim Large Firms Have Edge in Staking Denied

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario government official and a spokesman for the mining industry Tuesday night contradicted Liberal Leader Robert Nixon's statement that opening a large area of Northern Ontario for staking at noon would be an advantage to large mining companies.

In a statement Tuesday, Mr. Nixon said he would press the provincial government to open the area at dawn instead of noon Monday, Feb. 19.

He said the decision to make 2,000 claims available in the Elliot Lake area at noon gives large companies an advantage over small prospectors.

The big companies could not take the "lion's share" of the claims unless they had the advantage of a noon start, because their helicopters could not take off before dawn.

R. B. Scott, director of the mining lands branch of the department of mines, said most prospectors will camp near the area they want to stake long before noon. He said that between 500 and 1,000 prospectors already have entered the area.

He said the noon start would allow the department's air patrol to make sure that no claims have been staked before the official opening time.

No such check could be made if staking started at dawn as Mr. Nixon proposed.

A. C. Mosher, president of the Prospectors and Developers Association, said he preferred the noon start because department inspectors can "see what's going on."

Mr. Mosher, president of Chimo Gold Mines Ltd. and a number of other mining companies, said he is sending a staking team into the potentially uranium-rich area, but that he would not describe his as a "big-company" operation.

Much of the Elliot Lake area was staked during the 1954-1956 uranium rush, but the claims were allowed to expire when the market for the mineral declined. The department of lands withdrew the area for staking in 1961 to study it for its recreation potential.

Of the 100,000-acre area, 7,000 acres has been set aside for a park.

In the late 1950s, with the United States Atomic Energy Commission buying uranium oxide, more than $1,000,000,000 worth was extracted from the area and its 11 operating mines.

When the U.S. agency quit stockpiling and contracts ran out, the booming town of Elliot Lake, 80 miles west of Sudbury, became merely another small community which had seen better days.

Only Denison Mines and Rio Algom now are producing in the area, but the town is excited over the prospect of more uranium being found now that the mineral is again in demand.

Change in Abortion Rule Asked

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Welfare Council, while basically supporting proposed changes in the Criminal Code to allow some abortions, says the legislation itself will not significantly reduce illegal abortion among two important groups.

The council, a voluntary organization representing 600 organizations as well as 1,200 private individuals in Canada, presented its brief Tuesday to the Commons health commttee.

It said that the proposed legislation would not deter healthy unmarried women or married women caught in the economic squeeze of several children versus insufficient income from seeking illegal abortions.

More adequate programs of family life education and premarital counselling were needed.

Skilled counselling and adequate supportive services had to be available to a woman with an unwanted pregnancy to help her consider alternative solutions to the desperate choice of an illegal abortion.

The council recommended further study of the abortion issue and objected to two aspects of the proposed legislation as being unnecessarily restrictive.

Since distance or cost might prevent patients in remote areas from reaching a hospital accredited by the Canadian Council on Hospital Accreditation or appearing before a therapeutic abortion committee of three qualified doctors, alternatives had to be provided.

The council suggested that abortion be permitted in any hospital "duly licensed by the appropriate jurisdiction" since a government agency is the basic operating authority for a hospital.

Where it was not feasible to create the required therapeutic abortion committee, a qualified medical practitioner should be allowed to perform an abortion with written agreement of at least one other who had independently examined the patient.

BALLET

To A Young Dancer by Agnes de Mille.

In her book, Agnes de Mille speaks to every young person who is eager to dance professionally. She discusses the many problems which all young women must face before they enter the dance world, of the discipline they must live by.

Fonteyn by James Monahan.

In his book, Mr. Monahan discusses Dame Margot's personality, her training, and her technique and achievements as a dancer.

Great Male Dancers by Cyril Swinson.

Ballet could not exist without the male dancer, but too often his importance is overlooked in the concentration of interest in the ballerina. The emergence of such great dancers as Erik Bruhn and, more recently the Russian Rudolf Nureyev, has drawn attention to other outstanding men in ballet today. David Blair, John Gilpin, and Alexander Grant are only a few of the male dancers whose work is discussed in this book.

The Royal Ballet School by Noel Streatfield.

Miss Streatfield, well known writer of children's books, has always been a lover of the theatre and of ballet in particular. She introduces the story of the Royal Ballet School with a survey of famous ballet schools in France, Italy, and Russia and describes, the development of training for the ballet from its earliest origins until today. She examines the way in which pupils are selected, the curriculum they follow, the kind of life the children lead. In all, she presents a vivid and authentic picture, both human and informative; how a child learns to become a member of a great and famous company.

Ballet Retrospect by Arnold L. Haskell.

In Ballet Retrospect Mr. Haskell takes a backward look from the origins of ballet at the court of Louis XIV to its later development in Western Europe and Russia up to its recent post-war transformation.

The Languages of Ballet by Thalia Mara.

The theatre-going public, TV viewers, ballet students are being exposed to ballet in ever increasing numbers. Since the language of ballet is predominantly French, there is a definite need for an authoritative dictionary of the words and terms that make up the vocabulary of this flourishing art. This book, with more than six hundred entries and sixty illustrations, provides a sound understanding of the basics of ballet.

Canadian National Ballet by Herbert Whittaker.

Canada's National Ballet is a recollection of difficult early days and later successes. Now an exciting mature company, the story of its development from a dream in the minds of a handful of enthusiasts is one rarely matched in the brief annals of Canadian culture.

GOT NEW PAPER

ADEN (AP) — The newly independent People's Republic of Southern Yemen, a formerly British-ruled colony-protectorate complex, got its first daily newspaper recently—The 14th of October, named for the 1963 date when the National Liberation Front arose. Next the army's 10,000 soldiers get their own weekly paper, Al Jundi—the Soldier—as successor to the old underground NLF Bulletin.

Is Arthur the Tom A Catspaw Of International Intrigue?

LONDON (CP) — Is Arthur the tom a catspaw in an international intrigue?

Arthur is a white tomcat with the valuable knack of eating with his paws This has made him the star of a series of TV commercials for a cat-food firm.

But actor Toneye Manning claims ownership of Arthur, and a week ago he got a court order to take him out of the kennels where the firm was keeping him. Then Tuesday, the catsmeat people got a high court order telling Manning not to take Arthur out of the court's jurisdiction pending an ownership hearing next week.

However, the actor told reporters later that Saturday night he had got political asylum for Arthur in the Soviet Embassy.

As he describes it, he and Arthur ran into a Russian diplomat coming out of the embassy.

"I asked him if he would give political asylum to a cat. At first he laughed but when I explained the situation to him, he agreed he would look after the cat, took it in his arms and walked off."

The Russian Embassy denied any knowledge of Arthur Tuesday night.

The foreign office was puzzled about Arthur's status in the diplomatic field.

"I can't see that the cat would qualify for political asylum," an official said. "He has not committed any political act that would endanger any of his lives."

It Really is "MAINLY BECAUSE OF THE MEAT." Here are the facts!

DOMINION meat buyers turn their backs on nine out of every ten sides of beef.

To Begin With — Dominion Buyers Won't Even Consider Heifers, Cows or Bulls! Many meat shoppers are not even aware of the difference between steer beef and beef that comes from cows or old bulls. There IS a difference. So much so in fact, that when our buyers go to market . . . they consider STEERS ONLY! Even then, nine out of every ten sides of beef are left for other buyers. Only one in ten is good enough for Dominion . . . good enough for you!

Dominion policy requires that all steers purchased meet the most stringent list of qualifications . . . qualifications so precise that it takes a trained meat expert to recognize them. Qualifications that mean more to you as a meat shopper than you perhaps realize. You can't tell the difference by sight alone. So if you're not absolutely sure of the meat you're buying . . . be sure of the man from whom you buy it. You CAN be sure of the "Man Behind The Meat Counter", at Dominion.

We don't artificially process our beef in any way. WE DON'T HAVE TO! If it isn't naturally tender to begin with — we just don't buy it! After all, customers depend on us to offer them only the finest NATURALLY aged, NATURALLY tender, STEER beef! And We'll never let them down.

Annual Event

Spring Thaw Gets Warm Reception

By EUGENE LANG

As in years past those humorites who attended last evening's Belleville showing of the annual revue Spring Thaw were well rewarded for their braving the February cold to be on hand for the antics of this all Canadian farce force of nine gifted performers. Consisting of Pat Armstrong, Douglas Chamberlain, Jack Creley, Ed Evanko, Roma Hern, Rita Howell, Robert Jeffrey, Diane Nyland and Dean Regan, this fast paced series of acts and skits attracted rapt attention from the audience throughout the two-hour show.

As in previous years, not many of Canada's public figures escaped the edged wit of our cast, who made the most of every personality that they spoofed, giving a swell ribbing of Robert (B.V.D.) Stanfield. The new math was cleverly put over by Mr. Chamberlain, using a certain Mr. Sharpe as the anticipated scapegoat.

Items that stood out as regards audience appeal were noticeable by the applause and two or three must be mentioned. The Adjudicator as portrayed by Jack Creley was priceless — and typical in so many ways. Frank Diary was excellent in Rita Howell's pathetic probe, who brought forth more applause for her solo than some of the more humorous acts that didn't bowl over as much as roll over. One of these was the Pursuit of Hippiness that fell when it was supposed to jell. The Belleville audience showed caution here — each afraid of what his neighbor would think if he laughed or chuckled — so he remained quite quiet. Pantomime in Balcony Scene was novel — and so was the verbal ending.

The Chess is Hell was extremely well thought out with very colorful costuming and was one of the stellar group numbers, barring the finales. Farcical in many ways was the Keep the Piece skit with its innuendos tossed around. The Peace Corpse was simply a 1968 rehashing of about an 1868 format — with unsigned dedication to one LBJ. The Japanese number was helter skelter but likeable. Bored Room was fast paced in action and brittle in meaning, with a throwback to Ben Turpin and early Chaplin in motion.

The closing finale was the pay off of the evening with its satirical (and slapstick) attack (and approach) to ballet. Laughs came in loud gustos for this concluding farce which brought together the full cast in a fine blaze out. Space precludes mentioning all items, but some were in the egg laying class and the yolk just didn't materialize — at least not here.

Costumes were very colorful in certain scenes and lighting was enhancing at all times. The small orchestra kept a peppy hold on things musical with original score by Ben McPeek. In totality the presentation was witty, provocative and entertaining. By the way, let's not forget Mr. Evanko's Where Shall I Sleep Tonight — really enjoyable in his rendition.

We couldn't figure out why two programs were handed out, the sequence in neither was in agreement and the actual on stage performances further mixed us up more so. Surely, the sequence in future could be in relation to the printed program. That's not asking much.

The Canadian Mental Health Association (Belleville Branch) is to be complimented once again for its sponsorship of a now annual event here, a warm (and roasting at times) Spring Thaw on a cold February evening.

Norway Wins Second Gold Medal In Cross Country

AUTRANS, France (AP) — Norway gained its second Nordic ski gold medal today as its cross country relay team won the Olympic four-by-10-kilometre race by more than two minutes.

Starting out in fog on a rain-soaked course, the Norwegian four-man team finished in two hours, eight minutes, 33.5 seconds.

Sweden, the defending Olympic champion, placed second in 2:10:13.2 while Finland edged Russia for the bronze medal by half a second.

The Russians were in third place throughout the race until the skiers entered the stadium with slightly less than a half mile to go.

From that point the Russian and Finnish anchormen changed positions several times until Eero Maentyranta, winner of two medals in individual races, sprinted across the finish line just ahead of Viatcheslav Vedenine to keep the Russians blanked in Nordic skiing in these Games.

After starting in the ski stadium, the race consisted of 1.86 miles of climbing, then .62 mile downhill, 1.55 miles of extremely rough climbing and finally 2.1 miles mostly fast downhill.

Helmets Won't Help: Surgeon

OTTAWA (CP) — Fatal brain damage among hockey players can't be prevented by the compulsory wearing of safety helmets, says the consulting surgeon to the Eastern National hockey team.

Dr. K. E. G. Wilson, senior surgeon at the Ottawa Civic Hospital said in an interview Tuesday:

"The only sort of helmet to cut down the chances of a hockey player sustaining brain damage is an energy-absorbing type —and that hasn't yet been invented."

"The initial blow causes the brain—which has the consistency of a wet sponge—to crash against the interior of the skull. That's when the damage is caused."

LAUGHS TOO LOUD

Carol Burnett said: "In order to please my husband, I would change the way I laugh—I'm too loud."

Colligan Paces Kingston To Win Over Picton

A five-goal performance by Les Colligan paced Kingston to a 14-5 victory over Picton in an Intermediate "B" contest in Picton last night.

The home team jumped to a 4-3 lead in the opening period. C. Stacey, D. Dafoe, P. Asseltine and R. Berry scored the Picton goals. Colligan scored twice for Kingston, and Paul O'Sullivan once.

Kingston took over in the second period, outscoring Picton 4-0. Colligan, O'Sullivan, Wally Travis and Jim Stinson scored the Kingston goals.

Kingston blasted home seven goals in the final period to submerge the home team. Colligan, Stinson, and Pat Driscoll scored two each, and Travis one for the visitors. L. Pero got the lone Picton goal of the period.

Kingston outshot Picton, 47-25 en route to their victory. The victors had seven penalties against five for Picton.

Vancouver Canucks Lose Again

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vancouver's new $6,000,000 Pacific Coliseum Tuesday continued to jinx the last-place Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League as they lost 5-1 to San Diego Gulls.

Canucks haven't won any of their last six games—all played in the new ice palace.

The jinx added a new wrinkle in the game against the third-place Gulls. Vancouver's Billy McNeill scored on his own goal. Officials credited it to Fred Hilts, nearest Gull to the net.

Alex Faulkner scored twice for San Diego while others went to John MacMillan and Al Nicholson. Vancouver's Bob Lemieux spoiled Dave Kelly's shutout bid before 5,115 fans.

The only other WHL club to see action Tuesday night was Seattle. The travelling Totems edged Quebec Aces of the American League 3-2 in an interlocking game before 6,526 fans in Quebec. The win consolidated the Totems' hold on second place.

A goal by Bob Courcy, traded to Seattle this season by the Aces, provided the margin of victory. Ray Larose and Marc Boileau got the other Seattle goals. Jean-Guy Gendron and Rene Drolet scored for Quebec.

To Your Good Health

You Can't Sober Up on Beer

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: Please comment on severe alcoholism, an attack once a week. My husband says he can sober up very quickly on beer and sometimes it does seem to work.

However, he has spells about once a month when he is quite ill, and will perspire so profusely that he cannot leave his bed for couple of days. Is this alcohol poisoning and could it be fatal?

Is there a cure or treatment that could help this vicious habit without going to a mental institution, which he fears tremendously?

Why is there not something being done by the medical profession to find a cure for alcoholism? — Mrs. I. B. D.

He "sobers up on beer"? He's kidding himself. By switching to beer, he may reduce his rate of alcohol consumption, but he doesn't sober up from the beer.

It's possible but not too likely that he will die in the midst of one of his alcoholic collapses, but it doesn't take an expert to see that he is well on the way to killing himself by ruining his liver and wrecking his health in general. Some other illness may then prove fatal.

There's probably no need, even for him, to go into a mental institution, but he may have to go to a hospital or a place that specializes in "cures" for alcoholics so he can be forced to stay away from booze until his system, daily nutrition and attitude are brought into passable balance.

Even that won't cure him unless he wants to be cured—really wants to, and is willing to admit that liquor has him whipped, and for him the only answer is to quit drinking entirely. He's already one of those fellows for whom the first drink means disaster, because his first drink will always lead to another.

There's an active chapter of Alcoholics Anonymous in your city. The best thing he can do, for himself and for you, is to join it and discover that others have whipped the habit after having it as bad as he does. If he has as much guts as the next guy, he can do it.

Otherwise he'll be dead in a few years, but he'll have to go through a lot of misery first.

I recommend that, besides joining AA, he go to a doctor and find out how badly he has damaged his liver already. The doctor can give him a lift with appropriate diet and medication, but he can't quit booze for your husband. He'll have to do that himself.

A lot of physicians who conduct clinics, or are helping alcoholics kick the habit, or are conducting research into everything that can help alcoholics, will resent your implication that nothing is being done by the medical profession to cure alcoholism. Most of these same physicians resent the fact that so many alcoholics want the doctor to do it all, with no effort or will on the patient's part. Much is being done and is available for the alcoholic who wants help.

Tell your husband that there is plenty of help available for him once he starts to try. And no hope for him if he doesn't.

Dear Dr. Molner: Do fresh vegetables contain more food value than the frozen ones?— N. T.

The food value is essentially the same for either.

Intelligencer Trophy Won By Humber

Curling with deadly accuracy through every draw a rink from Humber Highland Curling Club in Toronto which included Carole Handford, Edna Grundy, Joan Smith and Dixie Rhodes as skip won The Intelligencer trophy and accompanying miniatures and prizes at the spiel arranged and sponsored by the women's section of the Quinte Curling Club. The spiel was under the general chairmanship of Beverly Neill and with an energetic committee conducted a most successful event.

Bill Spinelli, manager of the Pepsi Cola product in this district, donated a trophy and prizes for the secondary event of the spiel and a local rink of Ev Spinelli, Agnes Walker, Ann Alexander with Kae Pinder as skip were the happy winners. Incidentally, Mr. Spinelli's wife was a member of the winning rink.

The Rhodes rink, certainly the most uniformed - dressed rink in the spiel had all the tools for a winning combination. Every member could hit, play the draw and with uncanny accuracy place guards. They opposed a local rink of Phyllis Garland, Marlene Henderson, Gwen Sutton with Hazel Blair as skip in the final game and although the local gals played exceedingly well they were unable to cope with the Toronto entry and gave up after the ninth end. Both rinks were a tired lot when they left the ice. The Rhodes rink got a little break when they drew a bye into the finals while Mrs. Blair's rink had to play back to back games to reach the finals.

In the Pepsi Cola event Mrs. Pinder had a tight tussle with a rink of Marie Knuth, Ev Gulley, June Dickson with Marg Pearce of Napanee and managed to score a single shot victory. The Pinder rink was lying two shots coming home but Mrs. Pearce managed to pick up one on the final end but Kae Pinder closed the door with a perfect guard on her second shot.

Another local rink of Helen Lewis, Betty Kelsey, Lorna Bennett with Ena Corke as skip nearly won the third event but a Napanee rink of Marion Charleton, Ann MacDannold, Lois Spence with Joan Munroe as skip took the verdict with her last rock. Mrs. Corke fought an uphill battle to tie coming home and had two counters but Mrs. Munroe with her last stone took careful aim and drew the button "Cold" to win. It was a clutch shot and perfectly executed.

In the consolation event two CFB rinks met in the finals and a rink of Glady Birbeck, Ruth Miller, Mariam Adams with Jo Hope as skip defeated a rink of Jean Mooers, Joy Wolkowski, Norma Keech with Fran Simpson as skip in a cliff hanger that was not decided until the last rock was delivered.

The presentation of the prizes followed the games with Claude D. Tice presenting The Intelligencer trophy to the Toronto rink and Bill Spinelli making the presentation of his Company's trophy. During the afternoon tea was served from a prettily - decorated and set table with Mrs. Jessie White, Mrs. Ann Watkin, Mrs. Grace Carruthers and Mrs. Jean Riley, wife of the president of the club, as pourers. Ev Gowsell conducted the draw for the spiel and Mrs. Beverly Neill in closing the spiel thanked all for their attendance and hoped that all had a happy time.

35 Boys Enrol for Sea Scouts

DESERONTO — Rev. William Hendry and David Saunders were surprised when 35 boys turned up at the Legion Hall last Thursday evening, all wanting to become Sea Scouts. Names, ages and addresses were taken, and the boys were asked to return Thursday night this week so that organization can begin. The boys heard a brief talk on scouting and what they could hope to learn as scouts.

The organization takes in only boys between 11 and 14, but several came who were over that age. They will not be turned away, Mr. Hendry says, but must eventually be enrolled as Venturers. They will be part of a separate patrol with a separate leader. None has yet been found, but Mr. Hendry is sure that someone will come forward. He states that he is constantly surprised at the amount of hidden talent in Deseronto.

A new book on scouting is to come into general use in September, but the leaders of the Sea Scouts are going to begin using it right away.

REACHED PEAKS

Records were established in 1966 for motor vehicle registrations in the U.S. with 78,315,000 passenger cars and 15,864,000 trucks and buses.

Library Board Appoints New Chairman

DESERONTO — The Deseronto Public Library Board at its recent meeting appointed Mrs. Ross Sexsmith as chairman for 1968. Other members are Mrs. Donald Armitage, Mrs. Harold Topping, and Peter Morris. The librarian, Mrs. L. E. Tunnicliffe, will be secretary-treasurer.

Together with his hostess, Mrs. Peter Dickinson, Laurier La Pierre paid a visit to the library and was much impressed to find one of this size and quality in such a small community. He was especially interested in the provision made for special exhibits.

For the next exhibit the emphasis will be on sports, both past and present, and Mrs. Tunnicliffe is appealing to people of the area for their assistance in collecting items of interest. The exhibit will not be limited to Canadian sports, and articles used in other lands will add interest. She suggests books and pictures, as well.

Families may have kept as souvenirs worn-out equipment which was used by members of the hockey and ball teams which once put Deseronto on the map? She has already had promised her a puck used by an 18-year-old lad who played with a Toronto team in 1914, and was afterwards among the missing following the Battle of St. Julien in April 1915 when the Germans first used gas.

A letter has been sent to Bobby Hull asking him to send something for the exhibit.

Montreal Traffic's Pollution Bad Enough to Impair Drivers

MONTREAL (CP) — Driving a car in downtown Montreal has always been regarded as a risky business.

But a city health department finding shows that the flamboyant driving technique of some city drivers is not the only peril.

So many cars now use the streets during rush hours that you could breathe in sufficient poisons from exhaust gases to slow your reactions enough to cause an accident.

"We sent an inspector out as a passenger in a car in the downtown area over several days," says Jean Marier, head of the health department's air pollution division. "The car ventilation system was on and two windows were open.

"Tests showed his bloodstream had absorbed 12 per cent of carbon monoxide, a major content of exhaust gases. This means that 12 per cent of his red blood cells were not working at their job of picking up needed oxygen.

"When the carbon monoxide content tops 10 per cent there are slight poisoning symptoms; between 15 and 20 per cent there is dizziness and impairment of judgment and faculties; between 50 and 60 per cent swift death ensues.

"When weather conditions are right the average driver's carbon monoxide intake could rise to serious levels, making accidents possible."

Montreal gets enough of the "right" weather—overcast, foggy conditions with little or no wind—to make it imperative that automobile exhaust emissions be controlled by legislation, Mr. Marier said.

There is no legislation in Quebec similar to Ontario's 1967 decision empowering the government to pass regulations prescribing exhaust emission control. Ontario's health department now is preparing the regulations which are expected to be published shortly.

Mr. Marier said Quebec also needs action to reduce the sulphur content in fuel oils and stronger controls over industries diffusing smoke, salts, dust, metallic compounds and chemical substances.

"In winter, heating accounts for 50 per cent of Montreal's air pollution, with exhaust gases providing 25 per cent and industrial emissions the other 25."

Gerry Maguire, public relations director for a Montreal-area pollution-fighting industrial group, said oil companies observe a federal specification limiting sulphur content in domestic heating fuels to a maximum of one per cent, but there is no limit for industrial-plant heating fuels.

"It is technically feasible to reduce the sulphur content in oils still further but the cost would be high and would mean higher prices for the consumer."

Mr. Maguire's group, known as Laval Industrial Association Inc. with 18 member-companies in the east end of Montreal Island, has 17 testing stations and a full-time staff of six who recommend air and water pollution controls to its members. It has spent $500,000 since 1960 on pollution studies and its members have spent millions of dollars on control devices and systems, he said.

Mr. Marier, whose city health department now has a full-time staff of 20 and a budget of $200,000, says Montreal has by-laws on pollution control but "we urgently need some form of agreement with every municipality in the area to enforce controls."

So far, only Hampstead, a residential suburb, has joined Montreal in a pollution-monitoring program.

Mr. Marier suggests the province should establish a super-council with power to pass pollution control laws applying to all municipalities in the Montreal area, with funds provided by its members and regulations strictly enforced by crews of trained inspectors.

But action will have to come soon, he said. If control measures are not started immediately, "they will be outdated by the time they come into effect."

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: We hope to get in a few days skiing at Mount Orford, Quebec. What is the best way of driving there and what is there in the way of accommodation in the arta?—W. C., Trenton.

ANSWER: The quickest route is to take Hwy. 401 to the Quebec border, 20 to 540 (east of Coteau-du-lac), 540 into Montreal as far as exit 48 (Decarie Autostrade). Turn south on the Autostrade (Hwy. 15) and follow it onto the Autoroute which will take you right to Magog and the Mount Orford area. There is a variety of accommodations available within a radius of ten miles of Mount Orford. For details we would suggest that you contact your local Chamber of Commerce or write to the Office du Tourisme Magog-Orford, 1032 ouest, Principale, Magog, P. Q.

QUESTION: I am making plans for an extensive tour of Europe this coming summer. What is the best way of getting about? — E. N., Belleville.

ANSWER: The automobile is still the most popular vehicle for seeing the world, particularly Europe. You can take your own car, of course. Return shipping charges will be about $350. But there are three other methods:

For short periods, car rental is best. You can reserve your car in Canada, have it waiting for you at the European airport or seaport.

For longer periods, say over one or two months, leasing is most economical. Arrangements are similar to those for renting, but you get a brand new car direct from the factory.

If you plan to be abroad for several months, and need a new car anyway, take a look at plans for buying for overseas delivery. Such cars are tax exempt and you'll also be allowed depreciation before customs duty is assessed when you bring your car back to Canada.

Rental and leasing rates include insurance, but if you buy you'll need an International Green Insurance Card. In any event, you will need an International Driving Permit (cost $3), obtainable through your local Ontario Motor League Office.

QUESTION: Is it true that there is a World's Fair being held in San Antonio, Texas, this year? I expect to be down there later this spring and wonder if it will be as worth while taking in as Expo was. — D. McK, Belleville.

ANSWER: There is no point water taxis, rickshaws and, 80 with Expo. San Antonio's world fair will be smaller and cost much less. But it is officially sanctioned as an international exposition and for six months, April 6 to October 6, it will commemorate San Antonio's 250th birthday.

HemisFair's theme, 'The Confluence of Civilizations in the Americas', expresses its purpose: to display the history, art, religion and socio-economic development of each of the nations of the Western Hemisphere. It will do this through films, theatre, art exhibitions, concerts, displays and the latest audio-visual wizardry.

Finding the 92-acre downtown fair site will be no problem. It's marked by the tallest observation tower in the Western Hemisphere, the 622-foot Tower of the Americas. A glass-fronted elevator takes visitors to the top where a revolving restaurant gives a 360-degree, 100-mile view of southwest Texas.

Getting to and around the fair will be lots of fun. The San Antonio River will take visitors to the grounds by gondola directly from major downtown hotels. Motorists will use a 5,500-car parking lot. Once inside, rides include a 7,000-foot minirail, water taxis, rickshwas and, 80 feet overhead, a 1,400-foot sky-ride from Switzerland.

Other attractions will be an international market place, an amusement centre, sports events and open-air dining in plazas and floating barges.

Canada Blanks Sweden, 3-0

GRENOBLE (CP) — Canada defeated Sweden 3-0 in the Olympic hockey tournament here today.

The game was less than two minutes old when Roger Bourbonnais missed a gift goal. He stole the puck right in front of Swedish goalie Leif Holmqvist but broke his stick on the shot which bounced wide.

At 6.16, defenceman Johnson picked up a pass by Danny O'Shea and fired in a long shot from the point. Holmqvist was screened on the goal.

It was 2-0 at 12.30 when, with Canadians slamming all around Holmqvist, Gerry Pinder finished off a pass by Dineen for his first Olympic goal. Fran Huck went off at 15.00 for slashing, but the Canadians killed the penalty.

The second period was scoreless.

Halfway through the final period Danny O'Shea scored the clincher.

Three Children Suffer Bites

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Health authorities reacted with anger today to the fact that more dogs had to be impounded this morning on a city school playground where three children were bitten yesterday.

Last week dog-owners had been warned not to let their pets run loose because of two cases of rabies in the city.

"This proves that people don't take any care at all," charged public health officer Dr. C. R. Lenk. "The time for talking mildly is past. People must realize that humans are more important than animals."

The incident came at a taut time for health officials, charged with public safety in a current alert against rabies in Hastings and Prince Edward counties.

Today, three eight-year - boys are under observation after being bitten while on the playground at Prince of Wales school.

School officials said anti-tetanus shots were given two of the youngsters — David Garner, 14 Carman Street, and Kevin Reid, 5 Orchard Drive.

They were returning to school after a lunchtime recess with David Foster, East College Street, when they were attacked by a small dog.

The three received bites on their hands.

An animal control officer later impounded one dog while a second was traced to a house on East Moira Street where it is be-

South Koreans Unhappy

SEOUL (AP) — U.S. presidential envoy Cyrus Vance left for Washington today saying his talks with South Korean leaders had been "good and very useful." South Korean officials expressed general satisfaction, but legislative spokesmen of both the government and opposition parties were critical.

Vance promised the South Koreans "immediate consultations" whenever their security is threatened. But he balked at the demand for a pledge of immediate retaliation.

The official spokesman for the ruling Democratic Republican party said: "It is hard to believe that the contents of the communique would eliminate the people's worries about increased North Korean provocations."

Assemblyman Kim Yung-sam, floor leader of the opposition New Democratic party said: "So little has been achieved that we wonder for what the American presidential envoy came."

Vance and South Korean President Chung Hee Park wound up four days of talks with a joint communique which denounced the "increasingly aggressive and violent actions of the North Korean Communists during the last 14 months in violation of the armistice agreement."

Legislature's Throne Speech Outlines Stand-pat Program

TORONTO (CP) — A stand-pat program re-emphasizing the need for priority spending in education, housing and urbanization—plus a bit more money for improving health services—was unveiled Wednesday at the opening of the 28th session of the Ontario legislature.

Most of the 12-page speech from the throne, read by Lieutenant-Governor Earl Rowe, was a review of legislative promises made by Premier John Robarts and his colleagues prior to the re-election of his government with a reduced majority last Oct. 17.

Both Opposition leaders were critical of the speech which contained no major surprises and little detail of legislative proposals.

Donald MacDonald, leader of the New Democratic Party, called the speech "sick" and said it contained only "vague generalities."

Robert Nixon, the Liberal leader, found the speech "in favor of everything that's good and against everything that's bad."

Conservatives hold 69 seats in the 117-seat legislature, Liberals 28 and the NDP 20.

Only a small group of persons, shivering in a cold, west wind, were on hand at Queen's Park when the official party arrived for the opening ceremonies.

For the first time, press gallery reporters were provided with a French-language text of the throne speech which contained the promise to make French an official language in the legislature.

New steps to exert some control over drug prices and extend health insurance benefits were part of the plans announced for the field of health services.

The Ontario Hospital Services Insurance Plan will be extended to cover some out-patient services and essential ambulance services July 1. The Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan will cover eye examinations by optometrists from July 1.

All of this will cost an additional $16,000,000.

But the announcement that raised most eyebrows concerned the move to establish through negotiations with drug manufacturers a price level for prescription drugs at which both hospitals and retail pharmacies would purchase. Aim of the legislation is to help hospitals reduce operating costs through the purchase of lower-cost drugs.

Bonnie and Clyde Pair Rob Bank of $250,000

NEW YORK (AP) — A tall, rangy couple in stocking masks and brandishing .38-calibre revolvers terrorized six employees Wednesday and robbed a Bronx bank of an estimated $250,000.

They made their getaway in a garish yellow car parked near the Bank of Commerce branch, in a style reminiscent of Bonnie and Clyde of the 1930s. Police said all of the loot was in cash.

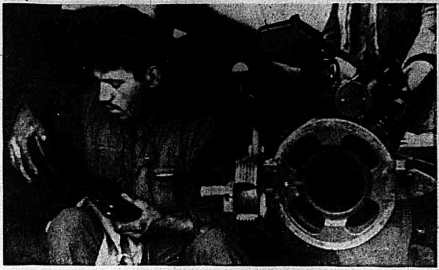
The police account said the six-foot-four man and his five-foot-11 companion, both in grey coats, pushed guns into the back of Assistant Manager Edward Ambrose as he opened the bank's doors. They struck him and forced him to the rear and, as each of the other employees arrived, brandished guns at them, forced them to the back and bound them with venetian blind cords.

Last in was the head teller, William Guaducci, who, at gun point, was led to the vault which he and Ambrose, each with half the combination, had to open.

The couple, she with shoulder-length 1930s style black hair, which police suspect was a wig, emptied the contents into two canvas bags which they put into a black overnight case.

Then they left, removing the stocking masks.

In gangster movie style, he had a broad-brimmed grey fedora pulled over his eyes and she a flop-brimmed brown hat. The woman wore high brown boots.



Marine Prepares for Ordeal

At the encircled U.S. Marine base at Khe Sanh, Marines such as this young Leatherneck spend part of the time preparing for the expected attack from North Vietnamese troops. Peace Hunt Is Futile

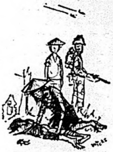
WASHINGTON (AP) — The latest round of peace searching between the United States and North Vietnam has not produced any basis for halting the bombing of the North and opening peace talks.

But U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk said Wednesday the United States remains interested "in a serious move toward peace when Hanoi . . . is ready to move in that direction."

Rusk issued a statement after reports from Paris and Rome of intense diplomatic activity on the peace front involving United Nations Secretary-General U Thant and Foreign Minister Amintore Fanfani of Italy. Both have talked with North Vietnamese representatives.



"Tell her we're winning!"

Hue's Citadel Bombed

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. marine jets bombed the massive brownstone walls of Hue's historic citadel today for the first time in the 16-day struggle to crush the North Vietnamese attack in the former imperial capital. But there was no immediate word that the marines on the ground made any gains against the stubborn North Vietnamese holed up inside.

AP photographer Al Chang reported from Hue that the marine bombers dived down on the walls of the former palace grounds, trying to clear the way for U.S. marine assault troops advancing with tear gas.

The American jets entered the battle for the citadel for the first time Wednesday but used only napalm and rockets on the North Vietnamese positions along the six-foot-thick stone walls in an effort to minimize damage to historical and architectural treasures inside the compound.

Today, marine officers said, the pilots were unleashing 250-, 500- and 750-pound bombs, but with "discretion."

Remnants of a North Vietnamese regiment clung tenaciously to the palace compound which includes the throne hall courtyards and shrines begun in 1804.

Air Attack Sets Record

DA NANG, South Vietnam (AP) — History's most concentrated aerial bombing campaign is under way around the U.S. marine base at Khe Sanh in an effort to break the North Vietnamese siege, a qualified U.S. Air Firce source said Wednesday.

Although large numbers of North Vietnamese troops and supply and ammunition dumps have been presumably destroyed, pressure on the base 14 miles south of the demilitarized zone builds steadily.

The planes have dropped more than 120,000,000 pounds of bombs and napalm, plus rocket and cannon fire. An unofficial count shows the total explosive effect to be more than the combined power of the two atomic bombs dropped on Japan in the Second World War.

Breaks Pinned Down

Water supplies flowed normally in two city areas last night as repair crews finally pinned two elusive main breaks.

It marked the end of a hectic frustrating day for city utilities.

At one point they had three separate breakdowns simultaneously bidding for attention: On West Dundas, St. Paul and Porter Avenue. The breaks meant water supplies were cut to business operations and scores of homes.

Most serious dislocation was caused in the West Dundas area where utilities crews probed for the break from 9 p.m. Tuesday.

Its eventual discovery, east of the Hastings County Home, meant hammering a trench 15 feet long into the ground.

Locating the breaks in winter is complicated by the fact escaping water rarely marks the spot. The runoff seeks an open spot in frost-hardened ground before rising to the surface.

Cause of the breaks on Dundas and Porter still are being pondered by utilities officials.

PUC manager E. L. Burnham says one explanation may be underground rock shifts.

Two Charged With Theft of Company Safe

TRENTON — A police spokesman revealed today two Toronto men have been charged with the Dec. 28 theft of a company safe from Canadian Flight Equipment on north Sidney St.

Detective Sidney Vickers said John Michael Ferguson, 29, of 26 Maynard Ave., and 26-year-old Ernest Victor Friars, no fixed address, were arrested in Toronto late Wednesday on a Trenton Police Department warrant.

They will appear in court Tuesday charged with break, enter and theft, as well as possession of the company safe, which was recovered by town police the same day it was stolen.

The safe contained no cash, say police, only company books. It was located in a garage at a Leopold St residence.

A third man 25-year-old Gary Ibbotson of Oshawa, pleaded guilty to the Canadian Flight breakin in Brighton court Wednesday, and was sentenced to a three - month reformatory term on a total of four charges.

What A Break!

A leaking pipe needs more than just a plumber when it's public utilities' property. Repairing a main break on West Dundas Street was a minor works' project for repair crews yesterday. It was one of three breaks in separate city areas.

More Dogs Impounded

ing observed by its owners.

The two animals look alike and could not be easily identified by the boys. Hence, the need to keep both under observation.

The waiting period is only a matter of days. Although rabies may take six months to show, when a rabid animal attacks it signifies the disease is in its last stage.

If the disease is identified in either animal, it will mean the youngsters must undergo a 14-day series of anti-rabies injections.

All three boys were back at school this morning when four more dogs were spotted running at large in the playground.

They were caught by the school caretaker while principal William Lott phoned the city pound.

All four were impounded by animal control officer Gary Flunder, said the principal.

"We didn't take any chances this time," explained Mr. Lott.

However, the report obviously angered Dr. Lenk, who only last week sternly warned Bellevillians after two cases of rabies were identified in the city.

"As much as we may like animals we must still consider in our society that human beings are more important," he said.

"I think it's a ferocious thing to have our children go to school and be bitten by a dog.

"People may say it was the children's fault — but this situation is too serious to worry about guilt.

"Never mind whose fault it is — we can't have pets running around biting people."

Neither are animal anti-rabies shots a total guarantee of immunity, emphasized the health officer.

"As far as we're concerned, vaccine shots may create a false sense of security with pet owners. They've just got to keep these animals confined and on leashes."

Trenton Labor Council Urges Medicare Adoption

TRENTON — The Trenton and District Labor Council is endorsing a campaign urging immediate adoption by all provinces of the proposed federal medicare scheme.

Letters to the council from the Canadian Labor Congress and the Ontario Federation of Labor described a post-card campaign being initiated by the two organizations to "keep the government from reneging on its pledge to the Canadian people."

Signed by CLC acting president Donald MacDonald, one letter claimed: "Since tabling of the Hall Commission's report in 1964, there has been a very well financed political lobby headed by insurance companies, medical associations, and supported by boards of trade and chambers of commerce to stop the implementation of the Hall Commission's recommendations."

(After a three year study of medical coverage in Canada, the Hall Commission recommended universal medicare services.)

"Results of the lobby are now beginning to show up across Canada . . . and there is a great danger this pressure may be significant to have the government renege on its pledge to the Canadian people."

The communication asks all labor groups to encourage members to send postcards of protest to their Members of Parliament and to the Prime Minister.

The Ontario Federation of Labor letter asked support for a similar campaign to protest Premier John Robarts' delay in adopting the federal government's medicare program for this province.

Bearng the signature of OFL director Morden Lazarus, the letter asks labor groups to press for immediate endorsement of "a government - sponsored, non-profit portable, comprehensive medicare program."

"Canada cannot afford not to have medicare," the letter advises.

Trenton and District Labor Council members passed motions approving both submissions in principle.

Surgery For Mayor On Friday

Mayor Dr. J. Russell Scott will undergo abdominal surgery in Toronto tomorrow.

Mayor Scott was admitted to Toronto General Hospital earlier this week after a convalescent period to prepare for the operation.

It is believed he may spend up to two weeks in hospital following surgery.

They Make It Easy To Pay Income Tax

The taxation division of Canada's Department of National Revenue is a strong believer in the value of good public relations.

Proof of this is the fact that this year the department is expanding its income tax information program to include still another medium of mass communication.

Four years ago — in 1964 — the department embarked on a program of providing tax information for the thousands of bewildered income tax payers across the country.

Originally the information service saw assessing officers assigned to telephone and counter duty to answer questions on income tax problems.

Also introduced was a program of newspaper advertising and radio announcements.

The whole public relations tax information service has proved so successful that this year the program is being expanded to include television.

All this, of course, is simply leading up to the fact that it is again income tax time and taxpayers across the country will soon be filling out tax forms.

Many of the larger industrial firms and businesses in the Belleville area are ready to mail out records of 1967 earnings to employees in the form of T-1 slips.

And the taxation division has been prompt in mailing out income tax forms which are due back in Ottawa by the end of April.

This gives the average citizen something over two months to figure out what he has earned over the past year and with deductions just how much he owes the government in income tax.

Alvin K. Miller, public relations officer for the Belleville division office of the Department of National Revenue says his department is continually trying to improve its public image with programs to assist the taxpayer.

Last year eight million returns were completed and 400,000 of them contained errors and had to be sent back to regional offices for checking.

Tracing this number of errors and correcting the mistakes cost the government a pile of money so the department feels that a stepped up education service, if successful, will more than pay its way.

As was the case last year an "after hours" information service on tax returns will be offered at the Belleville income tax office at 11 Station Street.

For four days early in March and for two days late in April assessors will be on counter duty in the evenings ready to answer tax return questions. There will be four to five people on counter duty and up to four people answering telephones. The dates are March 4, 5, 11, and 12 and April 29 and 30.

If the request for tax information warrants, the office will be open on additional nights, according to Mr. Miller.

Most business firms hire accountants to fill out tax returns, but 99 per cent of employees using the T-1 short forms continue to fill out their own.

And most of them apparently delay as long as possible with a big percentage of returns being filed in the few days before the April 30th deadline.

Of the eight million or so returns filed each year, farmers have possibly the best record for correct returns.

One of the reasons, according to Mr. Miller, is that they don't wait until the last minute and also they are quite ready to seek information at the tax office if they feel this is needed.

"Farmers come in for help at all times of the year," he said.

And in addition to the information service to be operated from the local district office ,and through the press, radio and television, the income tax story in some instances is being carried directly to the public.

As public relations officer at Belleville, Mr. Miller has been speaking at public meetings throughout the district. This week he talked to students at Loyalist College and has also spoken to students at Belleville Collegiate.

The idea, according to Mr. Miller is to acquaint students with tax requirements they will face when they go out into the business world.

Belleville is the district taxation office for an area covering seven Ontario counties ranging from Deseronto to near Ottawa and north to the Haliburton area. A sub office tax information service is being held in Peterborough for the benefit of taxpayers in that area.

Heart Fund Campaign Under Way in City

The annual campaign to raise funds for the Canadian Heart Foundation is underway this week with canvassers already making their door to door calls.

Mr. A. S. Lewis, president of the Belleville Chapter of the Foundation said the local campaign started Sunday, Feb. 11 and will run through until Feb. 17.

A city wide door to door canvass is being undertaken under the direction of six area captains: Mrs. R. Pringle, Mrs. D. Black, Mrs. S. Howell, Mrs. T. Kennedy, Mrs. F. Deacon and Mrs. A. Lewis.

The area in Prince Edward county including Rossmore, Rednersville and Carrying Place is under the direction of Mr. H. Brown.

In announcing campaign dates, Mr. Lewis said that with heart disease and its related problems becoming ever more prevalent, the need for study and research for the prevention of this deadly disease was becoming increasingly important.

"The Canadian Heart Foundation has made tremendous strides in its work, but the need is greater than ever," he said.

"Heart disease is no respecter of persons and support of the campaign is urged.

"The work of the volunteer canvassers will be made much easier if they are welcomed with a contribution on their first call."

Good and Bad News For Thurlow Township

The council of Thurlow township headed by Reeve Carl Thompson announced both good and bad news from the Ontario government at yesterday's council meeting.

After receiving notice from the Ontario Development Corporation that Thurlow has been accepted provincially for financial assistance as a designated area for new industry or the expansion of old industries council did not receive an announcement from the Department of Municipal Affairs with as much enthusiasm.

At the convention of the Ontario Association of Rural Municipalities held in Toronto this week it was indicated by Minister of Municipal Affairs, the Honorable Darcy McKeough that there would be no further sub-division in rural areas without services (sewers and water).

It makes me pretty mad," said Reeve Thompson yesterday, "this is going to keep the building in the city."

Secretary-treasurer for the township, Earl Dafoe pointed out that the municipal board is reluctant to approve the construction of sewers and water mains without sufficient residential development already in existence.

"The situation places everybody in a perplexing situation," he stated.

Approval was given to the Board of Education's request for a new school and council forwarded a request yesterday to the Ontario Municipal Board for the approval of $214,000 of debentures for its construction.

When approval is returned the old Harmony school will become a senior school and the proposed new building at Carmel will be a junior school. Although it is the responsibility of the Board of Education to build the school council has to provide the money.

There was the usual business of approving appeals to the committee of adjustment and tenders were called for county supplies.

In addition, two township properties were sold yesterday. The first consisted of 24 acres on the east side of Elmwood Drive (Lot 18, Concession 1) to the highest bidder, D. J. Herrington of Belleville.

The old Plainfield school which has been out of use now for the past three years was also sold to a resident of the area, H. K. Carlton.

Council will meet again on Mar. 13.

Man Jailed For Car Theft

Sentenced to consecutive terms of six and 12 months in jail by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in county court this morning was Joseph Charles William Swain, 27, of RR 3, Madoc.

Swain was convicted of automobile theft in connection with the Jan. 11 theft of a car from Trudeau Motors Ltd. in Belleville. He was also found guilty of possession of a stolen car.

Head Rests Mandatory

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government announced Wednesday that head rests will be required on the front seat of all cars manufactured after Dec. 31 to protect persons against whiplash neck injuries in rear-end collisions.

The National Safety Bureau says about one out of four car accidents is a rear-end crash and a substantial number produce whiplash injuries.

The new standard will require that the seats of the driver and the right front passenger be equipped with head rests, either as a part of the seat, a cushion added on or any other device which meets the standard.

A Ford of Canada Ltd. spokesman in Oakville said the Canadian subsidiary would go along with the U.S. regulation. He said that under the Canada-U.S. auto trade agreement, safety equipment required in either country is usually installed on cars for sale in both countries to provide uniformity.

Spokesmen for General Motors Corp. of Canada Ltd. in Oshawa and Chrysler Corp. in Windsor said their companies also would probably follow the regulation.

539 IUE ON STRIKE FOR WAGES AND CONDITIONS

The all-woman Local 539, International Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers last night began their strike against Trenton's Essex Electronics plant. One of the picketers appeared dressed in unique garb and bearing a placard reading: "Even bears can't live on these wages."

Workers Get Valentine Holiday

By MAURICE SWITZER
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Forgotten in the annual Valentine's Day shuffle of hearts and flowers were 100-or-so Quinte workers who have a contract-stipulated holiday for the occasion.

Monday, about 75 employees of the Benedict - Proctor silver - plating firm here joined 40 Avon Jewellery Ltd. workers from Belleville in taking a paid holiday.

The employees, members of Local 44, Amalgamated Silverworkers' Union, are the first in this area, and among the first in the province to have a paid holiday written into their contracts for the nearest Monday to St. Valentine's Day.

There was method in the Valentine madness.

"The long gap between New Year's and Easter has been generally recognized as a natural place for another national holiday," explains Canadian Labor Congress representative Henry Nokes, of Peterborough.

"There has been talk in the House of Commons that the nearest Monday to St. Valentine's Day might be declared 'Flag Day' or 'Confederation Day.'"

"Everyone thought it was kind of a joke when they heard that the Local 44 workers were going to get St. Valentine's Day off."

There was a give and take involved in obtaining the spring holiday.

"The Avon and Benedict - Proctor workers traded Boxing Day to have this included in their contract," Local 44 president Reg Loader explains.

A third group of Local 44 workers — employees of Trenton's Morton - Parker silver - plating plant — are at present trying to negotiate a Valentine holiday-with-pay for their 1968 agreement.

"No, we don't receive any cards from the boss," added Mr. Loader.

Easter Vacation for Students Will Now Be Standardized

Easter vacation comes early this year for students throughout the province.

Earlier in the school year department of education officials announced the dates for the Easter or mid-term vacation would be standardized from March 16 to 24.

Public school superintendent, Lawrence Kells said yesterday the change will divide the school year into equal periods.

"The Easter dates can vary as much as a month from year to year,'" he said.

The week long vacation will occur on the same dates each year.

Mr. Kells said the students will also get an extra two days at Easter. "Good Friday and Easter Monday will still be holidays."

To make up the extra vacation pupils will be required to spend an extra day in school in June. The closing date will be June 30 instead of June 29.

'Hard Core' Unemployed Will Be Given Assistance

What to do about the "hard core" unemployed — that group of late teen-aged school drop-outs who cannot qualify for the normal adult retraining program — was the main topic of discussion at yesterday's meeting of the city and district winter works committee.

The above "hard core" group is composed of young people 17-19 years of age who have dropped out of school but because of education limitations are unable to find a job.

Committee chairman Joseph Cox said the plans were underway for a program to give this group of young people some assistance.

New committee members attending yesterday's meeting included Deputy Reeve Ray Shortt of Rawdon township, and William F. Rose, reeve of Frankford Village, both Hastings representatives.

Mr. Reginald Tucker, welfare administrator for the city, also attended the meeting.

Women Stage Initial Display Of Union Solidarity in Strike

TRENTON — The women of Local 539 wore their fur coats to the picket line last night.

The 30 female employees of Essex Electronics Ltd. staged an initial display of union solidarity at midnight as they massed in front of the Wall St. plant in 20-degree temperatures.

Their strike backs up demands for an increase over their $1.12 to $1.50 hourly pay scale, in addition to fringe benefits.

Last night's demonstration by the members of the striking International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers local was purely for effect.

The picketers disbanded within 20 minutes after the midnight strike deadline, to regroup at the Essex plant this morning.

An I.U.E. spokesman said regular picket shifts begin today, but could not say whether the Essex women will walk night duty.

He also indicated that support would be coming from two paperworkers' locals — 470 from Trenton's Domtar plant and 489 from Glen Miller — who were represented at last night's initial strike activities.

After January talks under a department of labor conciliator broke down, the 30-member Local 539 voted unanimously in favor of strike action.

Eleventh-hour management-union talks Saturday and Monday resulted in a stalemate.

Essex management has offered the women a 10 per cent wage increase in a two-year contract, while the lowest union demand to date has been for 25 per cent.

In a letter to the employees dated Feb. 7, company president J. E. Kalfus said any employee who continued to work after last night's strike deadline would receive an immediate pay increase of five per cent.

One picketer, hidden behind a fur bear's head last night, bore a placard "Even bears can't live on these wages."

Drug Prices

Amendments to the Patent Act and the Trade Marks Act designed to bring more competition into the patent drug business (and thereby reduce prices) are welcome.

When Dr. William Howe (NDP — Hamilton South) complained in the Commons of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers' Association of Canada being the "high profit boys," and praised the bill as "an excellent start on trying to rid ourselves of this monopoly," it might be thought he was proclaiming socialist dogma.

But when Consumer Affairs Minister John Turner gets up and criticizes drug costs in an 80-minute speech, it may be realized there is some unanimity of opinion on this subject.

It is a shocking indictment of the drug industry's fleecing of the prescription drug user to learn that Canadians pay from three to 20 times as much for prescription drugs as other countries.

This was revealed by Mr. Turner who tabled surveys of drug prices in this country compared with Britain and five European countries.

Anyone who obtains prescription drugs (and most people do at some time or other) knows exactly what the minister is talking about.

Little more than a small package of penicillin tablets and nose drops for instance — to help battle an attack of flu — can cost $7.50. People who must take drugs regularly run up a sizeable bill each month. With this in mind it is easier (if no less perplexing) to understand how one major Canadian laboratory, mentioned by Dr. Howe in the Commons, has annual sales worth $7 million and an annual research budget of $2 million.

Canadians are obliged to pay too much for prescription drugs. If reductions are in the offing as a result of amendments to this bill that is all to the good. One way they will be effected is through importation of drugs from abroad.

Jet Incident

The recent mishap at Vancouver airport involving a Canadian Pacific Airlines Boeing 707 has brought to light a curious issue of international relations.

The plane was leased by CPA from a United States firm and carried an American crew. As a result Erik Nielsen (PC-Yukon) suggested in the Commons the Government should insist that planes leased by Canadian airlines carry Canadian crews.

Transport Minister Paul Hellyer says only a "very limited number" of such leases are approved and the need for them will be reduced as new planes now on order come into service.

"This will make the question more and more academic," observed the minister.

But is it so academic at this stage? Is the airline in question, with its global committments, suffering from a pilot and/or aircraft shortage?

In the Vancouver incident the jet bounced and ran off the runway after landing in heavy fog. Such conditions are difficult for any pilot, but a Canadian crew more familiar with Vancouver conditions might have been more at home in such a situation.

Scouts and Guides

The Boy Scout and Girl Guide organizations are moving with the times by all accounts.

Take the guides. Toronto guide executives Florence Carmichael and Helen E. Sylvas are quoted as saying membership has risen 15 per cent in the past 10 years.

"Rangers, guides and even brownies are swinging with the times with miniskirted uniforms, courses in makeup, freer 'jam sessions,' with no subjects barred, and increased responsibility."

And what do they talk about? Well, the guide commissioners say such subjects as LSD and glue-sniffing are discussed, even by brownies. They believe free discussion of this nature results possibly because "today's Guiders have learned to do more listening and less talking."

This raises the question, who is going to speak out against the dangers of LSD and the like. So many people, some in positions of authority, are prattling away about LSD trips and other hallucinatory experiences gained from drugs that young people may come to accept it all as gospel instead of the aberration that it is.

Fortunately the scout and guide movements teach young people the basics of acceptable conduct and how to get along with other young people. In a world where questionable behavior is all too prevalent the training they afford young people is all the more valuable.

Has Percy Noble Dropped Curtain on CBC Rebels?

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — If you can take your eyes off the Liberal leadership race for a moment, one of the men-to-watch on the federal stage these days is George Davidson.

An unknown to most Canadians.

But on and around Parliament Hill, almost as familiar as the Peace Tower.

George Davidson very probably is Canada's seniormost civil servant.

Been around for some 25 years.

Made the scene first as deputy minister of national health and welfare when Paul Martin organized that department to begin paying the family allowance or "baby bonus," as Prime Minister Mackenzie King and his right-hand-man Jack Pickersgill called it in presenting it as the leadoff item in the post-war social security reconstruction program.

George Davidson was the young, and slightly naive national secretary of the Canadian Welfare Council when Mackenzie King gave him the appointment in what was supposed to have been great secrecy . . . but leaks being what they always are, really was not.

"Hear you're going to be the new health department boss, Paul Martin's deputy," said a newsman — just happened to be this one — when he called the unknown Davidson.

"Who told you?" he exploded, "Mr. King will be furious."

"You just did," he was told, and he had the grace to laugh at his own undoing.

If he was a bit of a wide-eyed innocent in those days, the years have changed all that.

For he soon became the federal government's ablest trouble-shooter among its deputy ministers — a hard-eyed bureaucratic tribe indeed — getting to be, as treasury board secretary, the boss of the bureaucracy itself.

Now he will need all of that hard-boiling those 25 years have given him, and more — for he is the new chairman of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

And by now he must have finished a crash course — packed into two solid weeks of Hansard — in "What's Wrong with the CBC."

Comb through those hundreds of Hansard pages with him and discover that in all of Parliament the CBC has no friends except perhaps the socialist New Democrats.

Conservative, Liberal, Social Crediter, Creditiste, Independent — even State Secretary Judy LaMarsh who takes the parliamentary rap for it — find little right and much wrong with the radio-TV crown corporation.

Take Percy Noble, Conservative MP for Grey North, as a good example of how the parliamentary rank and file feel about the public broadcasters.

Now Percy Noble has been in the Commons since 1957, a good MP, attending faithfully to his constituency's interests, tourism, secondary industry, agriculture, and doing the best he can to look after the individual needs of his people.

Making no great mark in Parliament itself, but doing a very respectable job as a riding MP.

But CBC has suddenly changed all that. He is just as creditable a private MP as he always has been, but now, with a single biting speech, he has caught the eye and ear of the Commons. The publicly-owned radio - TV establishment — an independent empire if there ever was one — got him all fired up.

Just listen to him—as George Davidson surely must have — and realize the almost impossible job that faces the new CBC chairman in trying to restore the crown corporation's image to something resembling public respectability.

Right off the top, Percy Noble nailed the CBC with Judy LaMarsh's angry accusation of "rotten management."

Then he denounced the "small band of self-perpetuating anarchists" within the heart of CBC, "imposing destructive creeds and alien philosophies" on Canadians.

He decried those "untouchables of the CBC, placing themselves beyond criticism, above control, defying Parliament to use a yearly $150,000,000 in public funds attacking and destroying this same public with a continuous fusillade of filth."

There is what he described as "a rotten core" in the CBC that "night after night, week after week, purveys programs designed to destroy faith in Canadian institutions and dismantle Canadian society itself."

He was speaking of the CBC "sex cult, drug culture, atheism, anarchy," and he said that most decent and right-minded Canadians had come to regard the tax-financed broadcasting corporation "with a mixture of horror and dread as a runaway engine of destruction."

Then he went on to ask who had given these "CBC advocates of anarchy" their mandate.

"Who elected them? How do they get the right to take over the network to preach and practise nihilism? There is nothing in the Magna Carta or the Bill of Rights entitling them to do it at the expense of the Canadian taxpayers," he cried.

Finally he served notice that he would refuse to vote CBC its annual $150,000,000 of tax funds until George Davidson proved he is the captor and not the captive of these "headless horsemen of the networks."

The Commons gave him an applauding hand of agreement.

Are you listening, George Davidson?

"Expo 68" Executive Is A Woman

Bill Bantey in
The Montreal Gazette

All right, men, get ready for a woman to tell you where to get off at Man and His World.

It may seem paradoxical that a woman is to mastermind the official guidebook of Man and His World but then, it's not as strange as it appears when the woman is Therese Bernard.

The striking brunette is really just swapping offices — from Expo to City Hall. In fact, her title of co-ordinator of the guidebook in her new job is identical with that of her former job.

It was she who pulled the loose ends together for the Expo guide and who, according to an announcement by Mayor Drapeau Monday, will carry out the same function for the new exhibition.

The guide is to have "a slightly different format", with "a limited number" of the 225 to 250 pages reserved for advertising. Unlike the Expo guide, it is to be "multilingual" rather than bilingual, with photos and information about Montreal as well as the exhibition.

Miss Bernard, who will work under the general direction of City Printer Paul Cholette, is a one-time beauty queen—Queen of the Granby Centennial in 1959.

A native of Edmonton, she moved to Granby as a child. She became the first woman to be named personality of the year by the Granby Chamber of Commerce and was honored by civic and religious authorities as well for community work.

Her first job at Expo was in the public relations department, and she became head of the Speakers' Bureau. From that slot she moved into a post as assistant to Expo management and finally was named co-ordinator of the Expo guide in August, 1965. That job done, she was assigned to vetting material of Expo's official licensees.

Her plans after Expo were indefinite — she thought in terms of radio and television and even about politics. She's been an active Liberal and has taken to the hustings to support the Grit cause.

Postmen and the Mods

Christian Science Monitor

We have heard of areas where mailmen still ride horseback. We have seen postmen doing their rounds in their own, expensive cars. But one thing we never thought we would hear of is a letter carrier who wanted to go barefoot. We apparently didn't figure on the hippie influence.

Word from Washington is that the Post Office Department is drafting new regulations outlawing such outlandish fads among postmen as unkempt beards, hair down to their shoulders, bearskin coats, dungarees, sandals and even bare feet. While we have not seen such in our traditionfast New England, we are told that such garish garments and kooky kustoms have turned up in the hippie headquarters of San Francisco.

On the other hand, we always feel cooler ourselves in summer when we note that officialdom has made the hot weather pleasanter for such hard-working, out - in - the - sun-and-heat public servants as mailmen and policemen. We see much to recommend short sleeves, a well pressed open-neck shirt and light shoes for such men. But long hair and bare feet — ugh, no.

Americans in The Doghouse

Daily Telegraph

"The feelings of many across the Atlantic today are understandable: America was, after all, largely responsible for putting Europe back on its feet after the 1939-45 war, and has subsequently helped to keep vast areas of the world elsewhere off the breadline. Yet unparalled abuse is heaped on her for almost everything she does, usually from the best of motives, beyond her own borders In particular, her economic problems, which by any normal (and especially British) standards are marginal, are deliberately exacerbated by her ill - wishers for their own purposes. Such is the price of Vietnam, and of other commitments around the world, undertaken—largely—on behalf of the West as a whole

Uneasy Lull

More Troops for Vietnam as U.S. Ponders Next Move

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP)-An uneasy and sombre lull reigns here, created by the events of the Vietnam war.

When is North Vietnam going to drop the other boot, with some 40,000 troops ringing the northern marine outpost of Khe Sanh?

Is this just more cat-and-mouse tactics by Northern Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, the military magician of Dien Bien Phu? If so, has he successfully pinned down thousands of Americans while attacking widely in the rest of the South.

The U.S. Tuesday announced the emergency dispatch of another 10,400 troops to Vietnam.

Despite tentative indications the American public has rallied around the beleaguered President Johnson in the wake of the Viet Cong-North Vietnamese offensive,will it last?

Specifically, if the U.S. suffers a defeat at Khe Sanh, as the French did at Dien Bien Phu in 1954 leading up to the partition of Vietnam, will the public radically change its support for a lot more war, or for quitting and getting out?

The jury is still out. The politicians know it.

President Johnson has been relatively silent and strain among senior officials is indicated by one who, when asked in a background briefing session with reporters whether intelligence was faulty in detecting the Viet Cong offensive, replied: "Whose side are you on."

The president has taken refuge in likening himself to Abraham Lincoln in his burden during the Civil War. Former vice-president Richard Nixon, still the Republican front-runner for the presidential candidacy, has withheld criticism about the war's conduct while insisting "this is a war we cannot lose. . . . The cork in the bottle of Chinese expansion in Asia."

The capture of the U.S. outpost at Lang Vei, with the Northern troops using tanks, has heightened concern about Khe Sanh. U.S. officers thought Lang Vei could be held.

One authority often cited by war supporters now says the U.S. must "realize that we have lost this war in terms of what was our original objective and that was to prove that so-called wars of national liberation do not pay and that we can stop them."

"We obviously cannot," says Edwin O. Reischauer, former ambassador to Japan and now a Harvard professor.

Others, such as State Secretary Dean Rusk, insist the supreme test is at hand and that in terms of huge manpower losses and failure to spark a general uprising, the Viet Cong offensive is a failure.

Sales Slumping

Canadian Firms Seek Slice of Boeing's Huge Jumbo Pie

SEATTLE, Wash. (CP) — The bulb-nosed jumbo jet may give Canadian firms a multi-million-dollar chance to perk up slumping sales to the Boeing Co.

The big United States aircraft manufacturer expects to sell $4,000,000,000 worth of its 747 jumbo jets within the next four years.

Boeing says the plane will have "some" Canadian components, but how much in dollar terms is not yet known. Some Canadian businessmen have been beating a small path to Boeing's head office here seeking a slice of $2,300,000,000 the company will spend on prime and sub-contracting.

Some of them are hoping their sales pitch will ring louder now that Boeing has got into the Canadian market in a large way for the first time in years. Boeing already has orders and "indications" for about $250,000,000 worth of aircraft for Canadian airlines.

Sales by Canadian firms to Boeing have hit a slump recently. They had been averaging about $10,000,000 annually since 1959 and in 1966 hit a postwar peak of $15,000,000.

In the first half of 1967, however, they fell to $2,700,000—about one-third the 1966 pace.

Current Boeing passenger jets—the jumbo will be flown late this year and delivered to the airlines starting next year—contain Canadian components that range from small valves to portions of the main landing gear.

All of the prime contracts for the 490-passenger, multi-decked jumbo have been let to American firms but there is still room left for sub-contracts, says Boeing.

Work on the initial 200-plane jumbo production could be just a foot in the door. Boeing says it hopes to sell an additional 200 jumbos—worth another $4,000,000,000—after initial orders are filled by 1972.

The Seattle-based company already has firm orders for 144 planes.

Air Canada is seeking government approval to buy about four jumbo jets, while privately-owned Canadian Pacific Airlines has decided to skip the jumbo and wait four more years for Boeing's glamorous $40,000,000 SST, or supersonic transport.

CPA has placed preliminary orders for three of the 1,800-mile-an-hour titanium-skinned SSTs.

An assembly plant for the jumbo jets has been built at Everett, Wash., about 30 miles north of Seattle and about 100 miles south of Vancouver and the Canadian border.

"There is no reason why Canadian firms can't widen their participation provided they are competitive,' says a Boeing spokesman.

Boeing's Canadian blue book, a guide for Canadian firms seeking to sell to the aircraft firm, shows Boeing spent $75,000,000 in Canada for components from 1959 to the first half of 1967.

Boeing also maintains a list of "approved" suppliers—those with sufficient financial and technical resources to handle component contracts.

Since 1959, Boeing has purchased aircraft parts from firms in Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Fort William, Calgary, Vancouver and Victoria.

Company Hosts Of Safety Tour

The Proctor-Silex Company at Picton were the hosts on Tuesday evening to an Industrial Safety Tour organized by the Belleville-Trenton Section of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations of Ontario. About sixty visitors from all types of industry in the Belleville-Trenton-Picton area toured the Proctor plant and observed many of the safe practices and safety precautions used by the Proctor people in their efforts to prevent accidents.

In addition to noting the many good features of the Proctor accident prevention program, which the guests were asked to take back to their own industries, they were also requested to make a note of any safety hazards they might have seen during the tour. These notes were left with the Proctor firm for their consideration.

This Industrial Safety Tour was the third in a series of five to be held in the Belleville - Trenton - Picton area during the 1967-68 season.

Industrial accidents are now less frequent than accidents in the home, and it is through the efforts of such companies as Proctor-Silex that this has been brought about.

Texas Gulf Map Questioned

TORONTO (CP) — Two employees of Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. Inc. knew a map they had prepared for an agreement between that company and Leitch Gold Mines Ltd. was inaccurate at the time they workd on it, J. J. Robinette, counsel for Leitch, said Wednesday.

Leitch and Mastodon-Highland Bell Mines Ltd. of Vancouver are claiming title to a $2,000,000,000 copper-zinc-silver orebody 15 miles north of Timmins which was brought into production by Texas Gulf last year. Alternatively, the two companies are asking $450,000,000 damages.

The trial began 15 months ago and has become one of the longest civil cases ever heard in Canada.

In his second day of summation, Mr. Robinette said Dr. Walter Holyk, Texas Gulf's chief geologist, and Mary Hoyt, who drew the map showing portions of Northern Ontario and Quebec surveyed—aerially by Texas Gulf, knew it to be inaccurate except as a general location or index map.

"Miss Hoyt treated the map as a rough approximation of flights made by Texas Gulf in 1961," Mr. Robinette said. "She made no attempt to ascertain the actual extent of the flying done."

"There is a difference between knowing a map to be inaccurate and putting on a rough approximation," Chief Justice G. A. Gale, who is hearing the case, interjected.

Mr. Robinette suggested Miss Hoyt could have referred to aerial electromagnetic survey sheets to make the map more accurate.

But he agreed with the chief justice that that would have been "quite a demanding exercise," and that it would have been virtually impossible to reduce the flight lines on the sheets to the map's scale of 20 miles to the inch.

The map was attached to the agreement signed by Texas Gulf and Leitch in 1963, specifying that Leitch was to have information uncovered by Texas Gulf in a number of surveyed areas included on the map. Texas Gulf was not to explore or stake claims in the area without informing Leitch. Mastodon-Highland Bell, as Leitch's exploration partner, later acquired a half-interest in the agreement.

The point at issue is whether or not the Timmins orebody announced by Texas Gulf in 1964 lies within the specified agreement. Leitch contends it does, Texas Gulf that it does not.

Two Hurt in Tweed Crash

TWEED—Two men were injured yesterday morning about 11:45 when the car in which they were travelling failed to negotiate a turn and rammed a telephone pole.

Roland J. Tremblay, 58, of Hull, Quebec received hand lacerations when his car drove off South Victoria street, went over the bank at the side of the road and collided with the pole.

Damage to the automobile was estimated at $650.

It's a Comforting Thought.

Survivors' Benefits Become Payable This Month Under The Canada Pension Plan

Starting this month, your Canada Pension Plan pays Survivors' Benefits . . . at no extra cost to you. These include a death benefit paid in a lump sum, widows' pensions, disabled widowers' pensions and benefits for dependent children. Benefits are payable to a contributor's survivors when the required contributions to the Canada Pension Plan have been made for at least three years. However, in accordance with the legislation, Survivors' Benefits can become payable this February, provided contributions have been made for the years 1966, 1967 and for the required period in 1968. Moreover, Survivors' Benefits are subject to the same upward adjustment that applies to all benefits under the Canada Pension Plan. This will keep them in line with increases in living costs.

It's a comforting thought to know that your family can rely on the Canada Pension Plan, even if you aren't here to look after them. Especially if you have young children. IF YOU WOULD LIKE MORE INFORMATION ON SURVIVORS' BENEFITS, VISIT OR WRITE YOUR NEAREST CANADA PENSION PLAN OFFICE.

Ontario Medical and Hospital Plan Services to Be Expanded

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario hospital and medical plan services will be expanded and workmen's compensation benefits placed at "appropriate levels" in legislation to be brought before the 28th provincial legislature, the government announced yesterday in the speech from the throne.

Essential ambulance services will be included as a benefit under the hospital plan, "thus providing a more uniform province-wide ambulance service."

Air ambulance facilities will be developed in sparsely populated areas of Northern Ontario.

Benefits under the Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan will be extended to include examination of eyes by refraction when carried out by a physician or an optometrist.

Health services also will be changed "through an arrangement which will have a significant and beneficial effect on the drugs used in hospitals and welfare institutions."

Amendments to the Workmen's Compensation Act will propose "appropriate levels" of benefits and allowances while efforts are made to reduce injuries and fatalities in employment.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Are you tax-deductible?"

Throne Speech Text Available in French

TORONTO (CP) — A French-language text of the Ontario speech from the throne was released in the legislature press gallery Wednesday as the Progressive Conservative government proposed that the Ontario house become formally bilingual.

This was the first time a simultaneous French translation had been released in the press gallery along with advance copies of the throne speech. For the last four years, French translations have been provided to French-speaking legislature members and French-language newspapers.

In the coming session, the Ontario legislature will be asked to approve a resolution providing that "any member of the assembly shall have the formally recognized right to address the legislature in either English or French."

The speech, read by Lieutenant-Governor W. Earl Rowe, also said legislation will be offered to provide French language secondary schools, within the public education system, in areas where they are warranted by French-speaking populations.

Mr. Robarts said during the federal-provincial constitutional conference in Ottawa last week that Ontario intends to ensure equal opportunity for its French-speaking population.

Recommendations on French-language secondary schools will come from a committee studying appropriate locations. Other committees are considering how to extend language rights to some municipalities, provincial courts and areas of the civil service.

Resources Roads Proposed

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario roads-to-resources program to develop "the abundant natural wealth of our province" was posed yesterday in the speech from the throne opening the first session of the 28th legislature.

"This program will include the planning and development of transportation systems to and from main arterial routes," it said. "These will be based on the resources of forestry, mining, fish and wildlife, tourism and the requirements of the residents of Northern Ontario."

A Provincial Airports Act will be introduced to permit financial assistance for Northern Ontario municipalities in acquiring and developing airports and airstrips, and air ambulance services will be developed in sparsely populated areas of the north.

An "impressive" program of highway improvements and expansion will include a start on Highway 417, connecting Ottawa to a new Quebec Freeway.

Expropriation Fairness Pledged

TORONTO (CP) The Ontario legislature yesterday was told it will be asked to approve legislation providing fair treatment and adequate compensation to owners of property expropriated in the public interest.

The speech from the throne, read to the first session of the 28th legislature, said the government has given detailed consideration to recommendations on compensation for expropriated properties, made in the report of the Ontario law reform commission.

The last session of the legislature did not act on the commission proposal that compensation be based on a home-for-a-home principle.

Municipalities Will Get Help

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government will complete its commitments to provide financial relief to municipalities and individuals paying real estate taxes while pursuing "excellence in the provision of services for the health and human betterment" of all residents, it was announced yesterday in the speech from the throne.

"Programs will be accelerated to improve the purity of the air we breathe, the water we drink and the efficient multi-purpose use of our land," it said.

It proposes to complete legislation providing for a basic shelter grant which will save taxpaying property owners about $50 a year and assumption by the province of the cost of administration of justice.

Further reforms may be introduced after a "comprehensive evaluation" of the recommendations of the Ontario committee on taxation.

Magistrates and juvenile and family courts are to have the status of provincial courts, presided over by appointed provincial judges.

Legislation will be proposed to the 28th legislature to establish a system of regional government in the Ottawa-Carleton area with local municipalities represented on a regional council.

The government said it will continue with its plans for larger units of school administration so that "all the children of Ontario will have an equal opportunity to develop their maximum potential."

Education Minister William Davis announced last year that the number of school boards in Ontario would be reduced to about 100, most of them based on approximate county areas in the south and on designated areas in the north.

The speech said education and adequate housing continue to be the matters of most urgent attention for the province. The government, it said, must place immediate importance on the growth of urban centres, transportation, water and sewage facilities, urban redevelopment and outdoor recreation.

Ontario To Revise Present Corporation Laws

TORONTO (CP) — Legislation on "all aspects" of the operation of commercial corporations, and changes in laws governing insurance, loan and trust companies is promised by the Ontario government.

The throne speech, read by Lieutenant-Governor Earl Rowe Wednesday at opening of the legislature, also contained the promise of new government proposals aimed at strengthening Ontario's consumer protection laws.

Plans for an overhaul of laws governing commercial corporations were announced by Premier Robarts last June 9, two months after changes were recommended in an interim report by Ontario's select committee on company law.

In making the announcement the premier tabled a draft of a proposed new corporations act implementing some of the committee's key recommendations. Mr. Robarts said they would amount to giving shareholders a "bill of rights."

It contained a code of ethics for directors of corporations and new rights for shareholders such as to call general meetings and apply to the courts for inspection of a corporation's books.

Other provisions were designed to ensure the independence of auditors and regulate more closely the activities of indenture trustees.

The draft bill was given only first reading in 1967 but was printed for distribution in the financial community.

The throne speech gave no details of the planned changes in laws governing insurance, loan and trust companies or the direction the government will move to plug loopholes in the 1966 Consumer Protection Act, which came into force only last Aug. 1.

The speech said the changes in the protection act will be based "on the operation experience of the Consumer Protection Bureau.

The last major changes in the Loan and Trust Corporations Act was in 1966 when, as part of an overhaul of securities legislation, the government moved to regulate "insider trading" by companies.

Compensation Amounts Will Be Increased

TORONTO (CP) — Increased benefits under the Workmen's Compensation Act and new labor standard legislation to increase protection of workers are promised by the Ontario government.

The throne speech, read by Lt.-Gov. Earl Rowe at the opening of the legislature Wednesday, forecast amendments to the compensation act "to provide appropriate levels of benefits and allowances paid under this act."

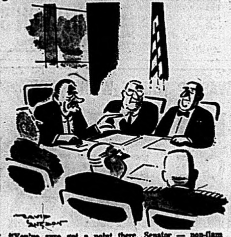
Mr. Justice George McGillivray in a one-man royal commission report on workmen's compensation, recommended last fall that the ceiling on wages under the act be raised to $7,000 a year from $6,000.

The report also called for an increase in widows' monthly allowances to $125 from $75 and a boost in lump-sum payments to $500 from $300. The commissioner suggested the allowance for funeral expenses be raised to $400 from $300.

The throne speech said the government plans to increase "its efforts to reduce injuries and fatalities in employment."

"To assist in the protection of the work force of the province you will be asked to approve new labor standards legislation."

THE PICK OF Punch



"You've sure got a point there, Senator — non-flam draft cards."

Treasury to Be Two Departments

TORONTO (CP) — Plans to create two new government departments to administer the functions of the provincial treasury department were announced Wednesday in the throne speech opening the 1968 session of the Ontario legislature.

The speech read by Lieutenant-Governor Earl Rowe said the tax-collecting function of the treasury department will be handled by a revenue department. Economic and budgeting policy will be determined by a department of finance and economics.

Creation of the separate revenue department was recommended by the Ontario committee on taxation in its report released last Aug. 31.

The committee, headed by accountant Lancelot Smith, proposed that the new department be similar to the federal department of national revenue and Quebec's revenue department.

"Such a department would facilitate the consolidation of assessment, collection and appeal procedures for all major revenue statutes," the report said.

"In addition, separating tax policy from tax administration would enhance in the public eye the importance that government attaches to revenue-raising policy and would enable the treasury department to concentrate its attention on broad questions of fiscal and economic policy."

The throne speech said the new finance and economics department "will provide a unified organization to deal with economic, financial, fiscal and taxation policy and federal-provincial affairs."

A first step toward implementing the Smith committee's recommendation was taken last fall when the office of the chief economist was transferred to treasury from the department of economics and development.

The office is in charge of economic planning and analysis and research into federal-provincial affairs.

In announcing the move, which took effect Dec. 15, Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton appointed Chief Economist H. I. Macdonald as a deputy provincial treasurer in charge of economic affairs.

Deputy Treasurer Harold Walker has continued as deputy minister in charge of revenue.

The throne speech announcement was welcomed by Donald MacDonald, provincial leader of the New Democratic Party but criticized by Liberal Leader Robert Nixon.

Mr. Nixon said he couldn't see how the move would result in any greater economies and suggested the government should be consolidating departments rather than adding new ones.

Museum Control Will Be Changed

TORONTO (CP) — Transfer of the Royal Ontario Museum to direct provincial control was promised Wednesday in the throne speech at the opening of the 1968 session of the Ontario lgislature.

Lieutenant-Governor Earl Rowe, reading the speech said a government bill will propose establishing the Toronto museum, now run by the University of Toronto, under an independent board of directors.

"The museum will join the Art Gallery of Ontario and the Centre for Science and Technology as provincially-financed cultural, educational and research institutions," the speech said.

Ontario Is Prepared To Consider Changes

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government says it is willing to consider proposals to ensure full and equal citizenship for all residents of Canada.

The speech from the throne read at Wednesday's opening of the legislature said a report on the future constitutional development of Canada will be made to this session. A text of the speech was made available in French.

"The government of Ontario has demonstrated willingness to consider constitutional change, the distribution of powers, the nature of our federal institutions, the proposed Charter of Human Rights and to ensure, where practical, the linguistic equality of French-speaking residents of Ontario," the speech said.

"Canada is in the midst of an internal crisis of its will and determination to survive as a cohesive nation. While my government is deeply aware that we are far from resolving all our difficulties, it is confident that Canadians possess the courage, the ability and the determination required to accomplish the task of building a greater, stronger and more united Canada."

The Book That Everyone Has Been Waiting For ...

PIERRE BERTON'S

"THE SMUG MINORITY"

"The march of social progress is like a long and straggling parade, with the seers and prophets at its head and a smug minority bringing up the rear . . ."

THE SMUG MINORITY is Pierre Burton's fifteenth book and in many respects the most important book he has ever written. It expresses his mature convictions about the society in which we live.

THE SMUG MINORITY continues to present as realities copy book maxims that have long since become obsolete:

- A woman's place is in the home.
- Satan finds more mischief still for idle hands to do.
- Too much security kills initiative.
- Anyone who works hard will rise to the top.
- Higher taxes will wreck the nation.
- Private property must be sacrosanct.

All of these statements are open to challenge and it is the purpose of this book to challenge them.

How Calvert found a new way to make rye incredibly smooth.

The name of the rye is Grand Prix.

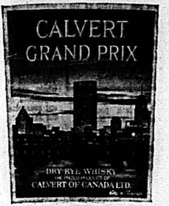
We made it incredibly smooth by making it dry.

And we made it dry by discovering a new way to make rye without any cloying sweetness.

This makes Grand Prix a full-bodied rye so smooth you can actually sip it straight. And like it.

Nobody ever made a rye as smooth as Grand Prix before because nobody ever knew how. It took Calvert ten years to do it, and naturally our Master Blender is pretty proud of it.

But try it yourself. In ten seconds you'll know why he's so proud.



Calvert Grand Prix. The world's first dry rye.

International Aspects of Guiding Highlight Guide and Brownie Tea

The international aspects of Guiding were spotlighted Wednesday afternoon at the Belleville Division Girl Guide and Brownie tea. The event was held in St. Thomas' Parish Hall.

Blue and yellow, the Guide colors, set the decorative theme in the tea room. Individual tables were covered with blue cloths and centred with cut-out figures of Guides in uniforms of all the countries of the world where Guiding flourishes. Tea room hostesses were Mrs. M. Chartrand, Mrs. A. Bannon, Mrs. F. Donohoe and Mrs. J. Miles, and Mrs. Anne Chiasson was in charge of the kitchen.

Pouring at the two tea tables were Mrs. L. McBrien, Mrs. J. Kuntze, Mrs. Capt. Reid, Mrs. D. Stewart, Mrs. A. McLean Haig, Mrs. R. Arnott, Mrs. J. Thicke, Mrs. R. Graham, Mrs. A. Steenburg, Mrs. A. Hume, Mrs. B. Watters and Mrs. A. Kroetch.

The blue and yellow standard of No. 10 Company placed between the tea tables was echoed in the centrepieces of gilded driftwood entwined with yellow and blue flowers. Flanking these were yellow and blue tapers in silver candelabra.

Mrs. D. Leslie was general convener and Mrs. W. R. C. Munroe, assisted by Mrs. F. Belsey, was treasurer.

Mrs. T. R. Colden, Belleville Division Commissioner, received at the door, assisted by the District Commissioners. These were: Mrs. J. Miles, Mrs. D. Stewart, Mrs. F. Donohoe, Mrs. M. Chartrand and Mrs. A. Bannon.

Home baking was sold during the afternoon, with the proceeds going to the work of the four Belleville districts.

Dolls costumed in Guide and Brownie uniforms from around the world were arranged on the stage of the Parish Hall. The 44 dolls, dressed by Quinte area gold cord Guides, are a permanent record of Guidings' international scope.

Tea Is Served

The Girl Guide and Brownie tea convener, Mrs. Donald Leslie, chats with Mrs. Thomas Colden, Division Commissioner and Archdeacon A. S. McConnell, at the annual event held Wednesday afternoon. Tea is being served by Mrs. Ralph Holland, Brown Owl, Avondale Pack, who recently received a ten year pin.

Canny Frozen Food Shopping Adds $$ to Family Budget

"The best way to determine the cost of any food is to figure the cost per serving," says the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture.

When buying frozen vegetables, for example, compare the cost per serving of the two-pound bag which gives ten servings with the 12-ounce package which gives four servings. You may find that you can save as much as eight cents on only one vegetable at a meal for six people by buying the larger bag. You may find other price differences between brands and between stores. If you serve frozen vegetables often, this may add up to dollars saved by the end of the month.

Check the label on the package of frozen food for a description of the contents. Fruits may be marked with or without sugar added. Vegetables may be marked whole, cut or dried. Frozen vegetables packed dry without seasonings or sauces are the most economical buy.

Home economists suggest allowing ½ cup of frozen vegetables per serving. Since commercially frozen vegetables are "loose frozen" on trays or plates before packing, they separate easily. The required amount may be measured out and the rest put back in the freezer. Be sure to carefully seal the bag or box before returning it to the freezer.

Frozen fruits and vegetables are packed and graded Canada Fancy and Canada Choice. They are graded on color, uniformity of size, texture and absence of defects when examined after thawing. Flavor and tenderness of vegetables are checked after the product is cooked.

Frozen fruits and vegetables that have thawed, may be safely refrozen if there are still ice crystals in the package or if they are still cold (the temperature not above 50 F). The color, texture and flavor of fruits and vegetables, however, will be affected by thawing. If meat and poultry is completely thawed but still has a fresh odor, it should be cooked. If several cuts have thawed, it is best to cook and refreeze the cooked meat.

Frozen fruits and vegetables may be stored satisfactorily for a period up to one year in a freezer that holds the temperature at 0 deg. F. If the temperature is between 5 deg. F to 15 deg. F, as it may be in the frozen food compartment of a refrigerator, the food should be stored for only a few weeks. Fresh cuts of most meats may be stored for four to five months at 0 deg. F. Beef may be stored for as long as a year.

However, it is not economical to keep foods in the freezer for many months. To get the best value from your freezer, keep a list of the foods as you put them in the freezer. Check the list when you are adding a new supply and use up the food stored longest.

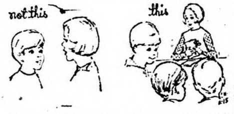
Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Jimmy: "Will you be a den mother or a home room mother next year?"

Mother: "I'm sorry I can't. It's easier for mothers who don't have jobs to do those things."

Don't push all responsibilities out of your life just because you are a working mother. Your child needs to feel you are interested enough to take part in his activities.

Three out of five mothers have jobs these days — and many of the stay-at-home mothers have tiny babies. Even though it may be inconvenient, every mother should try to do her share if she wants her child to participate.

Bean and Bacon Soup for 8

By MARY MOORE

Just because I had a hankering for it ought to be sufficient reason for making this bean and bacon soup. But I had other reasons too. For one thing I had a pound of navy beans on my staples shelf. For another folks were coming for an early supper so they could leave early with their small family. They requested "one of your famous hearty soup suppers Mary". That kind of talk put me on my mark, ready and set to go.

BEAN and BACON SOUP
(Serves 8 to 10)

- One pound dried white navy beans
- 10 cups cold water
- ¼ to ½ pound end smoked side bacon
- 1 medium onion
- 2 slices lemon
- 1 bay leaf
- ½ tsp. salt
- 2 chicken Oxo cubes

Wash the beans under running water in a large sieve. Soak them in soup kettle overnight in the cold water in a cool place. In the morning put them on to cook. Then put through grinder the smoked bacon end, onion and lemon slices and add to soup pot. Also add the bay leaf, salt and chicken Oxo cubes, cover and simmer 3 to 3½ hrs.

NOTES: 1) I wanted to puree this soup. I cooled it down to room temperature which thickened it a little. I beat it in the beater bowl on "slow" to break up most of the beans. (It could have been strained but I wanted to retain the little bits of bacon.)

At mealtime I reheated it. This was served from a soup tureen with Italian Bread Sticks and Cheese Croissants (see Friday, Jan. 19, 1968).

Clip and file this under "Soups: Main Course".

Ann Landers

Sales People Object To Rude Customers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently you printed a letter from a woman who complained about rude sales people. I'm sure the writer has a point, but I wonder how much thought is given to rude customers? I've been in the retail business for over 25 years and I'd like to tell you how it looks from the other side of the counter.

ANN LANDERS

I've seen customers switch price tags and take merchandise from the regular stock and say it was on the sale rack. Last week I saw a woman take a pair of cuticle scissors out of her purse and cut a big hole in the lining of a coat. She then brought the coat to me, said it was damaged and asked for a reduction in the price.

I've seen customers grind out cigarettes in th rugs and steal light bulbs out of the dressing rooms. They come in off the street to use the bathroom and make telephone calls. They ask for free boxes and then want us to mail the packages for them.

I won't go into the trouble I have had with shoplifters or the rubber cheques I've been stuck with, the deadbeats who get mad when you telephone or write a letter and ask for your mony.

So, Ann Landers, whenever you hear people complain about the treatment they get in a retail store, you can be sure they deserve it. — SAM.

DEAR SAM: Thanks for your letter. You must have had more good customers than bad ones or you could not have stayed in business for 25 years. (P.S. I hope your letter doesn't produce a run on cuticle scissors.)

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a 13-year-old girl who needs your advice. There are so many things you write about in your column that I could never talk to Mom about. This is one of those problems.

Last Saturday I went to a downtown movie. I was supposed to meet my two cousins but they weren't at the box office where they were supposed to be so I went in alone.

I sat down near the back and all of a sudden I noticed a man across the aisle staring in my direction. After a while this man moved next to me. I kept my eyes straight ahead and didn't move. When he put his hand on my shoulder I got awfully scared. I didn't know what to do so I jumped out of my seat and ran out of the theatre.

Was I a fool to run out? Did I do the right thing? — PETRIFIED.

DEAR PET: You did the wrong thing. You should have gone immediately to the head usher or the manager of the theatre, reported the incident and pointed the man out. He could then have been dealt with properly. Instead you left him free to bother someone else.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My girl is very attractive and has excellent taste. Recently she saw a picture in a magazine and decided she was going to look exotic — like the model in the picture. She plucked out all her eyebrows and penciled in some new ones, about one inch higher than her own. I think her penciled eyebrows are cheap and unnatural. Also, she goes around looking surprised all the time. Should I tell her how I feel? — JAKE.

DEAR JAKE: Without belaboring the point, tell her you prefer her own eyebrows to the ones she bought at the dime store and ask her if she will give the real ones another chance.

it's a chill wind...

and you can be sure it blows no good. Unless you're snuggled into one of our all-weather coats... with a lining to zip out when spring wafts gently in.

Successful Living

Dad Suggests Guidelines for Son

Dear Doris: I have read and re-read these paragraphs from "Letter to a Son In College":

". . .As to how far you should go with girls, God help you, and may God help me not to answer for you, nor to unload my own code on you. But here are some things that may not occur to you in the heat of battle.

"Your bride is alive and waiting for you right now with high ideals for you. You might want to sit down sometime, when one of the disrupting candidates is not sitting close beside you, and describe the kind of girl you want to marry. How would you recommend that she behave? The fellow has a way of finding and falling for the kind of girl he deserves. Put your dates in this perspective.

"How far should you go? How far do you want her to go with someone else? How would you feel about your father and mother going that far with someone aside from each other? How far do you want your little sister to go?

"Is your contemplated behaviour something you'd not mind confessing to your wife and own son some day? As a practical matter, remember that the girl the college freshman is currently raving about is probably not the one he'll end up with. Undoubtedly, the happiness of your future home will be created or cheated by your current conduct."

Dear Sharing: Thank you. Read it, boys.

Dear D. A. B.: January sixth, the twelfth night after Christmas, is called "Little Christmas" and is a day for celebrating and exchanging gifts, in many countries.

Christ's birthday is set aside for sacred religious observances. I rather like the idea.

Dear Doris: I read about girl's pre-adolescent behavior and it seems to describe how my daughter has been acting lately.

How long does it take for a girl's body and emotions to adjust to physical changes at this time? — Mother of Teen

Dear Mother: Round about the time that a girl is becoming a woman there do seem to be personality troubles.

The tomboy type may become shy, unreasonably sensitive, irritable and even very moody. It may last one year, two years, even three. I could tell you more if you told me more — about her age, physical development, actual behavior, attitudes to family, boys.

There are great variations in individuals — with even the boys turning into mixed-up teens — though they may hate to admit anything of the kind.

Medical Men Fear Poor Drugs

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Medical Association warned Prime Minister Pearson by telegram Wednesday that bill C-190, now before the House of Commons, may open the door to drugs whose safety and effectiveness are substandard.

The bill, an amendment to the Patent Act and the Trade Marks Act, is designed to lower drug prices by increasing competition between domestic and foreign-manufactured drugs.

The proposed legislation would remove the protection period covering the innovator of a new drug, from drug companies outside Canada.

The association said in its telegram that under the new legislation it would be difficult for the food and drug directorate to maintain supervision over foreign manufacturers.

The telegram called for detailed study and amendments to the bill, to provide adequate safeguards for the public.

Drugs Are Handled in Wrong Fashion

TORONTO (CP) — If medicine were sold in prescription-sized packages instead of from open-bulk containers some dangers of handling drugs could be eliminated, says a report in the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

The Feb. 10 issue reports on a symposium on drug safety sponsored last June by the food and drug directorate in Ottawa.

Dr. W. W. Wigle, president of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers' Association of Canada, says in the report that pharmacists have inherited traditional practices of dispensing drugs and probably deplore the repacking process.

Sensitivity to light and air may cause certain drug products left on the shelf in opened bulk containers to deteriorate, the report says.

Dr. Wigle's report said the food and drug directorate, although deserving praise for its dedication, may stifle therapeutic advance by pulling the reigns of regulation too tight.

Leary Will Go Underground To Advance Claim as Messiah

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Dr. Timothy Leary says he is going underground in a campaign to win recognition as a modern messiah, "the wisest man of the 20th century."

The LSD advocate, honeymooning in this art colony with his secretary-bride, spoke casually in a recent interview of his role in an underground movement which he said handed out 1,000,000 doses of the psychedelic drug in the Haight Ashbury hippie district of San Francisco as a sociological experiment—"to see what would happen."

However, Lieut. Norman H. Currie, head of the San Francisco police narcotics squad, has dismissed Leary's statement that vast quantities of LSD had been passed around.

"He's living in a different world that we do. There has been no indication of an upsurg in LSD.'

Instead, he said, he is going to withdraw from the public.

Youth Says LSD Sale Generosity

TORONTO (CP) — A 20-year-old youth testifeid Wednesday that he gave an undercover policeman a capsule containing the hallucinatory drug LSD "in a spirit of generosity."

"I didn't do it to get money," said Bruce MacKenzie of Toronto. "I just wanted to turn him on."

MacKenzie, on trial for selling a controlled drug, said he gave the capsule to Constable Joseph Cziraky at a hippie love-in last Aug. 20. He did not know the constable was a policeman.

Commons Approves Alterations To Patent and Trade Mark Acts

OTTAWA (CP) — Amendments to the Patent Act and the Trade Marks Act aimed at slicing drug profits said to run as high as 28,000 per cent won approval in principle in the Commons Wednesday.

"The large patent owners have only themselves to blame for this legislation," said Liberal MP Jean Richard (Ottawa East), a patent lawyer.

"They have consistently refused licences to reliable small firms while at the same time willingly licensing some of their large competitors so as to restrict the market and control prices."

Mr. Richard said this area should be investigated "in greater depth" by the federal combines branch.

The 28,000-per-cent profit figure was mentioned early in the three-day debate by Dr. William Howe (NDP—Hamilton South).

The Canadian Chemical Producers Association, meanwhile, sent a telegram to Prime Minister Pearson saying it is shocked by the patents legislation.

The telegram said the principles of the legislation "can only lead us to the conclusion that the industrial environment in our country is deteriorating to the point where it is no longer conducive to the development of highly-skilled industries."

The amendments cut to five from 17 years the life of a drug patent. After five years others could apply for a licence to manufacture the drug.

Consumer Affairs Minister Turner said the idea is to open price rather than promotional competition. MPs were told that 30 cents of every $1 Canadians spend on drugs now goes for promotion.

He added that about 55 manufacturers operating in Canada would still have a comfortable cushion—five years to build a market for their drug, then royalties from other firms licensed to market it, plus a 15-per-cent most-favored nation tariff.

Mr. Richard suggested that, if anything, the bill is too soft and may not bring about the desired retail price reductions.

He was also against appeals to the Exchequer Court of Canada. Mr. Richard said such appeals nearly always follow decisions by the commissioner and the cost is excessive.

Mr. Richard also said that the most important protection to "brand name firms" would remain the trade mark under which they sold their drugs.

Reduction of prices would remain within the power of the manufacturers. Nobody knew how much such reductions may be.

While Liberals, New Democrats and Social Credit spokesmen supported the bill and castigated the drug industry, Conservative MPs led by Dr. P. B. Rynard (Simcoe East) attacked the bill as "confiscatory" and a danger to present drug standards.

Mr. Turner replied that the companies would continue to enjoy hedges like the five-year patent protection period and that the food and drug directorate was being beefed up and was well able to see that standards were maintained.

He rejected arguments that the legislation will kill drug research in Canada and will leave the country reliant on foreign sources. Mr. Turner said drug companies, mostly foreign-owned, do little research in Canada and 85 per cent of fine chemicals were imported now for conversion here into pills or serums.

Dr. Rynard said that by cutting the protection period to five years, the government might "force" manufacturers to raise the price of drugs to pay for "research" costs in the shorter period.

"We might well be increasing the cost of life-saving drugs to the Canadian people.'

During the three-day debate, Liberals and NDP members referred to the Hall royal commission report on health services and to a special Commons committee on drug prices to support arguments for the legislation.

Tourist Program Planned

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government will develop a master plan for tourism and outdoor recreation, it was announced Wednesday in the speech from the throne.

The speech said the plan will be part of "extended efforts" to sustain the tourist momentum fostered by events of the 1967 Centennial Year.

The government expects a 10-per-cent drop in tourist spending this year. Preliminary estimates indicate 1967 spending by foreign visitors will be between [illegible]50,000,000 and $600,000,000, a record.

Vision Is Secret of Greatness

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

The greatness of a man has to do with his "vision," now with the "correctness" of his formulations; much of Newton's mechanics has been revised, much of Darwin's biology has been reformed, much of Freud's psychology has been modified — but they remain great because they saw deeply, not because they were permanently correct.

In Oregon, high school and college students have been named to an "advisory jury" to help the judge decide cases involving youngsters and to give him the benefit of a "peer group" judgment; and anyone who knows young people will agree that their advice will be fairer (and often firmer) than that of the court itself.

We all know about people who live on the installment plan, but we still lack comprehension of the many who die on the installment plan, who commit suicide little by little, day by day, who, in Albee's words, "want to die, and take a lifetime doing it." (The alcoholic and narcotics addicts are only the most dramatic examples, but by no means the most numerous.)

How can he who thinks he possesses absolute truth be genuinely tolerant of other viewpoints?

• • •

The educated bigot is far worse than the ignorant one, for he can marshal a hundred plausible half-truths to support his tendentious position, and those with less learning have no way to refute him.

How beautifully and imaginatively and gracefully most children draw and paint — until they enter the average art class.

A skeptic isn't merely one who doubts — any child growing out of Santa Calus does that — but one who examines his doubts as rigorously as he has examined his earlier beliefs.

All dificult things are easy to handle in their beginning, but we fail to manage them until they develop nearly insoluble complexities, like diseases, like child-rearing, and like the evolution of a state.

To anyone who remembers the Dr. Doolittle books of his youth as vividly as I do, the film recently made from these classics is bound to be a bitter disappointment, failing to capture the whole spirit of the author, and replacing it with irrelevant songs and a stupid love-interest that falsifies the whole theme of the series.

A moralizer is someone for whom "morality" stops at the waist; but, in fact, most basic immorality exists above the neck, not in the loins.

CBC Views Not Those Of Majority

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Gunnar Thorvaldson (PC—Manitoba) told the Senate Wednesday that the CBC "is in total conflict with the views of moderate Canadians."

Leading off debate on the second day of the Senate's debate on the government broadcasting bill already passed by the Commons, Senator Thorvaldson said the publicly-owned corporation's programming is in the hands of a few persons who want to mould Canadians in their own "hippy, drug-addicted image."

The Senate was debating the bill to establish a broadcasting policy and set up a new regulatory body to see that it is carried out.

Senator Norman MacKenzie (L—British Columbia) said the problem facing Parliament concerning the CBC also is the central problem of democracy. Freedom of speech was an issue.

While Parliament had some control over finance since it voted funds to the CBC, it was another matter to interfere with programming. It was unthinkable that a government should do so.

UNDER GROUP CONTROL

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — An agreement signed here recently put a U.S.-supplied research reactor in Seoul, Korea, under control of the International Atomic Energy Agency. The IAEA said that as a result "administration of safeguards for all co-operation agreements between the United States and countries of Southeast Asia and the Far East now has been transferred to the IAEA."

Nancy Earns Canada's First Gold Medal With Slalom Win

GRENOBLE, France (CP) — Canada's Nancy Greene turned in a fantastic time of one minute, 51.97 seconds today to win the women's giant slalom and give Canada its first gold medal in the 1968 Winter Olympic Games.

The little tiger from Rossland, B.C., thus gave Canada its second medal in the Games. She won a second-place silver in Tuesday's slalom event.

The silver in today's event went to Annie Famose of France who had a time of 1:54.61. Switzerland's Fernande Bochatay was third in 1:54.74.

Miss Greene, winner of skiing's World Cup for women last year, had been hampered somewhat during pre-Olympic races by an ankle injury.

The Canadian girl was the ninth starter down the 1,610-metre course that had 68 gates and a drop of 450 metres.

After France's Marielle Goitschel, who won the special slalom went down in 1:56.09, Nancy broke into a combination of smiles and tears. She was embraced by everyone around her, including Miss Famose.

Miss Goitschel wound up seventh.

Miss Greene said: "You know I was the favorite in this race and I should have been. I have won nine international giant slaloms in the last two years and if I had not won I would have been greatly disappointed.

"I think perhaps it was my greatest race ever. I don't know whether I made a mistake or not. I only know that I attacked the course with everything I had. I just worked and skied and worked some more."

Nancy said she had no difficulties today.

"It was a great course," she said. "I really felt good."

Asked if there was ever a moment during the race when she thought she had it won, she replied: "There never is time to feel that in the giant slalom."

Smiling happily, Nancy said she slept well Wednesday night and was not nervous. "I really wanted to win this one."

Asked whether the World Cup or the Olympic medal meant most to her, she answered: "I think to skiers the World Cup means more than the Olympics because this is just one race."

She said she intends to keep on racing. Asked if she intends to race in the 1972 Olympics in Japan, she laughed and said: "You never know."

Need Wins In Remaining Games

Nats Looking For Second Gold

GRENOBLE, France (CP) — Coach Jackie McLeod figures Canada's Olympic hockey team can win a gold medal in competition here.

McLeod, who needs wins against Sweden and Russia to be sure of the gold medal, said he has reminded the players in strong terms at two team meetings that they are here for gold —nothing else.

In the one game scheduled Wednesday in the championship round-robin, Finland won a bruising game from East Germany 3-2 on a pair of goals by Matti Harju. It was the second win for the Finns in five starts and left them alone in fifth place. The other victory was the 5-2 upset of Canada.

The Canadians, Swedes and Czechs are down one game in the loss column, meaning the best showing for any of them in the seven-game tournament would 6-1 and 12 points. All three countries are 4-1 after five starts and tied in points with eight.

The Russians, however, are 5-0 with 10 points and need only a tie and a victory in their two remaining games to clinch a victory in their two remaining games to clinch their third Olympic hockey gold. They won it in 1956 and 1964.

If the Canadians beat both Sweden and Russia, they win the gold. The pair of wins would give them 12 points. Whether Russia or Czechoslovakia finishes with 12 points would depend on the outcome of two other key matches.

Sweden would be out of the race because it lost twice.

The first method used to break ties is to pick the winner of the game between two tied teams.

If the Czechs tie the Canadians in points, Canada wins the gold because it beat Czechoslovakia.

If Canada defeats the Russians after beating Sweden, then Canada gets the gold as the game winner.

The question of whether Russia or Czechoslovakia winds up tied with Canada, if the Canadians win their last two games, depends on today's other main championship match between Czechoslovakia and Russia and the Saturday one between Sweden and Czechoslovakia.

Czechs Praise Canadian Team

PRAGUE (CP) —Czechoslovakian sports writers have praised the Canadian national hockey team for its 3-2 victory over the Czech team Tuesday at the Grenoble Winter Olympics.

"The Canadians managed to make use of 50 per cent of their goal chances, the Czechs grasped only 10 per cent," Ceskoslovensky Sport said in its Wednesday editions.

Svobodne Slovo says the Canadians played like sportsmen "in a courteous and straight-forward way and, we can say, they played very well."

Russians Slip In Battle For Medals

Controversy Over East German Team Continues

GRENOBLE, France (CP) — Nancy Greene of Rossland, B.C., zig-zagging down the Chamrousse slopes at breakneck speed, won the Olympic gold medal for Canada in the women's giant slalom and clinched the world combined alpine championship.

Wednesday, the Soviet husband-wife combination of Ludmila Beloussova and Oleg Protopopov, with a masterful display of grace and precision, won their second Olympic pairs figure skating title.

The handsome Russian couple, always a favorite with the crowd, won easily with a brilliant free-skating performance. They had a narrow lead after the compulsory figures over countrymen Tatiana Zhouk and Alexandre Gorelik, who placed second. West Germany's Margot Glockshuber and Wolfgang Danne won the bronze.

The winners had a low score of 10 ordinals.

Ann Forder and Richard Stephens of Port Perry, Ont., placed 16th—as they had in the compulsory figures competition —with 138.0 ordinals.

They gave a substantially better performance than the other Canadian couple, Betty and brother John McKilligan of North Vancouver, who placed 17th with 154.0 ordinals.

While a controversy involving West Germany seemed to be over—following the flat rejection of her plea for a gold instead of a silver medal in the two-man bobsled event—the storm created by East Germany's girl luge team continued.

The East Germans charged that the West Germans had manoeuvred the disqualification of the three girls on charges that they had heated their sled runners to make them travel faster—an offence under Olympic rules.

The West Germans replied that such an accusation begged a reply and that they were considering a protest to the International Olympic Committee.

While this dispute continued, it became evident the Russians' battle for medals was falling well behind their way-out domination of the 1964 Games in Innsbruck, Austria, when they collected 11 gold, eight silver and six bronze.

Although the Soviets led in points, their total after 20 events and with only four days' competition left was two gold, four silver and two bronze. Norway led with three gold, three silver and one bronze; France second with three gold, two silver and one bronze.

But in points, based on the traditional 10-5-4-3-2-1 scoring system, Russia led with 68. Norway had 57½, France 51, Finland and Austria 41 and the U.S. 39½.

Before today's events Canada had only Miss Greene's silver medal—for five points.

As for the Soviet medals total, Igor Kazanski, a round little man who is vice-president of the Soviet National Olympic Committee, is philosophical about it all.

It's just that the rest of the world is catching up, he says, borrowing a phrase the Americans used in the days when their domination of Olympics began to slip.

LAMB'S DRY, WHITE RUM with a delightful tropical flavour

Canadian Skaters Happy In Initial Run At Olympics

GRENOBLE (CP) — Anna Forder, 16-year-old Grade 11 student from Port Perry, Ont., sat watching a Russian team mount the gold medal rostrum in the middle of the 12,000-seat Olympic ice stadium.

She and Rick Stephens had just finished their first overseas competition, coming 16th in the pairs skating—the best showing by Canada.

"Next Olympics, I'd rather watch this ceremony from centre ice," Anna said.

She and Rick, who have skated together for five years—ever since they did a wedding dance on skates at a community carnival—were happy with their showing.

"The marks they gave us were higher than I thought we'd get," Rick 20, said.

"I just felt so right out there," Anna said. "I was nervous at first, but everything went so well."

Said Rick:

"It takes a year to make an impression and I think we did that. Now we're looking ahead to next year."

Bruce Hyland of Toronto, their coach, said their performance was "the best they've ever skated."

"For next year I want to add speed to their program—European judges seem to like that, so we'll put in speed and lots of overhead lifts," Hyland said.

"I'm extremely happy with the kids. They're going home with a great deal more confidence and assurance."

Just before they stepped on to the ice, however, the cables began arriving from Port Perry.

"It was wonderful, they cared," Anna said.

Mo-Hawks Fight for Playoff Berth

By GARY ALEXANDER

What are the Mo-Hawks' chances of catching the eighth and final OHA Senior "A" playoff position?

Right now it depends on three and possibly four games.

Here is the situation. Belleville has 28 points with one "away" game left to play.

Oakville Oaks, in ninth place, have 26 points with two games remaining, one at home and one away.

A lot of things could happen but the earliest the Mo-Hawks can be eliminated is Sunday night, when Collingwood visits Oakville.

Friday, the Mo - Hawks travel to Woodstock and the Oaks go north to meet the already-eliminated Pepsis in Orillia.

Belleville could sew up a playoff berth Friday, by defeating Woodstock while Orillia was upsetting Oakville. But for all practical thinking, two such happenings on the one night would be too much to hope for.

Tie games could further complicate the situation: And, as the Mo-Hawks will admit, the Oaks are tough to beat on home ice so may well defeat Collingwood at home Sunday. If Oakville wins both games, Belleville must win Friday to create a tie.

If there is a tie for that final position, it is understood a sudden death game will be played, with a flip of the coin deciding the site. One thing for certain, if there is a tie, neither club will consent to playing in the other team's rink without a flip since neither has enjoyed much in the line of "road game" success all season. The Mo-Hawks have won only once in 19 away games, that in Orillia, while gaining two ties in Barrie.

All in all, it's a tight situation for both clubs and it isn't likely to be settled until at least Sunday, or perhaps next week with the extra game.

Here at home, the Mo-Hawks practised last night and coach Floyd Crawford is hoping to have his club back at full strength for Friday's encounter.

"The doctor tells me he will have Hec Lalonde ready to play Friday. He is taking treatments on the injured upper part of his arm," Floyd said yesterday.

"I don't know for sure about Mickey Cherevaty. Groin injuries can be pretty tricky but he will be dressed if he can make it.

"Joe Junkin will play goal. The kid is a great team man and he will give us the best he's got all the way so it's up to the rest of the fellows to play hockey in front of him."

"If Hec is ready, I am planning to use him between Dave Jones and "Weiner" Brown and shift George Godson in between the kids, Bob McAlpine and Wayne McConnell. No man could ask for more than George has been giving. He never quits digging, both ways, and I am hoping he can help Wayne and Bob regain their scoring touch."

"We want that playoff spot but we don't want to back in", Floyd concluded, "which means we have to help ourselves in Woodstock."

"It won't be easy but these guys can do it."

As for the playoffs themselves, the league has a new setup this season. The first place club gets first choice of playoff opponents from among the last four; second place second choice; third place the third choice and fourth the only other team left.

And the battle for the top among Galt Hornets, Toronto Marlboros and Collingwood Kings is going down to the wire. Right now, Orillia is the only club with nothing at stake — except a little bit of pride.

1,500 Peewees Compete In Tournament

QUEBEC (CP) — The peewees, mighty mice of hockey, start their ninth international tournament here today, making up in enthusiasm what they lack in finesse.

More than 1,500 youngsters are competing for trophies and awards in the 10-day event which has brought together a record 95 teams, mostly from Ontario and Quebec.

There also are representatives from Boston, Hershey, Pa., Charlottetown and Kentville, N.S.

The Quebec Winter Carnival which started Wednesday night boasts the peewee hockey tournament as its top attraction and more than 10,000 spectators are expected at the Quebec Coliseum where the event is being held.

The peewees range in age from nine to 12 years.

All four 1967 champions are entered again this year.

Scarborough (Ont.) Dorset Park, grand champions as well as the AA class champs, open to teams from areas with populations of more than 50,000, is among the 1967 favorites.

Minor Hockey Results

Five games were played in BMHA Tyke action last night.

Hawks Defeat Boston; Montreal Downs Hapless Leafs 4-2

By DAVID MILLER

Canadian Press Staff Writer

There was no joy in Beantown Wednesday night as both Chicago Black Hawks and Stan Mikita came to play.

Mikita scored a goal and two assists to lead the Hawks to a 3-1 victory over Boston, moving them into second place ahead of the Bruins in the Eastern Division of the National Hockey League.

Chicago dominated play, sending 44 shots at Boston goaltender Gerry Cheevers who needed several brilliant stops to prevent the score from mounting.

In other Wednesday action, the high-flying Montreal Canadiens downed the hapless Toronto Maple Leafs 4-2, Oakland Seals dumped Philadelphia Flyers 4-0, Pittsburgh Penguins swamped Minnesota North Stars 6-3 and Los Angeles Kings and St. Louis Blues played to a 2-2 tie.

The results left Montreal with a six-point lead over Chicago in the Eastern Division. The Canadiens, who have lost only once in their last 21 games, have 69 points.

Boston is third with 62 points followed by New York Rangers with 59, Toronto 55 and Detroit Red Wings 50.

The Flyers still lead the Western Division with 58 points, followed by Minnesota with 53, Los Angeles 51, Pittsburgh 49, St. Louis 48 and Oakland 35.

Tonight, Montreal has a chance to extend its four-game winning streak in Detroit against the Wings while New York visits Minnesota.

The Bruins played Wednesday night without all-star defenceman Bobby Orr, who underwent surgery Tuesday for a torn knee cartilage.

And it showed, as the Hawks took a 2-0 lead at the end of the first period on goals by Stan Mikita and Bobby Hull. Ted Green put the Bruins on the scoreboard early in the second, but Doug Mohns got the clincher late in the middle frame.

Hull's goal, his 39th of the year, came off an attempted pass from behind the Boston goal. The puck hit Cheevers' pads and fell into the net.

In Toronto, meanwhile, John Ferguson and Jean Beliveau scored third period goals to hand the Leafs their fifth consecutive loss.

Henri Richard and Terry Harper scored the other Montreal goals. Frank Mahovlich and centre Mike Walton scored for Toronto.

Gene Ubriaco scored twice to lead the Penguins as Pittsburgh peppered two Minnesota goaltenders with 39 shots. Leo Boivin, Bob Rivard, Noel Price and Keith McCreary also scored as the Penguins extended a five-game unbeaten streak.

Cesare Maniago and Carl Wetzel shared the Minnesota goaltender. Wetzel was beaten by McCreary with the score 5-0. Bill Collins, Parker MacDonald and Bill Goldsworthy shared the North Stars scoring, all in the third period.

The lights went out in St. Louis just after the opening faceoff and the game was delayed 25 minutes before a power failure was corrected.

The Blues appeared to have the game wrapped up in the third period, before Lowell MacDonald caught goalie Seth Martin out of his net and rapped in the tying goal at the seven-minute mark.

The goal came just 25 seconds after Larry Keenan put the Blues ahead 2-1 with his eighth goal of the year. Frank St. Marseille scored the other St. Louis goal while Ed Joyal replied for the Kings.

Out on the coast, goaltenders Charlie Hodge and Gary Smith teamed for their third joint shutout for the Seals.

Hull Player Of the Year

BURBANK, Calif. (CP-AP) — Bobby Hull, star left winger for Chicago Black Hawks, was named hockey player of the year Wednesday on the National Broadcasting Co.'s first annual sports award show.

Carl Yastrzemski, outfielder for Boston Red Sox in baseball's American League, was selected man of the year in pro sports on the show. He also was named top American League player.

Other award winners:

National League—Orlando Cepeda; basketball—Wilt Chamberlain; football—Johnny Unitas for the National League and Daryle Lamonica for the American League; golf—Jack Nicklaus; horse racing—Bill Shoemaker.

The Academy of Professional Sports Awards conducted the poll, nominating three athletes in each category.

Others nominated in the hockey category were Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins and Stan Mikita of Chicago.

Sports writers and editors selected the man of the year.

Jacques LeMaire (25) of Montreal Canadiens is checked from both sides by Toronto Maple Leaf players in the first period of the National Hockey League game in Toronto Wednesday night. Leafs' defenceman Larry Hillman (2) checks LeMaire from behind while goalie Johnny Bower covers the front end. (CP Photo)

Injuries Damaging

Blair Claims Minnesota Heading For Tailspin

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Wren Blair, the coach and general manager of Minnesota North Stars, thinks his National Hockey League club may be headed for a lengthy tailspin.

And he's not sure it will stop in time for Minnesota to clinch a place in the NHL's Stanley Cup playoffs, either.

"I think we have the best chance of any club of sliding out of playoff contention because of injuries and the way we're playing," Blair said after Minnesota lost to Pittsburgh Penguins 6-3 Wednesday night.

The North Stars hold a four-point edge in second place of the West Division but they've lost their last two games with 23-goal scorer Ray Cullen sidelined by a broken ankle.

"Cullen was carrying this club," Blair said. "We just don't seem to have the type of team that can bounce back when we lose somebody."

Gene Ubriaco, recently promoted by the Penguins after a 14-day stay in them inors, paced Pittsburgh with two goals—giving him six in six games since he was recalled. The Penguins have lost only one of those six games to move into fourth place.

Ubriaco, a 30-year-old rookie who came to Pittsburgh in a trade on the eve of the season opener, said he wasn't surprised when he was finally sent down, since he hadn't been playing much until then.

"But I was awfully disappointed," he said.

"I only had two weeks of training camp and then when I finally got a chance to play in the NHL I was pressing, trying to do well. I just didn't seem to be able to get untracked."

Ubriaco's first goal Wednesday night gave Pittsburgh a 3-0 lead and chased Minnesota's starting goalie, Cesare Maniago, midway in the second period.

But Blair absolved Maniago of any blame, saying he took him out for the goalie's own protection.

Asked why he switched goalies, Blair replied three times: "My team."

Then he elaborated.

"I'm not going to leave him in there and run his goals-against average up when they're not doing anything out there. I told the players on the bench that I wasn't going to keep him in when they're playing that poorly.

"Pittsburgh will never win an easier game than that one."

Pinch Hitting

By Garry Alexander

Staff Sportswriter

Recognition all too often bypasses those most deserving in the sporting world.

But apparently the Ontario Amateur Softball Association has not overlooked the executive potential of Belleville's Clifford "Sonny" Belch.

It was learned here this week that Belch will be nominated for the OASA's key executive position, that of secretary, prior to the body's annual convention in St. Catharines on April 5, 6 and 7.

Questioned on the matter, Belch confirmed that he will stand for the office.

"I was told that my name was being submitted for the position of secretary by John Brady, of Oshawa, a member of the past president's council, at a sub-committee meeting in Hamilton recently," Belch admitted.

"I realize that the job, if I am lucky enough to get it, will mean a great deal of work but if the OASA feels I can handle it, I sure would like to give it a try.

"Leroy Pickard, who has held the office for 12 years, has indicated that he will not continue in the position. He has done a tremendous job and I could only hope to scratch the surface when it comes to matching his accomplishments. Pick says the work load has become too much for him to handle alone, along with his business commitments, but has let it be known that he would assist a new secretary in any way he could," Belch said.

Pickard, those close to the scene insist, has spent a fantastic amount of time on OASA work, especially during the summer months, and is credited with building the job of secretary to almost a full time one since taking over the position.

"Pick will not be getting out of the OASA," Belch claims, "but will likely run for a spot on the executive body in April."

Cliff has been connected with the game in the Quinte district for a number of years. He has held just about every position possible in minor and senior softball bodies in the city and is currently completing a year as president of the Trent Valley League. The TVL approached him to take that job when it was re-organizing for the first time in seven years last spring.

He will likely step down as president when the Trent Valley loop holds its annual meeting here in the city on Sunday, March 3. But you can bet he will find time, even if he does get the OASA job, to assist that and any other softball organization that needs assistance.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My neighbor is a chauffeur for a funeral director. Several times a week, he brings a hearse home and parks overnight in front of my house.

His reason is that his wife is superstitious and refuses to let the hearse stay in front of their house.

I'm not superstitious but, I feel, owning the house gives me the exclusive right to park in front of it. This may not sound serious to you, but it's become a big problem with me. Am I right? — Mr. B. K. L.

ANSWER: I agree your problem is a grave one, but in this case you're dead wrong. A dedicated street is in the public domain. A community can regulate parking, using its police power. If no such regulations apply to your street, then, who parks in front of whose house becomes one of "who got there first."

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: In back of our house is a public school. For years, children of the neighborhood have used our yard as a shortcut.

Since they put a bus on the street, the situation has been ballooning. Now, teachers, school employees and parents are using the shortcut.

Naturally, when neighbors go by and wave to me, I'm obligated to wave back. It's embarrassing when I'm caught only half dressed.

The path is beginning to look like a major highway. The other day I had to chase a pretzel vendor off my ground. Before some enterprising fellow establishes a hamburger joint on my lawn, please advise me how I can stem the flow of humanity across my property. — Mr. R. R.

ANSWER: The situation described is more serious than most laymen would believe. Our correspondent should immediately consult an attorney to ascertain whether the public has acquired an easement of passage across his land.

The time and requirements for an easement vary in each state. They are most technical, and only an attorney, after investigation of the specific facts, can render an opinion.

If an easement has not yet been acquired by the public, I recommend that a fence be erected immediately to prohibit passage and stop time from running. If an easement has been acquired, then, reluctantly, I must inform Mr. R. R. that he has impaired the value of his property a significant amount.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: The builder says that vibrations from my washing machine are causing the cracks in the walls and foundation. It's a new house, only 6 months old. Did you ever hear of such a thing? — Mrs. U. O.

ANSWER: I must admit that I now have another gem for my growing list of feeble excuses. Wall and foundation cracks in a 6 - month - old house are usually caused by poor ground support or inadequate footings and foundation — vibrations from a washing machine could not possibly be the cause of the trouble. Don't let the builder off the hook! My experience tells me that you face a major problem.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

Farm Union Picketers Beat Chatham Policeman

CHATHAM (CP) — A Chatham police sergeant was beaten Wednesday by men on an Ontario Farmers' Union picket line protesting the closure of a sugar beet processing plant here.

Sgt. R. P. Simmons, cut and bruised about the face, returned to duty a short time later at the plant where the OFU set up picket lines last Thursday. He had joined pickets for coffee and doughnuts a few hours before they attacked him.

Police did not say whether charges would be laid in connection with the attack but two men were charged earlier after a disturbance on the picket line as workers arrived at the Canada and Dominion Sugar Co. plant.

Police said the incident began when a picket shoved a large stick through the radiator of a plant superintendent's car as he arrived for work.

When officers arrived a few minutes later they became involved in a fight with some pickets. Larry Quinlan of Essex was charged with assaulting police and Joseph Kubinec of Ruthven was charged with obstructing police.

Mr. Kubinec later accused police of brutality. He said he was part of a "peaceful picket line" when an officer attacked him and pushed him against a guy wire on a lawn outside the plant gates.

Chatham Police Chief C. E. Bagnall declined comment on the charge but OFU Vice-President Peter Myers said the charge will be investigated.

The company's decision to close the plant affects about 900 sugar-beet producers in southwestern Ontario who will have to switch crops for about 20,000 acres of land previouly planted in sugar beets.

Representatives of the Ontario Sugar Beet Growers' Marketing Board will meet in Ottawa today with federal and provincial cabinet members to see if there is any way the industry can be saved.

Highways Department Denies Warning of Ice Was Ignored

BURLINGTON (CP) — A highways department official testified that a sanding truck was en route to an icy section of the Queen Elizabeth Way at the time a two-car accident occurred killing three persons.

Tom Mahony, department safety officer, was giving evidence at the inquest Monday into the deaths of Nelson Campbell, 60, his wife Marjorie, 67, both of Brantford, and Alan Gibson, 18, of Niagara Falls, Ont.

In an interview Wednesday, Mr. Mahony denied published reports of the inquest which quoted him as saying ice condition warnings from police and private citizens are ignored because sanders have gone "on too many wild goose chases."

He said he told the inquest there are occasions when the department receives calls from police and private citizens regarding the need for sandings. "We have gone on these occasions only to learn that we are on a wild goose chase," he said he told the inquest. He also said he testified that the department answers all calls.

At the inquest, Mr. Mahony said department records indicate that no calls were made for a sander until 7:45 p.m., 15 minutes before the accident. "The trucks were loaded with sand and on the highways at 8 p.m.," he said.

The Campbells died Jan. 21 when their car went out of control on a 500-foot-long ice sheet, skidded sideways across the highway median and was hit broadside by an oncoming car.

The jury recommended better liaison between the police and highways department.

Trudeau Is Expected to Enter Leadership Contest on Friday

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Trudeau is expected to enter the Liberal leadership race Friday on the crest of a wave of support from the party's Quebec MPs and senators.

All the indications are that he will become the French-Caradian Quebec candidate at a 10 a.m. EST news conference here Friday.

The 46-year-old minister hedged on his candidacy at a luncheon meeting Wednesday of Quebec MPs and senators at which the leadership question was the only topic.

He told the 40 MPs and six senators his final decision will rest on the success of a meeting called for today to organize a parliamentary campaign committee for him.

Manpower Minister Marchand, the federal party's Quebec leader, urged the caucus, largely French-speaking, to support Mr. Trudeau.

After the meeting, Mr. Marchand, who has long urged Mr. Trudeau to run, seemed to put the seal on it when he himself opted out of the race.

"I am not a candidate," he told reporters clustered outside the room where the meeting was held. "That is the first time I have said that."

Although Mr. Marchand gave no hint of the measure of support accorded Mr. Trudeau at the meeting, others who attended said more than half were for the wealthy Montreal bachelor.

Mr. Trudeau, left the meeting down a flight of stairs, evading reporters outside the room in the Parliament Buildings.

Mr. Marchand said all 55 Liberal MPs from Quebec and the 17 senators from the province are invited to attend today's meeting to establish an organizing committee for Mr. Trudeau.

The committee will join others in Ontario and Montreal to organize for Mr. Trudeau.

Mr. Marchand indicated the establishment of the committee today would provide the encouragement needed to bring Mr. Trudeau into the race, which already has 10 declared candidates in it and another undeclared prospect, Trade Minister Winters.

Mr. Marchand said it was decided to establish the Quebec committee to support Mr. Trudeau rather than work through the caucus proper in order not to compel unwilling Quebec parliamentarians to support Mr. Trudeau.

MacEachen Is Confident

LONDON (CP) — Allan MacEachen, Canadian health minister, said Wednesday he is confident of winning the Liberal leadership race despite the large number of candidates.

The big field, which may increase still further, in no way prompts him to withdraw, MacEachen told a press conference.

"It merely makes the outcome all the more interesting."

He was asked whether he considers his victory chances good.

"Oh, sure," he said. "I am impressed with the large number of uncommitted (convention) delegates."

The minister, here with a Commons committee to study British parliamentary procedure, said he does not expect any "jelling" of the leadership situation for some time.

He did not think it would be risky for an English-speaking Liberal to assume the job now held by Prime Minister Pearson, despite any party tradition of rotating the leadership on a language basis.

Ungraded Schools Possible by 1969

By STEVE BISHOP

The ungraded school system, in which students are promoted on the basis of individual subjects, or credits, rather than grades, is coming in across the province, and Belleville is no exception.

Moira is ahead of all city secondary schools, with plans to instigate the system in September of 1969. But each of the schools is studying the possibility of introducing the ungraded system.

Schools in Belleville and elsewhere will keep a careful eye on those schools which lead the way in initiating the system.

One such school is North Park Collegiate in Brantford, which will introduce the system next September.

At North Park, grades will be replaced by Levels. A student may progress at different rates in his various subjects. That is, he may work at Level 1 in one subject, and at Level 3 in another.

Seven credits will be taken each year by a student. Promotion is to be on the basis of credits rather than grades. Therefore, the prerequisite for a high school diploma is not four grades passed, but 27 credits.

These are just some of the basic aspects of the system. There are other, more complex, aspects, among which one of the most important is more students option in choosing subjects.

Moira principal, Linton D. Read, explained his school's introduction of the system: "We've been working on it for over six months. We've had to wait until a year from September due to the need for a computer to make up the timetables. Each student has an individual timetable, and it's almost impossible to do manually.

"There are six pilot schools in the province using the system under Department of Education control. I believe that within three years all secondary schools will be using some form of the system."

Mr. Read also pointed out the advantages of the system: "Student interest is much much higher. A student can move ahead at his own speed. The option choice is much greater, so that a student can take more credits in his strong subjects, and fewer in his weak ones."

Quinte vice-principal Jack Sisson explained the steps his school was taking: "We have a committee investigating the system. We are looking into its possibilities, and will be visiting other Ontario schools that are using it.

"In March we plan to visit at least two other centres in Ontario that are using the ungraded system. This doesn't necessarily mean we're going to use it, but we are looking into it."

J. D. MacKay, BCI vice-principal, stated that the system would not be introduced at BCI next year.

"Our principal is studying all the literature available on it, but that's about all we're doing now.

"We are trying to set it up so that a student can repeat a subject he failed while going ahead in his other subjects."

Centennial principal W. J. Musgrove said that a fixed group of students would be needed for such a system rather than an expanding, changing student body, which Centennial has now.

"We are changing our timetables gradually to make it possible in the future. Within five years, we could have a credit system. One thing we will need is more extensive accommodation."

Sister Mary Teresa explained Nicholson's position on the ungraded system: "We are studying it in conjunction with the authorities of our school board.

"We are hoping for a modified form of it. We will use it to the extent that we can. This will put the attention on the individual student rather than the whole group."

The students' opinions vary, as the following comments show.

Doug Robinson, a Grade 13 student at Moira, said, "I think it's good. I like the idea of being able to progress faster in one subject, such as science."

"I think it has its good points," said Rick Austin, a Grade II student at Moira. "It helps the student who fails a grade just because of a subject that doesn't come too easily for him."

Janet Chisholm, a Grade 12 student at Moira, was not certain that the system is good for all. "It'll help the younger students, but not the Grade 13's.'

Chris Fleming, a Grade II student at Nicholson, was in favor of the system. "I think it's a good system. You can go at your own level."

"I'm against it," was the comment of Nicholson Grade 12 student Mike Reed. "I think seven credits is too many.'

"It will help some people but not others," said Diane Bellemare, a Nicholson Grade 10 student. "I like grading because the marks you get show just what you've accomplished."

The final comment comes from Marilyn Shannon, a Grade 13 student at Nicholson. "I think it's a good idea. Everybody's an individual, and they have to progress at their own rate."

Student opinion, then, is divided on this question. But the system has yet to be tested here. That's a chance the students should get in the not too distant future.

Nicholson Student Wins

Public Speaking at Centennial Secondary

By VICKI ANDERSON

ON WEDNESDAY of last week the students and teachers of Centennial Secondary School were honoured to have the annual contest of Prepared and Impromptu speeches held in our school.

The sponsors of the contest were the Ontario Hydro and the Bay of Quinte District High School Board. Mr. Holland, the head of the English department at C.S.S. was host and Mr. Asselstine timed the speeches.

The prepared speeches were from five to seven minutes and all were highly commended. The first speech was on Humour and was prepared by Janet Bond of Nicholson Catholic College, second came our own Tim Howard of C.S.S. and his topic was the modern grade system.

Third on the list was Bonnie McCluskey from B.C.I. and she presented a very effective speech on the Canadian Indian. Following was Sharon Dalton of Q.S.S. whose topic was Mars.

The last ones on the list were Dave Hendix of Albert College who gave an interesting speech on Anti-semetism and Steve Hunter of Moira whose topic was Canadian Unity.

While the last prepared speech was being delivered to the audience students to say the impromptu speeches were given topic which they were to speak on and ten minutes to prepare them.

• • •

THE FIRST impromptu speech was impressively delivered by Sandra Nolan of Nicholson and her topic was Silence is Golden. The second was delivered by Robert Reynolds of Moira, his speech was very well done and was The Toys I Enjoyed the Most.

Following came Leona Woods from B.C.I. with an interesting speech on Sharing, next was Dave Simpson of Albert College with the topic of Old Shoes.

The last two speakers were Susan Ellis of Centennial. Sue's topic delivered very well and finally was Joe Hurst from Quinte, his speech was on Man and Nature.

After several minutes the judges decided that Janet Bond of Nicholson came first and Dave Hendex was placed second in the prepared speeches. In the impromptu speeches first prize went to Dave Simpson of Albert College and second place to Sandra Nolan of Nicholson.

• • •

JUDGES FOR the prepared speeches were Miss Dyor, Mrs. Jeffries of the City Council, Kenneth Bradford of Loyalist College and Mr. Henderson Head of the Guidance Department at Moira Secondary. The judges for the impromptu speeches were Mr. Jones and Mr. Boyce both of C.S.S.

John Deacon of the Hydro presented the prepared speakers their prizes and Mr. Jones presented prizes to the impromptu speakers.

After the assembly refreshments were served in the cafeteria for the guests and speakers.

Variety Show Set for Moira

By STEPHEN HUNTER

MOIRA VARIETY Show starts tomorrow night . . .

Last minute preparations are being made as stomachs fill with butterflies and nerves become frazzled; Moirantics is coming. Tomorrow night. . .

Yes the curtain is going up on this year's production of Moirantics and it promises to be the best yet. The show includes several dance routines and skits and the hi-lite is a new school song . . . The Trojan Song. . .

The theme this year is Dear Diary, and Mrs. Coyne, Mrs. Bennett, and Mr. Irwin have been working hard to make this year one to remember.

In the sport's news, first interform the teachers eked out a victory over 13C of 31-21 in an exciting game on Friday night. A rematch may be in order. The second place finish for 13C should put them in first place in overall points. In wrestling, Thursday and Friday night Moira Trojans defeated Madoc and Picton respectively to finish the season undefeated. Congratulations Team!!

• • •

LAST TUESDAY night Mr. Read, Mr. Birkenshaw and Mr. Henderson were present at an open forum for parents and grade eight pupils aspiring to grade nine. There was a spirited question and answer session pertaining to courses available to new students, how to decide in the best way possible the correct course to be registered in. This was a very important discussion and was well attended.

Athletics Strong at Quinte

By SUE BOARDMAN

THIS ARTICLE on clubs is meant to tell students of the other secondary schools something of our organizations, but it is meant also to remind our own students of the activities in which they can participate if they wish to.

One of the strong points of the school year, at Quinte is the Athletics, the usual school sports, you can read about, in the sports section of this paper and you can see that Quinte wins its share of trophies. In addition to this there are several other sports that go on in house leagues that might be mentioned.

• • •

INTERFORM SOCCER, in season is a big part of the year for some students, push ball and wrestling take up a good part of the winter, with volleyball and gymnastics rounding out a busy season. For the girls, we have dancing, tumbling, volleyball, basketball, tennis and badminton.

We have such clubs as the Agricultural Science Club; our school newspaper, Quintatler and our year - book, Quintessence, which is a very involved operation. Among others we have the Bible Club, Chess Club, Art Club and Band which keep another segment of our population busy and we round all of these out with the Stage Crew, Radio Club, Ham-Radio Club and Key Club.

• • •

THE KEY CLUB is the only club in the school affiliated with an organization outside of the school. The Key Club is an off-shoot of the Kiwanis Club and like the parent club represents a service organization from the school. Our Key Club has been particularly strong this year and did an outstanding job aiding needy families at Christmas time.

All of these activities, of course, are offered the guidance of our Student Parliament under the capable hands and supervision of Henry Kafka, our Student Prime Minister. Student Parliament operates the Extra-curricular activities of our school.

• • •

QUINTE IS one of the few remaining schools that still has school dances and we do this primarily to give our rural students the opportunity to socialize — the opportunity that would be virtually impossible in other circumstances.

In this connection, Key Club is holding a dance this Fri. Feb. 16. The British Modbeats a group from St. Catharines, will be here and we are expecting a large turn out of Quinte students. In case students of other schools may be interested, our dance rules are clearly laid down and for you to attend, you must accompany a Quinte student.

• • •

STUDENT PARLIAMENT is operating a very unique and successful service this winter. They have rented the pool at the Tops Motel and every Monday night our students can be found having a refreshing dip on an otherwise unpleasant evening.

You can readily see from this brief outline that we keep a pretty busy schedule after school at Quinte.

Student Freedom at BCI

By PETER BRICKWOOD

THIS YEAR IT is up to us. Nobody makes grade 13 students work; we have to do it ourselves. Why? Because generally we have more freedom than Secondary Schools have ever had before.

We can stay away from classes and we don't have departmentals. We do have to know our work, and 50% of our marks are based on class or term work.

How is this working out? For good students, fine. For lazy students, poorly.

Why is this? Because with 50% of the mark on class work, if you do not keep up your work you lose marks, and the decreased importance of exams makes "cramming" a thing of the past.

HOW ARE THE Students reacting to this University type of environment. Naturally some people abuse their but the worst offenders seem to coincide with the worst marks. Teachers agree that this system is producing better results from the good students, while others are finding out they do not have the necessary self-discipline for university.

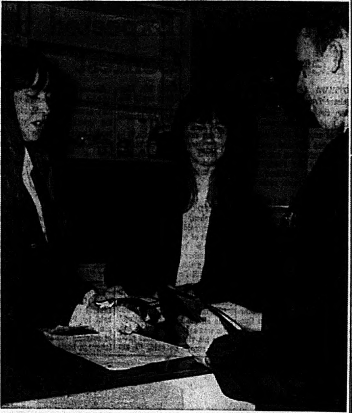
Among the students I found a startling lack of considered opinion and a "We will follow where we are led" type of thinking. One interesting comment was "I like it (the system) if I pass", but then we like anything at which we are successful.

Grade twelve students — the prospective thirteens — are generally more university conscious and aware of the opportunity of the freedom system.

The consensus is in favor of this system, and as Mr. MacKay points out the greatly increased use of our school library is a good indication of its success.

An Exercise in Relaxation

Kevin Walsh and Casey Rashotte leave their studies behind with an absorbing game of chess. Pat Charlesworth is the kibbitzer. Other activities pursued by Nicholson students in their new lounge are ping pong, cards, and just plain loafing.



A Student Lounge for Nicholson

Nicholson students unwind in their new lounge after a hard day's work. Mike Taylor is served at the candy counter by Bonnie Roote and Shirley Chestnut.

NCC Teens Voice Opinions in Contest

By DONNA WHALEN

THE PUBLIC Speaking Contest held recently at NCC provided a chance for interested students to voice their opinions before an assembled audience of faculty, judges and students. The topics, varied and thought - provoking, ranged from the inevitability of death to a definition of humor (with a few jokes to exemplify the idea).

Janet Bonn, a grade 11 student, spoke eloquently on the latter subject and won the first prize. Ann Skerl, a grade nine student who spoke on "Happiness", received the prize for grades nine and ten. Mr. Oriole Griffiths presented the awards, stating that the excellent presentations were a continuance of the tradition of the school. Another speaker, Sandra Nolan came second in the impromptu speeches at Centennial Secondary School.

• • •

THE SUCCESS of the dance last Saturday night is a good indication that NCC's project for the poor will also be a success. The folk-rock group is now planning to entertain students at noon-hour and, following their performance, to take up a silver collection. At a later date, the Council will ask for books and clothes.

• • •

THERE ARE ENOUGH contests at NCC to satisfy everyone's taste. For people interested in writing there is a "Golden Quill" contest and for those who are sports-minded, there is a ping-pong and chess tournament now under way.

The Biology class for the Grade 13s is completely different from any other class. The students still take notes and listen to lectures but they also get a chance to experiment with the things about which they read. For example, last week the biologists dissected a cow's eye — a situation which aroused not only interest but also humor (a pun which biology students should understand). One of the jokes that circulated through the room goes like this — "Why was the cross-eyed teacher fired? Because she couldn't control her pupils."

Trenton High School Students Support Foster Child Overseas

By PAMELA MOUNTENAY

LIFE AT Trenton High is finally getting back to normal after weeks of studying, cramming and exam-writing. Nearly all the papers are back and we are beginning to breathe again. However, the terrifying job of presenting our report cards for parental disapproval looms in the distance, and therefore no one is really relaxed yet.

Rehearsals for 'Play Nite' have begun in earnest. Two one-act comedies will be put on along with the major dramatic presentation "Flight into Danger." The production of the latter has never before been attempted in a high school, but with a lot of work and "a little bit o' luck," we intend to make it a tremendous success.

• • •

THE TEN A CLASS held a ring-and-shoe shine last week to raise money to support their foster child overseas. We are very proud of these students and their generous project; it is too bad that their skill at shining shoes (or socks) is not quite so commendable. Next time, try a bake sale, please??

Last Thursday, 13B made Ted Mack's Amateur Hour look embarrassingly amateurish, in an effort to prove to the other Grade 13's that talent didn't die with vaudeville. There were several acts, including everything from slapstick to ballet. Jack Wilkie and Bob Schaer asked me to tell everyone how well they sing "Summer Wine," in case anyone wishes to book them for an evening. I can't say anything more on the grounds that it might incriminate me.

THE HOUSE SYSTEM has been looking rather miserable lately, and so it was decided to give it a booster shot in the form of Color Day, Feb. 14. Each student will wear something to match the color of his or her House, and at the sock-hop after school, there will be a contest to see which House has the biggest representation.

A hi-light of the hop will be a dance contest, sponsored by the House League Executive. Valentine's Day will never be the same!

• • •

THE VALENTINE'S Dance will be held Fri. Feb. 16, with entertainment supplied by the Mystic Beat. Plans are forging ahead for Spirit Week, although as yet, no dates have been set. The major event of the school year promises to be even bigger and better than last year, provided we are blessed with some snow between now and then. If not, 'the best laid plans. . .'

Killy Qualifies

CHAMROUSSE, France (AP) — Jean-Claude Killy of France easily passed the first test on his way to a third Olympic skiing medal Wednesday, but he wasn't happy that he had to go through the test.

"This is a stupid expenditure of energy," the world's greatest Alpine skier said after covering the 520-metre special slalom course in 49.89 seconds, the fastest time of the qualifying run for Saturday's two-race final.

Killy already has won the downhill and the giant slalom and needs only one more victory to equal Toni Sailer's great feat of the 1956 Olympics.

Fifty-one skiers including 24-year-old Robert Swan of Chelsea, Que., qualified for Friday's classification runs.

Phillips Rink in Hot Water Over CBC Bonspiel Prizes

TORONTO (CP) — Alf Phillips Jr. and his 1967 Canadian champion rink from Toronto are in hot water again with the Ontario Curling Association.

Phillips and third John Ross, second Ron Manning and lead Keith Reilly have decided to accept $800 prizes they won in an international bonspiel sponsored by the CBC here last December.

The acceptance contravenes the OCA's code of ethics, which limits prizes to $150 a man or $600 a rink. Phillips and his rink now face a ban from competitive curling in the province.

"We all talked it over among ourselves," said Manning in an interview Wednesday, "and we decided to keep the prizes. I for one wasn't about to give up $800 and neither are the other boys.

"But Alfie was already in trouble with the OCA so he's donating his prize to a church. It'll be a charitable donation and we've informed the OCA."

Phillips said later he would not touch the prize with "a ten-foot pole." He said he does not want to face a ban and turned the matter over to his father, Alf Sr., a former Canadian championship skip.

"What my dad is trying to do is find a church—Protestant or Roman Catholic—with a boy's club that could use the equipment."

Final acceptance of the prizes is the second part of a long story that goes back to the international bonspiel—won by Doug Wankel of Elbow, Sask.

Phillips finished second and each member of his rink received $800 snowmobiles. Wankel and his rink got stereo sets valued at $1,000.

Then the Ontario association warned Phillips his rink faced a ban if it accepted the prizes and gave the curlers seven days to make up their minds.

Phillips told the OCA his curlers had decided against keeping the prizes and the potential ban was lifted. Then the Phillips rink was eliminated in division play leading to the provincial championship and dominion final March 5-9 at Kelowna, B.C.

"That made up our minds for us," said Manning. "Ban or no ban we decided to fight the OCA. Since we couldn't curl in the brier we decided to keep our prizes."

The OCA's code of ethics has long been a bone of contention among provincial curlers. It is not recognized by the Dominion Curling Association and only Ontario and New Brunswick retain it.

Phillips was once barred by the OCA because he declared himself a curling professional in 1963. But the ban was lifted after a year and Phillips has been reinstated.

Jack Benny Has Birthday And Insists It Is Only 39th

NEW YORK (AP)—The world's oldest 39-year-old man—or perhaps its youngest 74-year-old—had a birthday Wednesday, but he was much too busy to pay much attention to it.

"I say I'm 39,' said Jack Benny with mock severity. "And anything else you want to guess is entirely up to you.'

Jack was stopping over briefly in New York, en route from a concert with the Boston Symphony to a nightclub date in Miami. He will be one of the guest stars next Sunday in an NBC special saluting his homestate of Illinois, and he recently finished shooting a special comedy program to be shown on March 20, also on NBC. He now is busy polishing up some material for use during a four-week engagement in April at New York's Waldorf Astoria.

Benny wears his calendar years lightly. He maintains his enthusiasm for his music and for playing in concerts. He practises the violin for a couple of hours daily, even when he is away from his Los Angeles home. And he works constantly over his comedy material.

Jack discussed the current use of controversial topical material and the injection of risque material into comedy routines.

He is the acknowledged master of timing, and his own style is built around the stingy, vain and somehow lovable character he has been playing for more than 30 years.

"I've never gotten laughs by zinging anybody else," he said. "There is a rapporte with an audience, and you've always got to be careful not to spoil it.

"With an audience it is important to be especially careful with the first couple of jokes. Hope has his way, and I have mine, which is usually getting into things by explaining why I happen to be on stage or why I'm doing a TV special."

"It's a strang thing about risque material," he continued.

"Occasionally there may be something that might be considered risque in material I might use in a nightclub—never on TV, of course.

"But critics are always writing about how clean my material is. I've got a hospital thing that I do that certainly might be considered risque, except that when I'm talking, it is about how much all these things cost, and everything else seems to slip by unnoticed."

Demorestville

DEMORESTVILLE — Mr. and Mrs. Keith Hope attended the 45th wedding anniversary celebration at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hope.

Mrs. Myrtle Howard sustained a broken wrist recently.

Mr. and Mrs. John Verhey, Toronto, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Wood.

John Biggs, Bloomfield, spent a few days with Mrs. George Jones.

Sophiasburgh Sunday School pupils held a skating party Sunday afternoon at Northport, followed by refreshments and a film show at Demorestville Hall.

Centennial Park Board Is Formed

DESERONTO — Bert Lloyd, chairman of the Centennial Park committee which ceased to function at the end of the year, at the request of the Town council submitted a list of names of people who were willing to serve on a Centennial Park Board, and whom he thought would be active members. From the list council appointed Mr. Lloyd himself, Mrs. Jean Griffith, Mrs. Kay Hood, James Dorey, and Ralph Lawlor, in addition to Councillors Clayton Brooks and William Higgins. Mrs. Griffith and Mrs. Hood are also on the Recreation Committee.

Jack Layfield was appointed as secretary - treasurer, but felt he could not continue in the position he had held on the committee without the assistance he had received in the past from Mrs. Blanche Detlor, secretary to Joseph Reynolds, clerk - treasurer of the town. Mrs. Detlor has consented to give her continued support.

A meeting will be called soon and the Board will organize, selecting its chairman. Mr. Lloyd stated that the committee had discussed tentative plans for completing the park, and expressed disappointment that so few of the small trees had survived which had been given by the Department of Lands and Forests and set out by volunteers, including school children. The extremely dry weather had made it impossible to save them, he stated.

Other names on the slate submitted by Mr. Lloyd to the council were Rev. William Hendry, Rev. A. F. Dowdell, David Saunders, Donald Kimmett, Douglas Law and Mrs. Stafford Claus. All would be available to serve on committees set up by the Centennial Park Board.

Hiatal Hernia Can Cause Hemorrhage

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: Can a hiatal hernia hemorrhage? About 10 days ago I had bleeding from the mouth five times in 19 hours, at times so bad it interfered with my breathing.

My doctor thinks it was coming from my esophagus. He advised me to go to the hospital but the bleeding stopped so I didn't go. — Mrs. J. H.

Yes, a hiatal hernia can develop an ulcer which can bleed — not that it is common with hiatal hernia. After all, a lot of people also have duodenal ulcers which don't necessarily bleed. But when they do, it is dangerous.

In hiatal hernia the bleeding can come from either the esophagus or the stomach. I'd say you were lucky that the bleeding stopped.

Even though you rejected your doctor's good advice to go to the hospital, I hope you will think again, and have X-rays to pin down the source of the bleeding.

If it happened once, it could happen again, and such hemorrhages can even be fatal.

Dear Dr. Molner: In school a question on a true or false test was: "A person can stop smoking immediately with strong will power."

I always thought this was true, but in school they said it was false. I know many people try to quit and fail, but there are people who can put a pack of cigarettes down and never touch them again.

Please tell me whether the statement was true. — D. B.

I agree that the statement on the test should be answered as "true." Anyone can quit smoking — if he wants to hard enough.

On the other hand, there is no medical or other treatment which will make a person stop smoking unless he wants to.

I had a smoking problem myself. When my doctor told me to quit in December 1962, I did so, then and there, and haven't had any problem on that score since.

What I found out, and what medical science has found out, is the basis for my booklet, Tips on How To Stop Smoking, which I will gladly send to anyone for 15 cents plus a self-addressed unstamped envelope and 6 cents in coin for postage to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.

Dear Dr. Molner: Our 5-year-old daughter had a convulsion when she was 2½ and another when she was 4. Our pediatrician said we had nothing to worry about, but we have noticed at times that her eyes seem to wander and look crooked.

This is not noticeable when she is alert.

Could the convulsions have caused this? If so, will she outgrow the condition? Or will it get worse and will surgery be necessary? — P. J. W.

It is most unlikely that two convulsions would have caused trouble to the eyes or to anything else. Many small youngsters have convulsions, often from nothing more severe than a mild illness or fever.

However, even your brief description of her eye action makes me wonder whether something else needs attention. I would tell your pediatrician about it and he in turn might want an eye specialist to examine your daughter. Or (I don't like to try to second-guess him in advance) he may want to do some other type of examination, or have some other specialist do so.

I'm not too concerned because a small child's eyes "wander." But when you say the eyes "look crooked," I'd feel better to have some further investigating done, to see if anything needs attention. I'm not being a calamity howler; I just like to play safe.

Dominican Students Battle Police, One Killed

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — Dominican officials averted more fighting between police and students at National University Wednesday night by clearing the campus after a shooting exchange in which one civilian was killed and three policemen were wounded.

The government warned that troops would move into the campus unless students involved in the clash gave themselves up. To dislodge an estimated 50 leftist students holed up in university buildings, it was agreed that students who passed a brief screening by university, police and government representatives would be allowed to go home. Police would then search the campus.

Half a dozen students were detained for not producing satisfactory identification.

The disturbance, most viole since President Joaquin Balaguer took office in July, 1966, erupted after the government banned a student march in support of demands for more state subsidies for the university.

On Wednesday morning a troop carrier and six light tanks were stationed around the campus and troops sealed off the entrances. Shooting broke out in a campus area partly surrounded by national police and riot teams.

Trudeau Tops Kierans in Own Riding

MONTREAL (CP) — The Liberal party leadership convention is still a long way off but the Liberal association of Notre-Dame-de-Grace has already voted for Justice Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau—at the expense of the candidate from their own riding, Eric Kierans.

About 100 of the 300 association members from the Montreal riding attended a meeting Wednesday night to elect delegates for the Ottawa convention April 4-6 and decided to take a straw vote on the leadership.

There were 96 votes cast with Mr. Trudeau receiving 53, Mr. Kierans, the former Quebec revenue minister, 32; Consumer Affairs Minister John Turner, four; with two votes each for External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, Transport Minister Paul Hellyer and Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp.

Trade Minister Robert Winters, who hasn't announced his intention to run, got one vote anyway.

Sicilian Earthquake Victims Still Uncovered Month Later

PALERMO (AP) — One month after the earthquake that killed hundreds of persons and wrecked or damaged 51 communities, western Sicily is still stunned, bewildered and afraid.

Nearly all of the 50,000 homeless are still living in tents or in requisitioned buildings miles from their former homes.

So far 235 bodies have been recovered from the ruins of the 12 towns that were closest to the centre of the quake. But scarcely a day goes by without another body or two being found.

It may be years before all the wreckage is cleared.

Three towns—Gilbellina, Salaparuta and Montevago—are but piles of ruin on the mountainsides.

In others, like Santa Margherita Belice, Santa Ninfa, Salemi and Poggioreale, most of the buildings still standing are not safe. Nearly all will have to come down.

Every day trucks and bulldozers pick away at the debris. But a month after the 'Jan. 15 quake, the wreckage looks almost untouched, except for pathways cleared through it.

For the refugees in the countryside, churches and hospitals have been set up under canvas. Outside Santa Ninfa, social workers have started a kindergarten. But everywhere one hears the same anguished question: "When can we at least move into the barracks?"

Most of the refugees are living in tent camps miles from their homes. Some of the men tried to get to the fields to work, but distances were too great.

There have been more than 115 aftershocks since the disastrous quake, and almost daily new ones ripple through western Sicily. Palermo and other major cities escaped serious damage, but panic sent a large part of the population into the countryside.

Fearing that one of the aftershocks may wreck the cities, thousands have still not returned.

There is still fear of epidemics.

Added to the tension is a growing fear that once the immediate suffering is alleviated, western Sicily—already the poorest part of the island—will end up even more impoverished because of the quake.

An estimated 15,000 persons have quit the disaster area for other parts of Italy. Thousands have found jobs in the north.

The weather is the only bright spot in the situation. Spring has come suddenly. The bitter cold, the snow and rain that beset the stricken zone in the days after the quake have been replaced by sun and warmth.

By the end of the month barracks outside Gilbellina, Salaparuta, Montevago and Santa Ninfa should be ready for refugees.

They will be cramped—one room per average family is planned—and in summer, under the blazing Sicilian sun, they will be stifling.

But the refugees will be inside, and close to what used to be home.

Rhodesians Still Back Their 'Good Old Smithy'

SALISBURY (AP) — "Good old Smithy—keep in there fighting, we're right behind you," shouted the man in the crowd. A hundred bystanders applauded.

Old Smithy is Rhodesia's prime minister Ian Smith. He grabbed independence from Britain more than two years ago, and looks as though he will retain his popularity among the whites of Rhodesia for a long time to come.

Sanctions, which British Prime Minister Wilson decreed would topple the illegal Smith regime in weeks, have failed to bring the rebel government to its knees.

Cautious stirrings are also being heard on the political front where some of the country's 220,000 whites are talking of a new political party to oppose the Smith regime.

They aim to fight the ruling Rhodesian front party, using the Rhodesian-British political stalemate as the party manifesto.

Testing its popularity among whites, the new party—the Rhodesian Constitutional Association—sent out questionaires to three key white constituencies.

Voters were asked if they wanted an honorable settlement with Britain based on a Wilson plan—a settlement which would eventually give majority rule to Rhodesia's 4,500,000 blacks.

"The results speak for themselves, they're not very encouraging," said one association official.

Of 5,047 questionaires, only 1,260 were returned. A scant 680 people stated any ddesire for a prompt settlement with Britain.

"Such campaigns against the government, and suggestions that peace proposals be re-started with Britain, merely undermine Rhodesia," said a Rhodesian government official.

"These campaigns serve only as an excuse for the Wilson government to surmise that Rhodesians are beginning to crack under the pressure of sanctions."

East Berlin Is Constructing Prestige Broadcasting Tower

BERLIN (AP)-As a prestige project, the Communist government in East Berlin is erecting a broadcast tower which will have a panoramic restaurant at the 800-foot level, overlooking West Berlin.

The tower itself is to be 1,170 feet high. The tower will send out both television and radio signals. It is due to be all the way up in 1969, but the whole project is not due for completion until 1971.

With its reinforced steel and concrete foundation sunk deep into sandy, swampy Berlin soil, the tower represents a considerable engineering feat. It will be second in Europe only to Moscow's newly-completed 1,761-foot tower. The Eiffel Tower in Paris stretches 1,056 feet to the top of its television antennas.

For many Germans, the East Berlin tower is an unnecessary addition to the sprawling Berlin skyline. They feel it will overshadow mid-city landmarks that escaped destruction in the Second World War.

These include the Brandenburg Gate just inside East Berlin, the Reichstag just inside West Berlin and the red brick city hall and the Marienkirche, the city's oldest remaining church, on the flanks of the tower itself.

A projected 1,120-foot tower, for the West German ministry that handles broadcast signals, will be located in an outlying section of West Berlin and thus not be much of a direct visual challenge to the midtown East Berlin needle.

The East Berlin tower fits into a Communist drive to make their downtown half of the city into a showcase of modern construction. Building is going on all around the tower, with emphasis on apartment units, main-access roads and public structures. New construction is dispersed among such painstakingly restored buildings as the National Art Gallery and the opera house.

The high restaurant will give 200 diners a view of the wall running between the Brandenburg Gate and the Reichstag, as well as a penetrating look beyond it into the capitalist side of Berlin.

Trudeau Enters Leadership Race

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau today declared himself a candidate in the Liberal party leadership race, boosting the field to 11.

He made the announcement at a crowded news conference just after 10 a.m. EST, ending weeks of speculation. His decision had been generally predicted.

"I have a suspicion you people had a lot to do with it," he told reporters after reading a letter to Senator John Nichol, president of the Liberal Federation of Canada, formally reporting his candidacy.

Mr. Trudeau said he suspected that newspaper promotion of his leadership ability "started out as a huge joke on the Liberal party."

"What happened is that the joke blew up in your faces and mine. People began to take it seriously."

The 56-year-old Montreal bachelor, first elected to the Commons in 1965 and a cabinet member for only 10 months, was relaxed and casual in answering questions from his audience.

He said he reached his decision, "in a final way," Thursday night at a meeting with a few friends. They had assessed his support and decided that he had a good chance of winning.

The initial press articles—"daring the Liberal party to choose Trudeau"—had been followed by responses from others, including a group of responsible MPs.

When various committees were formed to draft him, "the joke had become serious."

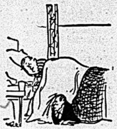
Mr. Trudeau sidestepped a general statement on his policy views, saying it would need too much detail. There was no specific thing that he wanted to do as Liberal leader and prime minister.

Gaglardi Charges Plot

VICTORIA (CP) — Highways Minister Phil Gaglardi said in the British Columbia legislature Thursday night that some people using gangster - like methods in a plot to oust him and the Social Credit government from office.

In making the statement, the highways minister said a man recently was offered $25,000 to lie about him in court so he would have to resign from the cabinet.

The minister said there is a master plan to "get Gaglardi" and through him, the W. A. C. Bennett administration. He said he has known for some time that he has been investigated, followed and had his telephone tapped.



"Not yet, Pierre!"

Mortgage Limit Increased

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave automatic first reading Thursday to National Housing Act amendments that would allow lower down payments on many homes.

The amendments increase to $18,000 from $13,000 loan ratios for insured loans for new housing.

The government now insures mortgage loans under a formula allowing the buyer to borrow 95 per cent of the first $13,000 of the assessed lending value of the property, and 70 per cent of the balance to a limit of $18,000.

This formula means a maximum loan of $16,550 on a $19,000 home, leaving a down payment requirement of $2,450.

The new formula would allow a buyer to borrow 95 per cent of the lending value to a limit of $18,000, plus 70 per cent of the amount by which one-half the lending value exceeds $18,000.

This would cut the down payment requirement on a $19,000 home to $1,000.

Sale of Goods To Reds Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — Steps are being taken today to begin public hearings soon into a controversial new government-commissioned report recommending ways to pull American-dominated firms closer to a Canadian orbit and push their exports farther afield.

Herb Gray (L—Essex West), chairman of the Commons finance and trade committee, said he will ask the steering committee to schedule hearings before the Commons adjourns or prorogues in a few weeks, in advance of the Liberal party leadership convention here April 4-6.

Walter Gordon, president of the Privy Council who tabled the report in the Commons Thursday, said at a news conference Thursday he wants leadership candidates to declare in time their stands on the treatment of foreign-dominated corporations in Canada.

The 78,000-word report on foreign ownership and control of Canadian industry suggested creation of the long-discussed Canada Development Corp., and creation of two new government agencies to deal with foreign firms and big privately-owned Canadian corporations.

The report was written for a cabinet committee on foreign investment headed by Mr. Gordon, but does not have the declared support of the cabinet as a whole.

One of the two new agencies would maintain surveillance over the behaviour of foreign-dominated firms. It would also encourage all big Canadian firms to offer shares to the public and would insist foreign subsidiaries make periodic reports to show if they are good corporate citizens of Canada.

The other body would be in the nature of a state trading agency, to deal with the state trading organizations that now dominate Communist trade. It could insist that American-owned firms in Canada take orders from Communist countries, despite Washington's disapproval, or place the orders itself.

The report, by eight economics professors headed by Melville H. Watkins of the University of Toronto, said foreign-owned firms have brought benefits to Canada in new plants, equipment, technology and employment. But their operations had caused concern about independence of Canadian industry.

The report also said that, in general, foreign-owned subsidiaries tended to be no more efficient than Canadian enterprises.

The Watkins report said the trade department's guiding principles of good corporate behavior need to be applied more rigorously. Companies now are merely asked to observe them.

Soviet Bombers Blocked Off Newfoundland's Coast

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Jim Lucas, staff writer for Scripps-Howard Newspapers, says five Russian bombers were intercepted over Greenland by U.S. fighter planes this week.

Lucas says in a syndicated article from here the four-engine Russian planes were "forced to turn back, but only after they had penetrated to the Newfoundland coastline."

A spokesman for the North American Air Defence Command at Colorado Springs said it would have "no comment at this time." He said, "Staff action is being taken and there may be a statement later." The spokesman added that this means an investigation is under way to learn the circumstances of the incident.

Lucas quotes an unnamed NORAD official as saying the Russians apparently were trying to test U.S. defences and "if that is what they wanted they accomplished their mission—they knew we are still on the alert."

The NORAD official added, Lucas says, that this was not the first time the Russians have tried to penetrate the continental air shield.

Lucas says the encounter took place several days ago when the screen in NORAD's underground headquarters showed two Russian planes approaching Greenland. U.S. Air Force F-102s from Reykjavik, Iceland, were ordered to intercept them.

Lucas' story says:

"The F-102s from Iceland approached the Russian bombers, wagged their wings and asked them to turn back. The Russian aircraft continued on their route, one which roughly would take them over the northern part of the United States.

"At this point three more Bears (the Russian bombers) appeared on NORAD's radar screens, though they were never actually sighted by the fighter pilots, trailing the first two.

Battle at Hue Is in 17th Day

SAIGON (AP) — Heavy fighting continued inside the historic walled citadel at Hue today, and the number of U.S. combat planes lost in the air war against North Vietnam reached 800.

Meanwhile, the U.S. command also reported another battle just outside Hue, and mortar fire around Khe Sanh killed 14 U.S. marines and wounded 135.

With the battle for Hue in its 17th day, AP correspondent Lewis M. Simons reported that U.S. marine bombers, navy destroyers offshore and marine artillery kept blasting at North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops holding out along the southern wall of the citadel, the former imperial seat in the coastal city 400 miles northeast of Saigon.

As marine F-8 Crusaders and A-4 Skyhawks raked the wall for the third straight day, gunfire crackled between the diehard holdouts and U.S. marines and South Vietnamese troops on the opposite bank of the Perfume River.

Meanwhile, U.S. marines who entered the citadel through the uncontested northeast corner—were advancing along the eastern wall of the citadel with about 300 yards to go before reaching the bulk of the Viet Cong-North Vietnamese forces parallel to the river.

Communist resistance rested in large on the use of small arms, automatic weapons and rockets.

Four miles west of Hue Thursday, paratroops from the U.S. 101st Airborne Division ran into another Viet Cong force. Fifty-six Viet Cong were reported killed in the five-hour skirmish, the U.S. command said, while three Americans were killed and 14 wounded.

Renewal of Hostilities Threatened by Israel

From AP-Reuters

After a day of the hardest fighting between Israel and Jordan since the June Mideast war, Israel's top soldiers Thursday night threatened more drastic retaliation if Arab attacks continue along the west bank of the Jordan River.

The Israeli chief of staff, Maj.-Gen. Haim Bar-Lev, told correspondents after a ceasefire ended eight hours of air attacks and artillery duels across the river Thursday: "We have even more drastic ways of dealing with the situation."

Israeli Defence Minister Moshe Dayan said in a broadcast he hoped the fighting would "teach Jordan that a ceasefire is a ceasefire and it applies to both Israel and Jordan."

The guns duelled across the river and Israeli planes went into action after two weeks of Arab sabotage raids in the territory on the west bank of the river which Israel seized from Jordan in June. Jordan reported 23 dead. Israel said it had five wounded.

Authoritative sources said in Tel Aviv a third power conveyed a Jordanian ceasefire request to Israel.

They said Israel agreed to the request provided it was effective all along the front and Jordan accepted.

Toddler Brings Bottle of Beer For Teacher

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — The bottle of beer confiscated from a kindergarten student by a Chatham area school bus driver Thursday was nothing more than a 1968 version of an apple for the teacher.

The pint-sized pupil said a classroom remark inspired the gift. The teacher indicated she was fresh out of beer.

Rabies Scare, Breeding Season, Cause Dog Problems

It's a dog's life for the city's new animal control officer.

A rabies scare coupled with the canine breeding season has kept Gary Flunder on the go almost 24 hours a day since his appointment a week ago.

"People are panicking because of their fear of rabies," he says. "They're telephoning me night and day asking to have their animals destroyed. Their dog cost them anything from $10 to $100 to buy and only $2 to have destroyed. I tell them to give the $2 to the Humane Society and let its officials find a good home for the animal. I hate destroying dogs for no reason."

Compounding the dog catcher's work is a lack of space at the Fair Grounds animal shelter. Yesterday, Mr. Flunder had 27 dogs in the shelter and cages for only seven. Two of his charges, the animals picked up after biting three children at Prince of Wales school Wednesday, must be kept in strict isolation. They are under observation for 14 days to determine if they are rabid.

"I also have the female who lured them to the school yard," adds Mr. Flunder. "Whenever you see a pack of dogs roaming the city this time of year, you'll find a female at the centre of it. This is the breeding season, and dogs in pursuit of romance are apt to be snappy if a stranger waylays them."

The dogcatcher intends to nip this puppy love in the bud, if dog owners won't.

"No more warnings," he emphasizes. "From now on, I'm picking up every dog reported running at large. It will cost their owners a $10 fine and the price of a dog tag, ($2 for males and $4 for females) to spring them from the pound."

He means what he says. Last week he picked up his mother's dog on the complaint of a neighbor.

"No one has any right to keep an unspayed female or an untied dog in the city," says Mr. Flunder. "We can't have children attacked and garbage pails overturned throughout the city, even though spring is in the air."

Society President May Soon Unveil Animal Shelter Proposal

Humane Society president Bob Whiten warns the present dog problem cannot be confined by municipal boundaries.

"It's a serious problem," he said last night.

Mr. Whiten revealed the society may soon unveil a proposal for more adequate shelter and control on an area basis.

He indicated Trenton, Belleville and the surrounding townships of Thurlow and Sidney would be proposed participants in the scheme.

"Acting mayor Boyle has asked me to have the proposal ready as soon as possible," added Mr. Whiten.

It may be presented to next Monday's city council meeting.

Explosive Charges

Walter Pitman, New Democrat MPP for Peterborough, charged that the government was being undemocratic in not telling the people of some of its proposed legislation during the election campaign.

NDP Member Says Speech Sparse and Disappointing

Walter Pitman, NDP member for Peterborough, came to a meeting of the Belleville New Democratic Party loaded with ammunition last night.

He outlined Ontario's problems and read excerpts from the Throne speech.

He described the Speech from the Throne as a "sparse and disappointing document."

"There is little expectation that imaginative and dramatic solutons to our problems can emerge from this Government."

Mr. Pitman spoke of the speech's reference to the French-English problem and he described its concern as "commendable."

"This speech offers no hope; it establishes few worthy goals. There is no stirrings of the blood or lifting of the vision."

"The French - Canadian wants to leave and be French-Canadian if he can't be Canadian."

"As I look at this Speech from the Throne, I feel sad. The majority of French-Canadians feel that Ontario is English-Canadian."

Then Mr. Pitman turned his address to the subject of housing in Ontario.

"People with housing problems have very little to look for in this Speech."

"The unspecific pledges of 'decisive action' in the improvement of water and air pollution, urban development and outdoor recreation do not rescue the speech from a vagueness which promises all, yet promises so little."

Mr. Pitman compared the racial problem in the United States to Ontario's housing situation, explaining that housing and poverty were causing the riots in the U.S. as much as racism.

"I believe it won't happen in Canada, but there are people disgusted and humiliated in this country."

He suggested housing causes all family problems. "It's just that important."

"Children are being separated from their parents because of lack of accommodation."

He charged that people making $2,000 a year are paying more municipal taxes than those earning more.

"There is no indication that there is going to be a war on housing."

"Nothing can point out that the mythology of free enterprise has failed, more than housing."

Mr. Pitman said that the Government had gone ahead with changing School Board boundaries without mentioning it in the election campaign.

"There's no communication between the people and the Government until the bill is drafted."

"It's a denial of all the best elements of our democratic system."

"How better to strike fear of bureaucracy into the hearts of people?"

Towards the end of his address, Mr. Pitman spoke of the subject of medicare.

"People are highly influenced that medicare means some kind of regimentation. There's never been anything stated that medicare would take away the freedom to chose your own doctor."

Mr. Pitman charged that Robarts didn't really tell us what was going to happen to medicare. "We were led to believe we would have it."

When we are sad and lonely,
And everything goes wrong,
We seem to hear you whisper,
Cheer up and carry on,
Each time we see your picture,
You seem to smile and say,
Don't cry, I'm only sleeping,
We will meet again someday.

Picketing Women

Trenton Union Gets Support

TRENTON — The striking women of I.U.E. Local 539 continued their picketing against Essex Electronics Ltd., but turned their placards over to male supporters overnight.

Last night the 30-member all-woman local received the picketing services of three area union locals — 470 and 489 Papermakers from Trenton and Glen Miller, and brother I.U.E. local 537 from Pyrotenax of Canada.

Three entrances of the West Trenton Essex plant are being picketed, while company spokesman, J. E. Kalfus says a skeleton office staff of 11 remains inside on the job.

Mr. Kalfus said a written offer of an immediate five per cent hourly pay increase still applies to workers who remain at their jobs.

A union spokesman said no members of Local 539 have crossed the picket lines since Thursday's midnight strike deadline.

Mr. Kalfus said the five per cent wage increase applied to "anybody . . . it may be a new employee. We're not locking anybody out."

Members of Local 539 voted to strike the plant to back up demands for an increase in their $1.12 — $1.50 hourly pay scale, and other fringe benefits.

Completion Date Set

An April 30 completion date for the new addition to the Corby Public Library is hoped for by local library officials.

Wieger DeJong, Stirling contractor, has the general contract for the library addition costing slightly in excess of $35,000.

The addition will provide a second floor extension to the new Pinnacle Street section of the library for use as a children's library. The addition will have an area of 2891 square feet.

The steps and portico leading to the old section of the library have been removed to make way for an enclosed stairway for the new second floor addition.

The new children's section will have a common entrance with the main library, the stairway to the second floor leading up from the main entrance.

Library board chairman Linton Read said construction of the new addition is being done under the winter works program through which government assistance is obtained on approved labor costs.

Druggist Has Licence Suspened

TRENTON — A Trenton druggist had his licence suspended for three days and has been assessed hearing costs of $400 on a conviction under the Pharmacy Act.

George Brown, proprietor of Brown's Drug Store, 23 Dundas St. East, was called before the discipline committee of the Ontario College of Pharmacy on four charges that his store was unlawfully operated without supervision by a pharmaceutical chemist.

It was also charged that an employee sold drugs in the Brown Store which should only be sold by a qualified pharmacist.

The College of Pharmacy suspended Mr. Brown's licence Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week and he was assessed costs of $400 for the January hearing.

$3,000 Damage To Two Cars In Collision

BRIGHTON — Two area men escaped with minor injuries from a Thursday-afternoon accident which caused an estimated $3,000 damage to their cars.

Gary John Hadwen, 20, of Hilton, was treated for head lacerations, and released from Trenton Memorial Hospital.

John Haisma, 49, R. R. 2 Brighton, also received outpatient treatment for minor injuries.

Provincial police are still investigating the accident which occurred on Highway 2, three miles east of Brighton.

Postal Worker Arrested

City police today confirmed they have charged a Belleville post office worker with theft from the mails.

Arrested early today at the post office was 29-year-old Frank Steve Cris, of Russell Street.

No details were specified by police. Cris was a mail handler on a casual basis.

City tax office employee, Mrs. C. Hall loads up with some of the 9,000 interim tax bills being mailed out this week.

Tax Bills Mailed

Interim tax bills are going out this week from the city hall tax office but local property owners will get no indication of the 1968 tax bite from the amount of their first two payments.

The reason is that the interim bills are based on 16 mills — less than half of last year's total residential rate.

Under the municipal act municipalities collecting interim taxes are empowered to levy up to 50 per cent of the total anticipated tax requirement.

"We are basing our interim demand on last year's residential rate, rather than try to anticipate what the 1968 mill rate will be," stated city treasurer John Grohn.

Last year's residential rate was 36 mills.

Mr. Grohn said the idea of the interim tax bill is to get funds for carrying on the city's business without borrowing from the banks for current expenditures.

"And with interest rates on the increase, this factor is increasingly important," he said.

After the year's budget is approved and the mill rate struck, the final tax bills are mailed out to property owners. The final billing is divided into three payments, the last due early in the fall.

Payments on the interim bill are already being received at city hall.

Approximately 9,000 interim bills are being mailed out this week, but when the final billing is made later in the year there will be 10,000 bills going out.

The reason for the additional 1,000 bills in the final billing is that tax exempt properties — those which pay only garbage collection or other specified charges — don't receive an interim bill.

Deficit Financing Dangerous George Hees Tells Jaycees

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Deficit financing is dangerous.

Governments on all levels must buck taxpayers' demands in the name of sound financing.

And politicians must be courageous enough to take such a stand.

This was the warning from George Hees to young Belleville businessmen last night.

The Conservative Northumberland MP and former trade minister in the Diefenbaker Cabinet was guest speaker at the Belleville Jaycees annual banquet in Club Canara.

Warned Mr. Hees: "We must make sure in future when governments plan to make expenditures they must be based on income the government expects to take in a year and not . . . deficit financing.

In future we must balance our budgets, and if we don't have it coming in from the taxpayers we don't spend it on things the taxpayers ask for."

"Government," emphasised Mr. Hees, "must have the courage to refuse to do things on a credit basis."

"We've got to come down to the idea of financial responsibility," he explained after his address.

Increased spending spells inflationary disaster, he intimated.

"You've got to have the guts to say to them if we're going to keep on doing this we're going to have inflation," predicted Mr. Hees.

Supporting his theory of political softness, Mr. Hees told the Jaycees and their guests: "We've said to all governments, municipal, provincial and federal, that we want this, we want that, we want the other thing and if you don't give it to us we're going to vote you out of office.

'And they've agreed to the things we wanted them to do." Mr. Hees also warned that incentives must be evolved to increase Canadian trade by improving design and productivity.

Productivity he stressed in particular.

He drew an anology with the faltering British economy to warn that "Canadians have not been working as hard as they should be."

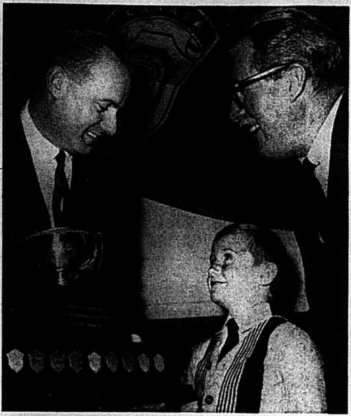
"I want to suggest that that is exactly what happened to Great Britain.

"Unless our productivity . . . does not increase very materially and very soon we're going to be exactly the same position as Great Britain . . ."

"Industry," he said, "does not seem to assume the impetus in increasing productivity.

But workers must be certain when seeking pay hikes that increases are proportionate to productivity, said Mr. Hees.

"We are in the position today when we are very vulnerable to aggressive nations," warned the former trade minister.



Ray Ellis, young son of former mayor, seems even more overwhelmed than father after Jack Ellis was awarded Jaycee Man of the Year trophy last night. George Hees, MP Northumberland, was guest speaker.

No Place for Little Men In Community: Man of Year

Recently nudged from the city's highest office, Jack Ellis was back in the public spotlight last night.

The man who was four years mayor until his cliff-clinging defeat last December has been named Belleville's man of the year.

The title was formally awarded him last night at the annual Jaycees banquet in Club Canara.

Probably the most communicative mayor in city history, he wasn't at a loss for revealing words.

They included:

"I have no time for — nor is there any room in my community for — little men. I mean, of course, little in mind and not stature; people who can't see beyond their own petty schemes; people who carp and gripe about the community at every turn."

Participation is the operative word for community dwellers, he stressed.

'I feel it is incumbent upon all of us to participate to the utmost of our ability in the life of the community," said the former mayor.

It may take many forms but "there is a need to participate — and a chance to participate available to you."

However, it was difficult to dodge any reference to his administration — even as a generalization.

"Obviously," he noted, "some of my decisions have been correct. . . . 'I'm all too well aware that some of my decisions were wrong. I admit this freely and I guess I've been called every name under the sun by those who take objection to them."

However, he asserted, what I've done in the past and what I intend to do in the future to the best of my ability will be with a clear conscience.'

Three Charged With Possession Of Burglar Tools

Three Belleville youths have been arrested for possession of tools for house-breaking.

"Picked up last night" were Barry Barriage, 17, of South Church Street, William Storms, 16, of South Church Street and Kenneth Hewlett, 20, of Dundas Street E.

Realty Defeat Stars

A pair of goals by Bill Lattimer gave Doug Grant Realty a 3-1 victory over the Aluminum Stars in the second game of their best-of-seven semi-final contest, Belvedere Hotel and Stinson Construction fought to a 2-2 draw.

Lattimer's two goals came after Ron Urch had scored for the Stars to create a 1-1 tie. Bob Ethier scored the first goal for the Realtors.

In the Stinson-Belvedere clash, Don Bishop and Rick Denard scored for the construction crew, and Doug Hallam and Jack Lucas collected the goals for the Hotelmen.

Scout Council Presents Plans

The regular monthly meeting of the Belleville District Council Boy Scouts, held on Monday, under the chairmanship of president Lew Andrews, reviewed the preparations for Boy Scout Week and planned for many activities for the balance of the season.

The "Annual Scouters' Get-Together" to be held on Monday, Feb. 19 was reviewed by chairman Hugh Beach and Bruce Thompson. It is expected that there will be about 150 persons present at this event. Special invitations have been sent to the Mayor of Belleville, Dr. Russell Scott, Asst. Provincial Commissioner L. R. Griffiths, Provincial Field Commissioner John C. Pettifer (Quinte Region) and several civic leaders. During the course of the program there will be a presentation of four Wood Badge Parchments and neckerchiefs and two long service awards.

The public relations officer reported on plans for publicity during Boy Scout Week and expressed appreciation for the splendid co-operation of "The Intelligencer" and Radio Station CJBQ, as well as local merchants for displaying cards and allowing window displays.

The ski instruction planned at Oak Hills Ski Club on Saturdays had to be postponed on account of poor snow conditions on the course.

District Commissioner — Bud Bateman, reporting on behalf of the District staff, stated that numbers were increasing and quality of Scouting generally was good. Plans included skating party by 14th (Lions Club) and 18th (Parkdale); a sleigh-ride by 13th (Holy Rosary); a "ramble" by 4th (Emmanuel Baptist) and 11th (Holloway United); toboggan party by 5th (College Hill United and 18th (Parkdale) (A). A Pack Scouters Workshop will be held in St. Thomas' Church Hall on February 27th and March 5th.

Investiture of Mrs. Blanche Reynolds (1st Cannifton-Corbyville) Pack as Akela and Mrs. E. Donaldson as Assistant took place recently under the direction of Asst. District Commissioner — Arnold Welch. Visits of parents (4th) to 15th Pack to watch investiture of boys in special ceremony. The 10th (Holloway United) Group committee is being re-organized.

Sixteen applications have been received for boys who will attend the 1st. Ontario Jamboree in August representing Belleville District. Scout David Knott, 6th (Tabernacle) will be invested as a Queen's Scout in a special ceremony on Feb. 15th. Asst. District Commissioner Ted. Yaeger visited the 21st (B and D A R C) Troop and presented Scoutmaster Ron Allan with six shirts, six pair of shorts and two Scout hats for the boys of his unit.

On March 8, 9 and 10 a Scout Workshop will be held at Kingston for instruction of District Leaders in "The New Look in Boy Scout Training". Arrangements will be made for District Commissioner and two Assistant District Commissioners to attend.

A combined Boy Scout - Girl Guide church parade is planned for May 26. A committee comprised of Rev. C. Savage, O. C. Owen and District Commissioner Bud Bateman will meet with 4 representatives of the Girl Guides to make arrangements.

An interesting report of the banquet and reception for the Chief Scout was given by Mr. A. S. Lewis, a staunch supporter and worker in Scouting for many years, mention being made of his conversation with "The Chief".

Delegates were named to the dinner and annual meeting of the Belleville United Services. Harry Occomore and C. Heard will represent Boy Scouts with a possible third delegate.

George C. Brown reporting on honors and awards stated that over 20 persons were eligible for long service awards and a special date, April 28, was mentioned as Honors and Awards Night when presentations will be made.

President Lew Andrews reported that an average of 101 boys had attended the swimming instruction at the YMCA for the past three Saturday mornings. Work and service committee, badge committee and Ladies' Auxiliary had nothing special to report. Several group committee representatives gave an account of their activities and plans for the months ahead.

A Difficult Task

"It's going to be hard, admittedly, to integrate some areas. But we had to start somewhere, and the county lines were it . . . There will be a lot of wailing and gnashing of teeth in Ontario for the next couple of years. It will be hell getting this program straightened out."

The foregoing words of regional superintendent R. W. Froats reflect the general uneasiness of school administrative bodies as they contemplate the rocky road to integration.

The Kingston official was explaining facets of the new regional concept at a meeting in Trenton. Perhaps "thinking out loud" would be a better interpretation, for Mr. Froats — and doubtless everyone else involved — clearly are feeling their way in this drive for more comprehensive and efficient schooling.

Hastings County is one that comes into the category of "difficult," and in this regard Mr. Froats makes an intriguing statement. "We realize," he said, "that Bancroft for instance has different problems than Trenton — it's even different socially. But what we are trying to do is give equal educational opportunities to children in all parts of the county."

When he speaks of differences between Bancroft and Trenton he is talking presumably of the more isolated rural background of students in the village to the north, compared with those in Trenton who might be expected to be more urbanized and shall we say worldly.

And speaking of worldliness, Mr. Froats, like many an educationist today, falls into the trap of using words to convey one meaning when the word or words mean something else.

Thus, we have him saying that in the event of the original county-size board lines not working out, there could be a later "sophistication" of the system to accommodate hard-to-integrate areas. The word "sophisticate" means variously, to change from a natural, simple, or artless state; to make artificial or worldly-wise, to corrupt or mislead; to make impure by mixture or adulteration; to alter (a text for instance) without authority.

For all that, Mr. Froats' meaning is clear. What he is suggesting is further streamlining of the integration process as time and circumstance dictate. But his observation still sticks in the mind — the one about "wailing and gnashing of teeth" getting the program straightened out.

We might begin by asking what is to become of the students of Ameliasburg who now attend school in Belleville and are threatened with transfer to Picton, necessitating a fairly lengthy bus journey each day.

Such is progress.

The Grippe

This is the season of the flu — and it is a particularly virulent brand that is going the rounds.

Aches and pains, blowing hot and cold, swollen glands, ear infection, a perpetual sniff and general feeling of calamity . . . if you have all this then surely it is the grippe. And a pox on it.

And there is little that can be done about it except adhere to time-honored remedies. Like taking to one's bed, and staying there, and drinking plenty of fluids, not to mention taking advantage of one or other of the various medicines that serve to hasten a cure.

In this connection too, it is surely strange to observe such quantities of available remedies and at the same time wonder — with some perplexity — why it is that people still succumb to such irritations as the common cold.

Productive Years

Creativeness does not disappear with advancing years. In fact some of the finest works of art, literature and music have been by men and women well past their prime. Beethoven and more recently Grandma Moses were two in this category.

Not widely known perhaps was Baroness de Stoeckl, writer and confidante of the crowned heads of Europe, whose death has occurred in England at the age of 94. An Irish-born aristocrat who married into the Russian czarist imperial court, the baroness became a writer at the age of 78 when she published her memoirs. She followed this with five other books, the last published when the author was 91.

Baroness de Stoeckly incidentally was a daughter-in-law of the Russian minister who negotiated the sale of Alaska to the United States.

Vietnam Peace Talks Continue to Elude United States

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

All the talk of a peace emissary, secret diplomatic moves and recent narrowing of differences on the Vietnam war might lead one to think something is cooking.

But Wednesday's developments, and the views of some hardened observers and authorities, suggest otherwise.

In Washington, State Secretary Rusk said North Vietnam has rejected President Johnson's Vietnam peace formula, while in Paris, informed sources said UN Secretary-General U Thant is convinced that peace is as far away as ever.

In his intriguing pilgrimage from New Delhi to Moscow, London and Paris, Thant has demonstrated that he is leaving no stone unturned in his quest for peace.

But a Western diplomatic source suggests Thant carries no special brief from either the Americans or the North Vietnamese. Nor is it likely that he has devised a grand new scheme for negotiations that would bring the two sides together.

Prime Minister Wilson has said pre-conference conditions demanded by the Americans and the Communists have narrowed and there is only a small bridge to be crossed. But that bridge contains the basic obstruction that repels the Americans. They must give up bombing of North Vietnam permanently before talks begin—and there is no indication that these talks would lead to peace.

There have been reports that the Americans sent a secret emissary to Hanoi, though for what purpose it is not clear. If both sides really want to get down to serious talks, there is no limit to methods, places or approaches. All that is required is a serious intent and in the view of one highly-trained diplomat, Hanoi is not too anxious to talk, except on its own terms.

The insurgent assaults on the South Vietnamese cities has caused widespread fear, confusion and chaos among civilians. There has been no general uprising against the Saigon administration but reports suggest many South Vietnamese now wonder whether Saigon or the Americans can really protect them from the insurgents who might return at any time.

The insurgents have disrupted the cities, which some experts feel, is exactly what Gen Nguyen Giap, the North Vietnamese defence chief, intended to do. The Americans maintain the cost to the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese has been heavy but there is no doubt that even the American generals are convinced the insurgents have the capability to continue fighting.

President Johnson's decision to dispatch another 10,500 U.S. troops to South Vietnam doesn't mean he is escalating the war. They may be required to fill gaps caused by the insurgent assaults or to attempt to wrest fortresses and communities that have already fallen to the enemy.

But that doesn't bring the Americans any closer to a military victory. That goal now is far removed as a result of the Communist assaults. The Saigon administration has been discredited in the eyes of the South Vietnamese. And in the eyes of the insurgents the view may have strengthened that eventually the Americans must bow out as gracefully as they can.

Britain Studies Divorce Reform

New Statesman

William Wilson's divorce law reform bill, published recently, is a sincere attempt to civilize the existing law. Those who favor easier divorce should not, therefore, be too concerned about certain illogicalities contained in the bill, arising from its attempt to compromise over the recommendations of both the Law Commission and the Archbishop of Canterbury's study group. Its main objective is irrefutably progressive. It seeks to abolish the existing doctrine of the matrimonial offence, involving the need to establish innocence or guilt. This concept of criminal law, ludicrously inapposite to emotional human relationships, will be replaced by the sole ground of marriage breakdown.

Proof of 'irretrievable breakdown' may be established in these ways: if one party has committed adultery and the other finds it impossible to live with him or her; if the respondent has behaved in such a way that the petitioner cannot reasonably be expected to live with him or her; if one party has deserted the other for over two years; by mutual consent after two years' separation; and at the request of one party after five years' separation. Breakdown may be the only future ground for divorce but existing matrimonial offences, adultery, cruelty and desertion, are retained as proof of this collapse.

The second objective of the bill — the extension of reconciliation facilities — is less controversial. It keeps the rule that divorce, except in extraordinary circumstances, is unobtainable in under three years of marriage. It makes it mandatory for solicitors to suggest marriage-guidance help at all stages of the proceedings. The court may adjourn a case for up to three months for attempts at reconciliation. Divorcing couples may attempt reconciliation for a period or periods of up to six months without prejudicing their original right to petition. Most people seeking divorce are impervious to any suggestion of reconciliation but there will always be a minority who need marriage guidance rather than divorce. These the bill seeks to protect.

The bill, as it now stands, must lead to an increase in the number of divorce petitioners presented. The clause permitting compulsory divorce after five years' separation will allow for the legalization of tens of thousands of permanent relationships and the legitimizing of at least 180,000 children. It could also save anyone tied to a long-term prisoner from years of deprivation and unhappiness. Divorce by mutual consent after two years and a reduction of the desertion period from three years to two are also conducive to easier divorce. The widest opportunities for petitioning are obviously contained in clause 2 (b) relating to intolerable behaviour.

To avoid the stigma of a cruelty petition, with its implications of malice and sadism, it will not be necessary to prove that the offending conduct has caused, or is likely to cause, injury to health. The deliberate imprecision of the clause could cover anything from alcoholism to physical paralysis. It will certainly apply to cases of insanity and chronic mental illness. At present a divorce on the grounds of insanity can be obtained only if a patient has been under continuous care for five years. The increasing trend in psychiatry towards community care frequently jeopardizes any possibility of divorce.

The adultery clause is more contentious. One single act of adultery is slender evidence of marriage breakdown. The petitioner, however, can insist that it represents intolerable conduct. All a judge can do is to adjourn the case for three months if he sees any possibility of reconciliation.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Feb. 16, 1968 . . .

The Canadian government gave the CPR $25,000,000 cash, 25,000,000 acres of land and a 700-mile track as an outright gift to finance the first trans-Canada railway. Sir John A. Macdonald had planned to subsidize the railway in 1872 but lost power when it was found the company president had paid his party $250,000. The line was finished in 1885, five years ahead of schedule, by financier Donald A. Smith (later Lord Strathcona) and engineer C. Van Horne.

1871—The Franco-Prussian War ended.

1949—Chaim Weizmann was elected Israel's first president.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1918—Gen. Sir William Robertson was succeeded as chief of the British imperial general staff by Sir Henry H. Wilson; German airmen raided London; 11 killed and four injured; British airmen dropped five tons of bombs on various targets on the Western Front.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1943—RAF and RCAF bombers continued daily attacks on Japanese military targets in Burma; RAF bombers attacked Lorient submarine base—two planes lost; United States four-motored bombers attacked the German submarine base at St. Nazaire—six bombers lost.

Ontario's Vineland

Windsor Star

Some there be who predict an unfortunate future for certain fruits now grown in Ontario, that they may become uneconomic. We trust this isn't so.

There also is some optimism. Fruit breeders at the Horticultural Research Institute of Ontario at Vineland predict that within 10 years Ontario will have a thriving apricot and tangerine industry. New strains are being developed which can withstand Ontario's climate. There seems to be a market available for such home-grown products.

Southern Ontario and the Niagara Peninsula are particularly suited by nature to the growing of a wide range of fruits. We should take advantage of this, and not let nature down. The time will come, with Canada's increasing population, when we can consume all the fruit we can grow.

Mutual Admiration

Ottawa Journal

Canadians came out tops with Americans in a recent U.S. public opinion poll. Out of 1,583 adults surveyed, 94 per cent gave Canada the best rating.

Thanks very much. We like you too. You zoomed our Expo, your movies are extreme — good or bad. James Thurber is still the funniest, Thoreau and Whitman speak for Canada too. California and Florida are in our hopes, you bring fame to our Galbraiths and Lorne Greenes and we feel robust when you call us "north woods."

More seriously — yes, Old Glory is a part of us and we know about your defeats and sadnesses and problems and are glad they aren't ours: whether in Vietnam or the unsunny south. We are moved by Frost and Abe Lincoln, look in awe as you nudge the moon, thank you for "protecting" us and take for granted that you will continue to let us scold you after our fashion. To wrap it up we're glad you're there.

Opportunities Overseas

Lethbridge Herald

A unique program for Canadian aid to developing countries deserves attention. It is called Canadian Executive Service Overseas (CESO) and its appeal is to the over-middle-aged retired executive who is unwilling to spend the rest of his life gardening, fishing or interfering with his wife's housekeeping.

The program is financed jointly by a grant from External Aid in Ottawa and by public subscription from Canadian industry. Assignments are undertaken in response to requests from developing countries and may include "tuning - up" an established operation, simply reporting on a business situation, assisting with training management personnel, filling a job during the absence of an existing official, or simply advising on a projected business or industrial venture.

Most of the assignments will be of a managerial rather than a technical nature.

The executive's period of service would usually be about six months. He receives no salary, but travel and living expenses are paid and so are those of his wife if he takes her along.

English Floors Quebecer In Driving Test in BC

Denny Boyd in The Vancouver Sun

Rally round the flag, boys— They are meeting in Ottawa on a subect that should be close to all of us. They have their own name on it, but what it means is national unity, whether you you speak English or French. If you speak English and you have lived your life out here, you are probably wondering what in the name of St. Trop those people from Quebec are hollering about with their insistence that Canada be bilingual. Maybe this will explain it.

A few months ago, Aime Croteau jumped into his car, left Montreal and drove to Vancouver. It should be noted that he managed to drive through part of Quebec, all of Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and B.C. without an accident. On arriving here he secured employment with a contracting firm where French is spoken, which was ideal, since his English is negligible. He applied in New Westminster for a driver's licence but he was turned down because he doesn't speak English.

Croteau owns a Quebec driver's licence which will permit him to drive in B.C. for another three months. But he wanted to be a citizen of B.C. so he applied to take a B.C. driver's licence test. He was turned down because he cannot take the test in English. He understands all the road signs because in Quebec, they are all printed in English and French. But the man at the New Westminster motor vehicle branch said he couldn't take a chance unless Aime brought with him a court-approved interpreter to supervise the oral and written part of the tests.

Romeo Paquette, secretary-general of the French-Canadian Federation, to whom Croteau turned, has advised him against the cost of an interpreter, and I have to agree with him. It seems strange to me that a man who was permitted to drive in Quebec and who was able to drive to our province without fouling up must be subjected to the humiliation and cost of supplying an interpreter to continue driving in our enlightened province.

Aime Croteau is permitted to drive in our province on the licence given to him in Quebec for another three months. Apparently, he will not be allowed to drive in our province after that time unless he produces an interpreter, at his own expense, who can prove to the New Westminster motor vehicle branch that Croteau knows what Stop means, in two languages. Croteau's crime is that he speaks only one language. But cannot the same be said for the man at the New Westminster motor vehicle department?

Sloppy Eaters

Windsor Star

The other day in a restaurant we noted a man with particularly bad table manners. His way of eating was so sloppy as to be disgusting and interfered with the enjoyment of others in their own food.

This now fortunately is a rather rare fault, except in infants who haven't yet learned how to eat properly. They can be excused but it isn't easy to excuse an adult who should know better.

It is a social error which can be harmful.

Insurance Is Important

London Free Press

Few people would question the award of $193,008 to a motorcyclist who was left with permanent physical and mental defects as the result of being hit by a car. Obviously he will have to be looked after for the rest of his life, and as he was under 20 when the accident occurred this may be a lengthy period.

Motorists would be well advised to examine carefully their insurance coverage and make sure that they have the maximum protection available which they can afford.

The question also arises as to what would happen if the insurance, or personal assets, or both of the person or persons against whom the judgment is awarded falls short of the stated amount.

Under the Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Act payments are limited to $35,000 for injury or death of one or more persons or loss or damage to property arising out of any one accident.

Undoubtedly an injured person would be better off receiving $35,000 than nothing, but it would be poor consolation to be awarded damages which he couldn't collect.

Foreign Ownership Costs Independence for National Economy

OTTAWA (CP) — Foreign ownership and control of Canadian industry yields benefits in expanding economic growth, but at the cost of independence for the national economy, a government-commissioned report says.

The report of a group studying the structure of Canadian industry, tabled in the Commons Thursday by Privy Council President Walter Gordon, recommends strong action against the application of foreign laws to Canadian subsidiaries, and a new approach to anti-combines restriction.

The report was prepared by a group headed by Melville H. Watkins, professor of economics at the University of Toronto. Releasing it, the government emphasized that the views are "not to be attributed to the government of Canada."

"Both economic benefits and economic costs can inhere in foreign investment," the report said.

"The major economic benefit is the contribution to economic growth. The major economic cost is the possible impediments to the creation of a more independent national economy."

Benefits include new plants and equipment, and the use in Canada of such things as patent rights and technology owned or developed by the foreign parent firm. These can give an impetus to Canadian industry faster than could be developed in Canada alone.

The economic cost is principally the amount of profits paid to foreign owners of firms that could be paid to Canadian owners, and the pressure that is put on Canadian governments by the big foreign parent firm and the government of the foreign country.

Foreign control means the potential shift outside the country of the focus of some types of decision-making.

"The extent to which decision-making within the host country is eroded varies with circumstances, and basically depends on the power of the foreign firm and its government relative to the government of the host country."

The report says the Canadian government has tended to deal with anti-combines action as simply a police matter, to be dealt with under criminal law, rather than as an economics subject.

"Federal-provincial co-operation should be sought to the extent necessary to strengthen anti-combines law and policy," the report said.

One of the historic reasons for American firms to establish Canadian branch plants has been to enter the Canadian market without having to get over the hurdle of Canadian import duties. They then are in a position to export to Commonwealth markets under the Commonwealth preferrential duties.

However, the report said, once established in Canada, the foreign-owned firm enjoys the benefit of Canadian tariff protection from other foreign suppliers. The benefits brought to Canada by foreign-owned firms are then reduced by inefficiency.

There was a real danger that American-owned firms will act in compliance with head-office directives based on laws passed in Washington.

It cited cases in which U.S. laws on the control of exports, combines, and dollar flows have been applied to Canadian subsidiaries.

It said the Canadian government should prohibit the exercise of U.S. court orders requiring corporate records to be removed from Canada, and prohibit Canadian compliance with foreign anti-trust orders, decrees or judgments.

Development Company Endorsed by Report

OTTAWA (CP) — The proposed Canada Development Corp.—a proposed government-sponsored holding company promoting Canadian ownership of firms—is endorsed by a government-commissioned report.

The CDC was first suggested by Privy Council President Walter Gordon when he was minister of finance, but has not been pressed as a priority legislative item by the government.

Mr. Gordon tabled the report on foreign ownership of Canadian industry in the Commons on Thursday.

It was prepared by a special study group headed by Toronto economist Melville H. Watkins, but the government has neither endorsed nor rejected it.

The report said that in addition to creating the CDC stronger incentives should be given to encourage all large corporations to offer their shares for sale to Canadians.

A shortage of common stock for Canadian investors was driving some people to buy American stock. Yet there were in Canada wholly-owned subsidiaries of American firms which should have a Canadian voice in their ownership.

The report cited General Motors of Canada. A Canadian investor wanting to buy stock can only buy shares in the U.S. parent, and the shares are traded on Canadian stock exchanges.

The report also suggests incentives to encourage large privately-held Canadian corporations to offer shares to the public. The two big examples it cites are the T. Eaton Co., and the K. C. Irving industrial interests.

Canadians Have Vital Stake In Future World Economy

OTTAWA (CP) — The increasing interdependence of nations may yet make a world economy a reality, and Canadians have a vital stake in these developments, says a report on foreign ownership and control of Canadian industry.

The report, tabled in the Commons Thursday by Privy Council President Walter Gordon, says the multi-national corporation—a firm with globe-encircling branches and subsidiaries—is a feature of the embryonic world economy.

Since the operations of multinational firms transcend the jurisdiction of any single country, it can be argued that they should be subject to international or supranational control, the report added.

In the absence of such control, the countries in which they operate should co-operate in their creation.

The report was written for a cabinet committee studying foreign ownership by a group of academics headed by Toronto economist Melville H. Watkins. Though tabled by Mr. Gordon, it does not represent government policy.

"Multi-national corporations have substantial economic power and political influence, and their operations are far too important to many people for nation-states to ignore them," the report said.

In the absence of international control, Canadian policy should be to insist that in their Canadian operations, the multi-national firms adhere to Canadian law and policy.

Citing the United States as an example, the report said Washington has a tendency to assume that its laws will govern the behavior of American subsidiaries abroad, no matter what the policies and laws are in the countries in which the branches and subsidiaries are located.

The report recommends a special agency in Ottawa under a cabinet minister to co-ordinate Canadian policies governing multi-national corporations.

Agency Could Force Subsidiaries to Sell

OTTAWA (CP) — A powerful Canadian government agency that could take U.S. subsidiaries to court for refusing to supply goods destined for Communist countries is recommended by the Watkins report on foreign ownership of industry.

The report, tabled Thursday in the Commons, said the special agency would have wide authority "to ensure that export orders are filled when they conform with Canadian law and Canadian foreign policy."

The report is a product of 13 months' study by Prof. Melville Watkins of the University of Toronto and seven other academic economists. It was commissioned by the government but is not a policy statement.

Through its Trading With The Enemy Act, the U.S. administration places export regulations on its own corporations and extends their effect internationally to cover foreign subsidiaries.

Canada encounters cases in which subsidiaries turn down business from Communist countries under pressure from their U.S. head offices.

The economists suggest that where an American subsidiary refused to fill an order, the agency would assist in having the order placed with another firm.

If only the American subsidiary could provide the item, it would be required to explain its refusal. If American trading restrictions proved to be the reason, the agency would purchase the export item for resale.

Should the subsidiary still refuse to supply it, the firm would be liable for criminal action.

Canadian Ownership

Gordon Hopes Fading Fast

OTTAWA (CP) —Walter Gordon's hopes of quick action to encourage more Canadian ownership of Canadian industry appear to be fading fast.

He was appointed chairman of a committee of cabinet ministers in January, 1967, to study the economic and political implications of American and other foreign ownership of Canadian industry.

The plan was to produce a government white paper quickly, and later to embody the proposals in legislation which would be put before Parliament.

The cabinet committee appointed an eight-man study group composed of professors of economics working in Canadian and American universities.

Headed by Melville H. Watkins of the University of Toronto it produced a 78,000-word report which Mr. Gordon, the former finance minister and now president of the privy council, tabled in the Commons Thursday.

The report bears a prefatory note unusual in government documents, saying "any opinions expressed are those of the authors themselves and should not be attributed to the government of Canada."

Rather than being approved from a policy point of view, it appears unlikely the report will even be discussed in cabinet for its policy recommendations. Certainly, the cabinet will not have time between now and the Liberal party leadership convention April 4-6 to make any decision on it.

The subject may—and Mr. Gordon apparently hopes it will—become a matter for debate in the leadership contest.

But once a successor to Prime Minister Pearson has been chosen and takes office, there will in effect be a new government, uncommitted to any plan for dealing with foreign ownership and control of Canadian industry.

Three men in the present cabinet have widely differing views on the subject.

Mr. Gordon has long been fearful of the rowing influence of American subsidiaries and is alarmed at the prospect of Washington's directives being followed by Canadian companies owned by U.S. interests.

Finance Minister Sharp, a member of the cabinet committee, is a pragmatist on the issue of foreign ownership and control—preferring to deal with cases if, as and when the issues arise. It is reported he would have preferred no report, or a simple statement of a page's length, rather than the weighty analysis and recommendations Mr. Gordon tabled.

Hellyer: Buy Back Economy

TORONTO (CP) — Transport Minister Paul Hellyer said Thursday night that Canadians could begin buying their economy back from the United States within three years if they worked at it.

Mr. Hellyer was speaking at one of a series of meetings arranged by the St. George Liberal Association at which candidates for the Liberal leadership speak and then answer questions.

The transport minister said, however, that it will probably take much longer than three years before Canadians begin buying back their economy.

"To buy back Canada would take an increase in the savings of every Canadian of $430 a year," he said.

"If we were to have an increase in the gross national product — in real terms — of three per cent annually, and were to use it all for buying back our economy, we could start to do it within three years.

"However, that wouldn't be realistic. It would take longer, six, nine — perhaps 12 years."

St. Andrew's WMS Holds Valentine Tea

Attractive Valentine decor formed the setting in St. Andrew's Church Hall Wednesday afternoon when the Women's Missionary Society held a Valentine tea and bazaar.

Conveners of the successful event were Mrs. W. Clendenan and Mrs. E. Pigden, while warmly greeting guests at the door were Mrs. L. A. Sutherland, wife of the minister and Mrs. H. Elvidge, president of the organization.

The overall theme of the tea was in keeping with Valentine's and the attractive tea table was no exception with its white hand made lace cloth with red underlay and centred with an arrangement of red tulips, white 'mums enhanced with Valentine hearts, in silver antique dish. The individual guest tables were also most colorful with red and white luncheon cloths centred with bud vases containing red tulips. Hostesses in the tea room were Mrs. C. Barragar and Mrs. V. Weir.

Pouring tea throughout the afternoon were Miss L. Burnside and Mesdames E. Boyce, S. Gentle, W. Walker, D. Kane and H. York.

Kitchen convener Mrs. J. Browning was in charge of the many necessary kitchen duties.

The various sales tables carried out the Valentine theme and displayed an abundance of merchandise. These included: a candy table by the Explorers' Group in charge of Mrs. E. Fraser; a miscellaneous table convened by Mrs. W. Mills; a pot holder table, by Mrs. C. Robertson and the home bake table always a popular drawing card, co-convened by Mrs. D. Kane and Mrs. H. Yorke.

Treasurers for the afternoon in charge of ticket sales were Mrs. H. McConnell, Mrs. O. J. Reed, Mrs. C. Adams and Miss H. Blair.

HOME AND SCHOOL NEWS

KING GEORGE SCHOOL

The February meeting of the King George Home and School Association was held Monday evening in the school auditorium. Following the opening a short business meeting was held. Winners of the room attendance banners were Mrs. Closson, Miss Casey and Mrs. Howell.

Mrs. H. Cavalier introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Mrs. Don Lockyer who with her husband and three young daughters returned to Belleville last year from a 16-month stay in the north of Nigeria. She showed interesting slides and gave a most informative talk on the customs, living conditions, and habitat in Northern Nigeria. Several personal experiences were included in the talk, some being humorous and others rather startling.

There was a short question and answer period.

Mrs. R. Power thanked Mrs. Lockyer for a most interesting talk.

Coffee was served by the refreshment committee.

University Women's Club Hears Talk on "Magic Circle"

"The Magic Circle" was the topic presented by Fred Deacon at the Feb. meeting of the University Women's Club of Belleville and District. By means of slides and a taped commentary the plan for downtown Belleville's beautification was splendidly presented.

It was noted that the automobile has been Belleville's greatest problem because of lack of parking facilities. Commercial sprawl as well as suburban shopping centres have both been detrimental to the central area.

He explained that downtown Belleville can be compared to a living room where the walls, ceiling and floors must be re-decorated. A loop road is proposed around the downtown area with ample parking area to facilitate easier shopping. In the central core there would be malls, gardens and fountains — a fitting setting for attractive shopping. There would be three main areas including the footbridge mall between Victoria and Bridge, the city park below Bridge and a redeveloped area north of Victoria.

The proposed "Magic Circle" is a four-part plan. Firstly, traffic must be re-routed around the central core; secondly, more parking area is needed with the back yards of stores to be freshened and cleaned up, and finally when the traffic is re-routed, construction of the mall can begin.

The slides graphically portrayed the much needed improvement in the downtown area.

After the showing of slides Mr. Deacon spoke briefly on the other points of urban redevelopment dealing with the necessity of the Dundas Street Bridge, the plan for the developing Sidney Street as a north-south artery in the west end of the city and the same plan for a street in the east end of the city.

The major cost of such a development as the "Magic Circle" rests with the Federal Government which pays 50 per cent of the cost, the provincial government 25 per cent and the municipality 25 per cent.

It was felt by those present that the Magic Circle would be a most worthwhile project and everyone after having viewed the slides and heard the commentary felt that they should do their parts to execute a better and more beautiful Belleville.

A question and answer period followed Mr. Deacon's remarks.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. J. E. Nelles and thanked by Jean Williams.

During the business portion of the meeting Mrs. P. Harris introduced a new member, Mrs. B. Hegdekar.

Ann Landers

Advice by Columnist Irks Cheated Wife

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After reading your advice to "Betrayed and Bitter," the woman with the unfaithful husband, I wonder if the good you do is equal to the harm. I doubt it.

ANN LANDERS

Why do you persist in the notion that the wife of a cheating husband should take the jerk back, soothe his tired brow, forgive and forget and never bring up the subject again?

I wish I had a dollar for every lousy, miserable cheating rat who read that advice and chortled with glee. My own lousy, miserable, cheating rat shover your column into my face and said, "Here, read what a mature woman has to say on the subject."

Then you come out with, "You owe it to your children." Why must it always be the mother who "owes it to her children"? Doesn't a father owe his children anything? Why don't you write a column telling those back alley Romeos to grow up and put their family obligations ahead of carnal desire? Why don't you remind them of the vow, "In sickness and in health, for better for worse, till death do us part." Or have you rewrite it to read, "In sickness and in health, for better or for worse, until a sexy-looking broad comes along?

For 20 years I put my husband's happiness and comfort first. I gave him four wonderful children, and I raised them without much help from him. I made our home a meeting place for his family and friends. I was nurse, teacher, housekeeper, chauffeur, accountant, cook and official hostess. And how did he repay me? By taking up with every skirt that crossed his path — office girls, shop girls, stewardesses, waitresses — just name it and he has had it.

"Forgive and forget," you say. The phrase is so sanctimonious and pious. And it has a nice Christian ring to it. But if you are going to sit atop of Mt. Olympus and hand out advice, Ann Landers, you'd better come down accasionally and mingle with the mortals. The women who inhabit this earth are flesh and blood humans, not plaster saints. — ALSO BETRAYED AND BITTER.

DEAR ALSO: My desk is piled high with letters from bitter and betrayed wives from every state in the union. They call me a female Judas, a traitor to my sex, and other names which are unprintable.

But I have received some beautiful letters, too — not many, but a few, from wives who are not bitter. These women whose existence you doubt — the "plaster saints." Here is one of the best:

Dear Ann: Your advice to the wife of the cheating husband was excellent. I was once such a fool, but I learned the futility of anger and bitterness, and, I might add, the lesson was a costly one. May I say a few words to the unforgiving wives of the world?

Dear Stubborn Fools: Are you content now that you have decided to throw the bum out and go it alone? Are you enjoying the role of "the women wronged"?

March on with your head held high. Meet and commiserate with all the divorcees in your crowd. Rehash the battles and compare wounds. When you begin to date other men you will be surprised at the number who were thrown out because of a meaningless affair. Then go home and struggle with the multitudinous problems caused by your insufferable pride.

To those who are still undecided, I say: Erase that perfect image of yourself. It doesn't exist. Accept the fact that no marriage is 100 per cent perfect. Enjoy and appreciate the 50 or 60 or 70 per cent you do have. Forget the past because the future is more important. And forgive him because you love him. — BEEN THERE.

THE BERET COIF — Joyce Jillson of 20th-TV's "Peyton Place" styles her hairdo to coincide with her beret. The resulting coif follows the same tip-tilt, side-perch as the tam, with tresses worn close-to-the-head on the one side and curled on the other.

Appropriate Hair Styles

by Reba and Bonnie Churchill

Keep this under your hat, but there's a hair set going on beneath this beret. The resulting coif follows the same tip-tilt, side-perch as the tam, with tresses worn close-to-the-head on one side, and poufed or curled on the other. Actress Joyce Jillson of 20th-TV's "Peyton Place" swirls bangs in a side drape; then rolls curlers as shown in sketch. If bangs or wisps at ears refuse to stay sleek, use cellophane tape to mold them. Remove tape after five minutes.

Comb-outs offer more well-angled styling. To duplicate this stair-step silhouette, tease-brush crown area in an ear-to-ear arc. Smooth with bristle tips, sweeping one side into an elongated "S" shape that muffs the ear; keep the other side head-hugging. To emphasize raised crown, brush front strands flat and to the full side. Then, instead of draping bangs, fan hair in a series of cupped curls across forehead.

Side-directed styling also adapts to an upsweep. The attention is focused on a halo of large, loopy ringlets that skitter across the top and disappear into a single curl jiggling provocatively down the cheek to the ear lobe. Back is fashioned into a French twist with end tips left free to coil into the crown curls. Front is flat and straight, and bangs feather-brushed airily onto forehead.

P.S.: Imagine six different hair styles from one basic set! If you'd like this setting diagram, plus photo-illustrated styles, and special tips on how to fashion bangs that flatter the face, send for our 12-page booklet on hair styles that swing. Enclose 20c and a self-addressed stamped envelope to: Youth Parade, Reba and Bonnie Churchill—Swinging Hair Styles, c/o The Intelligencer, Room 1310, 80 King St. W., Toronto, Ontario.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Repeat of Cocoanut Cream Pie

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I wonder if you would have a recipe for cocoanut pie. It was made in a bake shop. They said it was Venetian Cream filling and was very good. A regular reader who likes to make new recipes.

ANSWER: Please give your name and address, preferably on a stamped envelope next time. I should add that I want to give this recipe in the column because it is 6 years since it appeared here.

COCOANUT CREAM PIE (repeated from July, 1962)

- 1 cup sugar
- ½ cup flour
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 cups scalded milk
- 3 eggs, separated
- 2 tablespoons butter
- ½ teaspoon vanilla or almond flavoring
- ¾ cup cocoanut

In top of double boiler mix together the sugar, flour and salt. Over boiling water stir in scalded milk until thick. Stir in beaten egg yolks and cook two or three minutes longer. Add butter, vanilla or almond flavoring and cocoanut. Pour into baked pie shell (9").

Beat remaining three egg whites with 4 tablespoons sugar until stiff. Spread over warm filling, sealing at edge and sprinkle top with more cocoanut. Brown meringue at 375 deg. Fahr. until it and cocoanut are tinged with gold. Serve cold.

LETTER: Here is a favorite of our growing family — Jean H.

TOMATO RAREBIT (serves 4 to 6)

Hard cook 4 or 6 eggs. (Number depends on how many you want to serve and how hungry they are.) Mix together in top of double boiler one can tomato soup, ¼ cup hot water (to rinse out soup can), 4 oz. cup of process cheese, and heat and stir over boiling water until cheese melts. Beat one egg, stir in a little hot soup then add to double boiler and stir until mixture thickens. Add 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Slice hard-cooked eggs onto 4 or 6 slices of buttered toast on plates and pour hot sauce over.

ANSWER: Thanks again Jean.

Successful Living

More Teaching Needed Re Study Methods

Dear Doris: Enclosed is 10 cents to cover the cost of leaflet entitled "How To Study".

This is a subject which I believe should get more coverage in our school systems. Those who do not learn how to study struggle needlessly with their lessons and there doesn't seem to be anywhere one can learn to study effectively. — Mother of Two.

Dear Mother: Learning to concentrate is a real hardship. I know men of 30 who cannot pay attention to one thing long enough to become good workmen.

The person who gets good study habits can pave the way for a successful career even without notable brainpower.

Dear Doris: Speaking of senior citizens keeping tab on one another, my own mother was party to a good arrangement in the old home town. There were five of her friends, all around their 80's, and there was a twice-a-day informal check on each one of the five by telephone. Until recently they were often assisted by a very knowledgeable local telephone operator.

I think this arrangement goes on in an informalized way in many areas. — Family Doctor.

Dear Doctor: A friendly habit. First of all, the live-aloners have to surrender just a little of that never-mind-me-I'll-be-all-right bit, in favor of good common sense.

Sounds like a fine thing to me. Any other readers want to report ways they have of keeping tab on Granny or Great Uncle Joe?

Confidential to It's Wedding Bells: Your matron of honor is your Girl Friday: helps you get ready ahead, waits on you hand and foot — if necessary.

She leads the procession, is by your side to remove glove, hold bouquet, produce the groom's ring (if any). Signs the register as a witness, receives with you at the reception, helps you change into going away things. Watches for any small services you need.

If you forget anything, she just better remember, that's all. And you'd better remember to thank her with a thoughtful gift.

Confidential to Requiring Aid: Is it the rumors or the difference in religion that is troubling your mother? Or does she feel she must assume a heavy - parent role, now that your father is gone?

On your side — how about your behavior? Are there any grounds at all for those tongue waggers' tales?

At 19, there ought to be some leeway for choosing your own friends. This carries with it responsibility for good sense. Make certain of your own good behavior, and you'll be in a position to ask for your mother's interest in your girl, before she condemns her.

First Woman Airline Captain Afraid of Heights; Hates Speed

LONDON (CP) — A trip to Canada or a course of flying lessons — that was the choice her parents offered Gillian Cazalet 10 years ago, just befor her 21st birthday.

She chose the flying lessons, and today Gillian, newly qualified as Britain's first woman airline captain, could make that trip to Canada under her own steam, piloting a giant VC-10 jet.

Gillian, a plump, cheerful brunette from Folkestone, Kent, who worked as a cook, children's nanny and gas-station attendant to pay for her training, amazed reporters when she confessed: "I hate speed, and I'm scared of heights."

Even the thought of going up a ladder, she said, made her "buckle at the knees."

She's much happier about piloting a giant jet at 500 miles an hour than she would be driving a fast car.

"You don't get an association of speed when you're in the air," she says.

Gillian, who gets her official captain's licence in six months, won't be handling anything so formidable as a transatlantic jet for some time, however.

She is employed as first officer by Skyways Coach Air Ltd., a small independent company specializing in cross-channel services. The first plane she will captain will be a Hawker 748 turbo-jet flying between Kent and France, a 20-minute hop.

Boy friends play second fiddle to flying in Gillian's life. She has never wanted to do anything else but fly.

Capt. Rex Tapley, Skyways chief pilot, says of her: "She is a darned good colleague. She has the ability to stay with the job, tell a good joke, drink a good pint and smoke a good fag."

Church Groups

ST. ANDREW'S WMS

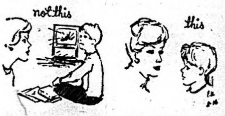
The February meeting of the afternoon auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held in the form of a potluck luncheon.

Following the luncheon, Mrs. W. Clendenan introduced Rev. Robert Jones, Picton, who showed a film on Jellore Hospital in India. He was thanked by Mrs. H. Yorke.

Mrs. H. Elvidge, president, conducted the business, and Mrs. Yorke and Mrs. D. Kane were in charge of the devotions.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Mother: "Turn that TV set off and get at your homework. I'm sick and tired of having you come home with poor grades! I knew you couldn't study and watch TV at the same time."

Mother: "Jim, it's hard for anyone to concentrate with the television on. We'll have a quiet time and no TV after dinner every school night, unless there's something very special on."

Make rules about television and homework if they seem necessary and enforce them firmly and quietly. Don't let yourself be trapped into fighting your child because you failed to enforce a needed rule.

Tensions Remain High

After 15 Years, Panmunjom Rates as Frightening Sideshow

PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP) — After a steady run of 15 years, Panmunjom rates today as a frightening sideshow.

Inside a little tin-roofed, one-storey building painted blue, a few dozen uniformed men gather for what has become a fixed ritual of hate.

Here, at a moment when tensions are stretched to the snapping point, the onlooker watching through the glassed walls of the little building suddenly sees the Cold War in microcosm and realizes with a start how fragile is the wall between peace and a shooting war.

The tension in Korea is at its most critical peak since the end of the war 15 years ago. The North Koreans have been making raids on the South, one of these a mission to assassinate President Chung Hee Park. The North Koreans also have seized the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo and its crew of 83.

In South Korea there are cries demanding an eye for an eye, on threat of retaliation, appeals for more and more arms from the Untied States.

One frightening aspect is that Panmunjom meetings seem to provoke nothing but invective.

These meetings do not represent any exchange of views. They do not produce debate nor even dialogue. The two sides are not talking to one another but at one another.

After 262 such meetings after 15 years, the communication seems less than ever. Attitudes have become frozen.

On one side of the room are 20 North Koreans in khaki-colored uniforms with golden shoulder boards, and a half dozen bored, young-looking Chinese political officers. On the other side is an equal number of representatives of the United Nations countries in the uniforms of the nations which took part in the Korean War.

The spokesman for the United Nations side at this time is Rear Admiral John V. Smith, a tall stern-looking officer whose rich baritone fills the room as he recounts his side's complaints. The North Korean spokesman is a tough soldier, Gen. Pak Chung-Kook, who manages to give the impression of constant rage.

Epithets like "bandits, killers, murderers" fall easily from the tongue on both sides. They refer to one another as "your side," or "you Communists," or "you imperialists.'

There are no smiles on either side.

The meeting at last is over. It has accomplished nothing. It was just the 262nd go-around, the 262nd public exchange of epithets, the 262nd public transmission of mutual contempt.

Experience Answer to Doubt

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

People who think the Bible is out of date should read a verse like John 3:19. There is no better description anywhere of much of the present world's plight. The statement is made that light has come into the world, but people love darkness rather than light because their deeds are evil. One of the best ways to deter crime in any neighborhood is to improve the lighting in that area.

The United States should be a near-perfect nation. It has the light of education, of democratic principles, of science, of experience, of freedom of religion, and yet its people still live under the dark shadow of a growing crime rate, great pockets of poverty, discrimination and resentment, increasing violence, and flagrant immorality. When will people begin to prefer light to darkness?

> The Uniform Sunday School lesson for February 18: "The Light Of The World," John 7 through 9.

After He had formed the earth, the first thing God did, according to the ancient Genesis story, was to create light. (Genesis 1:3) By this act, He made it possible for plants to grow and men to see. People cannot see without light. Neither can they see without eyes. Without eyes, light becomes a meaningless vibration. One of the most amazing abilities of the human body is the ability of an eye of flesh to take reflected light, and turn it into the incredible fact of sight.

Jesus used visual sight as an illustration of deeper vision. (John 8:12) Paul did the same thing when he talked about the eyes of the heart. (Ephesians 1:18 RSV) It was this vision the blind man had in mind when he said God took away his sight that his soul might see.

When it comes to understanding, nothing opens our eyes like experience. We can refute an argument, but cannot deny a happening. When Jesus healed a blind man, Jesus' enemies tried to embroil the man in a theological argument, but he took his stand on what had happened. One thing stood out like the rock of Gibraltar. He had been blind. Now he could see. All the argument in the world could not change that fact. (John 9:25)

Millions of people have been freed from a life of sin and despair by Christian faith. This is a fact that history cannot deny. The best answer to doubt is an experience. The person whose life has been changed by faith can say. "Whereas once I was plagued with guilt, now I have peace. Whereas once I was self-centred, Christ has made me loving toward God and my fellow man." This is the convincing answer to the world's cynicism and doubt.

When it comes to understanding, none is so blind as the person who will not see. Jesus implied that some of His enemies were afflicted with this kind of blindness. (John 9:40) He had come with a message to which they would not listen. His acts of mercy should have opened their eyes to His spiritual power and love, but they did not want to see.

The Christian church itself has often been guilty of refusing to see. It refused to look at the light of new knowledge revealed by Copernicus and Galileo. Today many churches refuse to see the need and want around them. They refuse to see the need for change, and so speak with a weakened voice to a changing world.

The world itself refuses to see what it does not want to see. It refuses to see the increasing brutality and irrationality of war. It refuses to see that under a banner of freedom, many people impose pornography on the wor'". It refuses to learn from experience, and to recognize that while science is subduing nature, it is human nature that most needs to be changed.

Christ's purpose was to reveal the light of God's nature and love. That is why He spoke of Himself as the light of the world. (John 8:12) But He also called His followers the light of the world. (Matthew 5:14) Just as Newton revealed the light of the world's physical laws, Christians are expected to reveal some of the light of God's concern for the world.

When God's love and purpose were being clouded by an overemphasis on legalism, God again said, "Let there be light," and Jesus came to reveal a new way. Still God says, "Let there be light." Today He is using men to bring new light through science. But men need the light of an enlightened faith in God most of all. Without that light, they stumble and fall.

U. S. Can Expect Plane Toll Over North Vietnam to Climb

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States already has lost 800 aircraft in North Vietnam and the U.S. defence department's chief scientist warns higher loss rates may lie ahead.

Dr. John S. Foster Jr. told the U.S. Senate armed services committee that increased effectiveness of Hanoi's air defences "indicates greater potential air attrition in the future."

Foster, director of defence research and engineering for the defence department, made the comments in closed-door committee hearings last week. A censored version of his statements was made public Thursday.

Only Wednesday the United States reported what apparently were the 799th and 800th aircraft it has lost over the North since 1965. They were an air force F-105 and a navy F-8 hit by ground fire in raids within a few miles of Hanoi.

Another F-105 was downed Feb. 5 by a MiG-21 northwest of Hanoi.

These have not yet been put into the official aircraft loss total which stood at 797 as of Jan. 30.

The 800, however, does not include the 227 other U.S. combat planes and 505 combat helicopters lost to hostile action in South Vietnam.

In another catch-all category the defence department list 1,702 aircraft destroyed, including 889 fixed-wing planes and 813 choppers. This category lumps together planes and helicopters wiped out in accidents, worn out or knocked out of commission due to circumstances not directly related to hostile action.

Foster told the committee North Vietnam's air defence network "is a formidable threat." Sources say North Vietnam now has slightly more than 7,000 anti-aircraft guns ranging up to 100 millimetres plus about 28 surface-to-air missiles battalions, each equipped with six missiles. The missile units are moved around among more than 200 launch sites.

The air force, which was losing more than five planes per 1,000 sorties in 1965, had reduced that to a loss rate of 2.18 per 1,000 sorties in October, 1967. By the end of last year the rate suddenly spurted to 2.43.

Girl Going Blind Visits Disneyland

ANAHEIM, Calif. (CP-AP) — Lynda Ross, 12-year-old Sudbury, Ont., area girl who is gradually going blind, flew 2,175 miles Thursday to "get a kiss from Mickey Mouse" at Disneyland.

Lynda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ross of Wanup, Ont., has suffered from Still's disease, an incurable sickness affecting children, since she was six years old. She already is blind in one eye and six operations were unable to save the failing sight of the other eye.

She weighs less than 40 pounds.

Pat McLean, past president of the Women of Moose Lodge, a service organization, launched a campaign to raise funds for the trip to California for Lynda and her mother.

"I want to get a kiss from Mickey Mouse and bring it back for my baby sister Donna," said Lynda as she alighted from the jet that brought her to Los Angeles.

The lights over Los Angeles showed up "like a Christmas tree," the excited girl said.

Lynda carried a letter to California's Gov. Ronald Reagan from Sudbury. Her mother said American Airlines offered to fly her to Sacramento to hand it to him.

The Anaheim Moose Club, host to Lynda and her mother, made plans to show her "all of Disneyland" Friday and Saturday.

Other items of interest on her week-long trip include a visit to the Queen Mary at Long Beach, a trip to the San Diego zoo and a talk with Mayor Calvin Pebley of Anaheim.

"I'm going to give him the keys to our city," said Lynda, referring to the mayor. She said that Sudbury was hoping to make Reagan an honorary citizen.

Opera Performance Nostalgic Event for Older Music Lovers

By LENNY WILLIAMSON

Staff Reporter

The Canadian Opera Company's performance Saturday night at Centennial Secondary School will be a nostalgic event for the city's older music lovers.

For many it recalls the golden days of entertainment in Belleville, when opera and theatrical road companies played regularly at the old Carman Opera House.

Belleville's "Mr. Showbusiness", George Forban, manager of the opera house from 1916 to 1925, remembers the opera companies for the high calibre of their performances.

"The Boston Opera Company was a favorite because of its top-flight artists and slick productions," he says. "Belleville was a favorite with the artists too, because of its reputation on the eastern circuit as a good show town. Entertainers were always cordially received here."

"People complain now about the price of shows," adds Mr. Forban. "But years ago they didn't object to paying $2.50 for a ticket to a good production, and in those days $6-a-week wages weren't uncommon."

Local residents welcomed artists with more than cash receipts and applause. When the great Shakespearean actress Julia Marlowe appeared in a one night stand, Belleville gave her the keys of the city.

Its geographical position accounted in part for Belleville's importance on the Ontario show circuit. Road companies, travelling on the Grand Truck Railway between dates in Montreal and Toronto, were in the habit of breaking the journey with an over-night stop in Belleville hotels. After T. S. Carman built his opera house on the southwest corner of West Bridge and Church Sts. in 1884, road shows took advantage of the opportunity to recoupe their travelling expenses by staging one-night stands.

"The house was noted on the circuit for its excellent acoustics," Mr. Forhan remembers. "When the Griffin chain leased it in 1914 it was already an old-fashioned, comfortable place. The lower floor was designed on a semicircular plan, with orchestra seats at the front, a dress circle half way back and a five-row parquette section to the rear of that. The second level held eight boxes with three seats each, and a gallery. Cheapest seats were in "the gods" at the rear of the gallery. A permanent seven-piece orchestra occupied the pit."

Contributing to the success of opera, concert and dramatic productions was a culturally sophisticated audience. Their critical faculties sharpened by years of locally produced oratorios, choir participation and church-sponsored theatricals, Bellevillians of 50 to 75 years ago were perceptive theatre goers. Grand opera programs of those days carried excerpts from the scores so that the audience could read the music as the artists sang.

Audience size for live theatre has remained static over the years, despite the tripling of the city's population. The opera house seated 830; Centennial auditorium holds 807.

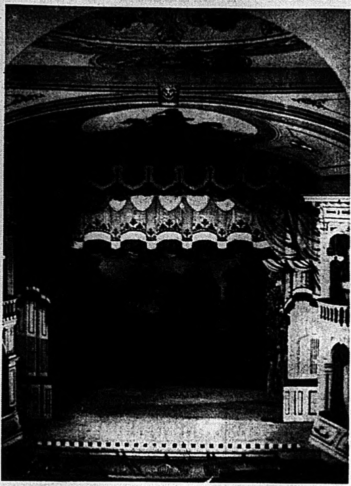
Productions booked into the opera house spanned the entertainment spectrum. In 1890 for instance, the top price of $1 was charged for presentations of Gound's Faust, a folk music concert sung by an eight-member chorus from the Swedish Royal Opera Company, a ballet performance with 70 dancers, the Ladies' Schubert Quartette of Boston, and John Strauss' light opera Gypsy Baron.

Prices dropped to 75 cents for the best seats at Victorian melodramas, presented by repertory companies engaged in week-long runs.

Local talent shared a spot in the limelight of the early calcium lamps. Country Luck, "a beautiful idyl of New England domestic life, written by George A. Dame of this city in three acts," earned rave reviews in local papers. The Women's Christian Association furnished three rooms at the hospital with the proceeds of a two-night run of Temple of Fame. Written, directed and acted by Belleville women, it depicted "notable events in the lives of famous women from Sappho to Queen Victoria," with a heavy suffragette over-tone.

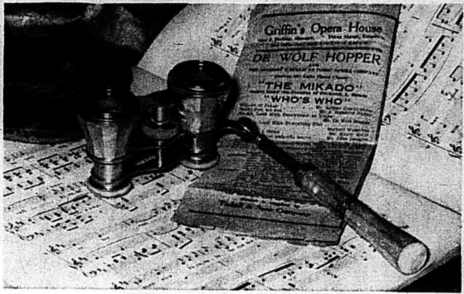
For the 1890 Christmas season, and following hard on the heels of a temperance crusader, came the Creole Burlesque Company, with: "Creolean Charmers! Egyptian Enchantress! 30 Louisiana Creole Queens on stage at once; Scenes of Oriental pleasures!"

Burlesque was out and silent movies in when Griffin's management took over. Decline of vaudeville and development of talking movies permanently rang down the curtain of the opera house — and an era — in 1925.



Showcase for Talent

The stage of the Carmen Opera House, shown here in a photograph taken shortly after its opening in 1884, was flanked with velvet-draped boxes for the town's aristocracy.



Mementos of an Era

Essential feminine accessories on theatre night: French ormulu and mother of pearl opera glasses purchased in Belleville in 1889, a program and the musical score. De Wolf Hopper, manager and leading actor in the Mikado company whose program is shown above, was the husband of columnist Hedda Hopper and father of Dennis Hopper, who plays the detective on the Perry Mason TV series.

'Don Pasquale' Comes to Belleville

A single piano was one of the keys to success for the touring Canadian Opera Company.

Those days are gone forever — and productions are even more successful.

When the company brings back opera to Belleville tomorrow night, the piano will be replaced by an orchestra.

Bellevillians tomorrow will hear it to good advantage at Centennial Secondary School in Don Pasquale — one of the most lilting scores in opera.

The orchestra also sounds the knell of a whole touring era for the company. The piano often created problems — sometimes even before the curtain went up.

In one Northern Ontario town, the piano arrived hopelessly out of tune. The only available tuner was doing his rounds — miles away.

The company tour manager tried his hand—with notable success. All until the second act, when the piano went hopelessly tuneless and cast and audience gritted teeth to ignore the off-color notes.

In another Ontario performance the movers arrived even before the opera ended. In intermission, they began carrying the piano out of the auditorium. Unconvinced by the company manager, they finally had to be forcibly ejected.

Allocation of more funds from the Canada Council has made possible an orchestra for this year's tour.

Through the tours, the Canadian Opera is offering one of North America's few repertory training grounds.

It has paid large dividends for Canadian artistry. Today, such tour veterans as Jon Vickers and Victor Braun are famed in the European birthplaces of opera.

The Don Pasquale production here includes four company veterans: Jan Rubes, in the title role; Alexander Grey, Sheila Piercey and Phil Stark.

Tickets are on sale at Thomas Cigar Store.

Practice Range Completed

Sound of Gunfire Heard from City Police Headquarters

By BARRY GRILLS

Staff Reporter

The sound of gunfire can now be heard in the Belleville City Police station on Campbell Street. The reason is the "rough" completion of the force's new shooting range.

The range, located in the basement of the building, was begun in October of last year although it was planned much earlier.

In January the range became suitable for constables and sergeants to practise.

Says Deputy Chief Harold Reid, "there's still more to be done but it is in operating condition."

Possible additions to the "rough stage" could be batten which would serve as insulation for the roar of the guns.

Another aid in the range could be an automatic target moving and removing apparatus to save time and prevent shooters from going down the range to change targets.

All of the work was given voluntarily by members of the police force who received the whole - hearted support of the Board of Police Commissioners concerning the project.

At present the range consists of a shooting table 50 feet from the targets. A boiler plate, three eighth's of an inch thick, stands behind the targets.

The purpose of the plate is to deflect bullets down to a sand trap on the floor thus preventing the danger of richocheting as the slugs penetrate the targets.

The 5 - foot distance from the table to the targets is the recognized footage of the National Revolver Association.

Police use the revolvers they are issued while shooting on the range, .38 calibre colts and Smith and Wessons.

The police force in Belleville hope to appoint a shooting expert to train the novice officers on the force.

Policemen will be taught, or in most cases, have their memories refreshed in the practise of revolver handling and safety.

"It's essential," says Deputy Reid, "that officers be taught the value of their firearm. All ranks will be taking firearm training."

"They'll have to learn the legal and civilized aspects of it as well."

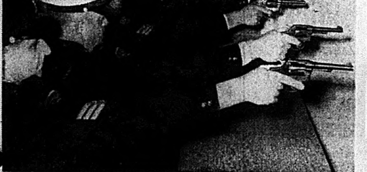
The Belleville department hopes later on that shoots will be held here at their station.

Deputy Chief Reid beams proudly when he speaks of the trophies brought back from other shoots such as the ones held in Peterborough.

As a matter of fact part of the firearm training consists of shoots in other cities.

As well, local competitions with local handgun clubs will be held in the new range in the future.

Not only will the range be used but, according to Chief Douglas T. Crosbie, training may take place outside to practise shooting from behind cars and other obstacles.



Police Firing Line

Four Belleville policemen, Sgt. Keith Wright, Const. Thomas Stone, Sgt. Thomas Davidson and Const. Barry Titterson practise shooting at the new silhouette targets added to their firing range.

Czechs Topple Russians 5-4; Canada Needs Win Saturday

GRENOBLE, France (CP) — It was all Canada for a couple of hours at the Olympic Stade de Glace.

Thursday, after the red-sweatered Canadian hockey team had outskated and outscored the mobile, ranging Swedes 3-0, they rolled the blue carpets across the ice, hoisted the Maple Leaf flag and gave Nancy Greene her gold medal for the giant slalom.

Then Czechoslovakia toppled Russia 5-4 in the biggest upset in years. Czech goalie Vlado Dzurila was pounded to the ice by team-mates and fans when the final siren sounded and the crowd of more than 11,000 spilled onto the ice.

The Czechs struck for three goals in the first period and fought fiercely to extend their lead to 5-2 with about four minutes left. The Russians scored twice in a little more than a minute and pulled their goalie in a vain attempt to salvage a tie.

The sensational upset broke off a Russian undefeated streak at 38 games in Olympic and world championship hockey and threw the race for Olympic honors wide open.

Czechoslovakia is in line for its first Olympic or world title since 1949.

Canada, Russia and Czechoslovakia are tied for first place with five wins, one defeat and 10 points apiece.

The gold, silver and bronze medals for the first three places will be decided Saturday when Czechoslovakia meets Sweden at 11:30 a.m. EST and Canada plays Russia at 2:30 p.m.

Ties in standings between two teams are broken by picking the winner of the game between the countries involved in the tie.

In the event of a three-way tie for first place Saturday, goal spread—goals allowed subtracted from goals scored—would be used. That would happen if both of Saturday's games end in ties. Russia would win the gold with the highest goal spread with 33. Canada would get the silver and Czechoslovakia the bronze.

In the other championship game Thursday, the United States won its second game on a pair of goals in the last 61 seconds against East Germany. Larry Stordahl and Paul Hurley scored them in the 6-4 victory.

Ken Broderick was the mainstay of Canada's win over Sweden, reversing a 6-0 loss to the Swedes in last year's world tournament.

Russia - Canada Game Televised

TORONTO (CP) — The CBC announced Thursday that it will televise the Canada-Russia hockey game Saturday from the Winter Olympics in Grenoble, France. It will be carried live via satellite on the national network beginning at 3 p.m. EST.

Marsh Johnston and Gerry Pinder made it 2-0 in the first period and Dan O'Shea cemented the win with a third-period goal. Broderick had 27 saves, many of them difficult.

Coach Jackie McLeod, concerned about the officiating of Czech referee Jan Korinek, who called six of eight penalties against the Canadian team, said:

"It's the first time I've complained like this about the refereeing at this tournament, but it was just too much tonight."

Of the game with Sweden, McLeod said he changed his pre-game plan that called for one deep forechecker against breakaways by the smooth Swedish skaters.

He reverted to checkers into the Swedes end.

"We wanted to tie them up in their own end, get them confused a bit," he said. "It worked. . . .

"The system doesn't produce a lot of goals, but it got us more than we needed against the Swedes and won us a big one," McLeod said.

Czech coach Josef Tittner had his own plan to beat the Russians.

"We started out with a plan to try to break the Russians' momentum," he said. "Once we saw the Russians scrambling to catch up, we knew we had no reason to change our tactics.

"For the first time, we managed to keep them off balance for the whole game."

Frantisek Sevcik, Pejr Hejma and Jan Havel gave the Czechs a 3-1 lead in the first period. Josef Golonka scored in the second period, and Jeroslav Jirik got the one that proved to be the winner just after the 16-minute mark of the third period.

Boris Mayorov with two and Victor Blinov and Victor Polupanov were the Russian scorers.

Ddurila stopped 27 shots including 10 in the hectic final 20 minutes. Konovalenko saved on 21.

It was only the second time Czechoslovakia has ever beaten Russia in world championship competition, including the Olympics. The Czechs turned the trick in 1961 at Geneva.

Nancy Reaches Personal Goal With Spectaclar Slalom Win

CHAMROUSSE, France (CP) — Nancy Greene set her mind on the beautiful slopes of this French village last spring.

There were two things she wanted—She told an interviewer—the 1967 World Cup and the 1968 gold medal in skiing.

She won the World Cup last year—the hard way by spotting her nearest rivals an advantage by returning home to Canada to compete there rather than staying in the European meets where she could pick up points.

Today she won the gold medal in the giant slalom in the winter Olympics in a most spectacular fashion. In turning in an incredible time of one minutes, 51.97 seconds she gave Canada its first gold medal and became the first Canadian to win two medals in skiing in the Olympics. She had won the silver in the slalom Tuesday.

After today's race she said she was staggered, determined and not surprised, and anybody who has met the 24-year-old tiger of a competitor from Rossland, B.C., could not be surprised by her apparently contradictory comments.

The pretty dark-haired girl with an urchin-cut hairstyle has maturity to know her worth but is humble enough to be surprised and joyous.

After her amazing victory she had all these things to say to reporters between gasps:

"I was staggered when I heard the time. I just kept attacking in a bid to get that gold. I was not in the least bit nervous after a fine night's sleep and I felt good before the race.

"I was determined to win or fall doing it.

"I was quite confident. I had won nine international giant slaloms the last two years, and I would have been disappointed if I had not von here.

"It was not a matter of luck—I don't think there is luck in racing. It was mostly psychology. I was too intense. I learned to relax.

She said the race was probably the greatest of her career.

"I decided just to attack the course. So I worked and I skied and worked so that I didn't have to think of anything else. I really wanted to win it."

Her remarkable time over the other competitors? "I only know I skied hard and now am very happy."

But for the Ottawa-born student at Notre Dame University in Nelson, B.C., there must always be an aim.

Difficulties can be overcome—as they were for a comparatively poor girl who worked her way up to a world-class skier and for a girl who put patriotism first in her quest for a World Cup.

She says now she wants to hold on to that World Cup although she is down in the international standings because of a pre-Olympic ankle injury. Her Olympic victories put her higher up on the standings but she still has a way to go.

"I'm thrilled by my Olympic win but for me and most of the skiers the most important thing is the World Cup on results throughout the season. That's the thing that really proves who is the best skier."

Nancy's determination has always been there—hidden behind a happy disposition that has made her a darling of the skiing world.

One of six children of a skiing family she had to work hard to reach her present status. She passed university entrance examinations then had to work as a secretary to earn money for skiing and studying. She returned a $5,000 scholarship because it would affect her amateur status.

She worked for five years before she could enter Notre Dame—the school that most of Canada's Olympic skiing team attends.

. . . She Also Likes Boys

CHAMROUSE, France (AP) — Skiing may be the first love of Canada's Nancy Greene but it's not her life.

"I also like boys," she confessed Thursday after winning an Olympic gold medal.

"I am interested in world affairs and some day I would like to do something to help promote sports in Canada. I have normal interests including boys—but right now I want to ski."

"I want to ski as long as I can."

Grand Slam Attempt Saturday

Killy's Eyes Blue Says Rabbit-Furred Hostess

GRENOBLE, France (AP) —France's Jean-Claude Killy goes after Alpine skiing's grand slam in the Winter Olympics at Chamrousse Saturday, and what do you think everybody's talking about?

The color of his eyes and the cut of his hair.

"They're blue," insisted a rabbit-furred bunny hostess in the restaurant bar of the Centre de Presse.

"They're green, I saw them," argued an Austrian visitor, blonde hair falling down to her shoulders.

"I really don't like his haircut," said a middle-aged American woman, sipping demi-tasse coffee in another corner. "It makes him look shaggy."

"Oh, it's just mod," said a pretty French mademoiselle. "I love it. It makes him sexy."

"I like that scar across his eye," somone else said. "What a gorgeous hunk of man he is."

Jean-Claude, Le Superman, appears to bask in such attention. He is always smiling. He never brushes off an admirer—whether it's a stooped old man, a pretty girl or a wide-eyed tyke.

He is something of a ham, this French idol who may be the greatest of all Alpine skiers. When cameras are focused on him—and they usually are—Jean-Claude brushes a hand over his disheveled hair and turns his better side to the lens. He flashes his gleaming white teeth.

He already has won the gold medals in the downhill and giant slalom. Now he is shooting for the special slalom. If he makes it—and there's not a doubt in all Gaul—he will duplicate the fantastic sweep of Austria's Tony Sailer in Cortina D'Ampesso, Italy, in 1956.

At 24, Killy is four years older than Sailer was when the latter pulled off his slam.

"Killy at this stage is more experienced than Sailer was in 1956," said one expert observer.

"Sailer was better," argued a spokesman for the opposition. "He was big for a racer but like a cat and well co-ordinated. The most precise racer I've ever seen.'

Killy is not very precise. He hasn't much style. He breaks every rule of form in the book but just manages to get down faster than anybody. They call it Hara-Kiri.

But Jean-Claude's unorthodoxy doesn't stop on the ski slopes. He carries it into his public and private life. That's why the French love him.

They consider him a devil and a rake.

Currently he is being sued by an Austrian hair-dresser who contends he fathered her son five years ago. Jean-Claude has denied paternity, but little else.

He started skiing when he was about five. He got the notion after sliding off the roof of his father's chalet in Val d'Isere.

Jean-Claude got tired of school and quit when he was 16. He spent time in the military service. He started driving racing cars. He streaked down hills on a motorcycle at full throttle.

Once he drove an automobile into the lobby of a hotel.

He has spurned movie offers because "I don't like the life."

He just kept skiing and flashing those green eyes.

"They're blue."

"No, they're green."

Oh, well, how can you tell speeding down a hillside at 60 miles an hour.

Norway Tops Gold Medal List

South Africa Problem Crops Up at Olympics

GRENOBLE, France (CP) — Nancy Greene placed Canada on the gold standard at the 10th Winter Olympic Games Thursday and Canada's national hockey team whopped Sweden 3-0.

Three gold medals will be awarded today—in men's 1,500-metre speed skating, the women's 15-kilometre cross-country ski relay and men's figure skating singles.

Robert Hodges of Edmonton, who owns the Canadian 1,500-metre record of 2:15.7, and Peter Williamson of Winnipeg were entered in the speed-skating event.

Austria's Wolfgang Schwarz was leading the figure skaters going into today's free-skating program, which counts as 40 per cent of the total, with Timothy Wood of the U.S. second.

Thursday's gold medal winners, in addition to Canada's Miss Greene, were Norway's Fred Anton Maier in the men's 5,000-metre speed-skating, the Russian biathlon relay team, Italy's Erika Lechner in women's luge singles and Austria's Manfred Schmid in men's luge singles.

Norway had the most gold medals—four—and Russia, France and Italy had three each. Canada's only medals were those captured by five-foot-four, 125-pound Nancy, who earlier grabbed the second-place gold in the slalom.

In team standings, with 25 of the 35 medal events completed, Russia had a slender 78 to 75½ margin over Norway. France had 60 points, Austria 55, Finland 49, and Canada 15—all won by Nancy—for a tie for 14th place with Poland.

In hockey, Canada, Russia and Czechoslovakia were tied at the top, each with five victories and one loss, following Thursday's play.

The South African problem cropped up again when the International Olympic Committee announced that a postal vote of its members had approved that country's re-entry to the Olympics from which it was barred in 1963 because of alleged racial discrimination in sport, linked with the country's official apartheid policy.

The vote, said to have been 37 to 28, favored letting South Africa compete in the Summer Games in Mexico in October.

Norway Wins Cross Country Relay Medal

GRENOBLE (CP) — Norway won the 15-kilometre — 9.3-mile — women's cross-country relay skiing gold medal today well ahead of Sweden and Russia. There were no Canadian entries.

Norway's Inger Aufles, Babben Enger Damon and Berit Moerdre, each racing five kilometres, won the women's relay for the first time for their country in 57:30.0.

Sweden took the silver in 57:51.0 and Russia the bronze, timed in 58:13.6. The Russians were defending champions.

Nancy, Nancy, Nancy

GRENOBLE, France (CP)—A chant of "Nancy, Nancy, Nancy" and O Canada rang through the Stade de Glace Thursday night as Nancy Greene received her skiing gold medal as Olympic women's giant slalom champion.

The medal presentation ceremony came immediately following Canada's 3-0 hockey victory over Sweden. The entire Canadian team, still in their sweat-soaked uniforms, lined the bench beside the ice, waved their sticks aloft and led the crowd of 8,000 in one prolonged scream for the 24-year-old skier from Rossland, B.C.

Nancy entered the arena wearing a three-quarter length white coat, which she removed to mount the victory stand, clad in white-colored sweater and red maple leaves on a white background, burgundy-colored slacks and fur apres-ski boots.

The mass-circulation Paris newspaper France-Soir, under a huge victory picture of the petite Canadian skier, says:

"Today, free at last of the emotion which has too often plagued her, she was superb, dazzling."

In London, The Evening Standard said she skied "superbly" and The Evening News called her performance "fantastic."

Italians Lead Bobsledders At Halfway Mark

ALPE D'HUEZ, France (CP) — Eugenio Monti of Italy zoomed down the treacherous curves of the Olympic bobsled run today to take the lead at the halfway mark of the four-man event, cut to two heats.

Monti, winner of the gold medal in the two-man race last Sunday, teamed up with Roberto Zandonella, Mario Armano and brakeman Lucian de Paolis to flash down the 1,500-metre course in one minute, 9.84 seconds. Nineteen sleds made the run.

Second-fastest in the first run was Austria's No. 1 bob piloted by Erwin Thaler, who came down in 1:10.08.

Rangers Drub Minnesota 6-2; Montreal Blanks Red Wings 2-0

By STERLING TAYLOR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Now that diminutive Camille Henry is well on the way to recovery from a painful back injury, New York Ranger opponents around the National Hockey League are starting to feel the pain of it all.

The 150-pound centre star, who came out of a year's retirement this season and was called up from the minors by the Rangers Dec. 31, scored once and set up three others Thursday night as New York drubbed Minnesota North Stars 6-2.

In the only other scheduled NHL game, Montreal Canadiens continued their winning ways as goalie Rogatien Vachon blanked Detroit Red Wings 2-0.

It was one of the biggest nights the 35-year-old Quebec City native has had since quitting hockey in 1966 because he couldn't get enough ice time in the NHL.

But Camille was fighting off racking pains in his back while wearing a spinal brace and the Rangers were forced to remove him from the regular lineup. The fact that Rangers couldn't afford the luxury of a power-play scoring specialist and that Chicago could see Henry change sweaters late in the 1964-65 season.

He underwent surgery for the spinal injury at the end of the 1964-65 season, but never returned to the Hawks, announcing his retirement at the start of the 1966-67 schedule after a season with St. Louis in the Central Pro League.

Coach Emile Francis of the Rangers picked him up last summer.

"I don't know why someone else didn't go after him," Francis said earlier this season. "Everyone knew the only thing he really wanted was a chance to play hockey."

Henry returned to the minor leagues for conditioning last autumn, was called up to the parent Rangers New Years Eve, and has played on a regular line since Jan. 10 when Vic Hadfield suffered a shoulder separation.

His linemates, Jean Ratelle and Rod Gilbert, also scored four points each Thursday night. Ratelle got two goals and Gilbert got one.

Henry, Ratelle and Gilbert have more than their French-Canadian heritage in common. Both Ratelle and Gilbert know the pain of playing with a spinal injury.

All three have undergone spinal fusion at least once.

Gilbert's output shot him into third place in the NHL scoring race with 22 goals and 36 assists. Ratelle stands sixth with 20 goals and 35 assists.

Henry, meanwhile, has 14 points in 20 games—six goals and eight assists.

Bob Nevin and Reg Fleming scored the other New York goals as the Rangers climbed within one point of third place in the Eastern Division with 61 points, six more than Toronto Maple Leafs and 11 ahead of Detroit.

Wayne Connelly and Bob McCord were the Minnesota marksmen.

Connelly gave the North Stars an early 1-0 lead and McCord put Minnesota ahead 2-1 before the halfway mark of the first period but the Rangers took over with five unanswered goals.

Henri Richard and Claude Provost scored the Montreal goals as the Canadiens took an eight-point lead over second-place Chicago in the East.

It was the sixth straight victory for the Canadiens, who have lost only once in their last 22 starts.

It was also a costly defeat for the Red Wings, who lost Paul Henderson and Dean Prentice through injuries. Henderson, struck on the head by a puck, left the game early in the first period, and Prentice suffered a possible shoulder separation and was taken to hospital.

Philadelphia Flyers, leading the Western Division, travel to Los Angeles for a game against the Kings tonight, while St. Louis Blues visit Pittsburgh Penguins.

Pinch Hitting

What does the future hold for the 10-team Ontario Senior "A" hockey league?

According to a recent series by Toronto Globe and Mailer Phillip Dechman, "Senior Hockey is foundering on the unruly depths of financial ruin," but it will likely survive on the strength of such items as "beer, bingo and booster clubs," professional help and club directors willing to lose money consistently.

Dechman apparently gathered his information by talking to many of the league's general managers and club presidents.

One of his articles says "Galt Hornets are the only senior club consistently showing a profit," and lists the reasons as being beer, free tickets, an active executive that is busy 12 months of the year, strong promotion of season tickets and the selling of sweaters advertising a booster club — and the fact that the team has been fighting for the league leadership for the last two seasons.

,'Our season tickets are up to 600 from 500 last year and average attendance has risen by about 200, to 1,400," Hornet president Wes Lillie is quoted.

That beer talk stems from a nearby lounge operated by the hockey club on game nights. It's a busy spot.

And while the Pepsi have not talked quite so freely about their "extra activities" in Orillia, it is hardly a secret what is happening when the public address announcer reminds fans that "a booster club meeting will be held in the Arts and Craft room under the seats," between every period of every game.

Strangers to the rink wonder what is happening but soon get carried along with everyone else. You never saw so many "arts and crafts" followers in your life.

The Pepsi are winding up their second out-of-the-playoff season in succession and admit to losing money but won't say they will fold.

Orillia president Bill McGill says "20 directors are willing to throw in $100 each when bills pile up," and claims his club receives "the best co-operation in the league from the local Community Centre board."

Mo-Hawk manager Bob Temple is quoted as saying this year's average attendance "is 1,200, down only slightly from last year." Dechman says "the Belleville franchise is held by a private company, with shares belonging to 15 members of a committee of local business and professional men who brought senior hockey back last season."

He continues: "The business organization has proved successful. There has been no need for sweater advertising ,and local industries have been willing to employ players. Temple feels the future is good in Belleville."

In Toronto, Marlboro G-M. Joe Kane claims, "If the Gardens (Maple Leaf) didn't want the senior team, it was finished in Toronto," after switching from North York.

Collingwood has the loop's smallest population from which to draw, 8,200, but according to team president Dick Hales, "We will continue to operate despite losing money every year. Hockey is too important in Collingwood. Even if all our executive resigned we would still have a team. The players take part, even sitting in on executive meetings." Community spirit, hard work and dedication tell the story.

Oakville has been in trouble gatewise for two years and the Oaks are the most-often mentioned when talk turns to folding.

Kingston bossman Gord Leach now says "the Aces finished last season with a profit of $7 after going to the Allen Cup semi-finals." It seems only a few short months ago that the same Leach publicized a team deficit in the thousands when a drive was on to get fans to help finance this season's operations. He claims the Aces are averaging 800 fans a game this season, "up about 50 per cent from last year" but the writer wonders if "a net loss of $400 per game will continue."

Guelph claims average attendance of 1,000 with "no panic" this year at least. "We would have moved to Brantford last year if their arena had been finished," says president John Prigione. Brantford, with a new area ,is considered by most league supporters as a good bet for a future franchise.

Dechman writes: "The suggestion in many quarters is that senior hockey, as now set up, cannot continue indefinitely. One proposed solution is a tie-in with professional hockey. The senors could use the financial backing. In return, they would offer a training ground for younger players without exposure to the draft."

Boynton Leads in Phoenix Open

PHOENIX. Ariz. (AP) — Professional Golfer Association officials are red faced about Frank Boynton, the leader going into today's second round of the $100,000 Phoenix Open. They hadn't bothered to put his name in this year's official PGA player's catalog.

Boynton, 31, a club pro from Cleveland, Ohio, for the last four years after three on the tour, took the PGA by surprise.

"Can't you add a supplement," Boynton said jokingly after shooting a five-under par 66 over the 6,765-yard, par-71 Phoenix Country Club course in Thursday's first round. He led a strong assault on par over the wet course, as 66 players equalled or bettered 71.

Bunched one stroke behind Boynton with four-under-par 67 were Tommy Shaw, Marty Fleckman, Jack Montgomery and George Knudson of Toronto.

Defending champion Julius Boros shot a one-under-par 70 while pre-tourney favorite Jack Nicklaus, his game at admittedly flat, had a four-over-par 75.

Thirty-seven golfers were bunched at between 68 and 70, as the pros were allowed to play winter rules because of the soggy fairways. This allowed them to rifle their approach shots off tees.

The result was a happy succession of accurate iron and fairway wood shots.

The low 70 scores and ties after today's round qualify for the final 36 holes and a chance at the $20,000 top money.

Semi-comatose Patient May Hear

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it possible for a person in a coma to hear other people talking?

My dear father had surgery for brain cancer and after a few weeks lapsed into a coma and never came out of it.

A friend told me to be very careful of what I said while in his room because he could hear me very clearly. Is this true? — Mrs. D. A. M.

I hope you followed the friend's advice — not because I agree that he could "hear you very clearly," but because he may have heard something.

It is not always easy to know whether a very ill patient is really in a coma, or is simply exhausted, too tired to speak or move.

In a true coma, a person cannot hear anything. But in a semi-comatose state, he may hear something. This is known from a few individuals who have reached such desperate straits but then recovered. It does not, of course, happen very often.

In your father's case, considering the nature of his illness, I think it most unlikely that he heard anything.

Yet because coma - like states can occasionally let a patient hear something the only human thing to do is to say nothing that you would not willingly have such a patient hear. Most of the time it will be a needless precaution, but when in doubt, why take a chance?

This may be a good time to mention a somewhat related point. A patient may be paralyzed and unable to speak, and sometimes heedless, unthinking people assume this to mean that the person cannot hear, either.

In consequence, thoughtless and cruel remarks are made in the presence of such patients. I have in fact, had occasional letters from patients whose vocal cords were paralyzed. They suffer not only because of remarks made in their presence, but because those around them sometimes jump to the faulty conclusion that because the patient cannot talk, he can't think, either.

When a patient cannot write in addition to being unable to talk — I hate to think of the pain some must endure from "remarks."

One of the most heart-wrenching experiences I can recall was tragic but leavened with great love. A young boy, attacked by a rare but hopeless disease, gradually lost hearing, speech and sight, and could move his fingers only a little.

As this condition approached gradually, his mother rigged an electric buzzer and a telegraph key, and they learned the radio code. The boy could move enough to spell out dots and dashes with the key and he could feel them in the vibration of the buzzer.

And so she kept him company until he died.

Dear Dr. Molner: Does smoking have any bad effect on Meniere's disease? Does it contribute to more frequent attacks of dizziness? — E. M.

One of the effects of smoking, well known medically but not sufficiently publicized generally, is a spasm of the small arteries. This can produce dizziness. So your answer is that anyone with Meniere's disease should stop smoking.

Note to G. S.: No, you needn't go to New York for such surgery. There are plenty of plastic surgeons in your own city doing exactly the type of "face lifting" you inquire about, removing the wrinkling which makes you look older than you really are. It can be important in the business world. Your regular physician can refer you to such a surgeon. So can a hospital.

Mitchell Sharp's Recent Tax Increases Draw Opposition Fire

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition members subjected Finance Minister Sharp to a day-long barrage Thursday on his handling of the economy and demonstrated again that nobody likes taxes.

Adjectives such as "pernicious" and "miserable" were thrown at the five-per-cent temporary increase in personal income tax and the speed-up in collections of corporation taxes.

Mr. Sharp sat quietly for the most part as the House debated his bill to implement the tax changes, which were outlined in last fall's mini-budget and have already been put into effect.

NDP members carried most of the debate and accused Mr. Sharp of siding with the financial establishment and picking on the ordinary worker.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) said the speed-up in collection of corporation taxes is "just as nefarious and perhaps even more pernicious so far as the Canadian economy is concerned" as the personal income tax increase.

Henri Latulippe (Creditiste—Compton-Frontenac) said Mr. Sharp's taxes were doing away with the middle class. He said there is an "anti-social, anti-human" imbalance in the tax system that would cause a revolution unless there was reform.

The bill, last of three arising from the mini-budget, did not get final approval. But the House nevertheless will turn today to second reading of the government bill to increase unemployment insurance contributions and benefits.

During private member's hour, the Commons gave second reading—approval in principle—to a bill permitting Bell Telephone Co. to increase its authorized capital to $1,750,000,000 from $1,000,000,000 and to issue preferred shares.

And in the Senate, second reading was given to the government's broadcasting bill after the CBC had taken another round of criticism.

Five NDP members shared in that party's assault on the tax measure, led by Ed Schreyer (Springfield), who said the government had chosen to bring in the "miserable" tax increase instead of correcting some of the basic unfairness in the tax system as disclosed in the Carter report.

John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto Broadview) tried unsuccessfully to introduce an amendment to remove a $600 ceiling on the surcharge.

And Bud Germa (NDP—Sudbury) said the present $1,000 basic income tax exemption should be doubled for single men and quadrupled for married men.

Fifteen Notices of Motion Tabled by Opposition

TORONTO (CP) — It was only the second day back at work for the Ontario legislature Thursday, but it was just like old times.

The two opposition parties let the government know that they have plenty of proposals to make in the next few weeks.

Fifteen notices were filed by Liberal and New Democratic Party members of the house, indicating they will propose action in fields ranging from northern development to car insurance.

Notices of motion filed included one by Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury) which says that the government "has neglected the proper development of the northern part of the province."

James Bullbrook (L—Sarnia) plans to seek a system of car insurance based on the principle of compensation without fault, and Walter Pitman (NDP—Peterborough) proposes a resolution calling for payments to victims of violent crimes.

NDP Leader Donald MacDonald said the house should declare itself in favor of Ontario's participation "at the earliest possible date" in the federal medical care plan.

A resolution by Pat Reid (L—Rainy River) calls on the government to investigate the extent of the shortage of doctors in Ontario and provide a plan to deal with the problem.

James Trotter (L—Toronto Parkdale) plans a motion calling for the education department to subsidize English classes for immigrant children in public schools.

Gordon Says Cabinets Require Instruction

OTTAWA (CP) — Walter Gordon said it with a smile, but he meant every word.

The public and the federal cabinet need an education about foreign ownership of industry, said the Privy Council president.

"Both are necessary."

A step to educate the public came Thursday when the government released the Watkins report on foreign ownership. The document expressed concern about Canada's fading ability to make its own important decisions free of American influence.

It charted a course of aggressive government action on disclosure, trade, corporate law and taxation.

Oshawa Man Pleads Guilty To Break-ins

BRIGHTON — A 25-year-old Oshawa man has been sentenced to three months' in the Ontario Reformatory for his part in four area breakins.

Gary Thomas Ibbotson pleaded guilty to the charges in court here Wednesday before Magistrate R. B. Batten.

Provincial police from Brighton charged Ibbotson in connection with the Dec. 17 breakin at the Pines Motel and Lounge north of here on Highway 33.

Owner Harry Long reported $150 in cash, and $150 in liquor missing after the incident. A box of jewellery taken from the Long residence was recovered by police in nearby bushes.

Police recovered $55 in cash, and $30 worth of liquor.

Ibbotson also pleaded guilty to a Dec. 5 breakin at Trent Valley Fruit Supply on Highway 33 and a fourth breakin and theft of a company safe from the Canadian Flight Equipment plant on Sidney St. in Trenton Dec. 28.

Police say they recovered some clothing stolen from the Highway 33 premises. The company safe was recovered by Trenton police the day the theft was reported. It had not contained any cash when stolen, police said.

George McCoy, 19, of Bayside also pleaded guilty to the Pines Motel and Trent Valley Fruit Supply breakins

He was sentenced to nine months in reformatory on these and six additional charges of theft from Trenton coinwashes during December and January.

Strictly Personal

Performers Are Insecure

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I was watching a nighttime TV performer, who makes about a million dollars a year, do a little monologue the other evening, and whenever a joke fell flat, he would wince with painful embarrassment. When he got a big laugh, he would grin, strut, and preen himself.

Performers are notoriously the most insecure people in the world, no matter how much fame, money, or adulation they may be receiving at any given moment. And their massive insecurity should teach us something about the nature of personal security in our own lives.

Why are they so perpetually insecure, even (and especially) when they are on top of the heap? Because their sense of worth does not reside within themselves, but depends upon the approval of the outside world. More than any other group, performers must judge their own value by the value that outsiders place upon them, from year to year.

But the human organism cannot depend for its stability and equilibrium upon forces it is unable to control; in order to achieve any measure of internal security, it must have its centre of emotional gravity rooted within itself. Letting others perpetually decide if we are "good" or "bad" is the road that leads to dementia, drink, drugs, and eventual dissolution of the personality.

Of course, all of us are somewhat responsive to public opinion, and we should be, as a corrective or self-analytic tool. But public opinion must be weighed against our own deepest self -evaluation, and not made the sole judge and measure of our worth.

And this, of course, is one profound difference between the artist and the mere performer. The true artist likes public approval, but does not live by it; he persists in his work, through years of neglect or even contempt, because he possesses a firm sense of identity and a hard-core belief in the value of what he is doing.

The performer, on the other hand, is the creature of his material, and often of his publicity. He is only as good as his last picture, his last record, his last public appearance. The thread of continuity can be snapped at any moment, if public taste changes or his material fails to please. Rather than being the master of his medium, as the artist is, he is the desperate slave to it.

Einstein once advised young people: "Try not to become a man of success, but rather to become a man of value." A man of value hopes to win success by it, but is not crucially dependent upon success; a man of mere success is always haunted by the fear of losing success, whereupon he loses all. No human being can live comfortably with himself upon such precarious terms.

Fit for Citizenship Theme Of This Year's Scout Week

OTTAWA (CP) — The theme this year of Boy Scout Week, Feb. 18-24, is Fit for Citizenship combined with Plus One.

Plus One for scouting in 1968 stands for extra effort that can mean a substantial difference in the degree of success for an activity undertaken or an event planned by Canada's 330,000 scouts.

Fit for Citizenship was the theme of last year's special week but it was decided to carry it forward to 1968 because the theme was not prominent throughout 1967 due to centennial celebrations.

The Plus One emphasis on citizenship during Boy Scout Week is to make it more than an academic exercise, said a scout official.

Scouts are urged to visit city councils and legislative assemblies, conduct debates on topical issues and help new arrivals in the community.

The week will also focus attention on the first major change in the scouting program since 1907.

Last October, the national executive committee of the Boy Scouts of Canada approved the new "boy-centred" program which will be introduced next September.

It will allow 70,000 scouts aged 11 to 14 years new scope to choose their activities. The program gives scouts an opportunity to share the leadership of troops and patrols.

It also introduces a multiple-stage and greatly-expanded badge and award scheme in which boys are relatively free to choose and work toward badges and awards at their own level of competence.

"In a nutshell," a scout official said, "no longer are boys forced to adapt to a program: instead it is adaptable to the needs and interests of the boys."

Scout headquarters here plan a number of provincial workshops to introduce the program to adults. A 15-minute film giving the program in capsule form will be made available for distribution.

Three jamborees are planned for August.

An Ontario amboree will be held Aug. 17-24 at Kelso Conservation Area near Toronto.

About 700 delegates are expected to attend an Arctic jamboree at Yellowknife Aug. 3-10, half of them from the Yukon and the Northwest Territories and the others from all 10 provinces.

A national sailing regatta will take place at Saint John, N.B., Aug. 8-13. All provinces will be represented and invitations are being mailed to a number of countries.

LBJ to See Thant But Prospects Dim

Hanoi Unmoved States Johnson

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — President Johnson has dashed any lingering hopes of Vietnam peace talks on the basis of diplomatic contacts by United Nations Secretary-General U Thant during the last 10 days.

The U.S. president will see Thant Wednesday. The UN secretary-general had talks with North Vietnamese envoys in New Delhi and Paris.

But Johnson told a press conference Friday that nothing he learned about Thant's mission changed his view that Hanoi is not willing to negotiate.

The president's statement was apparently an effort to counter any impression that the UN secretary-general would raise at their meeting of some new angle on peace talks.

"I don't think Hanoi is any more ready to negotiate today than it was a year ago, two years ago, or three years ago," the president said. "I don't think it has been at any time during any of that period."

The president's surprise news conference also sought to put an end to speculation that he was asked to use tactical nuclear weapons in Vietnam and to replace Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. commander there.

He said he never received any recommendations for use of nuclear weapons.

"It is one of the most awesome and grave decisions any president could be called upon to make," he added.

In Their Old Age -- Grief

Khe Sanh Is Aided By Massive Raids

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. planes aimed one of the heaviest bombardments of the war — nearly 1,500,000 pounds of explosives — at North Vietnamese troops threatening the northwest frontier outpost of Khe Sanh, the U.S. command reported today.

Along the east portion of South Vietnam's northern frontier, three Communists tanks were sighted.

The development boosted speculation that the expected giant assault on Khe Sanh might be accompanied by simultaneous attacks on other combined forces outposts all along the frontier between North and South Vietnam. Such a co-ordinated push likely would hamper quick reinforcement of the 5,000 U.S. marines at Khe Sanh.

About 50 miles below the frontier, Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops clinging to part of Hue's citadel for the 18th day tried today to drive back attacking U.S. marines with a new barrage of grenades and small-arms fire and hit U.S. tanks with a rocket.

The heavy return fire came after marine officers said they believed Viet Cong-North Vietnamese strength in the old walled citadel had been cut to about 500 men and that they hoped to drive them out within 48 hours.

Three Captured Airmen Freed by North Vietnam

MANILA (AP) — The first captured U.S. airmen to be freed by North Vietnam chatted with their anxious wives via telephone from this Philippine capital, then headed home today. The three men reported themselves weary and "emotionally overcome."

The freed airmen flew from Hanoi to Vietniane, Laos, on an International Control Commission plane, along with two U.S. pacifists who had gone to Hanoi to receive them.

Reporters were allowed to question the three only briefly at Vietniane. Maj. Morris Overly, 39, of Detroit, spoke for the group. He gave his rank and serial number in a toneless voice then said: "I was shot down on Sept. 11, 1967. I was treated well, as I observed other captured American pilots being treated. I would like to express my gratitude to the Vietnamese people."

The other two released airmen, who did not speak to reporters at all, are Capt. Jon David Black, 30, of Johnson City, Tenn., and Lieut. David Matheny, 23, of South Bend, Ind.

Quebec Will Set Up Immigration Office

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec provincial government has decided to set up its own department of immigration, Provincial Secretary Yves Gabias said Friday.

Mr. Gabias spoke at a reception attended by members of foreign consulates and by Jean Marchand, federal manpower and immigration minister.

Mr. Marchand's reaction was:

"They have the right under the constitution."

Mr. Gabias said:

"We are not infringing one bit on federal authority."

Legislation would be introduced during the next Quebec legislature session, which opens Tuesday, "creating an immigration department to assist integration of immigrants into Quebec's French-speaking community."

Agreement had been reached between Quebec and Ottawa to place Quebec immigration officials in Canada's immigration offices abroad "to help select the kind of immigrants we want."

Jobless Insurance Frauds Numerous

OTTAWA (CP) — A crackdown on fraudulent unemployment insurance claims which have been running at an annual rate of about $1,000,000 was announced Friday.

Jacques DesRoches, chief of the Unemployment insurance Commission, told a news conference a program is being set up to tighten the procedures for reviewing claims.

Last year about 700,000 of 1,212,740 initial claims were examined in detail. This work turned up 24,491 cases of fraud.

Fraudulent claims last year totalled $1,114,816, about one per cent of total UIC benefit payments.

Only Minor Changes Proposed in O Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — A parliamentary committee has replaced two of the five "we stand on guards" in O Canada with new words but otherwise has left the anthem intact.

In a report tabled in the Commons Friday, the special Senate-Commons committee recommended unanimously that the modified English verse and an unchanged French verse be adopted as the national anthem.

The committee also recommended that one verse in English and French of God Save the Queen be adopted as the royal anthem in Canada.

Prime Minister Pearson suggested before the committee went to work that a few of the "stand on guards"—which have traditionally tripped up Canadians singing the English version—could go.

The committee left the first four lines of the English version, which dates back to 1908 and was written by Montreal Judge Robert Stanley Weir unchanged except for a period at the end.

The first four lines go:

True patriot love in all thy sons command.
With glowing hearts we see
thee rise,
The True North, strong and free.

The major changes come in the last five lines, which would read:

From far and wide, O
Canada,
We stand on guard for thee.
God keep our land glorious
free!
O Canada, we stand on guard for three.
O Canada, we stand on guard for thee.

The words "from far and wide" replace "and stand on guard; "God keep our land" replaces "O Canada;" and the "O Canada" in the second last line replaces "we stand on guard."

The unamended French text is that written by Sir Adolphe Basile Routhier, a Quebec chief justice before his death in 1926.

The music of O Canada, written by Calixa Lavallee in 1880, was adopted by Parliament unchanged last April as the national anthem. A committee recommended only that sheet music carry the notation: "with dignity, not too slowly."

The music of God Save the Queen was adopted as the music for the royal anthem at the same time.

The present committee recommended that ethnic groups in Canada be encouraged to sing O Canada in their own language "to foster closer and warmer ties between all citizens of this country."

Russian Planes Did Not Invade American Air Space

OTTAWA (CP) — A flight of Russian bombers that scooted over the Atlantic east of Newfoundland a week ago raised questions in the Commons Friday.

Outside the House, the defence department said two of the Soviet jet bombers were quickly identified by interceptors and "turned away of their own accord" after they were spotted. They formed up with three other bombers and headed out of the area.

Defence Minister Cadieux told the Commons the bear D Russian bombe. were intercepted "well off our coasts" in international air space.

Their presence was used to test interception and identification procedures by the interceptors.

The defence department report of the incident said the identification was made by F-102 interceptors of North American Air Defence Command about 10[illegible] miles off the Newfoundland Coast.

"At no time" did the Russian planes enter North American air space, the department said. The NORAD planes had performed only "a routine identification."

Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) asked what right the NORAD planes had to intercept over international waters. Mr. Cadieux said the action had been limited to identification because the planes were flying in international air space.

The defence department declined to say whether the interceptors were Canadian or American or what base they flew from.

Killy Wins When Two Miss Gates

GRENOBLE (CP) — Jean-Claude Killy of France completed his Alpine skiing triple today when he was officially declared the winner of the men's special slalom at the Winter Olympic Games.

Killy, 24-year-old marvel of the ski slopes, added the special slalom to his earlier gold medals in the downhill and giant slalom to equal the feat scored in 1956 by Austria's Toni Sailer, the first to get three gold in the Alpine races.

Killy withstood faster times by Karl Schranz of Austria and Haakon Mjoen of Norway who were reported to have missed gates.

Dozen Die As Gas Is Thrown

MOBERLY, Mo. (AP) — A man flung a bucket of gasoline into a crowded tavern, touching off a holocaust that killed 12 persons Friday in downtown Moberly.

Police arrested Bill Coleman, 37, of Moberly.

A police spokesman said the victims—eight men and four women—apparently piled up against the rear door, which opened inward, and were unable to get out.

Toronto Mother Kills Sons

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Jeanne Kidd, 47, was charged with non-capital murder Friday after her three sons were found shot to death in their home in the borough of Scarborough.

A daughter, Nancy, 10, is in critical condition in Scarborough General Hospital after an operation for a gunshot wound in the stomach. Her survival chances were called slight.

Killed after they came home from school for lunch were Davis 13, Douglas 12, and Joseph 11.

Each, shot once, was dead on arrival at hospital. Police seized an old .303-calibre hunting rifle which they said had been fired at least six times.

The lever-action gun belonged to Mrs. Kidd's husband, Arthur, a railway locomotive engineer.

Metropolitan Toronto police went to the neat 1½-storey Kidd home shortly before 1 p.m. after Mrs. Kidd telephoned an operator and asked for help. The call was routed to the city's emergency call service.

Neighbors said the Kidds were quiet and kept mainly to themselves, except for their interest in hockey.

Mr. Kidd had set up flood lights over a rink in the back yard which drew children from blocks around.

Nearly 300,000 Books Borrowed From Library During Past Year

Library members in Belleville borrowed close to 300,000 books last year.

In a review of the year's activities, Corby Public Library board members at their annual meeting this week were told that 298,723 books were circulated during Centennial Year.

The report of Librarian Olive Delaney described the year as "impressive" and "exciting."

Circulation at the adult library totalled 181,280 books, while the branch library in East Belleville circulated 53,227 and another 62,076 books were borrowed from libraries in schools.

For the first time in almost ten years a statistical count of the library's book collection was taken last year. At the end of December there was a total of 78,806 books. Of these 46,377 were adult books at the main library, 5,104 adult books at the East Branch. Boys' and girls' books at the main library number 22,023 and at the branch library 5,301.

During the year 7,494 books were added to the library shelves many of these being Canadian.

The reference library had good use during the year, an estimate being that approximately 2,500 reference questions were answered and 7,353 books consulted by library patrons.

Film circulation remained fairly constant with a circulation of 441 films. Two hundred new long playing records were added to the music library with 222 being borrowed during the year.

The story hour program at the boys and girls library proved to be popular.

The library building is seeing good use for other than strictly library purposes. During the year the library auditorium was used for 56 meetings and art exhibitions. Two of the art exhibitions were special centennial showings.

Financially the public library is fast achieving a "big business' status.

Last year's budget totalled $133,714, of which $77,520 was received through the city tax levy and $34,000 from provincial grants.

Salaries for the 11 full time library workers and nine part time workers and maintenance man were the big expenditure item at $64,568.

A total of $26,472 was spent on new books, while deben-

The Bus Stops Here

And so did last night's gales. High winds sweeping Quinte district were blamed for wrecking this Belleville bus shelter on Front Street during night. Weatherman warns strong gusts will continue during weekend.

High Winds, Freezing Cold Predicted Weekend Weather

The Quinte district will stay battened against high winds through a weekend of freezing cold.

Temperatures will drop steadily to a low of five below tonight with winds gusting up to 40-45 miles per hour.

That's the dreary outlook predicted today by the duty forecaster at CFB Trenton.

The cold wave is belting in from the Northwest Territories, boosted along by winds that touched 54 miles an hour at one point last night.

The mercury went into decline after midnight when temperatures in the Belleville-Trenton area were around 22 degrees.

It has been slipping steadily since. By 9 a.m. today it was down to 11 degrees.

The weatherman says winds will continue through tomorrow, probably gusting at times up to 45 miles an hour.

One result will be sporadic drifting in open countryside.

Early today a motorcyclist crashed into the ditch west of Deseronto.

John Reddick of Frankford, told provincial police he lost his sense of direction in swirling snow. He was unhurt.

In Belleville, high winds also were blamed for blowing down a Front Street bus shelter during the night.

Large Government Grants

PE Conservation Budget of $56,000 OK'd

PICTON (Staff) — At the inaugural meeting of the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority this week approval was granted for a total capital works budget of $47,400. The administration budget was also passed for $8,800 and a total budget of $56,200.

The figures include grants from the Ontario Government leaving only a small portion to be raised locally through each municipality paying a portion depending on its assessment.

A new dam at Consecon, with an estimated cost of $20,900 was the largest single item in the capital budget.

Other proects provided for were, the establishment of a park in the mill - pond area at Bloomfield

A water conservation and park project at Fish Lake, land use projects at Massassaga and Point Traverse. It was also decided, at the meeting, to continue with the ground water survey being carried out by two Queen's University professors. A project claimed by chairman William Tatham to be one of the authority's most important ventures.

At the same meeting, Rossmore businessman W. C. Tatham was re - elected as chairman for the third year. Vice-chairman is former Reeve of Bloomfield Henry Leavens. Appointed secretary treasurer was Mrs. Earl Markland.

Chairmen for the advisory board were returned by acclamation. William Smith leads the finance advisory board. Ralph Margetson heads the water control advisory board with Donald Bond returned as land use advisory board head. Wild Life chairman is again Keith Perry.

A suggestion by the board's chairman W. C. Tatham aroused interest in the possibility of Prince Edward County becoming a year round recreation area and he proposed a study be made of the estimate of the county's potential.

Mr. Tatham said Prince Edward County is probably the most attractive area within commuting distance from Toronto and he felt it could easily become a mecca for year round recreation. To start the ball rolling he suggested a snowmobile Grand-Prix.

Mr. Tatham felt that it would be worth the authority's efforts to contact a recreation expert to conduct a study. Perhaps, he said, some of the 100,000 acres of poor farm land might be utilized.

Resources manager I. F. Jennings — official liaison between the provincial government at the conservation authority here and in Napanee — said there is a possibility the study could be carried out under a 75% ARDA grant or a 50% government grant if that is not possible.

Edgar Bateman Bows Out After 27 Years on Board

The Belleville Public Library Board this week bade farewell to a longtime member and past chairman, who has devoted nearly three decades of service to the city library cause.

At the board's annual meeting this week, public school principal J. Edgar Bateman bowed out after 27 years on the board.

Mr. J. K. Canty was named chairman for 1968 with Mrs. A. S. Lewis as vice-chairman. Harold Bankier is chairman of finance, Mrs. Douglas Boyle, chairman of property and Miss Olive Delaney, secretary-treasurer.

City appointees to the board include L. D. Read, H. Bankier and Mrs. A. S. Lewis. Public school board appointees are W. G. Anderson, M. M. Hackett and J. M. Cousins. Separate school board appointees are Mrs. Douglas Boyle and J. K. Canty.

Mayor J. Russell Scott is ex-officio member, while Mr. Anderson is the board appointee to the Lake Ontario Regional Library Board.

Board members expressed sincere regrets at Mr. Bateman's retirement from the library board. During the years he had taken an active part in committee work and retained an active interest in library promotion and development.

Mr. Bateman recalled his earlier years with the library board in which he termed "some of the bleak years in the library's history with lack of finances preventing payment even for a supply of coal."

In contrast brighter years saw completion of the extension to the Corby building, the erection of a new branch in the East End of the city, and planning for the present extension.

Hydro Chairman To Speak Here

George E. Gathercole, Chairman of Ontario Hydro, will address members of the Belleville Rotary Club next Monday, February 19, at Hotel Quinte. The topic of Mr. Gathercole's address will be "Meeting the Power Needs of Today and Tomorrow."

Reeve Suggests Two Year Terms

PICTON (Staff) — Reeve Bernard Hepburn, at this week's meeting of County Council, pointed out that all municipalities in Prince Edward County should seriously consider going on two year terms.

Mr. Hepburn said the new county school boards will be on two year terms beginning 1 January 1969 and it would be more practical and economical for councils to do likewise, holding one set of elections every two years for all offices.

He added that several, including Picton, are already on two year terms. Others are North Marysburgh, Bloomfield and Athol townships. Reeve George Foster of Sophiasburgh announced that his council has passed a motion to have the necessary bylaw prepared and will thus become the fifth municipality in the county to go on the two year term.

Reeve George Cunningham of Ameliasburg said his council has considered two year terms but turned it down last year. He thought two year terms are a good idea but they should be alternated between municipalities in the county so there would be no danger of a complete new county council.

How Not to Gas Up!

Driver of this car narrowly missed gasoline tap on this 1,600-gallon tanker . . . luckily. Stove oil lines were smashed spewing fuel around CNR Wallbridge Road crossing. Police say 12 inches made difference in possible explosive situation. No one was hurt.

Auto - Tanker Collision Inches Away from Death

A mere 12 inches may have made the difference between danger and just another road mishap near Belleville today.

No one was injured when an automobile smashed into the rear of a 1,600-gallon road tanker on Wallbridge Road near a CNR level-crossing.

The impact wrecked two outlets on the tanker, spewing fuuel oil over both vehicles.

However, say provincial police, the car, driven by Santender Saini, 31, of Cobourg, missed a third tap connected to the tanker's gasoline compartment.

Just another 12 inches could have had tricky results — possibly an explosion, say police.

City firemen rushed to the scene to hose down the escaping fuel oil.

Damage was estimated at $1,100 to Saini's car and $300 to the tanker.

Large Crowd Enjoys Numbers in 'Moirantics'

Moira Secondary School's "Moirantics" is an example of the old maxim of the man who works hard is successful.

An estimated 600 students, teachers, proud parents and amateur show fans filed into Moira's gymnasium to enjoy song and dance and humor.

Following the theme "Dear Diary: a girl looks back on her high school life" the show exhibited folk-singing, humorous skits and dance routines.

Among the skits were satirical comments based on school life, the cafeteria, the smoking section. A few little barbs were directed to the principal.

Outstanding was the mock trial of students with a student acting as the outraged judge, the principal.

Dance routines such as "A Mathematical Nightmare" highlighted the program.

The show continues tonight at 8.?0 p.m. Admission is $1 for adults and 50c for students.

Rabies Threat

Animals infected with rabies are a serious menace. With that in mind it is inconceivable that dog owners would allow their pets to run at large.

Yet that is what has been happening in Belleville — and only a few days after warnings from health authorities. On Wednesday three children were bitten on a public school playground. Two dogs were subsequently impounded, as were four others observed later at the playground.

The incidents moved public health officer Dr. C. R. Lenk to say: "This proves that people don't take care at all. The time for talking mildly is past. People must realize that humans are more important than animals."

True — but the trouble too often is that people just don't care "period." They don't care about society in general let alone about their pets.

However, they should be warned. For one thing, animals should be given anti-rabies shots. And secondly they should be kept off the streets.

Township Dilemma

Thwarted by the Queen's Park decision not to permit any further sub-division in rural areas where there are no sewer and water services, Thurlow township officials are understandably upset.

Reeve Carl Thompson says the decision will keep building in the city, while secretary-treasurer Earl Dafoe points out that sewer and watermain approval is difficult to obtain when residential development is already lacking.

Yet the township has just been declared a designated area for new industry. This will permit financial assistance for new industries or the expansion of existing plants.

Obviously Thurlow cannot have it both ways. "No services — no industries" would be an accurate summation of the dilemma.

The Department of Municipal Affairs should look into this situation. It is all very well saying there should be services before any development is permitted. But to sit back and do nothing about it is of no help to Thurlow or any other township.

Queen's Park should look into ways of encouraging residential and industrial development in rural townships. Township residents in turn have an opportunity to display some initiative. There may be room for small industries of the kind that stem from the imagination of some enterprising individual or family.

College Building

If Loyalist College's temporary new quarters, to be erected on the existing campus at Centennial high school, sounds like an economy effort in line with the current cutback in spending, college authorities are not saying anything.

Not on that theme anyway. Rather, they say the $500,000 building will look after college needs for two or three years, by which time a permanent campus should be in being.

Again, having served its initial purpose, the temporary structure will be retained for some other use. The flexibility of its design, said a college spokesman, presents "all sorts of possibilities."

College President J. K. Bradford describes the building as "an entirely new concept." However, the information that the building section will be bolted together at the site suggests it is very much in the tradition of rapid-construction methods in use in various parts of the world.

In any event, the main thing is that Loyalist will now have space to get its educational program well on the way. That further use for the building will be found once a permanent structure is erected is all to the good.

Easter

Standardization of the Easter holiday period in the schools makes sense.

With the vacation set for March 16 to 24 each year the school year will now be divided into equal periods. In addition the Good Friday and Easter Monday holidays will still be observed.

To make up the extra holiday, students will work an additional day in the summer. This will be no hardship. Indeed the new system will avoid a variation in vacation dates of as much as a month from year to year and enable families to plan ahead.

Ottawa Offbeat

Research Team Lightens Load of Overworked MP's

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Just suppose you are a member of Parliament.

Right away, if you set out to do any sort of a reasonably decent job, you are vastly overworked.

Sure, you are well paid at $18,000 plus some pretty nice prerequisites such as airline and railway passes, no-toll long distance phone service, postage-free mail and such.

But actually, your $18,000 is almost going to have to be made of elastic to stretch far enough to cover the cost of two homes, one here and the other back in the riding, to meet all requests for funds for every just and good cause, to pay old election debts and make provision for the next campaign, to entertain constituents on Ottawa visits and to meet the hundred and one particular demands on your wallet that confront only an MP.

So if you are an average MP, you find yourself most of the time running into the financial red.

This is bad enough. But worse if you give the job your very best — and most of them do — then you find yourself overworked, as many have, to the point of endangering your health.

The life-tables of the insurance companies place MPs in the same high-risk category as medical men, newspaper people, criminal lawyers, corporation executives, and others who work fatiguing hours under tension.

Deaths in the House of Commons bear out the statistics.

As an MP you are expected to attend the sessions of the Commons with something approaching regularity, speak for your constituency, take assignments on House committees, attend to the countless requirements and demands of your individual constituents, keep a heavy correspondence going at the rate of a score or more letters a day, do dozens of other chores expected of a parliamentarian — and make an instant speech, here, there and everywhere requested.

You haven't time to properly research a speech, let alone write it. You often haven't even time, except on the fly, to think very much about it before you find yourself on the platform making it.

You have been getting little if any help with preparation of speeches for the Commons, for house committees, for the Board of Trade, the Lions Club or your church group back home.
